HISTORICAL SKETCH.

THE city of Lexington is situated in latitude $38^{\circ} 02'$ north: longitude $84^{\circ} 26'$ west; 517 miles from Washington City, 25 miles southeast from Frankfort, the Capital of the State, 77 miles southeast from Louisville, and 85 miles south from Cincinnati; it is surrounded by one of the most beautiful and fertile regions that is to be found upon the continent. There is perhaps no spot upon the face of the globe that yields so uniformly an abundant return for the labor of the planter as that portion of Kentucky laying contiguous to and tributary to the city of Lexington.

Fayette county (in which the city of Lexington is situated) was formed in 1780 by the State of Virginia, and is one of the three original counties that at one time comprised the entire district of Kentucky—and embraced all that territory beginning at the mouth of the Kentucky river, and extending up its middle fork to the head, and embracing the eastern portion of the present State; it received its name as a testimonial of gratitude to General Gilbert Mortier de La Fayette.

Lexington is the seat of justice for the county of Fayette—about the first of April, 1776, a block-house was built on the site now occupied by T. W. White & Bro. as a dry goods store—corner of Main and Mill streets—and the settlement commenced under the influence of Colonel Robert Patterson, joined by Messrs. McConnells, Lindsays and James Masterson. Major John Morrison removed his family soon after from Harrodsburg, and the lady of that gentleman was the first white female that graced the infant settlement. It received its name in commemoration of the battle of Lexington, where the first blood was shed in our first struggle for political liberty.

Lexington was incorporated by the Virginia Legislature in

3-16-37
M. J. C.

1782, and was for several years the seat of Government for the State.

The first improvement consisted of three rows of cabins, the two outer serving as a part of the walls of the fortification, which extended from White's corner to about where Gilbert's tin ware and stove store now stands, on Main street. The buildings were first erected on this spot, principally for convenience to water, the public spring, a splendid gushing stream, debouching from the earth about midway of the block of buildings now occupied by J. A. Harper, W. J. & J. Clark, J. J. Hunt & Co., and Jno. T. Miller.

The first plat of the city calls for Walnut, Mulberry, Upper, Middle (now Mill), Main Cross (now Broadway), Spring, Lower, and Jefferson streets, from east to west, and High, Water, Main, Short, Church, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh streets, from north to south.

On the 11th day of August, 1787, the first number of the Kentucky Gazette was published by John & Fielding Bradford, this was the first newspaper published in Kentucky, and the second in age west of the mountains, a Pittsburg paper being the oldest.

For many years Lexington was the commercial metropolis of the Ohio valley, merchants from other towns and cities purchasing their supplies of dry goods, groceries, iron, nails, salt, etc., at wholesale from the Lexington merchant and manufacturer.

In 1794, Mr. West, a gunsmith, constructed a steamboat on a small scale, which, in the presence of a large concourse of citizens, he tried on the Town fork of Elkhorn, previously dammed up for the purpose, and it is said it moved through the water with great velocity. This city being at that time the point at which all the nails used in the valley were manufactured, Mr. West also invented the machine now used for cutting nails.

The subject of education occupied the attention of the settlers of Lexington at a very early date—two schools had been established—one called the Transylvania Seminary, and the other the Kentucky Academy; in 1798 the Legislature consolidated these and endowed the new institution with liberal land grants, under the title of Transylvania University. At this institution many of the ablest men in the Mississippi Valley have received their education. After having passed through many changes it is now merged in the Kentucky University, with a more thorough organization than at any period of its existence. All the branches of science are now being taught in this institution, including Theology, Law, Agriculture, Military Tactics, and, in a short time they expect to be able to announce a full course of Medical lectures.

The University has been amply endowed, and has now, perhaps, as fine a corps of Professors as any similar institution on the continent. The buildings and grounds now occupied are the Old Transylvania College. The Masonic Hall, and Ashland, late the farm and home of the Hon. Henry Clay, which contains 433 acres of land. The matriculates in the University for the Session 1866-7, were 502, and there is no institution of learning in our country whose prospects are more bright, for a lengthened career of usefulness.

To that clever, liberal and genial gentleman, John B. Bowman, Esq., are our citizens indebted for the splendid success of the Institution—may he live a thousand years and his shadow never grow less.

The Eastern Lunatic Asylum, located in the northern suburbs of the city is another public institution of which our people may well be proud.

This institution was first founded by the city, but subsequently transferred to the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The present buildings are capable of accommodating about 300 patients. The grounds now attached to it and belonging to the State contain about 300 acres, which are cultivated mostly by the patients, for the benefit of the inmates of the Asylum. An additional building is now in course of erection, 440 feet long, 50 feet wide, three stories and a basement, which, when completed, will add 250 additional rooms for the reception of patients.

Dr. W. S. Chipley (with his accomplished assistant, Dr. S. P.

Dudley, Jr.) has been for many years the Physician and Superintendent of this institution. Dr. Chipley has made the study of insanity his specialty. He has visited Europe, and most of the Insane Asylums on this continent; and the cures effected under his supervision and treatment, bear as large a proportion to the number admitted, as appear in the reports of any other Insane Institution in the United States. The following table will show the number admitted, discharged, etc., since 1824, a period of forty-two years:

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Admitted.....	1776	936	2712
Discharged, Recovered.....	729	298	1027
Died.....	620	409	1029
Eloped.....	120	16	136
Removed.....	156	108	264
Remaining October 1, 1866.....	148	105	251

The city has three flourishing Common Schools in successful operation, each being conducted by one Principal Male Teacher and three assistant females. There are annually taught in these three schools about one thousand pupils, free of charge to the parents. There are a number of other private institutions of learning in the city. The Sayre Female College, S. R. Williams Principal; St. Catherine's Academy; Rev. Mr. Mullins' Female School; Rev. Mr. Totten's Male and Female School, etc. There is, perhaps, no city in the Union that furnishes more or better facilities for the education of the youth of both sexes than the city of Lexington. The country adjacent is healthy, the climate mild and salubrious, the society good, churches of all denominations abundant, access to public libraries easy—our city will certainly be a great educational center.

There are other public institutions in the city, but our limited space will not permit us to speak of them in extenso. The Lexington Library contains about 12,000 volumes of miscellaneous books. The Lexington Cemetery, a beautiful resting place for the dead, is located in the western suburb of the city—in this ground rest the remains of the immortal Henry Clay; the Federal and Confederate dead also occupy separate lots in this Cemetery.

The Northern Bank of Kentucky, the First National, and City National Banks, together with several private bankers, furnish monetary facilities to our merchants and traders.

The pages of our Directory have been prepared with great care, and we think it is more accurate than any Directory of the City has heretofore been made. This has cost a great deal of labor and considerable pecuniary outlay. Our only aim has been to produce a reliable Directory;—we think we have accomplished this object.

To the kind friends who have rendered us assistance in our undertaking we return our sincere acknowledgments. A. M.
