UK chancellor named finalist in search again

Hemenway's searches

Since 1990, Lexington Campus Chancellor Robert Hemenway has been a finalist for these top jobs at other universities:

Nov. 1990: University of Nebraska presidency

July 1992: University of Missouri chancellorship

Nov. 1993: Florida State University presidency

Feb. 1993: Ohio University presidency

Jan. 1995: Kansas University chancellorship

For the fifth time in nearly five years, Lexington Campus Chancellor Robert Hemenway has been named a finalist for the top job at another institution.

As of press time late Thursday, Hemenway was believed to be one of the top two choices for the chancellor's position at Kansas University. KU's Board of Regents anticipated choosing the new chancellor as early as Saturday afternoon.

Hemenway left for interviews at KU's campus on Thursday. KU spokesman Tom Hutton said Thursday that Hemenway was one of two finalists being seriously considered. University of Mississippi chancellor Gerald Turner was believed to be the other, Hutton said.

However, Hemenway insisted last week only "something very special" could draw him away from UK, where he has been associated since 1966.

"It's important to note that I'm not out there looking for a job," said Hemenway, a Nebraska native.

"I'm quite happy here." "But when an institution such as KU makes an offer, Hemenway said, he owes it to himself and his family to at least talk with them."

"The University of Kansas is a very good institution," he said. "Certainly I'm honored to be among the four candidates."

Hemenway said that if the KU job presented a unique challenge or opportunity he would consider accepting the post. He quickly added that he wouldn't know the job's potential until he visited the campus.

Since 1990, Hemenway also has made the final cut in national searches at Ohio University, Florida State University, the University of Missouri and the University of Nebraska.

KU's chancellor is the chief executive officer of the University and answers only to the statewide Board of Regents. The Lawrence campus has 26,000 students and hires more than 14,000 faculty and staff.

Two more medical campuses in nearby Kansas City and Wichita bring the total enrollment to more than 28,000 students supported by a $620 million annual budget.

KU was ranked 27th nationally by a recent U.S. News and World Report article. UK was ranked 83rd in the same publication.

The chancellor's position was left vacant in July when Gene A. Bundig resigned to become president of major league baseball's American League.

Bundig became the 14th chancellor at KU in 1983. The Board of Regents named Delbert Shankel, a microbiology professor, as interim chancellor.

The three other candidates for the job were Lois B. DeFleur, president of Binghamton University; Milton D. Click, senior vice president and provost at Arizona State University; and Turner.

Hemenway came to UK in 1966 as an assistant English professor.

After two years, he left to be an associate professor at the University of Wyoming.

In 1973, Hemenway returned to UK as an English professor and became chair of the department in 1981.

In addition to his UK experience, Hemenway was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma from 1986-1989. He returned to UK in 1989 — this time to become chancellor for the Lexington Campus.

Hemenway is one of three chancellors in the University system. He oversees programs and operations on the Lexington Campus.

Despite the on-going search, Hemenway said his dedication and work at UK will be unaffected.

"UK is going to get my 70-hour work week no matter what happens."

New features established to make process easier

By Jennifer Smith

The Registrar's Office has set up two new ways to make Add/Drop easier this semester.

"We're trying to lighten the load for all students," said Lisa Collins, assistant registrar for registration. "Add/Drop should be as quick and painless as possible, and we're doing everything we can to make it so."

Collins said officials added the earlier time slot of Jan. 4-7 for returning students who have already registered. That move was designed to lighten the load and decrease busy signals for students who are just starting the registration process.

Collins said officials expect UK-VIP, the telephone registration system, to be busy tomorrow because students will be returning and it is the last day to cancel classes without a fee liability.

The phone lines will be open from tomorrow through Jan. 18.

Also, a phone bank has been set up in 5 Funkhouser Building to aid students in their registration process. The phone bank is a room with 10 phones students can use tomorrow through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Friday through Jan. 18 from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Collins said the facility was set up after the Registrar's Office studied other schools with similar programs.

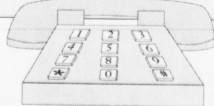

The phone bank will make UK-VIP accessible to more students, especially students who live out of town or who do not own a touch-tone phone, Collins said.

"We've had so many students taking advantage of phone registration, we wanted to make sure that we give more people the same opportunities," Collins said.

She also said the phone bank's centralized location will be useful for students who are already on campus and want to get registration out of the way.

"I had a few questions about my schedule, so I was already in the building," said Michael Dunlap, a French graduate student.

"So, I came by and I used their phones. It's good because I don't have to think about it later."

Collins said her office has not received any complaints about UK-VIP.

"We have had a few questions and concerns, but nothing we haven't been able to deal with," she said.

In the past, students experienced difficulties like busy signals and delays with the telephone service.

Collins said she cannot promise all of the problems in the system will be solved, but she thinks the new additions will alleviate most of the troubles.

"There is never a guarantee that the network won't crash or the program will run perfectly," she said, "but everything that can be done is being done."

Collins presented a few basic tips for students not familiar with UK-VIP.

She said students need to remember to press the pound sign after entering personal and course identification numbers.

In order to access the system students must have gone through advance registration with their adviser or new-student registration in January. Also, students must have paid their $50 registration fee and cannot have any STOPS on record.

Students can access UK-VIP at 257-7000.

CAMPUSbytes

Today is the only day of registration for new students who have been cleared for admission but did not advance register.

Late registration for returning students who have not already registered in advance and new applicants cleared late for admission begins on Wednesday and will continue through Jan. 18.

Refunds: Tomorrow is the last day students may officially drop a course or withdraw from the University with the University Registrar and still receive a full refund of fees.

Jan. 18 is the last day for students to officially withdraw from the University or drop a course and still receive an 80 percent refund.

Personal Access Codes: Students must change their four-digit PAC numbers before March 6 or they will be refused access to UK-VIP. To change your code, call 257-7000 and follow the prompt.

To change majors, students must report to their college today through Friday. Students may also do so March 7-27.

Financial aid: Students who received a Stafford Loan and dropped below half-time student status last semester must reapply for their loan for this semester. You must go to the Student Financial Aid Office in 127 Funkhouser Building and reapply to receive your loan. All students receiving a Federal Perkins Loan, Nursing and Health Professions loans must attend a mandatory pre-loan meeting before their loan will be released.

In order to receive your loan, you must complete registration and wait about seven days after your pre-loan meeting.

Your loan will be credited to your account. Bring telephone numbers and complete addresses of three references (excluding parents) to the old Student Center Theater on one of the following days:

Perkins Only: Today at 9 a.m., 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Tomorrow at 1 p.m., 2:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Health Professions and Nursing: Tomorrow at 10 p.m.

All other loans: Wednesday at 10 p.m., 12 p.m., 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. For additional times call the Student Financial Aid Office at 7-3172. Students wishing to determine the status of their loan refunds should call the STAR line at 323-3901 (on campus) or 254-7827 (off campus).

Feb. 9 is the last day to apply for a May degree.

March 6 is the last day to withdraw from a class without it showing up on your transcript.

Advance registration is March 27 through April 14.

Spring break is March 13-18.

LOW DOWN Andre Riddick gets on the floor for a loose ball during UK's 88-86 loss to Louisville on Jan. 1. Riddick and the Cats travel to Gainesville to take on the Florida Gators tomorrow night at 9:30 on ESPN.

Despite disappointments, Cats-Gators still big game

By Brett Dawson
Sports Editor

Though it may have lost some luster when the participants took some disappointing losses, tomorrow's UK-Florida matchup still is the early-season indicator for supremacy in the Southeastern Conference's Eastern Division. The Cats and Gators were on a collision course for a showdown of epic proportions two weeks ago. Each team had only one loss, both of them coming at the hands of Top 5 teams.

But when the Cats visit Gainesville for Wednesday's 9:30 p.m. tipoff, each team will be only a few games removed from upset losses.

UK fell to archrival Louisville 88-86 just two days before LSU knocked off Florida 70-66 in Baton Rouge.

Still, expect a knock-down, drag-out battle when the Cats step into the Stephen C. O'Connell Center. After all, it's just another SEC road game. "The road is a bitch," UK Coach Rick Pitino said last week. "The bad part about being Kentucky is that when you go to someone else's court, you're always their biggest game."

"You're always got big crowds — record setting crowds — and it's always a big game to their fans. They always rush the court if you lose."

An O-Dome record crowd of 12,221 watched last year as Florida out-ugled UK en route to a 59-57 win, the Gators' only win against the Cats in three tries for the season.

But neither team will have revenge on its mind so much as getting a leg up in the Eastern Division race. UK and UF battled to a tie atop the standings last season.

And toss out the teams' earlier losses — conference play is a whole new ballgame. "This conference is just so tough," forward Rodrick Rhodes said. "You couldn't tell me Ole Miss was going to beat Arkansas (last week). I wouldn't have believed you."

Upsets like the Rebels' win over the Razorbacks will keep the Cats on their toes for their "second season."

"Conference play is totally different than the early season," forward Walter McCarty said. "It's really a goal of ours to play well in the conference."

Playing well would be a step up from last season's loss in Gainesville. Not only were the Cats' 57 points a season low and 39 below their season average, but UK shot only 34.5 percent from the floor, including a 4-of-22 performance from three-point range.

Most of the Gators who played in that game, and who led Florida to a surprising Final Four appearance, are back this season.

The talented cast is led by guard Dan Cross, center Andrew DeClaro, and power forward Darnett "Da Meat Hawk" Hill.

The Cats rallied to beat Florida 80-77 in Rupp Arena in early March and then knocked them off 73-60 in the SEC Tournament Championship 11 days later last season.

In that SEC tourney win, Rhodes came off the bench to score 15 points. It was his career-high off the bench until he scored 23 off the pine against Auburn last week.

Rhodes could be in a reserve role again tomorrow, and chances to tie atop the standings last season. "It's definitely behind us," McCarty said.

"Now we've got to concentrate on the future."

chances are he won't be uncomfortable. The junior forward was so happy with his sixth-man role against the Tigers — a role he was placed in after what Pitino viewed as a lack of effort in the U of L game — that he didn't want to start the second half.

"I feel real comfortable coming off the bench," Rhodes said. "It was different, but I kind of enjoyed it."

Meanwhile, with SEC play living ahead, UK has buried any lingering thoughts of its loss to Louisville along with the controversy surrounding Rhodes.

Rhodes has message for UK fans: 'It's just a game'

By Brett Dawson
Sports Editor

Rodrick Rhodes, who was demoted to a reserve role following his 5-point, no-rebound effort in UK's 88-86 loss to Louisville, discovered the dark side of UK basketball last week.

Following UK's win over Auburn on Wednesday, Rhodes said he received prank phone calls on his room's answering machine after the Louisville game.

The junior from Jersey City, N.J., was upset over the calls and said last week that it was a sign that UK basketball fans can go too far.

"That's just a notebook crazy," Rhodes said. "I mean, it's just a game. We're kids. We're 19-, 20-, 21-year-old kids. But that's basketball (in Kentucky). I know if I can play here and deal with the adversity here, then I can play anywhere."

The phone calls were just part of a tumultuous week for Rhodes, who faced reporters two days after the loss to U of L and told them that he was tired of the constant attention he received. He reiterated that idea following the Auburn game.

"I never asked for this," he said. "I never asked to be put on a pedestal, to be made into something I'm not. I never wanted any of that. All I ever wanted was to go to school and play ball."

been insisting that they didn't need a single go-to guy, instead suggesting that a different player could step up every night.

Following their loss to U of L, some Cats changed their tune, saying that they would benefit from having a go-to guy to tote the load — a guy like Mashburn.

"Sure we need somebody like that we can count on," Rhodes said.

Against U of L, Walter McCarty was the closest thing to filling the bill. The junior forward had 17 points, including a desperation three-pointer in UK's comeback attempt.

"I wasn't trying to take over or anything," McCarty said. "It's just a matter of trying to get the team going."

On the way back

UK Coach Rick Pitino said last week that point guard Anthony Epps' outlook on the game is improving. Epps' playing time over the holiday break was limited due to Pitino's decision to move Jeff Sheppard to point guard. And though Pitino has no intentions of moving Sheppard back to the shooting guard position, the UK coach is pleased with Epps' attitude.

"I think Anthony has grown up," Pitino said. "I think he realizes that making a mistake is no big deal. I think you're going to see Anthony Epps change for good."

Art teacher masters grace under fire

By Carrie Morrison
Arts Editor

"It's non-representative, figurative, sort of abstract ... Hey! Let's put the supplies down until you're finished with the first project!"

Art education master's candidate Janet Fisher tried to define the essence of her work over the phone, barely audible while also trying to calm shouts of excited children.

Fisher, an art teacher at Stonewall Elementary School, will display her master's exhibition, "Collages and Paintings," in the Student Center's Radall Gallery tomorrow through Jan. 20.

Fisher uses a multitude of media, from acrylic paints to buttons. She has prepared more than 40 pieces for the exhibit.

The stars of the exhibit will be papier-mache "girls," suspended in a complex mobile.

The figures are lithe and delicate, their skeletons made of hanger wire. They are stretched, leaping through miniature hoops of fire.

"Grad school to me is just jumping through rings of fire. My professors keep holding the hoops higher and higher," said Fisher, who works under George Szekeley, director of graduate studies in art education.

Fisher said the underlying theme of the acrobatic display, which will be centered around a figure rotating on the hands of a clock, is one of women's constant grace under fire.

The image of grace, according to the artist, comes from the figures' skirts, which are frozen in eternal swishing and swaying.

"Here we are in our pretty little dresses," she said. "So if you can get through the hoops, there is a victory."

Fisher said she identifies most with a mobile figure that dangles from a hoop by one tiny hand.

"That's me — barely hanging on," she said, laughing.

Fisher, 39, has no children of her own. She follows a philosophy handed down from renowned painter Georgia O'Keeffe: You must be a mother to your art.

Besides, said Fisher, her 700 students, ages 5 to 12, are also her children.

LOOKING ahead

Janet Fisher's "Collages & Paintings" will be on display in the Student Center's Radall Gallery tomorrow through Jan. 20.

The bright colors in her work was inspired by and appeals to children. Fisher even toyed with calling the exhibit "Under the Influence of Children."

Fisher's paintings use colors to illustrate her themes.

There are ignited reds and peaceful yellow embers in three of the pieces, which show young girls flying through space. Some are reaching through the burdensome flaming hoops.

Many of the paintings are simply color fragments outlined by stitching. In some cases, Fisher uses milliner's buttons to create points of light around which the colors spiral.

The look can be reminiscent of a Van Gogh or a Picasso with rounded-out angles.

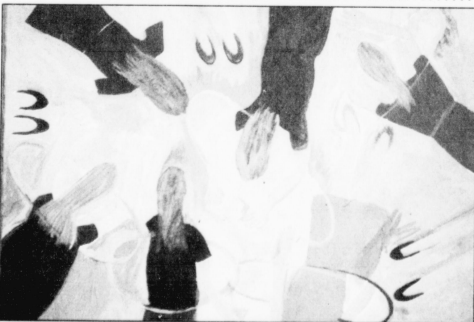

"If you play it safe, there is not going to be a lot of learning," said Fisher. "I'm not trying to please everyone and make pretty things people will want in their living rooms."

Fisher wants to keep the same mindset with her students.

"I try to teach them that it's not about making masterpieces," she said. "The right answer (when making art) is the one that seems right to you."

Many of the works are reflective of Fisher's life.

One painting shows two figures, one surrounded by misty cigarette smoke and FLIGHT THROUGH FIRE In this untitled piece, master's candidate Janet Fisher uses imagery of flaming hoops to signify the obstacles that come before success.

the other looking at her with disdain. (Fisher's boyfriend of 15 years can't stand smoke.)

Another piece, "Shipwreck," is a three-dimensional diptych. One side shows an abstract shipwreck. A black thread is suspended to the other half of the painting, where one of Fisher's signature papier-mache "girls" hangs on for dear life. The piece is a light look at a scary experience;

Fisher was once trapped in her boat on the Kentucky River during an electrical storm.

Fisher hopes that visitors will come away with questions — the same kind of questions she had while creating the work.

"Art and creativity are part of the intellect of problem solving," she said.

"(This project) is a real breakthrough in learning for me."
