Bands 'n Stuff

By Charles Whaley

Kernit Goetz is pressing his fight against NBC censors who have banned the lyrics of his tune "Hugin' and Chalkin'." NBC originally banned the entire ditty, with Goetz passing the instrumental version past the censorial board about two weeks ago. Currently he is attempting on the strength of a letter from the Legion of Decency, which approves the song (both words and music), to raise the vocal taboo.

Funny twist to Goetz's problem is that no other network has marked the tune verboten and NBC, in thumping down the lyric, claimed it was doing so not on "moral" grounds. Goetz didn't argue that words were suggestive, but because it poked fun at "women" by making capital of an overly fat specimen of the species female. Goetz's answering argument that "Mr. Five by Five" made the same "attack" against men apparently made no dent on NBC censors.

Jean Sabin, French singer who recently made his American debut, got some free publicity a week or so ago when some of his recordings were played in French classes here. His most famous song in this country is probably "Passe".

The only recording of Meredeth's "Spring Song" in the Carnegie Music Room of the Union is Benny Goodman with "Honeydew Rose" as the plattermate.

Charlie Oberst, journalist freshman from Oresbro, wrote, produced, and directed two plays at his high school when he was a senior here. The boy has talent!

Verdette music major Gene Wickler, is engaged at the moment in arranging a group of minstrel songs, including "In the Evening by the Moonlight," for a male quartet. The songs will be transcribed at WRBY and eventually broadcasted over WHAS.

This is a little late, but good for a brief mention: Duke Ellington's band was chosen as the best of the year, and the Duke was classified as best arranger in Esquire Magazine's All-American Jazz contest for 1947. Woody Herman placed second in this category.

Picked as the best new band of the year was the Boyd Raeburn crew. Other details which are found in the Esquire Jazz book which includes features on top personalities in the music world plus a lamp tune "Man Here Plays Fine Piano" written especially for the magazine. It is on sale at most newsstands in town.

Rose Street Confectionary, a favorite hangout for most UK students, has a novel idea of advertising its products. Small strips of paper with legends such as "Try our Chicken Salad" or "Try our Banana Splits" are pasted in the juke box slots normally used for titles of records.

The Men's Glee Club concert at Memorial hall Sunday should be worth hearing. Two times, though direct musical opposites, are standouts: "The Green-Eyed Dragon" and "Wind and Lute."

For a very enjoyable fifteen minutes, tune in WLEX on your dial Monday nights at 7:15—your'll hear Em Flech, a Henderson girl and a KD here, do some wonderful singing. A campus Greek-letter organization is featured every week on the show.

It seems as if tunesmiths can write music and lyrics to almost any given title. A new tune to bear out this statement is "The Egg and I," based on the best-seller and the movie of the same name. The Merry Maes are the first to get it on wax.

Students in a certain anthropology class probably hear some good morning musical shows as they sit in the back of the room, munching doughnuts, drinking coffee from the thermos bottles, and listening to a portable radio. As Tom Payne would say, "This is true."

Pressed in by song pluggers at a lunch session last week, Chuck Foster, the orker at Hotel New Yorker, delivered this biting commentary: "Oh, for the good old days, when I could play a song I liked."

The Veterans' Club is on the prowl for a big-name band to play here next quarter. The field has been narrowed down to five, temporarily: Tex Bencke, Benny Goodman, Harry James, Tommy Dorsey, and Duke Ellington—but three of them are inactive at the moment.

A highly recommended recording is Perry Lee's "A Nightingale Can Sing the Blues." Other good ones are Tommy Dorsey's "If I'm Not Near the Girl I Love," Louis Jordan's "Texas and Pacific," Tex Bencke's "Hoodoo Auld" and Skip Fawcett's "What Am I Gonna Do About You?"

Mary Ann Hunter likes the Randy Brooks orchestra. His "Harlem Nocturne" on Decca was rated by Melrose magazine as one of the best of last year's record crop.

Interesting conversation: Karl Gram discussing what makes the bubble in juke boxes float up to the top and disappear, only to have new ones follow them. . . .

The Joe Mooney quartet has secured an exclusive contract with Decca. Joe has scooped to stardom in the short time of nine months. His unique arrangements are the talk of the musical public.

First record release, out January 6, was "September Song" and "Just A Gigolo."

Singer Doris Day, formerly with the Les Brown ork, will sign Columbia Records pact to work as a single. Deal will be for three years.

Doris got her start with Station WJW, Cincinnati.

A Canadian ditty that is attracting some American interest is a tune called "I'm A Lovely Little Petunia (in an Onion Patch)." What next?

Acclaimed by the publishers as the next great torch ballad, "It's As Simple As That" has been recorded by Jo Stafford on Capitol.

Tunes from the new Perry Como picture "Ladies' Man" are getting many plays. The two best ones are "Got A Gal I Love (in North and South Dakota)" and "What Am I Gonna Do About You?"

A top record despite the uninteresting title: "How Are Things in Ghent Morris?" by Tommy Dorsey. Other recommended recordings: "That's The Beginning of the End" by Cass Daley; "I'll Close My Eyes" by Dinah Shore; "Love Is A Random Thing" by Bobby Dwyer; and "We Could Make Such Beautiful Music Together" by Monica Lewis.

Dr. Alexander McCurdy Gives Carillon Recital

The carillon bells in Memorial Hall tower were played from the organ console for the first time Tuesday night when Dr. Alexander McCurdy, organ virtuoso and carillonneur, presented a special recital under the joint sponsorship of the University music department and the Kentucky chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

Dr. McCurdy is head of the organ department at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia and at the Westminster Choir college in Princeton. He had his first lessons from his mother in California and later studied under Wallace Sablin in San Francisco and Lynwood Farmain in New York. He is well known in both America and Europe, having made numerous transcontinental tours.

The newly installed remote control unit made it possible for the bells to be played simultaneously with the organ. The set of 25 carillon bells was donated in July, 1946, by Mr. Alexander Donnyman, Knoxville Industrialist, and UK alumnus, in memory of his son who was killed in action on Tarawa. The bells chime at 15 minute intervals throughout the day, and during the summer and autumn months will be used to play religious and patriotic music each evening at sunset.

The following selections were played in the Tuesday night recital: Chorale Preludes, Bach; Prelude and Fugue in A Minor, Bach; Meditation on the Bells, McCurdy; Greensleeves, Purvis; In Dulci Jubilo, Dupre; The Legend of the Mountain, Karg-Elert; A Lovely Rose is Blooming, Brahms; The Angelus, Massenet, and Finale in B flat, Franck.

Dean OK's Plans For Phi Sigma Iota Organization

A request to establish a chapter of Phi Sigma Iota at the University has been granted by the faculty, according to Dean of Women Sarah B. Holmes.

The active membership of Phi Sigma Iota will consist of teachers and advanced undergraduate and graduate students of romantic languages, the number of undergraduate students shall not exceed ten per cent of the advanced students. The whole faculty of the department will pass on the candidates. A general scholastic standing of 2 is required.

Refrigerator defrosting can be accomplished in less than five minutes if an infra-red lamp is held near the freezing unit.

Social Research Consultation Bureau Is Established Here

Establishment of a Social Research Consultation Service was announced this week by Dr. Irwin T. Sanders, head of the sociology department. The service will be maintained to assist private and community groups throughout the state in their efforts to:

- (1) Gather and interpret facts about their local communities before launching a community-wide program.
- (2) Improve the efficiency of the organizations for which they are responsible.
- (3) Analyze the significant social trends of the day as an aid to better planning for business, local government, education or church work.

Dr. Sanders stated, "The Social Research Consultation Service is primarily advisory. It exists to help community organizations and club leaders conduct their own surveys, but members of the sociology department will aid when far-reaching community or organizational decisions have to be made.

Organizations interested in the service will receive a brochure now being printed to suggest ways in which various phases of the service can be of assistance.

FROM THE GREEKS

By Helen Davis

Exams looming on Monday have cut down the weekend potting-on to two open houses and two Founders Day functions and two Founders Day functions and two Founders Day functions...

The open houses are Delta Zeta's for the K&A and Theta's for the Lambda Chi and Triangles...

Phi Deuteron of Phi Sigma Kappa will entertain with its annual Founders Day banquet and formal dance tonight at the Lafayette.

The Phi Sig Moonlight Girl of 1947 will be presented at the dance, and music will be furnished by Harry and his band.

Chaperons are Mrs. M. C. Morgan, housemother, Mrs. E. A. Cheek, Mrs. R. E. Monticelli, and the following alumni and their wives: Dr. and Mrs. P. Boyd, Prof. and Mrs. A. B. Bunn, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Atchinson, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Summers, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Atchinson and Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Sager. In charge of arrangements are Carl Debusin, Jack Dupree and Bill Senning.

The other Founders Day banquet will be held by Kappa Phi Kappa, Tuesday at 7 pm tomorrow night in the Phoenix hotel Fireside room...

Richard Young, national secretary, will be the principal speaker, and chapter president Robert Hardin...

Other speakers will be Andy Anderson, chapter alumni adviser, and Gus Green, former president and oldest resident council member.

That winds up this quarter's activities and during the holidays—on March 21, 22, and 23 to be exact—the Kappa Alpha Theta District Convention at Nashville will be presided over by Nancy Bird, Anne Keeton, Janet Sulzer, Mary Jane Agnew and Mary Hillery Bryant.

The games between the UK intramural basketball tournament champion and the Centre intramural winner—Lambda Lambda of Sigma Chi and Zeta Zeta of Sigma Chi respectively—was played off Wednesday night at Centre, with the Lexington side coming out on top, 66-66.

Afterwards the victors in their dates were entertained with a late supper at the Sigma Chi house in Danville.

Other activities last week included an ADPI active-pledge dinner followed by a meeting Wednesday night, and the Sigma Greeks had a steak dinner at Browne's Sunday night.

Thursday night the Sigma Chi's gave a stag dinner in the Phoenix hotel throughout room for Bill Edzars, who will marry Edith Hartley, Versailles, this Sunday in Versailles.

Three more fraternities have chosen new officers recently, and since the Zeta Beta Theta's say they were left out before, we'll try to make amends by putting them first this time.

Alpha Iota of Zeta Beta Theta elected: Bert Klass, Boston, Mass., president; vice president, Allen S. Armstrong, Bloomfield; treasurer, Joe Lowenthal, Lexington; secretary, Sam Brennan, Kansas City; Mod., and historian, Chester Stein, New York.

Gamma Iota of Sigma Nu elected the following officers last week for the coming year: James Jackson, Owensboro, eminent commander; William Survant, Owensboro, lieutenant-commander; William Hornback, Louisville, recorder-historian; William Fowler, Louisville, treasurer; Gilbert Siria, Madisonville, chaplain; Frederick Nichols, Madisonville, publicity chairman; Lou Christian, Ellettsville, alumni chairman; Charles Shaaber, Louisville, marshal-sentinel; George Rice, Monticello, rush chairman; Lance Trigg, Glasgow, social chairman; William Totty, Glasgow, social secretary; Harley Dunn, Kimball, Va., housemanager; Bill Kimbel, Louisville, scholarship chairman; and John S. Crosthwaite, Bridgeport, Conn., intramurals manager.

The following officers of Zeta chapter of Kappa Alpha Order were elected at a meeting on Wednesday night at the chapter house: George Washington Griffin, Jr., London, president; William E. Sloan, Lexington, vice-president; and John G. Irvin, Carlisle, secretary. Outgoing president is Bartley G. Greenwell.

Dr. Fergus Presents Illustrated Lecture

Dr. E. N. Fergus, professor of farm crops here, gave an illustrated lecture at a meeting of the Fayette County Registered Breeders' Association Saturday afternoon.

Kentucky Fescue No. 21, the new grass crop developed in Menifee county, was the subject of his talk. He exhibited samples of the grass and showed slides on its development.

Withdrawing Veteran Must File Report

All veterans who do not expect to remain at the University during the spring quarter should come to room 204, Administration building, and fill out their withdrawal forms. Dr. Lyle K. Henry, University personnel officer, said yesterday.

Shelbyville. The next issue of the "Sie Ep Saga," edited by Jim Wood, will be out soon. It is distributed to all fraternities and sororities on the campus. Both Jim and the "Saga" got quite a write-up recently in the national Sigma Phi Epsilon magazine.

ALUMNI NEWS THEN and NOW

PERSONALITIES

Miss Nancy Duke Lewis, A.B. '32, M.A. '33, of Lexington, assistant dean and social director at Pembroke College, Providence, R.I., has recently been named dean of students at Pembroke, according to an announcement from officials of the institution.

Neal Trimble McKee, '33, of New York, vice president of the Superheater Company, has presented two paintings of railroad locomotives, attractively framed, to the Alumni Association officers. One of the University's distinguished alumni, Mr. McKee keeps in close touch with the activities of the Alumni office, and displays active interest in the affairs of the association.

M. M. Hughes, '15, of Versailles, has moved from Louisville to Cincinnati to become manager of the General Electric Company apparatus department office there. He has held a similar position in Louisville since 1936. Before going to Louisville Mr. Hughes held positions with GE in Schenectady, Chicago, Detroit and Cincinnati.

A feature story in the Harlan Daily Enterprise tells of the experiences of Dr. Charles Pope, '43, of Harlan, who served as medical officer on the C-54 flight to rescue 11 American airmen in northern Greenland who crashed there for three days, 600 miles from the North Pole, after their B-29 crashed.

Healer Reynolds, a graduate of the University in 1939 with a degree in chemical engineering, has been named to the position of Airport Lighting Engineer for the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. It was announced this week.

The appointment is expected to become effective March 24 simultaneously with the effective date of his resignation as manager of the Jackson County Rural Electric Cooperative in McKee. Prior to entering the Navy as a deck officer in August, 1942, Reynolds was an assistant engineer with the Rural Electrification Administration in St. Louis, Mo. After five months as communications officer

Joe Miller is Kappa Sigma's 1947 president.

Three UK Alumni Clubs Will Hold Meetings This Month

Three University alumni clubs in widely-separated parts of the nation will hold meetings during March, UK Alumni Office officials announced yesterday.

Head football Coach Paul Bryant will be guest speaker before the Washington, D.C., alumni of the University on Wednesday, March 19.

The UK Alumni club of Metropolitan New York will meet in Gotham's Bellevue hotel Friday night, March 21, in what promises to be the largest "gathering of the clan" of the year.

More than 300 alumni, former students, and their guests, are expected to be on hand for the affair in honor of President H. L. Donovan, Athletic Director Bernie Shively and Coach Adolph Rupp. In addition to the officials already mentioned, Mrs. Donovan, Mrs. Rupp, and Miss Helen King, executive secretary of the Alumni Association, plan to be present.

Dr. Donovan will be the principal speaker for the meeting scheduled to follow the Kentucky basketballers' participation in the National Invitational Tournament in Madison Square Garden, Elvin J. Stahr '36, president of the New York club, is in charge of arrangements.

Continuing the month's meetings will be a reunion of UK alumni of greater Cincinnati on Thursday, March 27, for a dinner, election of officers, and a showing of motion pictures of the Kentucky-St. John's basketball game.

Georgie Greasestick Tells Tales Of Plays And People And The University Theatre

By Bill Harbaugh

I'm a stick of grease paint. They call me Georgie. My color is unimportant. I've been on the campus of the University of Kentucky for many years, so you can call me Georgie, too.

One of the Students asked me a question a few days ago, "Georgie," he queried, "how many productions have you seen? How many actors and actresses' faces have you caused to break out in a rash?"

It had been a long time since that first play and I was caught with my wipers completely down. I did remember that the Strollers had their first coming out party in 1910 when they brought "Richieu" to the Lexington stage. Prior to this time there had been plays. Some of them were staged in the second floor rooms of the "Old Dorm" which is now known as "White Hall." Clerks from downtown stores and citizens of the neighborhood were recruited for the casts in the showings of the old drama.

One of the first plays ever produced on the campus was a number called "The Lost Paradise." Dr. Edward Parquhar, of the English Department, could inform you of that production and of the ones which followed. He could tell you that Henry Duncan, for many years a prominent lawyer in Lexington, was one of the first members of little theatre groups at the university. He could tell you many things. He could tell you how they bought beauty in a package of satiny wall paper to use in their first stage sets.

Drama is a very serious business. Holy! But, in America, it's sheer entertainment in a vaudeville house instead of a town. Those are Dr. Parquhar's words. I, Georgie Greasestick, am in complete agreement with them.

A theatre is not intended for mere entertainment. The theatre is the heart of a community. It is its soul. An audience member is as much a part of a stage play as its scenery, its costumes, its cast. Its... Well, that gives you the idea. YOU are the theatre. Without you there would be no meaning in dramatic art. Drama belongs to the world. If Shakespeare erred, his error was not great. There must be tolerance and understanding and a desire to participate as audience in the life-giving and revivifying process. YOU constitute the theatre. It is yours to cherish and prosper." Thus, Frank Fowler, director of Guignol, since 1929 reiterated Dr. Parquhar's statement. I, Georgie, remember Dr. Fowler's statement very distinctly. It was printed in a souvenir program of the 50th Guignol production, "The Guardsman" by Ferenc Molnar, during the week of March 23, 1936. In that same program there are congratulatory notes from the governor of Kentucky, the president of the University and the supervising director of Pasadena Community Playhouse. The play was produced by Frank Fowler and directed by Leo Robinson, who with Mr. E. G. Sulzer, is now advancing the acts of the drama in her position with the University radio station.

Cigarettes? No thanks. I, Georgie, am weary of the fumes of tobacco. Mind if you do? Oh, no. Go right ahead. To get on with my autobiography, though, I am reminded of a conversation I had recently with Helen King of Alumni Office. I remember the day when she was publicity manager and secretary of The Strollers.

"Georgie," she asked me, "do you remember 'The Strollers'?"

"I was insulted. Did I, me, I, Georgie Greasestick, remember 'The Strollers' I just cocked an eyebrow and looked up at her."

"All of the shows were managed completely from drop curtains to cast by students. We chartered special train coaches to tour the state. Off we went to Hartsville, Pineville, Bowling Green. One time we appeared in Lynch, Kentucky, the surrounding territory of which was inspirational to John Fox, Jr., in the writing of 'The Trail of the Lone- some Pine.' Remember?"

Again, I cocked the eyebrow. I thought of cocking both eyebrows. Did I, Did I, Georgie, remember? Humph! I remembered plenty. I was starting into Lexington spotlighting this girl saw the sun shine.

I remembered, for instance, that the amount of touring done by The Strollers depended largely upon the personal financial status of members, who appeared before Lexington audiences before they released to the road.

Enoch Graham, head of the Journalism department from the time of its foundation until his death in 1937, joined with Dr. Edward Parquhar and "Miss Margie" McLaughlin, professor of journalism and editor of the Kentucky Alumnae, to adopt and supervise The Strollers in those years.

In the class of '16, there was a Stroller named John Marsh. He was a reporter for both the Lexington Herald and the Lexington Leader after he graduated from the University. Then, Mr. Marsh became a copy editor for the Associated Press in Alabama. In recent years, he has been with the public relations office of the Georgia Power Company. With all of his many successes, that fellow still couldn't be satisfied. He had to get out and get married. To whom? Georgie learned that the girl was Margaret Mitchell, celebrated writer of "Gone With The Wind."

When the July 20th edition of the Kentucky Kernel hit the campus walks in 1925, we were sitting in a golden sun. Boy! Were we happy! Delirious! I even shook hands and buried that old ass with the costume department. There, in the Kernel, it said, "A Little Theatre is being built on Winslow Street, George is speaking between these marks. Winslow Street is now Radcliff Avenue, to replace a building formerly used as a Negro church. The theatre is being put up under the supervision of the Strollers Dramatic Club of the University, financed by townspeople interested in dramatic advancement." We were jubilate. The new theatre was to have a seating capacity of 200, and Carroll M. Sax, of the Vagabond Theatre in Baltimore, was coming to Lexington to advise production.

Well, Mr. Sax stayed on with us.

Original Bible Leaf Collection Exhibited In Art Gallery

The art department is featuring a collection of original leaves from famous Bibles and Testaments dating from the twelfth through the twentieth centuries in the art gallery, House, May 2nd, at 8:15 p. m.

In our new quarters we called ourselves "ROMANY". Our first play under this new name was "Lillium," a legend in seven scenes with a prologue by Franz Molnar, (Lillium is Hungarian for lily and the slang term for a tough). The curtains separated to display gifted players who had worked with such stars as John Barrymore and Frank Bacon.

Romany was showing "Candide" by George Bernard Shaw in 1925. For the last play of our fourth season, Mr. Sax directed "The Whip of Fire" by Girdler Fitch at Romany in May, 1928.

Then came Guignol. Ahhh, Guignol. At last we had arrived. There were to be more and better productions than ever before.

Romany had produced two notable plays in my memory. Isabel Jewell, Hollywood actress, had been active at Romany Theatre. John Hamilton, formerly of Henderson, Ky., designed plays for Romany's earliest show "Lillium." Mr. Hamilton went on to New York. He was the designer responsible for the magnificent New York sets of such plays as "Of Mice and Men," "Stage Door," and "I Married An Angel." John Hamilton had the job of designing and costuming William Cameron Menzies' "Address Unknown" for film presentation.

Writer Predicts Bugs Bunny In A Psychological Fantasy

By Jim Donovan

With three types of film dominating the screen nowadays, the next thing in motion pictures is undoubtedly the combination psychological cartoon fantasy.

Principal characters in this dramatic epoch will be Bugs Bunny, in his first serious role, co-starred with a yet unknown alley cat who will play the part of Bugs' hysterical ever-loving wife.

The picture will open with an obese chorus ominously playing the refrain to Stephen Collins Foster's immortal "Dixie."

As the picture is an extravaganza, 7,000,000 different shades of purple will be cast upon a tombstone on the screen for no other reason than the cast in red flames. Immediately, an atomic bomb blast is flashed on the screen for no other reason than that it cost the studio $7,000,000 to photograph.

After a ten-minute introduction which will include a photographic reproduction of the Los Angeles census report and a five minute expression of gratitude to the National Humane Society, the picture will begin.

The opening scene is of Bugs Bunny who is beginning to show the first symptoms of dementia praecox. He is just finishing his breakfast—his wife, played by his unknown alley cat, leaves the room for an instant—the music grows louder and more ominous—and the hero of the story craftily eats the saucer which contained his rolled oats.

After Bugs leaves for the office, his wife returns to the room, and, seeing a piece of the broken saucer, she is horrified.

Her first thought is that her husband has become merely a kleptomaniac; but nevertheless, she dashes to the phone amidst a fanfare of trumpets, and sings the popular song hit, "Will the Streets only comedy in the picture. "What's up, Doc?" he says.

Boris then talks to Bugs for the next three reels, using 1600 new psychological terms and leaving the audience with finger nails chewed not quite to the elbow.

Gradually the hero returns to normalcy and soon he's in perfect shape except for an occasional relapse when he chews up a napkin or a newspaper.

The picture closes as 500 choristers accompanied by a 400-piece symphony orchestra, sing "Open The Door Richard."

The door finally opens into glaring sunlight and standing there is the familiar silhouette of Bugs Bunny, with his ardent wife and 275 lovely children, all singing, "I Used To Be In A Conna" to the tune of "I Used To Work In Chicago."

Undoubtedly, the picture will be a success. Medical authorities acclaim it the picture of the century. Jimmy Fritzier will guarantee a full-house on Saturday by reminding children to stay away, and the motion picture industry will have taken another step toward perfection in entertainment.

Tigert Told Staff, Students Of UK Under 4 Presidents

Speaking on the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the University and the third annual observance of the event, Dr. John J. Tigert, president of the University of Florida and former UK faculty member, caused "The University Under Four Presidents."

Dr. Tigert, pointing out that of the nine presidents that have served the University, five had only a brief tenure, confined his remarks, therefore, to the administrations of James McVey, Henry Stites Barker, Frank Leedom McVey, and Herman Lee Donovan, present UK leader.

These four presidents have largely borne the heat and the burden of the great struggle through a long history which has brought the University out of the shadows into the sunlight of the mountain tops, Dr. Tigert declared.

Learned From Patterson

Coming to Kentucky in 1909 as president of Kentucky Wesleyan college, yet behind the ears as an educator, only two years out of college and knowing exactly nothing about administration, I was brought into contact with President Patterson in the associations and conferences which arise between college presidents. When attacked he was as valiant as any knight who ever drew a sword, but underneath there was a tender side to his nature. He began to teach and lead me from our earliest associations.

Termining President Barker's administration an "era of good feeling" following a period of conflict and controversy in the formative period of the University, Dr. Tigert pointed out that in the two years of President Barker's administration the University made rapid progress, 871 students being graduated during this time as compared with a corresponding number in the preceding quarter century.

"I have never been associated with a man whose disinterested devotion and eagerness to do justice were more evident and generally appreciated," Dr. Tigert said of President Barker. "As might have been expected from a person of broad human interests, he took extraordinary interest in student life and activities."

McVey Great Leader

Speaking of Dr. Frank L. McVey, who succeeded President Barker in 1917, Dr. Tigert said, "It is an unusual privilege to salute this great leader who still lives among you. President McVey brought a complement of qualities to the University which were equipped perfectly for the performance of his task. He displayed scholarly characteristics even as an undergraduate and by the time of his completion of his doctorate at Yale he had already acquired prominence in the field of economics in which many calls were heaped upon him for his services by the state of Minnesota, the British government and other agencies. He came to the University of Kentucky with a wealth of experience in the field of educational administration, having already built a state university that was recognized as being as strong as the resources of the state of North Dakota would support.

"Perhaps the best tribute I can pay, out of my own experience, would be to confess that any success which I may have achieved in the administration of another state university has been achieved very largely from a study and close observation of the development and program at the University of Kentucky under President McVey."

Least of the four presidents to whom Dr. Tigert paid tribute was

Cat Clippings

Dr. H. L. Donovan, "Close association with Herman Lee Donovan began while I was a member of the faculty," the former philosophy and psychology professor at UK declared. "He and his wife sat and suffered patiently in my classes. As a student he displayed remarkable talents which foreshadowed the great events which have followed. In fact, his fellow students sensed that he was destined to something unusual. In the year of his graduation, the Kentuckian described this particular member of the Class of 1914 as 'Sad, serious, temperamental, truthful, with ambition to ascend into the transcendent, and sit down with God' . . . and 'a great lover of discussion, being as happy in debate as a pet coon in a hollow log with the axe log!'"

"President Donovan has been called to lead the University of Kentucky in the greatest emergency that has developed in American education. No one could foresee that the war would end when it did. It came with dramatic suddenness, and demobilization was much more rapid than had been expected. . . . The United States has been referred to as the Polish Virgin of World War II. Ours is the only nation that plundered its universities, drained off the faculties, and depleted the graduate schools. Consequently the American colleges have had to face this crisis with 8,000 fewer instructors than were available for the much smaller prewar enrollments. In housing, laboratories, equipment, and other educational requisites, there have been acute shortages. Under these trying conditions the American colleges have been called upon to exercise more energy, ingenuity, and vision than at any other time in our educational history."

Salute To Donovan

"From direct contacts, I know that President Donovan has met these difficult problems with unusual success. I know of some of the aggressive fights that he has made not only for the benefit of this institution, but for all similar institutions over the country. His efforts have met with success but for this effectiveness he has had to suffer some criticism and even abuse. He never wavered in his determination to solve the insistent problems confronting him."

In conclusion, Dr. Tigert said, "Now, a vista of the future unfolds, and I give you a preview of what lies ahead. I see new buildings and new size portraits, says Ray Ashman, former Hollywood photographer. "I see other throngs of boys and girls laughing, learning, and, alas, loving. I hear the voices of great scholars as they lecture and discuss the gigantic problems which are before them. I see more leaders at the helm, but none more devoted to their task than those we remember today. I see an American university of the first rank."

HEAD SIZE PINUP PHOTOS WITH "OMPH" POPULAR

Full-length pinup photos are being replaced in many instances by head-size portraits, says Ray Ashman, former Hollywood photographer. "Since the end of the war, Ashman has had women request head-size photos 'with a little of the sex appeal of the full-body picture retained.'"

"Put all the omph in my facial expression," they ask.

The best way to judge citrus fruits is to hold them in your hand. Heavy ones are juicier.

Leet Will Discuss Marriage, Divorce With Student Group

Dr. H. Halbert Leet, Lexington neuropsychiatrist, will speak on "Marriage and Divorce," Sunday night at 8:00 o'clock at the regular meeting of the Disciple Student Fellowship at Central Christian church. This is the third in Dr. Leet's series of talks entitled "Man and His Mind," given for college students.

Schedule for the program is: supper, singing and worship, 6 p.m.; lecture and discussion, 6:50 p.m., closing, 7:30 p.m.

Faculty Club Dinner Planned For Tonight

The monthly dinner and party of the Faculty club will be held tonight in the clubhouse, according to Professor Victor R. Portmann, president.

Social Committee Will Meet March 14

The University social committee will meet in the Dean of Women's office March 14 at 2 p.m. to arrange the social calendar for the spring quarter.

The basketball outlook at Knoxville right now looks pretty dark. Tennessee will lose five of their cagers before next season rolls around—four of the players leaving will be missed much. Bowing out are Dick Mehen, six-foot five-inch center, Ted Cook, Bibb Wright, Bill Bailey and Dan Thomas. Mehen, Cook, Bailey and Thomas graduate while Wright, a junior, quit UT this week to sign with the St. Louis Browns baseball club.

Mauer To West Point

On top of all this, cage coach Johnny Mauer has accepted the position of head basketball coach at West Point, which was vacated by the leaving of Stu Holcomb for Purdue university. The Vols now will be looking for a replacement for Mauer.

Next season the Orange cage squad will probably be built around Paul Walther, Hawkins, and a promising freshman, Art Burris.

As the Wildcats enter the Invitational tourney, lowering Alex Groa leads the squad in scoring with 302 points; the Louisville luminary, Ralph Beard follows, being only two points behind, with 300. Captain Kenny Rollins is in the show position with 290 tallies in the 34 games played thus far.

These three cagers are All-American candidates, in addition to Wallace Jones and possibly Jack Tingle. Their play in Madison Square Garden next week will go a long way in their selection for All-American honors.

Ole Miss vs. Notre Dame?

It was also learned that Ole Miss Rebels may meet Notre Dame on the gridiron in 1948. Both schools are reportedly interested in arranging a home and home football series with the Irish of South Bend beginning in 1948 down in Oxford. This would be the second Southeastern conference opponent for the mighty Irish—the other with Tulane will definitely be continued.

The Tennessee basketball team was upset in the quarter-finals by Tulane, 47-41, in the recent SEC tournament held in Louisville. When the disappointing Orange and White quintet was beaten, the tournament lost some of the color and interest to many Kentucky rooters. They wanted to see the champion Wildcats whip the Vols once more this season.

NCAA Has Eight Districts

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) has the country split up into eight geographical districts—four east of the Mississippi river and four west. Each district has an election committee to pick its representatives. The Eastern regional play-offs are held in New York, and the Western in Kansas City, Mo. The two winners and runners-up meet in the Garden for the NCAA championship title.

Ole Miss had 75 gridirers report for spring practice under Coach John Vaught. The Mississippi team will have virtually the same members as last season, losing only a half dozen from the squad through graduation. The heaviest loss will be felt at the end positions, with big Ray Poole graduating soon and H. A. Smith leaving for professional football. Charley Gaely and "Hairline" Harper appear to be the leading candidates to replace Poole and Smith. Conery, Salmon, Bowen and Curland will all be available for backfield positions. UK opens against Ole Miss September 20 there.

Phi Sigs Edge ATO's For I-M Bowling Title

By O. C. Harvad

Phi Sigma Kappa's knickerbockers out-ran the ATO's in a close finish in the intramural elimination tournament that featured unseeded teams. The Phi Sigs and ATO's advanced to the finals by surprising wins of the tournaments No. 1 and No. 2 outfits, the Deltas and Phi Deltas.

In the semi-finals, a hot ATO team walked all over a very cold PDT squad by 300 points while on the adjoining alleys the PSK's who had just only to the Deltas during the round-robin play were knocking them out of the running in a thrilling last game finish that saw only 37 points difference in score.

Basinists Finals

The basinists tournament was finished this week with the LXA boys taking first place in both singles and doubles. Smith and Dance made up the doubles combination that stopped Angelstad and Eschler. ATO Smith also topped the singles by defeating Rush, DTD.

In ping pong the singles still were undecided at press time with Jerry Thornton, ATO, and Dave, PKT, emerging victors from the semi. The doubles' crown was taken by Hackett and Corham, ASP, when they beat McLean and Deary.

Spring Intramurals

With the coming of spring it's time again to think of the outdoor sports. Bill McCubbins, intramural director, listed tennis, golf, and softball as part of the intramural program for the spring quarter. However before these outdoor activities begin, there is going to be a long delayed season of boxing and wrestling for the tough guys around the campus. Registration for both sports will begin just as soon as the new quarter gets underway. However, boys interested in the arts of fisticuffs and grunting and growling should be working out now or as soon as possible.

Equipment and facilities for training and working out are available in the Men's gym at all times. Some new equipment has just been received to replace that destroyed last year in the M and O fire. This equipment can be checked out in the physical education office.

Conditioning Necessary

All persons planning to enter the competition will be required to do a certain amount of conditioning. Action will start just as soon after registration for the sports is completed as can be arranged.

Pairings in both sports will be made according to weight. The divisions will run 115 pounds and below, 125 to 135, 135 to 145, 145 to 155, 155 to 165, 165 to 175, and heavyweight. The will be a three pound leeway allowed on the top limit.

Golf Drills To Start

Golf practice will start the first of next week. Bernie Shively, athletic director, has announced. Frank Atkins, professional at Pisgah golf course, will coach the niblickers.

Anyone with a handicap of eight or less who wishes to try out is asked to see Mr. Shively as soon as possible. Matches are being scheduled now. Features of the golfers' card will be the annual Southern Intercollegiate tournament April 17, 18 and 19 in Athens, Ga.

Cats Top Temple For 32-2 Record

Kentucky's scheduled season ended in the high scoring, little-troubled, split-opponents style as characteristic of almost the entire Cat cage campaign. Temple's boys were the thirty-second victim of Rupp's Rifles in 34 starts, when the Baron's boys achieved an easy 62-29 triumph in Louisville's Armory Saturday night.

The game's question marks, thanks to Kentucky's siege of colds and influenza, gave way to the Cats' usual fast-breaking, point production tactics. Though two regulars, Jack Tuttle and Ralph Beard, were not in the starting line-up, Rupp's Raiders ran up an early lead, increased it as the minutes ticked away. At halftime Kentucky led, 41-14.

Temple's courtmen failed to show the aggressiveness and drive so typical of Owl outfits, were too slow to go in Cat company. Josh Cody's netters were never in the game.

Alex Greco made 15 points to top Kentucky's tally total. It is of these in the first 11 minutes of play, "Walsh" Jones, who took Tuttle's forward berth in the first five, registered 13 for second place. Every Whitest except Beard scored, and the Louisville lad had hardly entered the game when the last gun sounded. It was the first time in Rapid Rupp's two years stay at UK that he did not start, but a week's stay in the University infirmary had left him in too weak a condition. Lerter's seven points was Temple's best mark.

Stoakes Discusses Literature In Talk To Book Guild

"What Has Happened to Literature?" was the topic of a speech given by Dr. James Paul Stoakes, professor of English and director of Freshman English, at the Second Presbyterian church's book guild last night. # MUSIC with Melton

By Baxter Melton, Kernel Sports Editor

That Kentucky is going to another basketball tournament and that Kentucky is favored to win the event are about as extraordinary as day following night. It just comes natural for the Baron and his boys to maintain winning ways, after their meet-all-comers and impressive season record.

Why not take advantage of the endless publicity possibilities available to the nation's No. 1 team? The national invitational assumes an added importance because its winner will be recognized as the mythical cage champion of the country. The N.C.A.A. has lost the prestige that marked previous years; the invitational now gets the cream of the crop.

Anyhow the 18,500 fans who will jam Madison Square Garden expect Kentucky to win. The only question in their minds is "How Much?" The Cats have long been a favorite with the crowds in New York. Crowds in the big town just naturally took a liking to Adolph and his "pre-ill mountain boys."

Kentuckian-Mountaineer
Colie Smally's article in the Saturday Evening Post illustrates the general attitude toward Kentucky. Veterans from the Bluegrass state will remember their days in service. Whether you were from Paducah or Pikeville, Hopkinsville or Harlan, you were classified as a "ridge-running, moonshining son-of-a-gun." The setup is a natural; why not capitalize on it.

For instance miniature "how rifles" could be put on the front of the players' jerseys, maybe add the likeness of a "still." On the back, slip numbers "like you didn't care." Warmup suits could consist of genuine coonskin caps, leather fringed trousers and hunting jackets.

For a bench how about a diminutive "O! Kentucky Home" with seats for the reserves inside loop-holes for them to be pulled through. A special porch might be built for the Baron. This "building" could easily be constructed like the portable floors, assembled or torn down at will. It would require little more room than the regular bench.

Add A Rooftop Section
Of course a rooftop section "in character" would help. Send along some students dressed in denim shirts and jeans, let them sling a jug over their shoulders. (Mark me down as the first volunteer. Mr. Wilde.) Have 'em carry rifles in a "Happy" and "Pappy" Did't Do Bad careless sort of manner. Add some "Lee 'Pappy' O'Daniel's won the cheerleaders, preferably the feminine variety dressed as Daisy Maes. A L'il Abner or so would carry out the theme.

Then there's the matter of music. A hill-billy band dressed appropriately and playing mountain melodies is suggested. Its theme song could be "I get the Blues for My Old Kentucky Home." (There is such a song. I've heard my dad sing it.)

Suky Takes Over

At halftime Suky could stage a "feudin'" demonstration. The best methods of eliminating undesirable might be shown, with delicate touches in the case of special jobs. As any fool kin plainly see, the idea would go over. "L'il Abner" is one of the most widely read comic strips, even made the movies. To have the Yokums in real life would "wow 'em."

Where the team appears for tournaments—e.g. New York for 10 days—the band could appear in local theaters to which crowds would doubtless swarm. Proceeds from such could be given to the field house fund. After all, there's Yankee Stadium. "The House That Ruth Built" in New York. We could call the long-dreamed-of field house "The House that Rupp's Rifles Built" or some similar name.

"Happy" and "Pappy" Did't Do Bad

Card, Red Farmhands Leave To Join Clubs

Two UK freshmen students will leave soon to resume their careers in professional baseball. They are Ray Mignerey, Newport and Stanley "Bosky" King, Lexington.

Mignerey leaves to join a Cincinnati farm club, the Providence, R. I. Chiefs, who start spring drills at Camden, S. C., this month. This club is in the New England League, class B.

Last season 22-year-old Mignerey won 10 games for Middletown, Ohio, while losing 12. A right-hander, he served during the war in France, Belgium and Germany with the 98th Infantry Division.

Another twirler to leave will be "Bosky" King, also 22, but a Navy veteran, having served in the Pacific on the carrier Intrepid. King leaves for Daytona Beach, Fla., to join a St. Louis Cardinal farm club, Omaha, of the Western League, a class A loop.

Rupp's boys in Blue don't need help in winning games. I'm just thinking of the runaway victories all year, except for a couple of "flat" nights against Oklahoma, A.S.M. and DePaul. Why not give those fans in the Garden and other places something for their money.

The groundwork is done. Our state is 135 years old, but we'll be forever stereotyped as "mountaineers." No undesirable aftermath could result, we are what we are. No tub-thumpers with new angles are required for this job, just feel through.

Long Island Is First Cat Foe In New York Invitational

By Baxter Melton

Twelve Wildcats entrain tomorrow for New York and defense of their National Invitational title in Madison Square Garden. For the cage cats it represents a bit more than a try to keep their crown; they must prove their right to the No. 1 ranking in the country.

Once again Kentucky is favored, with most trouble expected to come from the Mountaineers of West Virginia. Coach Adolph Rupp leaves tonight to scout West Virginia in his game against Bradley Saturday night. The Wildcats do not play until Monday, meeting Long Island. They are scheduled to arrive in New York early Sunday afternoon.

New York Teams Tough

Either of the two New York quintets in Kentucky's bracket could cause trouble. Long Island whipped Tennessee 42-23, but should have achieved a larger margin, according to Harry Lancaster, assistant coach who scouted the game. Coached by Clair Bee, one of the nation's best mentors, the Blackbirds held a 23 point lead until they relaxed. The Yobs started a series of desperate shots that began to find their mark. The Islanders have been returned winners in 18 of 20 tries.

If Kentucky meets St. John in the semi-finals as expected, the Bluegrass basketiers will be meeting a five time trounced, 70-50, last before Christmas. The bats of Joe Latchick can be rascals, though, particularly Harry Boykoff, six foot, nine inch center, who tossed in a Garden record of 54 points against St. Francis of Brooklyn Tuesday night. St. John has won 16 of 23 starts.

West Virginia Rated No. 2

West Virginia (18-1) is the wiseguys' nominee for a final berth against Kentucky. Only team to top the Mountaineers all season was Navy, whose one-point victory has dubious angles. A Gob goal was realized when a West Virginia player hit the net, making the two points automatic whether the ball was basket-bound or not.

State (21-4). Monday night Kentucky (22-2) vies with Long Island, Utah (16-5) clashes with Duquesne (21-1). Semis are scheduled for Wednesday.

How long each team stays in New York depends on its success in the meet. First-round losers are allowed no more expenses, but if a team is defeated in the semi-finals it still stays for the wind-up, since there is a try for third-place money.

DZ's Girl Bowling Champs

The Delta Zeta's topped out the ADPI's, 2736 to 2530, to take first honors in the inter-sorority meet held at Colonial Bowling Lanes. The KD's ranked third with a total of 2481, followed by SDT, 2305; DDD's, 2300; AXID, 2182; KKG, 1800; GHO 1981, and AGD, 995.

led by Ruth Dameron, who paced tournament squad, will make the trip. That roster includes Jack Tingle, Joe Holland, Cliff Barker, Jim Line, Wallace Jones, Alex Groza, Ralph Beard, Kenny Rollins, Buddy Parker and Dale Burnstable. Team headquarters will be at the Hotel Belvedere.

all bowlers, the DZ's won the bowling cup held for the past year by the KD's. Other outstanding bowlers included Beverly Smith, ADPI; Nonschelle Kling, KD; Anita Levy, SDT; Jean Moore, DDD; Betty Barkman, AXID; Phyllis Feldman and Mary Dunlop, KKG; Mary Ann Hunter, Chi O. Mary Price Creamer, KAT; Jean Stephens, AGD.

Kentucky's starting five runs across the street to another game in Madison Square Garden. This scene will be re-enacted three times next week if they go to the Invitational finals as expected. The team stays at Hotel Belvedere, just across the street from the Garden. From left to right the players are Jack Tingle, forward; Alex Groza, center; Joe Holland, forward; and Ralph Beard and Kenny Rollins, guards.

Tourney Makes Four Meets In 'Big Town' For Ruppmen

By Tom Dinkin

When Kentucky appears in New York City next week to defend its National Invitational crown, it will mark the Wildcats' fourth post-season tournament in Madison Square Garden.

For veteran Jack Tingle this will also be his fourth time there, as he participated in each of the previous tournaments. Joe Holland, Buddy Parker, Ralph Beard and Wallace Jones all played last year, so this will be their second Invitational showing. Jim Jordan played with the North Carolina quintet in the NCAA tourney last season in the Gamecock's being out in the finals to a strong Oklahoma A&M team, 43-40. For Alex Groza, Ken Rollins, Cliff Barker and the others, it will be their first Garden tourney, though all the boys have been there in a scheduled game. Kentucky whipped St. John, another tournament entry, 70-50, at Christmas time. In New York's basketball 'howl.'

In 1944, the Wildcats lost to St. John's in the semi-finals, 43-48. Earlier they had trimmed Utah, 46-38. In the consolation game, Adolph Rupp's boys topped Oklahoma A. & M., 45-29, for third place.

The following season saw the Kentucky quintet lose to Ohio State in a bitterly fought contest, 37-43, two nights later UK won the consolation game again, beating Turf, 66-56. Last year, Kentucky "dood it." The Cats whipped Arizona, 77-53, in the opening round; beat West Virginia,

WAA'ers Top Maroonettes

By Ken Ashbury

Let by Betty Crowe, the girl basketeters of UK defeated the Maroonettes from Richmond, 24-20, in a benefit game for the W.S.S.P. drive, held Monday night in Alumni gymnasium before about 1500 students.

The game was closely contested from the opening whistle with never more than two or three points separating the two teams. The Kittens led by two points at the half, 13-10. The second half for Kentucky got underway with two quick baskets by Crowe, Education senior from Dixon and former Christiana college star, Captain Peggy Reynolds hit one from way out, and Betty Jackson made it 18 with a charity toss, while the Wild Kittens held the Maroonettes to one free throw.

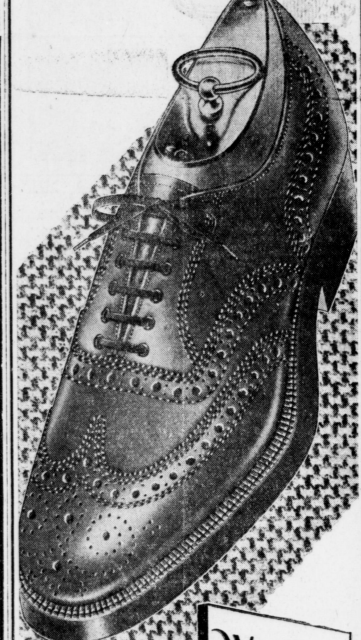

It's No JOKE. An assistant state's attorney, newly assigned to the Desplaines (Chicago) street court, misses lots of phone calls. When people call the court and ask for Kilroy, whoever answers just laughs and hangs up. "It's discouraging," said the new man, Thomas Kilroy.

Tandy Best For Losers Eastern, not to be outdone, regained his eye for the basket. With Betsy Tandy showing the way, the Maroonettes hit the net for three quick goals, narrowing Kentucky's lead to two points. The Kittens' defense, composed of Ruth Wilde, Betty Rhodes, and Lola Stokes then tightened, allowing Eastern only three points in the remaining four minutes.

Tandy led the scoring parade for both teams with 14 tallies. Crowe was high for the Kittens with 13, followed by Reynolds with eight and Wadough three.
