Jobs For Reserves

(The following article was written by a student in a class in editorial writing. Perhaps some of the facts it contains will affect some University students before too long.—Ed.)

We have recently become aware of a rotten situation in this country that has left us in a slow burn. The practice of some of our businesses retaining employment of members of the Reserve Corps is about as striking an act as a 40-year-old street-walker seducing a high school freshman. The employer is, of course, wary of giving the recruit a job and the training only to lose him when and if he is called into the active service. In cold, hard facts this may be sound business judgment, but since when did this country of ours rely on cruel coldness to gain its present greatness? Eighty percent of the Reserve Corps is made up of veterans who...

First Railroad To West Stops Near Anderson Hall

By Nancy Gaskin

There's a railroad track on the UK campus, and it runs in front of Anderson Hall, the engineering building. The route used to run from Lexington to Louisville. The track is just a few feet long now, and no trains go over it. It is a symbol of the old Lexington and Ohio Railroad, which was the first railroad to be built in Kentucky and the beginning of the first railroad to the West.

Along in 1832, when the track was opened for transportation on Aug. 15, the first railroad car traveled over it. At the time only one-and-a-half miles of track had been completed.

FOURTY PEOPLE MADE the first trip over the track in the railroad car. Only one horse was needed to pull the car along because of the construction method. This was a miraculous feat in those days, for at the time one horse was needed for a light highway zig that carried two people.

In 1834 the track was finished as far as Frankfort. It was soon called the Lexington and Frankfort Railroad because further construction bogged down there for a while.

was built for the railroad. It was described as looking like "a farm wagon that could navigate on rails." It was built by Dr. Thomas Clark, head of the UK history department, in his article for the Kentucky Register of the State Historical Society.

The train route did not originally run across the UK campus. The rails used in the monument were taken from part of the old railroad bed torn up from the west Lexington railroad yards.

The Real Story

Dr. Donovan's statement about the draft and its effect on students comes at an opportune time. Draft hysteria has been growing by leaps and bounds since the Christmas vacation. And the rumors are making it even worse than this.

We've been hearing around campus that men are leaving the University at the rate of 20 a day. Some of the figures run as high as 30. Personally knowing several of the departed, it's not hard to understand why these rumors gain credit.

The general confusion about the whole situation made the Kernel decide that it's time to get the facts. The resulting story, printed on page one, shows that things aren't as bad as they seem. Only 154 students have left school to enter the armed services this semester. The overall withdrawal is not far above normal. These facts are reassuring in view of the what's-the-use attitude which seems to pervade the campus.

A realistic examination of the situation seems to be in order. Dr. Donovan's statement may help to clarify each man's exact status with the draft. And it might be well to pay particular attention to that last paragraph, which says in part:

"Whether a person is to go into military service now or later, he would do well to obtain all he can from his college work until he actually begins military service."

The 30 Mark-A Tribute

We almost feel that at least a little corner of the Kernel should be edged in black this week. For with this issue, we say good-bye to four of our best staff members, all of whom have successfully come through Flanner's Perilous Path to graduation.

The rest of the Kernel staff hereby says farewell-and-best-of-luck to these Kernel veterans: Joan Cook, business manager, who has kept the Kernel finances in good order and thereby kept us going; Betty Compton, who has battled photographers and engravers to provide the paper with pictures; Bob Gorham, who has done an excellent job of covering this, one of the biggest years in Kentucky sports history; and Bob Finn, one of the most versatile and valuable staff members the Kernel ever had.

Though someone will always turn up to do the work, we don't think anyone can quite take the places of these four. We'll miss them a lot—and we think you will too.

Booing At The Games

We admit that the officiating at the UK-Notre Dame game probably wasn't what it should have been. But officiating hardly ever gets bad enough to justify the roar of boos that continued throughout the game Monday night.

The only thing booing accomplishes is to bring forth comments on the school's poor sportsmanship. It sounds bad enough when the score is close, but it's even worse when we're 15 or 20 points ahead.

Ball games are not supposed to be serious. Make all the noise you want to, but let's try to keep the booing down.

Russian Political Thought Discussed By Rostovsky

By Ray Cooley

Speaking on "Russian Political Thought in the Nineteenth Century," Prof. Loban-Rostovsky of the University of Michigan last Thursday night told a packed Guggenheim Theatre audience that internal stresses in Russia made it very unlikely that the Soviet Union would initiate active conflict with the west for some time to come. This was the third of the Blaizer Lecture series.

Prof. Rostovsky, who is a native Russian nobleman and a naturalized U. S. citizen, explained that the problems of the millions of displaced persons, industrial development, insufficient iron production and an eastward migration by great masses of Russian people are holding up Soviet action to spread the power of Communism.

"For the time being these frictions will hold off a general explosion," said Prof. Rostovsky.

THE FORMER MEMBER of the Russian royal family stated that he thought the present Communist movement of Mao Tse-Tung in China was not Moscow controlled, but like Tito's Communism just a parallel movement of Red ideology.

On the subject of Communism, Prof. Rostovsky said, "Communism is like water. 'Like water it seeks a lower level, Communism can never take root in a strong prosperous community.

When the microbes undermine the prosperity Communism strikes and grows quickly.

"ALSO LIKE WATER Communism shapes itself to the position in which it finds itself. Communism always applies itself to the psychology of the country it seeks to dominate.

"Again like water Communism is colored by substances that it is mixed with. Therefore, Communist ideology remains the same but it is colored by the more, political views, etc., peculiar to the nation it controls."

In the course of his lecture the Michigan history professor stated that Russia's actions in the present world crisis can be explained by Russia's complex history.

HE SAID THAT the Soviet Union's present isolationism is not new and then pointed out dates and examples from Russian history to prove that the present iron curtain follows a pattern in Russia's relations with the West.

Russia, according to Prof. Rostovsky, has been driven back and forth like a pendulum on a clock ever since its emergence as a nation.

One of the most important things to keep in mind," said the professor, "when trying to fathom Russia's actions, both past and present, is that Russia refused the religions of Asia and started its own orthodox religion in 862. This set Russia apart from both Europe and Asia and always left Russia on the outside."

PROF. ROSTOVSKY SAID that the greatest factor in the political thinking of Russia in the nineteenth century was the formation of two opposite schools of thought in Russia early in that century.

One school of thought, the Western party, believed that Russia should take a western attitude and ideas and further western culture with all of Russia's strength until they achieved a Utopia.

This party was in the majority but became increasingly radical, progressing through many "isms" including materialism until finally the Western party accepted Karl Marx and thereby fathered Communism.

THE SECOND SCHOOL of thought, related the Russian and French educated professor, was the Slavophili party which believed that the western nations were old and dying and that Russia was young and vigorous. The Slavophiles wanted Russia to take root in her own soil, to form her own government, ideologies and way of life without recourse to the western civilization.

"Strange as it may seem," Prof. Rostovsky added, "it will be readily understood that these two parties which were deadly enemies ever since their emergence in the beginning of the nineteenth century, have at last come together and follow the same path."

Convention To Be Headed By Cooper

The thirty-ninth annual Farm and Home convention will be held Jan. 20-22 on the University campus. Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics will be director of the convention.

Included in the opening day's exercises will be a discussion of European agriculture and home-making by UK students; a radio address by Dale Stahl, Marna Perry, Bruce Cotton, and Faye Sumpter who visited Europe as a Club members last summer. There will also be an illustration of the trip by Lowell Thomas Jr. about a trip to Tibet.

A farm and home show, presented in the Agricultural Engineering Building, will be a feature of the program. Educational exhibits and demonstrations will be prepared under the supervision of the various departments of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Among the topics to be discussed and demonstrated during the convention are Cost and Feeding Value of Hay and Silage, Turkey Outlook and Marketing, Farming Outlook and Tenancy Arrangements, Kentucky's Crop Improvement, Sheep Production, Dairying, the Dollar Side of Farming, Kentucky Seed Improvement, Beef and Broiler Production, Sells and Crops, Fruits and Vegetables, Hog Production, and Egg Production.

'Why' Of Man Will Be Studied By Class

A new course dealing with the earliest history and behavior of men will be conducted next semester at the University. Dr. Charles S. Cook, head of the Department of Anthropology, said that it would be a three-hour, no credit course.

No definite time has been set for the course, but it will be held one night a week for teachers and other interested persons.

Mrs. Katherine Dickey, president of the Lexington-Fayette County Classroom Teachers Association, said the course is being conducted to foster a further understanding of the brotherhood of the human species.

Bible College Prof To Lead Discussion

Dr. Dwight E. Stevenson, professor at the College of the Bible, will lead the third discussion in the "Two Giants in One World" series of the Disciples Student Fellowship at 6:30 Sunday night in the Kentucky Utilities auditorium. His speech will follow a supper meeting at 5:30 p.m.

Deadline Is Tuesday For Returning Books

All students with overdue books or with unpaid fines will have their names turned into the Registrar's Office Tuesday, according to Lawrence S. Thompson, director of the Margaret I. King Library. Any student who is not cleared with the library will not be permitted to register for the spring semester.

THE ADMINISTRATION BUILDING, one of the three oldest structures on the campus, has had a varied life, serving in many capacities since its dedication in 1882.

1882 Dedication Was Start Of Long Life For University's Administration Building

By Janet Payne

The cornerstone of the Administration Building for President James K. Patton, one of the first buildings on the campus, was laid the Bible ceremony in 1882. Among the things con-celebrated was the laying of the cornerstone in the ceremony was a chapter out of it each day. However, catalogue of 1879-1889 of the Agr-his looked over at Prof. John Shalko and Mechanical College, a professor of English, languages copy of the Courier-Journal, the day and mentioned for the Lexington Daily Press, the Lexington Daily rose and repeated from memory Transcript, the Frankfort Yeoman, the longest chapter he knew, illand the Farmer's magazine; Ma-trating all the while with this long one Emblem; and a school-leaders, and prayed a lengthy prayer.

The Administration Building was installed on this floor. The Administration Building was dedicated on Feb. 15, 1882 along with the library, Literary society the Men's Dorm and the President's offices and classrooms were located here. So thus the Administration the third floor. After several Building's long history began. years, a weather observer's tower was used for classrooms and in 1948, for the first time in the history of the building, since its construction 68 years previous, the Administration Building, and for chemistry became solely an administration and physics were located on the second and political science to the temporary. At that time the entire Social Science building, the last faculty and student body could be the academic departments was re-located in the room for chapel ser-moved from what originally was known as the "main building."

Once upon entering the auditorium. Indeed, the Administration Building for chapel service "He Pat," has probably served more purposes and been changed more than any other building on the campus. It seems to have taken as its motto the words spoken by "He Pat" when he returned to the Administration Building one day, several years after his retirement, and noticed the changes being made in the building. "He Pat" looked around and then said to Prof. Ezra Gillis, University historian, "A wise man once said to me that everything should be otherwise!"

Engineering College Accepts Student Assistance Funds

Funds to be used for providing financial assistance to needy University engineering students and for the establishment of a series of specialized lectures covering a type of instruction not now offered, have been accepted by the College of Engineering.

The gifts total $3500, according to Dean D. V. Terrell, and include $3000 from J. R. Watkins, president of Watkins Patents, Inc., New Haven, Conn.; $1000 from Louis Ware, president of International Minerals and Chemicals Corporation, Chicago; and $500 from the Kentucky Utilities Company.

Watkins, a 1915 graduate of the University, is a designer of shipping containers. Income from his gift of $2000 will be used to finance a series of lectures of UK engineering students on the design, construction, and testing of various types of containers.

The Ware gift of $1000 will be treated, Dean Terrell said, as a loan fund for needy students of mining engineering. Beneficiaries of the fund will not be required to pay interest on any loan, but will be expected to repay the amount of the loan when able to do so.

Like Watkins, Ware is a graduate of the UK College of Engineering, class of 1917.

With the $500 contributed by Kentucky Utilities, Dean Terrell said the College of Engineering would establish a scholarship in electrical engineering to become effective with the beginning of the 1951 fall term. The award will be made to an entering freshman on the basis of competitive examination scores.

Both the K.U. and Ware gifts are to be administered by the Kentucky Research Foundation.

Irish Tough For A Half

The Fighting Irish lived up to their nick-name for a half last Monday night, but fell apart before a furious second half attack by Kentucky as the Cats romped to a 69-44 triumph before 13,500 fans at Memorial Coliseum.

This time it was Frank Ramsey that led Kentucky to victory. The brilliant sophomore scored 19 points, got rebounds off both backboards, and turned in a fine defensive game.

But Ramsey had help from Capt. Walt Hirsch, who turned in his best game of the season, and from Bobby Watson who played a fine offensive and defensive game.

Behind Ramsey in the scoring was Hirsch with 12 points. Spivey with 11 and Watson and Linnville tabbed eight each.

Notre Dame's scoring was led by Leroy Leslie with 12 points. Northern Leviniski with 10, and Dan Bagley with eight points.

Leading 29-26 at the start of the second half, the Wildcats pulled away with a blistering display of speed to turn the game into a runaway victory. Coach Rupp had his reserves in at the end of the game.

Kentucky was behind only once—Indiana (1) in the first half.

With a short crisp after 1:20 of play, But Watson tied the score with a crisp and two free throws by Ramsey and a rebounder by Spivey put the Cats ahead.

Then Ramsey teamed with Watson, Hirsch and Linnville to give the Cats a 25-4 margin. Here Notre Dame got hot and Kentucky went cold. With Leslie and Leviniski doing most of the work, the Irish stormed back, knocking the Cats off balance. The half ended with the Irish behind three points, 29-26.

During this drive the Irish hit 11 of 32 shots for 34.4 percent. Kentucky connected on 10 of 46 for a 21.7.

At the start of the second half the Cats had their attack working smoothly and the Irish kept the ball away from the Irish.

Spivey hooked in a shot to start the scoring. Watson drove under for a crisp. Linnville hit on a jump shot and Hirsch followed with a one-hander to make it 37-26.

A crisp and a free throw by Leslie cut the lead to eight points, but that is as close as the Irish got. Hirsch and Spivey hit free throws. Hirsch added a crisp and the Cats were off again.

The rest of the game was marred by numerous fouls as both teams scrambled for the ball. Linnville went out the lead to eight points. He was followed out by Leviniski. Then Ramsey scored and it was 49-26. Spivey's fouled out and seconds later Hirsch scored and it was 51-26.

The reserves came in and Kentucky scored seven points to four for Notre Dame in the final five minutes.

In rolling to their 11th victory in 12 outings, and their 20th straight victory at home, Kentucky had a final shooting average of 29.7 while hitting 27 of 91.

Notre Dame had a final average of 24.6 percent, sinking 15 of the 61 shots they took. The loss was the fifth in 13 games and the second in a row for the Irish.

Cats Meet Vols In Knoxville

Play Tech On Monday

Coach Adolph Rupp departs today with his team for a seven game swing through the South before the Wildcats return home for the Georgia Tech game in Memorial Coliseum Feb. 9.

This trip will give Kentucky a chance to take over undisputed first place in the Conference standing. Currently the Cats are tied with Vanderbilt for first place, each is undefeated in Conference play.

In the first game of the trip Kentucky meets Tennessee in Knoxville tomorrow night. Although the Vols upset the Wildcats last year at this time, there is little chance of that happening this year. Tennessee enters this game with a five win and seven loss record.

Then the Cats journey to Atlanta to meet the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets Monday night. The Tech record is 2-9 for the season.

The Cats return home after this game but go back on the road to play Vanderbilt in Nashville Jan. 27, and then they meet Tulane, Louisiana State, Mississippi State, and Mississippi in that order.

The tilt with Georgia Tech on Feb. 9 will be the first of the last five games on the home schedule.

Monday night at the new Moose Lodge, currently the Wildcats are sporting an overall record of 11 wins and one loss, to St. Louis in the Sugar Bowl. Their record in Conference play is three wins and no defeats.

Jamerson Was Feted Monday

The city of Henderson, Ky. took a day Monday to honor a favorite son, Wilbur (Shorty) Jamerson, and to express their thanks to the Wildcat co-captain for a job well done.

Olis Benton, Henderson's mayor, declared in a special proclamation that the day was to be set aside as "Shorty Jamerson Day" and appointed the 168-pound speedster honorary mayor, police chief, and fire chief.

A parade through the streets with a royal escort welcomed Shorty home with open arms. Former coaches were on hand to aid in the ceremonies. Frank Camp, head coach at the University of Louisville, was able to attend. Turner Elrod, Western Kentucky State's backfield coach, and Paul Bryant, of the University were among the dignitaries.

As the guest of honor, Jamerson awarded gold footballs to the senior lettermen of the Henderson high school team of this past season. These awards are made annually by the Chamber of Commerce of the city as a banquet in their honor. The youngsters were also being feted.

LSU finally beat Texas Christian, 14-0, in 1943 after previously playing 0-3, and 2-3 games with the Horned Frogs.

Wilbur (Shorty) Jamerson, high captain who had been chosen All-State and All-Southern prep school back while in high school there.

New Coach Added To The Staff

Jim Owens, former Oklahoma end, has been named an assistant football coach at the University of Kentucky, Coach Paul Bryant announced this week.

The former Sooner end was co-captain of the 1949 Oklahoma team which was unbeaten in 11 games and won the Sugar Bowl championship.

He played with the Baltimore Colts last fall and at the same time was an assistant at Johns Hopkins University.

Owens is 27 and comes from Oklahoma City. He was in the Navy Air Force for two years and while at Oklahoma played in the Gator Bowl and in the Sugar Bowl twice.

Owens is the first new assistant to be added to the Kentucky staff of last season. Frank Moseley became head coach at the Virginia school and George Chapman and Dick Holway became his aides.

Kittens Wallop Baby Tigers

Coach Harry Lancaster's undefeated University of Kentucky freshman basketball team won its sixth consecutive game by walloping the Georgetown College freshmen 99-56 last Tuesday night.

The Kittens jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the first few minutes of the game and led by the score of 44-24 at the half. Georgetown crept to within three points of the Kittens in the first quarter when the score was 17-14, but that is as close as the Baby Tigers came for the rest of the night.

Four of the Kentucky freshmen posted double numerals for the night's play. The leading scorer for the Kittens was Billy Evans with 23 points. He was followed closely by Dickie Prater with 20, Willie House with 16, and Handy Winkley with 12 points.

Georgetown's leading scorer was Kenny Cox who dropped in 28 points on 12 field goals and a pair of free throws. He led both teams in scoring. He was followed in the scoring column by Myers with 10 points and Kinney with eight.

Vanderbilt beat Centre, 66-0, in 1942 without punning during the entire game.
