University Senate rejects calendar change

By NANCY DALY
Assistant Managing Editor

A proposal to move semesters up a week beginning in fall, 1978 met vehement opposition from the University Senate Monday.

Dean of Admissions and Registrar Albert W. Ockerman proposed the change as a means of solving problems associated with the timing of Christmas vacation.

The University has virtually shut down the entire week of Christmas, Ockerman said, which causes problems in finishing up academic matters from the semester concluded just a week earlier. Ockerman said the calendar change would solve these problems.

But the Senate didn't see it his way. Dr. Rey Longyear, music school senator, said, "on academic matters the 'extra-early calendar' cannot be substantiated."

Longyear said faculty could not afford the loss of one teaching day Ockerman's proposal would have caused, because of increasing knowledge in academic fields. He said alternatives to moving school up a week were not fully explored, such as teaching on Labor Day and holding final examinations on Sundays.

Student Senator Mary Duffy said the proposed calendar's scheduling of non-advance registration and centralized drop-add on the same day would be detrimental to students and cause administrative confusion.

Other senators opposed the change since many faculty members are out of town in late August for professional meetings or family vacations and because students can earn more money working another week during the summer rather than before Christmas.

Only a handful of senators voted to support the change so the 1978-79 calendar will be consistent with tradition.

Enrollment reaches all-time high

By MARY ELISE BIEGERT
Kernel Staff Writer

UK enrolled a record 21,488 students this semester, according to figures released by the admissions and registrar office.

This enrollment is a 5.5 per cent increase over last year's 20,359 enrollment, and it is one of the largest increases in recent years.

The incoming freshman class alone increased 19 per cent, to 3,318 students, making it the largest freshman class ever on campus. Of the new freshmen, 67 per cent are women, and women outnumber men 2 to 1.

In the breakdown by colleges, all showed increases except architecture, education and social professions.

Architecture enrollment dropped 19.6 per cent, from 491 to 395 students. This decrease was due to the program of selective admissions begun this fall by the college.

Enrollment in education was down 16.5 per cent, from 2,018 to 1,686. Social professions enrollment dropped 14 per cent, from 443 to 381, and home economics enrollment fell from 681 to 677.

Graduate school enrollment jumped 15.1 per cent, from 2,806 to 3,230. Agriculture recorded the second highest increase, 12.7 per cent, from 1,200 to 1,353. Business and economics enrollment increased 9.3 per cent, from 2,231 to 2,438.

Arts & Sciences, the largest of the colleges, increased 5.5 per cent, from 6,038 to 6,373 students.

The following colleges also showed increased enrollments (last year's figures in parentheses): law, 500 (480); pharmacy, 285 (285); medicine, 432 (415); dentistry, 247 (242); engineering, 1,281 (1,080); allied health, 537 (517); nursing, 598 (562).

Enrollment was up in three other areas of the University. Fort Knox enrollment increased from 563 to 650. Evening enrollment increased from 817 to 900, and the Extension Class Program (correspondent courses) jumped from 550 to 575.

This fall, there are 5,403 freshmen; 3,889 sophomores; 3,674 juniors; 4,061 seniors; 3,238 graduate students; 1,179 professional students (law, medicine and dentistry); and 44 auditors.

Keller Dunn, admissions and registrar, is currently conducting a study of UK enrollment to determine why it increased so significantly, in particular the number of incoming freshmen.

Student Senate passes new by-laws, but rejects pro-busing resolution

By DAN CRUTCHER
Kernel Staff Writer

The 1975-76 Student Senate, in its first fall semester meeting Monday night, approved a set of by-laws and tabled a controversial busing resolution.

The by-laws, sponsored by Student Government (SG) President Jim Harrison and SG Vice President Glenn Stith, set up a procedure and a labeling system for senate consideration of legislation. They state that legislation will be introduced in the form of either bills or resolutions — a bill being a matter which requires SG action; a resolution being a "statement of support, endorsement, disgust, etc., that does not require action or prohibition of action" by SG.

The by-law adoption is mostly a mechanical change designed to clarify the procedure by which legislation moves through the senate. It also agrees with the labeling of legislation as named in the SG constitution by using the word "bill." Formerly, action was taken by the senate in the form of "motions."

The by-laws, with several amendments, passed unanimously. A resolution on the Louisville busing situation sponsored by the Student Coalition Against Racism (SCAR) spawned about an hour of lively, if not heated, debate among senate members before being tabled.

By tabling the resolution, the Senate postponed action until the next meeting. If not acted upon next meeting, the resolution is killed.

The resolution asked that the Senate "go on record as condemning the racist violence attending busing in Louisville, and in support of desegregation, and in support of an adequate defense of the school children concerned."

Janet Patterson, business and economics senator, makes a point in Monday's debate over a pro-busing resolution.

To the point

It's time to play UL

Everyone knows the only real basketball played in Kentucky is played by the UK Wildcats, right? UK and Kentucky basketball tradition are synonymous and let no man put asunder what Adolph Rupp hath joined together.

In case you hadn't noticed there's a rather large city northwest of Lexington. And in that city is located a university, the University of Louisville (UL) which does have a basketball team, the Cardinals.

Now of course they aren't anywhere near as good as we are, but a look at the Cardinals' record does reveal they have attended the NCAA finals twice in the last four years. The team also holds an ongoing NCAA record of 31 consecutive winning seasons — not bad for amateurs.

However, under the circumstances why UL would agree to play UK if they could possibly avoid it is beyond imagination, they would obviously have no chance at victory, right?

Well, UL has indicated they would like to play UK and a new NCAA measure allowing member teams the option of scheduling a 27th regular season game has made it possible.

There's only one problem — the UK Athletic Association won't agree to schedule a UK-UL match this year. In fact, officials will admit only to "considering it" for the 1976-77 season. Now the obstacle keeping such a game from materializing certainly can't be money. A Louisville-Kentucky match would, beyond a doubt, sell out.

UK Basketball Coach Joe B. Hall takes the back door out, saying he's happy with his schedule. Since when has the athletic association paid so much attention to how the basketball coach feels about his schedule when money is involved.

The reasons behind the attempt to avert scheduling a UK-UL match seem all too clear. Athletic association officials are afraid of losing. Such a loss would remove UK from its pedestal of basketball dominance. Meaning that a good high school player, who at one time would have considered only UK for basketball in Kentucky, might give UL a second thought.

If the Wildcats consent to play the Cardinals by default they recognize the existence of the UL team. But UL's team does exist and they're good. By refusing to play the Cardinals we're not gaining in prominence, but showing a yellow streak a mile wide.

Set the record straight

Editor:

This letter is in reference to the August 29 article concerning the recent personnel preparation grant that was awarded to the Department of Special Education. There were two points in the article that I would like to correct.

The statement was made that 850 additional special education teachers are needed in Kentucky. This figure is for this current year only. Actually, an additional three to four thousand teachers are required to meet the needs of exceptional children in the Commonwealth.

It was also stated that no new doctoral students were admitted to the doctoral program last year due to lack of funds. We did not admit doctoral students last year because we were revising our doctoral curriculum, not because we lacked funds. We spent last year developing several new courses and practicum experiences which we believe will strengthen the quality of our doctoral program considerably.

I appreciate your interest in providing news coverage about our department; however, I did want to set the record straight on these two items.

Commends Kernel

Editor:

It isn't often that a University's paper is acknowledged by its readers; except in such cases as to rebel against editorials of staff writers themselves for being biased. But think of what the school paper supplies for us as students of UK.

It informs us of both national and international affairs as well as campus issues and activities. The wide variety of advertisements keeps us in touch with what's happening and where to find it in Lexington and the surrounding area.

In a recent issue of the Kernel it was stated that 90 per cent of the UK campus reads the school paper, congratulations! Obviously you and your staff are doing something right. I am part of that 90 per cent who both reads and enjoys the Kernel. At times, yes, I have found it to be a bit biased, but then, at times, aren't we all? Overall I feel that it covers a well-balanced selection of editorials and information.

I would especially like to congratulate your new addition to the staff, (Anthony) Pearce-Batten. His touch is just what was needed. Somewhat comical yet not so much as to be insulting to the intelligence of his readers. I shall truly look forward to reading his weekly column.

I would like to commend you and your staff on a successful paper and wish all of you the best of luck for the coming year; you'll probably need it.

Busing denies freedom

Editor:

I was caught in the aftermath of Friday's riot in Louisville. I have only a few things to say; Is the American government so blind that it cannot see what it is doing? First, it says you must send your child to school until he is a certain age. Now, it is leaving no choice in where to send my child. All my personal freedom is being stripped from me bit by bit.

I see no need in the wanton destruction of public and private property, but the government has misused the trust and responsibility that I have willingly given to try to pry more out of me. Wake up! Can Judge Gordon really say, "You have to do this because I say so." Will Americans allow this? I think not. But still I would urge more peaceable means to get my point across. I would suggest; parents take your children to school and sit there, at the school to which they go; make the state enforce its rules and arrest us all, but remember they must feed and clothe us. And what will you do to our children, behead them? America and its use of freedom is now becoming a dictatorship through mass apathy, which has now fallen back on us. Act now!

Male queen for a day

Editor:

Last Tuesday the Student Center Board ended a tradition that has been associated with the football program for many years.

Homecoming is the highlight of the football season for high school as well as college students. With males now allowed to enter the homecoming queen contest, how can this special event be the same? Imagine a nationally televised homecoming game. Millions of people expecting to see our Kentucky-bred girls they've always heard about, only to find a man leading the flowered procession.

If the SCB must submit to the pressure of today's sexual equality issues, let's give the boys their own special occasion to be queen for a day.

Fuel oil only alternative Gas cut may hurt UK

By STEVE BALLINGER
Kernel Staff Writer

A severely cold winter, university boiler facilities and a proposed natural gas curtailment plan could put the budget deeply in the red this year, said James Wessels, physical plant director.

University boiler facilities are only partially able to use coal as a fuel, said Wessels. If enough natural gas cannot be found, the only other alternative is fuel oil, which is twice as expensive to use, he said.

A curtailment plan submitted by Jim Forrest, industrial engineer for Columbia Gas of Kentucky, could limit University use of natural gas to 60 per cent of actual need.

First priority under Forrest's plan is given to human needs institutions (such as hospitals) and residential use. Commercial institutions, including UK, can be curtailed to 60 per cent of their energy needs. (University residence halls would not be curtailed under the plan.)

Natural gas supplies depend greatly upon the weather. If Kentucky has a severely cold winter this year, demand for fuel will increase and the price will go up, said Wessels.

Natural gas prices have soared since 1973 when 1,000 cubic feet cost the university 73 cents. "We've already hit the price we anticipated it would cost at this time," said Wessels.

The University expected the price of natural gas to be $1.14 per 1,000 cubic feet. The current cost is now $1.26, said Wessels. Use of natural gas is kept to 50 million cubic feet per month and no more than 4 million a day, he said.

An unusually cold winter and the resulting rise in fuel costs could prove as expensive as last year, when fuel expenditures were $1.5 million more than expected, said Wessels.

Forrest said Columbia Gas was already expecting a shortage of natural gas from projected consumption figures, though it was still too early to tell how serious it might be. Columbia retails natural gas throughout central Kentucky.

Forrest saw some benefit for future energy needs in higher fuel prices. "It's going to take higher prices to stimulate exploration for natural gas, and also for other sources of energy," he said.

The masters of photography have always needed a photographic system that would allow the full expression of their creativity. Their choice since photography's infancy has been the view camera, for in spite of the tremendous technological advances made in the field of photography since Alfred Steiglitz started taking pictures of the New York skyline through his apartment window, no system has ever been developed that can do the things a view camera is capable of doing.

Student Senate tables anti-busing resolution

It also asked the Senate to support the efforts of SCAR and other organizations "to defend desegregation and the democratic rights of Blacks."

After amending the resolution three times, the Senate finally decided, by a 16-12 vote, to table it.

Hal Haering, Senator-at-large, said in opposing the resolution, "The tone of this bill implies that if you're against busing, you're for racism. I know it's going to come out that if we're against it, we're for racism, and if we're for it, we're Communists."

Janet Patterson, Business and Economics senator, said "I think the whole thing was shoddily drawn up. The statements in here have not been empirically proven. Personally, I'm against the resolution."

Pelle said he was "strongly disappointed" that the resolution was tabled. "I think the problem was basically a racist mental block against the resolution...I really didn't understand what their objections were."

In other business, the Senate approved a bill which calls for the Senate's Student Affairs Committee to conduct an investigation of the landlord-student situation and consider the possibility of authorizing a tenant-rights handbook.

U-Senate rejects calendar change

The Senate was more receptive to a recommendation on Arts & Sciences (A&S) reorganization from its committee on academic structure and organization. Recommendations on school of communications realignment were almost unanimously approved after an explanation by committee chairman James Criswell.

Communications realignment, which is still subject to Board of Trustees approval, would abolish the school of communications structure of separate journalism, speech and telecommunications departments. Elements of the school would be realigned into two educational units within the College of Arts and Sciences: a school of journalism and a department of human communications.

Realignment is only temporary, Criswell said, since a new College of Communications may be formed as part of A&S reorganization. Discussions must take place on whether to merge the College of Library Science with communications into a separate college.

President Otis A. Singletary earlier urged the Senate to approve communications realignment and said he would recommend it to the Trustees when they meet next Tuesday.

Spivey presents live mascot; Owens not in starting lineup

By SHELIA LEIGH
Kernel Staff Writer

For the first time in 22 years, Wildcat fans have a live mascot.

A twelve-week-old wildcat kitten was presented to Athletic Director Cliff Hagan yesterday at the Shivley Sports Center from Bill Spivey, current K-Men's Association president.

The male kitten, yet to be named, was donated to the K-Men's Association (UK alumni varsity athletes) by Bill Cornett, a former K-man himself.

According to Spivey, the new mascot is nearly identical to the popular 'Gray' painting, which is found in the campus bookstores and on posters and stickers. The mother cat was located by Cornett in South Dakota and the young kitten, raised as a domestic animal, was from her 11th litter.

Both Hagan and Spivey, in the formal presentation, found the unnamed mascot to have sharp claws.

The kitten is permanently being taken care of by the Sheabel Kennel Company on Richmond Road and viewers will be allowed to see the kitten during business hours.

The mascot has a temporary mobile home which will be carted onto the sidelines of the football field and the corner of the basketball court during each respective season.

The kitten should grow to approximately 40 pounds — two and one-half his present size.

Spivey said there will be a "Name the Wildcat" contest and he said both students and other fans should enter their name idea for the male kitten.

After practicing since Aug. 19, the Wildcats are ready both "physically and mentally," Curci said. "My only fear is for the team to get off to a bad start due to petty errors."

The starting offensive unit is set for this Saturday's game, "in all likelihood," Curci indicated.

Junior Cliff Hite will be counted on to carry on the tradition of graduated star Mike Fanuzzi. Tom Dornbrook has taken over the injury-riddled center position and Tampa transfer Vin Hoover has taken the tight end spot vacated by Elmore Stephens.

One big surprise is the disappointing performance of pre-season split end favorite Dallas Owens.

Owens is reportedly only the fourth best split end this week. Starting punter Pete Gemmill has apparently won the starting split end position, also.

Spivey sues Bantam Inc.

By JOHN VOGEL
Sports Editor

Bill Spivey, a UK All-American basketball star in 1951, has recently filed suit against Bantam Books, Inc. for $10 million. Spivey has accused the publishing firm of libeling him, stating that he and some other players were involved in point shaving.

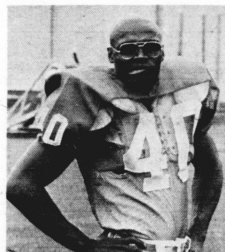

The alleged libel occurred in a book entitled "Basketball's Unforgettables," said to have been written by Mac Davis and published by Bantam last March.

Spivey, who recently moved back to Lexington from Louisville where he was a resident for 16 years, commented on his court action yesterday while at Shively Sports Center to present a live Wildcat mascot from the K-Men's Association to the University.

"Davis made some flagrant remarks in his book," Spivey said. "They are totally untrue. I went to court to prove it and I took a lie detector test," Spivey said. "I passed with flying colors."

"How Davis could accuse me, I don't know," Spivey concluded. A teammate of Spivey's, Wallace Jones, sued Bantam earlier this year on similar grounds. The basketball scandals, which involved several members of the basketball teams of the postwar years at the University, broke just after the season closed in 1951.

Spivey was indicted and tried in New York, but was not convicted.

Hall against scheduling 27th game this season

By DICK GABRIEL
Assistant Sports Editor

Joe B. Hall, head basketball coach, said yesterday that a 27th game would cause problems in ticket set-ups, possible facility problems, and conflict with Southeastern Conference televised game rules. Therefore, the extra game is out of the picture for this season.

"We'll try to add an attractive team to our schedule," Hall said, speaking of next year.

Hall did not care to go into any of the reasons in great detail, saying that he would "end up editorializing, and I don't want to do that."

Apparently, an extra game would create problems with season-ticket holders and with the actual ticket processing.

Hall said that there was no space in the schedule provided for the game, which means that it might be difficult in securing the use of Memorial Coliseum at that time.

Hall answered the speculation of a game in a neutral site with a puzzled look. The possibility of playing Louisville in St. Louis on national television had been mentioned, but Hall was oblivious to this idea.

"The people who made those statements don't know our problems or the situation," he said. "Before they made those statements, they should've checked with us."

The SEC has several complex rules concerning televising of away games by its member schools. In order for all schools to be protected, the member schools must comply. This would keep a televised game from hurting attendances at other conference games.

"I'm totally against the rule," Hall said. "I don't like it at all. But until the rule changes, we'll abide by it. It's either that or else we'll have to get out of the conference. And I'm in favor of staying in the conference."

All together now

The annual Tug-of-War event was held last Thursday night at the Seaton Center intramural fields and Farmhouse Fraternity is shown here competing in their division. The Fraternity winner was Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The Residence Hall division winner was Hagin A-1 and the Independent division was won by the Aggies. In the women's division Kappa Kappa Gamma was the overall winner.

Desegregation

Children stay home in Louisville despite assurances of safety...

By GEORGE W. HACKETT
 Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE—Armed National Guardsmen and police with firm instructions to prevent any violence rode school buses Monday, but attendance still dropped in Jefferson County schools.

Of 118,000 youngsters eligible to enroll, 80,238 had signed up and 66,728 were present for classes Monday, the third day of desegregation, said Supt. Ernest C. Grayson.

Grayson also said 84 of the approximately 6,300 teachers were absent, more than twice the number on each of the first two days of school.

He did not say whether the pupil absenteeism was related to a boycott called by those protesting the busing of their youngsters.

The only incident reported was the arrest of a 16-year-old black boy at Shawnee High School. He was armed with a loaded .38 caliber revolver. Police charged him with carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

There were no pickets, apparently because of an order from U.S. District Judge James F. Gordon, who placed the schools off-limits to everyone but required personnel.

Gordon also banned demonstrations after a weekend of violence that ended with nearly 200 persons injured and about 600 arrested on various charges.

About 200 bus drivers did not report for work, including some who explained they were refused gas by service stations, Grayson said. The 577 buses are owned by the school system and private contractors.

A check at two schools that had experienced weekend trouble showed low attendance.

At Southern High School in southwestern Jefferson County, attendance was reported at 440 out of 889 pupils enrolled. At Shawnee High School, where 203 black students were picked up by buses for the trip to Valley High last Friday, only 129 were on hand when buses arrived Monday.

Valley, also in southern Jefferson County, was the scene of an anti-busing riot Friday night.

Concerning problems with obtaining gas for the buses, Jesse Simpson, executive director of the Kentucky Gasoline Marketers Association in Louisville, said, "We don't advocate this sort of thing, but it's a personal decision on the part of each dealer."

...Boston police arrest 100 on first day of school

BOSTON (AP)—Police made over 100 arrests as U.S. marshals backed by National Guard troops helped get the buses rolling today as a new and extensive busing program came to the nation's oldest public school system.

Police riflemen were stationed on rooftops and U.S. marshals guarded bus routes as National Guard troops stood by to help implement the court-ordered desegregation program.

At South Boston High School, police and state troopers lined the corridors and officers stood at the entrances to other schools as black pupils arrived in buses for the first day of classes under a new desegregation program.

National Guardsmen were standing by, and 100 U.S. marshals helped patrol school grounds. Police riflemen were stationed on rooftops at Charlestown High School, which is being integrated for the first time this year.

Police reported some 100 arrests, mostly for disorderly conduct. Many of those taken into custody were said to be members of the pro-busing Committee Against Racism.
