"When I came here three years ago, I had a lot of big dreams. It's been a long road, a tough road, but a great one."

- UK quarterback Tim Couch, on leaving early for the NFL Draft

Couch NFL bound

Bye-bye U of K: Couch says going pro fulfills childhood backyard dreams

By Matt May
SPORTSDAILY EDITOR

In expected fashion, UK quarterback Tim Couch announced yesterday he will leave the Bluegrass for the greener grass of the National Football League.

"When I came here three years ago, I had a lot of big dreams," Couch said. "It's been a long road, a tough road, but a great one. I've made my decision. I am leaving school early and enter the NFL Draft."

The decision ended over a year of speculation about the junior's chances of turning pro, and possibly being picked No. 1 overall. Couch, who threw for 8,435 yards at UK and holds four NCAA, 14 Southeastern Conference, and 26 school records, is predicted to be chosen first by the expansion Cleveland Browns in the April draft.

Couch said the chance to play for an organization such as the Browns and his dream of being a Joe Montana-like NFL quarterback led to his decision.

"There are no guarantees in anything, but I have a chance to play for a great organization," Couch said.

"I thought about it for a couple of days. It's a long drive from Tampa (Fla.) to Ashland, Ky. I laid in bed and thought about it and my dreams of being like Joe Montana." Couch had the opportunity to meet his idol Wednesday night in Cleveland over dinner, something Couch said was priceless.

"I talked to Joe Montana," Couch said. "He's where I want to be. I asked him if he was trying to throw the ball away or to Dwight Clark in the corner of the zone."

Couch was talking about the touchdown pass Montana threw against the Dallas Cowboys nearly 15 years ago in the NFC Conference Championship game. That play has become the signature of Joe Montana, something Couch will now look to create for himself.

A teary-eyed Couch said he would never forget the people of Kentucky.

"I chose UK mainly because of the people of the Commonwealth," Couch said. "If I had it to do all over again, I'd do the same."

UK receives donation

UK Athletics Director C.M. Newton announced yesterday that a $1.6-million donation from former Kentuckian Paul Orber-son that will go toward building an addition onto the Nutter Training Facility to house the offices of the football coaching staff.

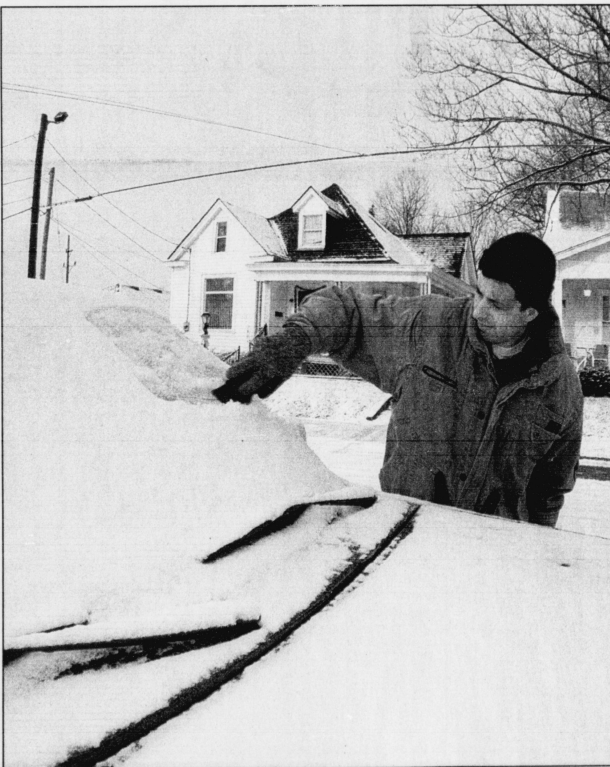

Newton said the addition is needed because presently, the coaches offices are across the street in Commonwealth Stadium.

Orber-son, a self-proclaimed UK fan, joked that he could have given more. "I was going to give a couple mil, but I took Coach (Alvis) Johnson out to lunch at the Waffle House four times," Orber-son joked.

Tim Couch laughed during his news conference yesterday when he announced his intentions to enter the NFL Draft.

WEATHERING THE STORMS

HOBIE HILER | KERNEL STAFF

Park Avenue resident Matt Watts scraped the snow off his windshield yesterday morning. Watts was one of many Lexington residents who woke up to an inch of snow on the ground. Flurries continued into the early evening.

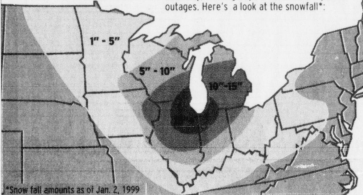

Someone managed to keep a sense of humor after last weekend's snowstorm in Elkhart, Ind. The city (left) received 16 inches of snow during the storm. Also around the nation, several airports in the Midwest were closed down because of inclement weather.

Winter in like a lion

Lexington misses brunt of storm that dumps snow, ice, sleet on other Midwest cities

By Karla Dooley
ASSISTANT NEWS EDITOR

A winter storm rung in the new year by dumping a combination of sleet, snow and rain on the Midwest late last week.

It left behind below-normal temperatures and made travel difficult for many UK students who were on their way back to campus. Although Lexington escaped the brunt of the storm, temperatures dipped to 13 degrees, and ice and snow covered the streets, according to the UK Agricultural Weather Center. On Jan. 5, many people across the state experienced the coldest morning in two years.

Now, with more snow expected this weekend and highs reaching only into the 20s, the chances of students starting off the spring semester with tricky weather seems highly probable.

But as UK students found out during last year's winter storm, and Joe Burch points out, it takes a lot of snow for UK officials to cancel or delay classes.

"Every year I've been surprised because businesses and schools shut down for snow," said Carol Akai, a psychology junior from Granger, Ind.

"If the city is open, we're open," Burch said. "We're not like the high schools and the elementary schools - we don't ride the little yellow school bus to school. We operate as an adult institution."

Burch, who makes the decision to call off school, said he usually tries to make an announcement on whether to cancel classes by 6 a.m., after being advised by the UK Police, who monitor the National Weather Service, and the UK Physical Plant Division.

"We don't give up around here just because it's winter," Burch said. But students who have lived in northern cities say Lexington's attitude toward the white stuff is a joke compared with its northern neighbors.

"I think it's funny waking up to an alarm clock and ... the schools are closed," said Jennifer D'Alaird, an animal science graduate student from Chicago. "Up in Chicago, that's nothing."

D'Alaird said the 22 inches of snow Chicago residents woke up to on New Year's Day kept them inside only until Sunday, and she was able to come home with few problems.

"We were able to take care of it in 24 hours, and here we were nailed for four days and couldn't go anywhere (during last year's heavy snow)," she said.

"Every year I've been surprised (because businesses and schools shut down for snow)," said Carol Akai, a psychology junior from Granger, Ind.

"For a foot of snow, I don't think that's necessary."

To check for delayed or canceled classes, Burch said students should look at the UK website or UKTV, cable channel 16, or call the UK inoline at 257-5684.

MOVIE REVIEW

Love's limitations

Fiennes, Paltrow give Shakespeare life in possible Oscar-winner about how love is passion, pain

By Chris Campbell

Inspiration is the key to any good writer. Funny to see it written by a writer, but the phrase is nonetheless true.

When we meet our famed playwright Will Shakespeare, he is in dire need of inspiration in the writing of his newest play, Romeo and Ethel, the Pirate's Daughter. There is also the subplot of two writers (Shakespeare and Christopher Marlowe) trying to outdo one another for money and fame.

Shakespeare in Love is about a man searching for a muse for his play, and he finds it in the beautiful Gwyneth Paltrow, who plays the daughter of a rich landowner.

Viola (Paltrow) has a love for Will's work, and breaks convention by attending his plays regularly. Will has a love for Viola, but walls always come between their chances for true love to survive.

When Will announces auditions for Romeo, Viola dresses as a man and wins the role of Romeo. Through her and Will's subsequent romance, he finds the inspiration to write the newly retitled play, Romeo and Juliet.

Wit is the true joy of this film, because while the humor is nothing to laugh down the isles with, it is enough for several giggles and laughs, which is all the movie is going for.

Also, Joseph Fiennes (Will) and Paltrow do something Leonardo and Claire could not — the late-1500s stage to their steamy moments off it, from which Romeo and Juliet was originally intended. Their love is powerful, and while their pairing is not the best in Hollywood history, they are enough to bring love and passion to the words of Shakespeare.

Those who have great love for the Bard will enjoy the unmistakable attempts at incorporating many of his ideas in the movie — ghosts, transvestites, poetry, mistaken identities and some of the best moments from Romeo and Juliet. There is even a sly poke at one of the great debates of whether Shakespeare was gay.

Judi Dench and several others make bit-part appearances throughout. Dench stands as the powerful Queen Elizabeth; Ben Affleck stars as a popular English actor, although his accent is undesirable; Colin Firth plays Viola's ruthless and money-hungry husband-to-be Lord Wessex; and Geoffrey Rush is Francis Walsingham, proprietor of The Rose theater.

John Madden, who directed Dench in the acclaimed Mrs. Brown, takes the chair for this period piece. He does a fantastic job of giving the audience a feel for a time in which two lovers have odds they will never overcome. There are plenty of moments viewers will cherish what Will and Viola share in their hearts.

Beside Golden Globe nominations out the wazoo (Best Picture, Best Director, Best Screenplay, Best Actress), it already has been tagged as an Oscar contender for similar awards. Shakespeare in Love is what most want in their lives — passion, victory in battle, defeat in love, and the love it takes to hold on for the search of the person who is most dear.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

Health plan approved

Plan gaining momentum: UK may offer free health care coverage to graduate students

By Mark Vanderhoff

A proposal for free health care coverage for UK graduate employees gained momentum over the holidays after the University Senate voted unanimously to recommend the proposal to UK President Charles Wethington and the administration.

"No one spoke out at the meeting in opposition to it," said Roy Moore, senate council chair and journalism professor. "The room was jam-packed, full of graduate students and other people who supported it."

Fellow senate council member Susan Mains led graduate students and worked with the senate council to research and write the proposal. "I believe this united support reflects very strong concern about graduate students' quality of life and the responsibility that the University has to take for that," said Mains, Graduate School senator for the Student Government Association.

Graduate students targeted for free health care are paid by UK as assistants and fellows, but contractually cannot work more than 20 hours a week, making it nearly impossible to afford UK's existing health care plan. "I received a lot of comments from graduate students who are worrying a lot about their health and what will happen to them if they happen to get ill," Mains said. "This bill is to reduce as much as possible this fear."

The idea of covering health care costs for graduate students has been tossed around for years, Moore said, but one obstacle stood in the way: funding.

Wethington said he expects Fitzgerald Bramwell, vice president of Research and Graduate Studies, to bring the proposal to Wethington and the administration for consideration in the 1999-2000 budget.

"This is a proposal (the University Senate) favor, and we want this to be a priority item in the budget," Moore said. First, fixed costs such as utilities must be paid, said Wethington, who also has a priority of his own: increasing faculty and staff salaries.

"The money on the table makes a huge difference," he said.

Despite the expense, the proposal has drawn support from council members and graduate students, and is recognized as integral to the University's success as a top academic institution.

"This is an issue that we will need to deal with to be competitive with good graduate schools across the country," Wethington said. If Wethington and the administration include the proposal in the annual budget, the Board of Trustees will vote on the final budget and make the proposal a reality.

The plan

What it does

... to cover 100 percent of all costs of individual health coverage benefits for all graduate and professional students who are funded full time (maximum of 20 hours) as Teaching Assistants, Research Assistants, Graduate Assistants, and Fellows.

The Rationale:

- 1) Health care attracts "high caliber" graduate students, who in turn are integral to UK becoming a top-20 research institution.
- 2) UK graduate employees are not allowed to work more than 20 hours a week, earning an average yearly stipend of only about $9,000.
- 3) A recent student survey reflects dissatisfaction with the current health insurance plan, citing inadequate benefits and extraordinary expenses.
- 4) The "physical and mental well-being" of graduate students is important to UK.
