Behind him sat Blue Jacket, a Shawnee oral historian who kicked off the festival by speaking at the Worsham Theatre Monday evening. While Roush scraped and shaped the stone in his hands, Blue Jacket wove a belt, told stories and played a red cedar futte. He let Roush's ability take center stage, though.

"If he lived with the Shawnee 300 years ago, he would be a holy man and do nothing but this," Blue Jacket said. "There are too many of these points found today that could have been reshaped and re-sharpened, but the person didn't know how to fix it."

UK drumline prepares to smack down all its opponents in weekend competition in Ohio

By Jill Gorin

Most see them performing during halftime of UK football games, but during the spring semester this year, the UK drumline are jammin' in the gym in a competition called "Indoor Drumline" or "Compline."

"Indoor Drumline" or "Compline" it allows us to take what we do in marching band and put it into a competitive activity," said Ellis Hampton, snare and percussion section leader.
"It's a visual representation of music." he added, "that combines fast-paced marching technique with difficult music." Although not all members are in marching band, about 95 percent will march in the fall.

The group has not commet.

The group has not competed in indoor drumline competition since 1993 because of a lack of funding from UK.

"Money has always been the issue." Casey said. "For rehearsal space, travel..."

Casey and the other seven staff members are instructing the line for free, which usually doesn't happen.

They do it not only because they enjoy it, but because they enjoy it, but because it helps the school.

"If's good recruiting, too, because we're wearing our UK uniforms, and everybody whose into percussion knows UK is known for having a great drumline," Casey said.

The group of 21 members consists of marching snares consists of marching snares, plus an assortment of xylor phone, marimba, "Mepphoa and features a variety of other percussion instruments (otherwise known as the "pit").

Their show is taken from

Pat Methney's Grammy-winning album, "Heat of the Day."
The dramline has only competed in one competition, two weeks ago, which allowed them to enter preliminary competition this Saturday to competition this Saturday to competition the Championship title.

"We were only allowed to go to one competition," said Mark Casey, the director of the indoor drumline, "because UK wouldn't allow us to transport some of the equipment that we need to take."

The other competing drumlines, from across the country, usually compete in five or six competitions before the championship.

The group practices sometimes 30 hours a week, until 1 or 2 a.m., getting ready for competition.

It's paid off, though.
"We received second place

It's paid off, though.
"We received second place in our first and only competition." Casey said, "only two points away from first place."
The first place winner, Music City Mystic from Nashville, has been the defending champicompeted in six competitions this year.

"Everyone at the competition, even though we haven't done it in so long, said that UK is the line to watch out for." Casey said. "We hope to do very well Saturday."
"The devuline will be presented."

Casey said. "We hope to do very well Saturday."

The drumline will be practicing tonight and tomorrow in Alumni Gym at 10 p.m. Then, they leave for Wright State's Nutter Center in Dayton, Ohio, and compete in preliminaries at 6:49 p.m. on Friday. The top five will go on to compete in finals on Saturday.

"We want to encourage everybody to at least come to practice and check it out," said Jimmy Riker, computer science sophomore and cymbals player.

"It's really awesome," he said.

hit batters, six errors, 29 hits and seven wild pitches.

Just L (23-11) started the game with a two-run bome run by Doug Lorenz in the first, but the Cats responded with four in their first at bat, led by run-soring singles by designated hitter Robert Newton, shortstoy Vince Harrison and third baseman Will Crumbaugh.

UK (12-21) tacked on one run in both the third and fourth innings to take a 62 lead, before U of L exploded for three runs in the top of the fifth. Scott Kohler led off with a single to center, and scored on a Key Voshell double of the scoreboard in right field. James McAuley singled home Voshell and mivoed to second on an errant throw. After a walk to

Lorenz, Paul Brown doubled to the gap in right-center, scoring McAuley, But on the play, the Cats avoided more damage when second baseman Andy Green made a perfect dealer of the control of the control

Goldberg needs a reality check

Goldberg needs to follow Bret Heart's lead or get on the Godfather's lovely "Ho Train"

Gary McCollum and foremost, let me tell all of you until there to know your role and listen up. A few weeks ago, my column ran with a picture of Goldberg. You might have noticed that the former WCW Champion's name was "Frank" Gold-berg.

that the former WCW Champion's name was "Frank" Goldberg.
For the millions, and "The Gary" means millions, of wrestling fans that wrote me, I am fully aware that his name is Bill. But as much as I'd like to know everything, I don't. I have no clue how to produce a daily newspaper.
You see, I'm a writer. That you read, or in the case of my column, ignore. I have no cortrol over things, such as layout, picture captions, even headlines.
So I've got two words for lines.

So I've got two words for those of you who complained ... lay off. But to be honest with all the wrestling fans out there, even if I had made the mistake, I'm not sure I would have been sorry about it.

Goldberg has now sur-

While I'm not crying anyment of the I'm not crying anyment of the I'm or more anyment. The I'm of the Spear' down. Goldberg had the opportunity to revitalize wrestling, but only if he developed slowly into a more complete wrestler.

The 174 wins came against guys like Fit Finley and Norman Smiley. If you want a comparison, that would be like the Bulls dominating a league full of teams like the Clippers. Much like the proofs I used to do in geometry, the outcome would be "given."

I was proud to see the American dream reborn on Monday night when the Godfarher captured the Intercontinent. The "Ho Train" truthfully got started right here in Lexington, something for which local wrestling fans should be proud. But for the Godfather, you've got to believe that he was happy just having a gimmick that was respectable.

Most of you are asking when the Gareer choice of pimp rose to such prominence in the minds of the American public,

The longest Intercontinental Title reign of all time still belongs to the Honkytonk Man, so regardless of the length of the reign, the Godfather has

Nike's violations of human rights can no longer be tolerated

As a member of the Leftist Student Union, viewing articles that took a genuine interest in the message of our recent rally were a welcome sight.

As students, we have a vested interest in the way our University is represented. Seeing the UK logo next to the Nike "swoosh" on jerseys and sweatshirts indelibly links the University with Nike. This association is by no means a desirable one, given Nike's reputation as a labor and human rights violator.

The connection between Niko

tion as a labor and human rights violator.

The connection between Nike and rights violations is not an obscure one. The company has drawn increased scrutiny from the public and from a recent Ernst and Young Environmental and Labor Practice audit, Nike not only violates U.S. standards, but shows little regard even for the comparatively lax labor standards in Vietnam, were some factories are located. One does not have to look far to see reports of 700 hours of forced overtime per year per employee, extremely unhealthy working conditions, and even physical and sexual abuse.

The scant wages and power working conditions are in stark contrast to Nike's $375 million in reported profits this year. Must be good to be Phil Knight, co-founder of the company in question.

If we do not take action, we are taking for granted that when we were born, we won a relative lottery compared to those who have no choice but to endure the oppressive weight of unregulated capitalism. We are in the position to show that such abuses are not to be tolerated. Our University has enormously high sales of athletic apparel and can illustrate that human rights should not be trampled in the name of trendy sneakers.

Rich's column made incorrect generalizations

To the editor:

COPS Suck??? This is in response to Ben Rich's column on April 12, "The 10 things I hate about your lives."

you with the "10 things I would

if we were to meet.
I simply have a few comments about the "cops suck" section of your column

about the "cops suck" section of your column.

Do not get me wrong; at one point in my short, 22-year life on this earth, I disliked cops, as well.

But buddy, I was between 16 and 18 years old. GROW UP:

Sure, there are some bad cops out there who often seem to live simply to give college students a hard time, but there are also some "good guy" cops who really do care and work hard at the duties they perform.

My question: Why disrespect perform.

My question: Why disrespect an entire group of people because of a few "bad seeds?"

After a few (young) years of kisliking cops, I now have a good friend who is a cop (and a good one at that). If you will take the time to get to know one, you will see what and who they put up with while on the low.

Then, maybe, you will begin to understand them better.

As for your statement, "Democrats are often the most closeminded, insincere, individuals inhabiting the earth," do me a favor and read your column once more, then tell me who is "close-minded."

Memos to Senate never showed up

Nate Brown's word, apparently, isn't his bond. Our fearless Student Government Association president seems to have forgotten that when a measure is proposed and passed, it must be fol-lowed to the letter. Otherwise, that measure is updating the activities in the executive branch, it wasn't some sort of hollow threat. It wasn't a chance for the E-board to make a move without making it stick. It wasn't a chance for Brown to weasel his way out of responsibility.

But it was that way for Brown, who decided that because his meekly memos were going underappreciated by his fellow SGA officers, he'd just not send them.

Well cry us a river, Mr. President.

First of all, the E-board didn't mandate the senators read them. It mandated he write them. Big difference there. Plus, many elected officials send out memos that don't get read by their constituents or employees, but those officials still send them.

This "Nobody loves me so I'm not gonna," tac-

This "Nobody loves me so I'm not gonna," tactic isn't going to absolve Brown from the fact that he didn't uphold his end of the deal, and he didn't follow policy. Case closed.

Moving right along, though, a plan B should've been implemented if Brown didn't file the memos every week. That our Senate didn't have the foresight to do so worries us about how senators will handle normal business next year.

And for those who are of the opinion that "Well, it's the last couple of weeks in the semester, and we've got a new president and this kind of stuff doesn't really matter anyway," we'd like to remind SGA that it still has to conduct business in an efficient and lawful manner, and it still has to run things the way they're supposed to be run. That includes making sure that policies are

Maybe they need some help rather than hate

Call me a capitalist, but how can anyone support UK breaking ties with Nike? For every dollar that you spend in the thriff shop stores, you are essentially robbing a child in a Lesser Developed Country of his two cents for a hand-crafted shirt or a stylish pair of shoes.

For example, I go into Abercrombie, American Eagle or any other typical American Colthing line. I buy a shirt, maybe a belt, you know the typical colleep purchase.

Now let's say I pay roughly $500 for theses two items. On average, $2.0 might go to the child that made the shirt.

I'll concede this practice is appalling, not to mention unfair, but looking at the situation realistically, my purchasing from the company is a hell of a lot more response in the company is a hell of a lot more response to the composition of the composition
