Preface

There is presented in the following pages, as the fourteenth publication of the American Imprints Inventory of the Historical Records Survey, a check list of West Virginia imprints for the period 1791-1830 inclusive. During this period the area of what is now the state of West Virginia was a part of Virginia. So we are not surprised to find missing the numerous session laws, legislative journals, departmental reports, etc., which usually bulk so large in the early printing of a state. The pioneer printers in this area had thus to depend on their production of newspapers, pamphlets, and books to make a living. But for this very reason the book and pamphlet imprints turned out by the local presses are of special interest.

Although the present West Virginia was politically a part of Virginia, it was geographically a distinct region, lying for the most part beyond the barrier of the Alleghanies. For more than a hundred years after the first settlement at Jamestown in 1607, the region beyond the mountains was not even explored. During that hundred years important settlements had been made in the eastern part of Virginia, and the colony was well on its way to becoming populous and wealthy. Finally, in 1716, Governor Alexander Spotswood conducted an exploring party into what is now Pendleton County, West Virginia, and the very earliest white settlers, who were traders with the Indians, appeared in the region about 1725.

The first permanent settlers in the West Virginia region, however, were not Virginians, but some Pennsylvania Germans who founded New Mecklenburg, now Shepherdstown, in 1727. This settlement, in the extreme eastern corner of the present state, was only some fifteen or twenty miles south of Hagerstown (at first named Elizabethtown) in western Maryland, which was also in large part a settlement made by Pennsylvania Germans. This eastern corner of West Virginia, the so-called "Northern Neck," was surveyed by the young George Washington between 1748 and 1751.

After 1750 a considerable number of settlers crossed the mountains, but during the French and Indian War (1754-1763) most of the scattered settlements were destroyed. As early as the days of the Revolutionary War there was a movement to erect the region beyond the mountains into a new state, to be called Westsylvania, as the population and interests of that remote region had already become quite different from those of eastern Virginia. And those social, political, and economic differences between the two sections continued to increase until the final separation in 1863.

The major portion of the present state of West Virginia belongs geographically to what was rather vaguely described in the early days as the "western region." But it kept a peculiarly shaped "neck" reaching over to the eastern side of the Alleghanies as far as the Potomac and Shenandoah rivers. And it was at the extreme eastern limit of this neck that the press first appeared in what is now West Virginia.

Shepherdstown, on the west bank of the Potomac and already mentioned as the earlier settlement of New Mecklenburg, was the site of this first press. At this point Nathaniel Willis began to print the Potowmac Guardian, and Berkeley Advertiser about November 1, 1790. This was about four months after Stewart Herbert had begun his Washington Spy at nearby Hagerstown (then called Elizabethtown) in Maryland. Willis came to Shepherdstown from Winchester, Virginia, a move of some twenty-five or thirty miles. At Winchester he had been publishing Willis's Virginia Gazette and Winchester Advertiser from March to September, 1790. Before his venture at Winchester he had been engaged in newspaper publishing in Boston from 1776 to 1786.

At Shepherdstown, Willis published the first West Virginia newspaper until some time between November 14, 1791, and April 3, 1792. For this interval no issues of the Potowmac Guardian have survived, but in April, 1792, we find that Willis was issuing his paper at Martinsburg, some ten miles westward, which thus became the second West Virginia town to have a press.

At Shepherdstown also, Willis printed the earliest recorded West Virginia imprint other than a newspaper: "A Letter from Miss S---a to Mrs. R---, ..." dated August 19, 1791, bearing the imprint "Virginia: Shepherd's-Town: Printed by N. Willis." No date of printing is specified, but from the date of the letter we would appear justified in ascribing it to 1791, since it was printed before Willis moved to Martinsburg, which removal took place after November 14, 1791 (at which date he is known to have been printing his paper at Shepherdstown) and before April 3, 1792, when we find him printing in Martinsburg.

The evidence afforded by the second recorded imprint leads us to believe that the move to Martinsburg was made late in 1791, since a document of considerable business urgency dated November 8, 1791, is specified as having been printed at Martinsburg. It would then appear that the ascription of the "Letter" to 1791 is based on significant evidence.

The second recorded West Virginia imprint other than a newspaper was a charter for the town of Woodstock, in Fayette County, Pennsylvania, which was being laid out by John Hopwood, the document being dated November 8, 1791. It bears the imprint "Martinsburg: Printed by N. Willis," but with no date. It was probably printed late in 1791 or perhaps early in 1792.

Dr. Robert Henry was editor of the Guardian for Willis at Martinsburg at least during the first year there. Early in 1795 the title was slightly altered to Potomak Guardian. For a few months in 1798, Willis had Isaac Baldwin as a partner. In the fall of 1799 the Guardian was turned over to Armstrong Charlton, and in December of that year Willis published his intention of leaving Martinsburg in the spring. In April, 1800, Willis was established at Chillicothe, Ohio, where he continued active until the end of the year 1805.

Nathaniel Willis, a native of Boston, was proud of the fact that he had been a member of the famous Boston Tea Party. He seems to have been a political figure of some importance wherever he worked. His son, also named Nathaniel, was trained as a printer, and his grandson, Nathaniel P. Willis, became a nationally known poet.

After Willis left Shepherdstown for Martinsburg, the former town did not have another press until June, 1797, when Philip Rootes and Charles Blagrove appeared at Shepherdstown and established the Impartial Observer: or, Shepherd's-Town, Charles-Town and County Advertiser. This paper is not known to have lasted beyond October of the same year. But during the few months that they were active the two printers produced the earliest known volume of size that bears a West Virginia imprint. This was a book of 332 pages with the title Christian Panoply; containing An Apology for the Bible; in a series of letters addressed to Thomas Paine, by Bishop Richard Watson, and containing also Bishop Watson's An Address to Scoffers at Religion, William Paley's The Authenticity of the Books of the New Testament, and (under the pseudonym of "Philobiblius") another tract by Watson entitled The Sophist Unmasked, which was also "addressed to Thomas Paine, author of a book, entitled, The Age of Reason." This imposing battery of heavy theological artillery bore the imprint "Shepherd's-Town:--1797. Printed by P. Rootes & C. Blagrove." The fame of this pair of printers begins and ends with this work; except that Philip Rootes published a paper called the Virginia Star at Petersburg for about three months in 1795, nothing further is known of either of them.

To return to Martinsburg, the second West Virginia town to have a press, we find that in 1799, probably in April, and while Nathaniel Willis was still publishing his Potomak Guardian there, John Alburtis began competition with his Berkeley Intelligencer. Continuing under this title until 1809, this paper had become the Martinsburg Gazette by the end of 1810. In 1822, Alburtis was succeeded in the Gazette by Washington Evans.

For its third location in West Virginia the press moved across the mountains into the "Western country," to Morgantown, south of Pittsburgh on the Monongahela River. Here Joseph Campbell and Forbes Britton began the Monongalia Gazette and Morgantown Advertiser in January, 1804. By January, 1806, this partnership was dissolved and Campbell was conducting the paper alone. In 1810 he seems to have retired from printing in order to take political office, serving as sheriff and as coroner of Monongalia County. As publisher of the Monongalia Gazette he was succeeded by John Osborn Laidley.

We will not here attempt to trace further the history of the pioneer press in West Virginia. The present record of imprints contributes additional data for that history.

About four years ago a list of West Virginia imprints compiled by the undersigned and containing 58 titles for the period covered by the present list was printed by the Print Shop of the Charleston (W. Va.) High School. Two of these 58 titles have been eliminated. No. 10, with the date corrected to 1843, is beyond the limits of this list, and No. 53, the apocryphal second edition of "The Sacred Writings ...", is mentioned in a note under No. 75 of this list.

That the American Imprints Inventory of the Historical Records Survey has been able to add 49 titles to that list provides impressive evidence of the superior coverage provided by the coast-to-coast dragnet of the Inventory. We hasten to point out, however, that while the record of early West Virginia printing is far more adequate than ever before, we do not yet consider it complete. We expect a number of additional titles to be added during the further course of our work.

Since we intend, at some future date, to issue either a supplement to the present list or a revised edition of the list, we shall appreciate note of any new titles, corrections, or additional locations addressed to the undersigned at 433 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois.

This list has been compiled by the editorial staff of the American Imprints Inventory of the Historical Records Survey, and has been mimeographed by the Illinois Historical Records Survey, under the direction of Mr. Thomas R. Hall, state supervisor.

We wish to acknowledge the helpful cooperation of Mr. Boyd Stutler of the American Legion Monthly in perfecting descriptions of West Virginia imprints in his personal collection.

Hammond, Charles, and others.

To the | Citizens of Ohio County. | We have lately seen a handbill, which has for some | time been privately circulated among the friends of Mr. | Jackson. It is addressed to the Freeholders of Ohio | county, and subscribed by Joseph Tomlinson, Thomas | Evans, and William M'Kinly. Its avowed object is to | promote the election of Mr. Jackson. The charges it | contains, are necessarily calculated to bear upon Mr. Linsly | and his friends in Ohio. Unless such was intended to be | their application, they are without meaning and without | object. | This address contains the following infamous paragraphs: | [15 lines, quotation] | We declare the above charges to be destitute of truth. | It is not true, that either Mr. Linsly or his friends have | palliated or justified the outrages of Great-Britain. The | Federalists of Ohio county have never been the advocates | of British outrage. ... | [15 lines] |
It is not true, that the New-England states are engaged | in any treasonable project. The assertion, that it is "the | "wish of our hearts to raise the very stones to rebellion," is a | base and infamous falsehood. Neither Mr. Linsly nor any | of his friends were ever before accused or suspected of trea-|son or rebellion. This charge sounds well in the mouth of | William M'Kinly; a man who, in the year 1794, was pro-|scribed by the government as a traitor, and excepted, by | proclamation, from a general pardon!! A man who,
con-|scious of his treasonable practices, skulked like a felon
from | the justice of his country!! | It is not true, that we ever
"hailed" Aaron Burr "with | "acclamations of applause." Neither
Mr. Linsly nor any | of his friends in Ohio county, were in any way connected | with Burr. ... | [69 lines] | ... We consider every ge-|neral charge against our political friends as a charge against | ourselves; and henceforward we will not submit to such | charges in silence, when they impute to us any degree of | political turpitude. | We postpone this address until the close of the election, | lest it should be considered an electioneering production. | Charles Hammond, | Noah Zane, | George Miller. | Monday,
April 3d, 1809. | [Wheeling? 1809]

M'Kinley, William.

To Charles Hamand [sic], Noah Zane, and Geo. Miller, Esqs. Wheeling, (Va.) | [thin-thick rule] | West-Liberty, August 12th, 1809. | Sirs, | For a considerable time after the | appearance of your handbill, dated the 3d of | April last, I was fully determined to institute | suits against you for slander; but on cool | reflection, and mature deliberation, I became | convinced that such was not the method best | calculated to expose your errors and misre- | presentations; this is the principal reason | why you have not heard from me sooner. | [6 lines] | The handbill to which you allude was | published in the Pittsburgh Commonwealth, | a paper of extensive circulation; it was | posted upon store and mill doors in this | county, ... | [15 lines] | ... But to prove that British out- | rages were palliated and justified by the | party with whom you have identified your- | selves, I give you the following extracts, | the authenticity of which you cannot call in | question. ... | [16 lines, quotations] | ... and the Shep- | herd's Mill Resolutions, of which you were | the framers, attribute all the disastrous ca- | lamities, and embarrassed situation of the | United States to the measures of our admin- | istration:: | [100 lines] | But what I had chiefly in view, when I | set out, was to take notice of, and refute, | that part of your address in which I am ex- | hibited to the view of the public, as an ene- | my and traitor to my country. ... | [9 lines] | ... I never was proscri- | bed as a traitor by the government. From | June, 1794, till November, 1798, I held of- | fices under both the general and state go- | vernments, which I voluntarily resigned. | [23 lines] | ... In 1806, the friends of Mr. Linsley | were willing to support my election to the | general assembly, provided I would unite | my interest with them in supporting Mr. | Linsley's election, which I refused. In | 1807, they were willing to support me to | congress in opposition to John G. Jackson, | esquire. | [146 lines] | Gentlemen your designs are seen through. | It is not my destruction alone that you aim | at; but your deep-rooted hatred is at J. G. | Jackson, esq. and to accomplish his ruin it | is necessary that all his friends should be | first put down. ... | [9 lines] | ... Mr. Jackson has | given unquestionable evidence of ... | ... being firmly attach- | ed to the best interest of the United States, | and so far as relates to our difference with | the warring powers of Europe, no member | of congress has acted more correctly; ... | [2 lines] | ... You and your puppets may | call me traitor, insurgent, foreigner, and | threaten me with cowhides, &c. but taking | truth for my guide, I am determined in my | own way to do what appears to be my duty. | Wm. M'Kinley. | [Wheeling? 1809]

"Twelfth American edition" would have been more nearly correct. At least seven American printers brought out editions of this popular sermon in 1809 — at Portsmouth, Boston, Hartford, New York, Trenton, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh; in 1810, editions appeared at Stockbridge, Danbury, Schenectady, and as far west as Chillicothe, Ohio, as well as one, the "Fourth American Edition," at Winchester, Va.; in 1811 there were two editions at Boston (one being denominated "tenth"); it appeared again in New York in 1812, and in Lexington, Ky., in 1813.

Later editions printed at Bethany (Buffaloe became Bethany in 1827): second, 1828 (see No. 85, below); third, 1832; another, "Stereotyped from the third edition," 1833; fourth, 1835. A sixth edition, with Pittsburgh imprint, appeared in 1839.
"Much new material was added to the third edition, including explanatory notes which seem to make the sequence of editions clear, eliminating the apocryphal 'second edition' of 1830 noted in McMurtrie's West Virginia Imprints [1936], (No. 53), a title taken from E. B. O'Callaghan's List of editions of the Holy Scriptures ... printed in America previous to 1860."-- Stutler (manuscript note). The 1830 edition is also mentioned by P. Deschamps, L'Imprimerie hors l'Europe, Nouvelle édition revue, 1904, p. 16.

Before its appearance in America, this independent translation of the New Testament had been published in London in 1818. The Gospels were translated by George Campbell, the Acts and Revelation by Philip Doddridge, and the Epistles by James Macknight. Before that, Campbell's translation of the Gospels had been printed in England in 1737 or 1739 and in Philadelphia in 1796. The text of this translation is not divided into verses. The critical notes show that this early West Virginia press had a font of Greek type, which, however, seems to have been not quite large enough, as some Greek phrases are transliterated into roman type.

Gazette' of the 21st inst. which contains a part of the essay alluded to, and a copy thereof, published in pamphlet form, endorsed 'Ed. 2,500'— meaning that an edition of 2,500 copies has been printed at that place. The title of this pamphlet is,
'The Agriculture of the United States, by H. Niles.'" And in the issue of May 12: "We have just learnt that 4,500 copies have been ... printed at Boston, and given to understand that two other heavy editions were contemplated, besides that which we ourselves shall publish... It has been copied into at least thirty news papers, east, west, north, and south." The Library of Congress records a 16-page reprint: "first published in Niles' Register of March 24, 1827. With additions. [n.p., 1827?]" which is noted in Sabin 55313.

Campbell, Alexander.

Psalms, Hymns, and Spiritual Songs, adapted to the Christian Religion. Selected by Alexander Campbell. Bethany, Brooke County, Virginia, 1828.

[200 p. 32 mo.]

Title entered for copyright June 12, 1828 in manuscript "Copyright Record of the First Judicial District in Virginia, West of the Allegheny Mountains, deposited in the Office of the District Attorney, 1822-1845." While no copy of this edition has been located, there is evidence that the book was issued about the date of copyright entry. In the Christian Baptist, April 7, 1828, Alexander Campbell states, "The volume contains only two hundred pages, 32s, which we expect to have bound in the course of a few weeks ... It will be sold at 3 dolls. 75 cts. per dozen, and retail at 37 1/2 cts. per copy ...," and in the same journal, September 1, 1828, "Hymn books have been sent to Maysville to Mr. Cox, bookseller; to Asa Runyan, May's Lick; to Joseph Ficklen, Lexington; to Buckner H. Payne, Mount Sterling; to J. D. Thomas, Winchester; and to Benjamin Allen, Louisville, Ky. To Moses Norvel, Nashville, Tennessee. To Mordicai Cole, Indiana; from whom the circumjacent country may be supplied." The earliest edition located, the "Third edition. Bethany, B. C. Virginia. 1831" is reported by OClWHI; the fourth edition, Bethany, 1832, in Mr. Stutler's collection, as described by him, "follows exactly the 1828 copyright entry, and the date of the preface, December, 1827, would indicate that the book was compiled during that year."

Caption title. Pagination continuous with that of the 1806 minutes, the signature "B" at foot of page [5] and the resolution appearing on page 7 suggest that this was intended to form the second part of a revision of the minutes of the 1806 and 1807 meetings. Minutes of the Frying-Pan Springs meeting, 1806 (4 p.) were printed at Alexandria in that year. Pending revision of the earlier minutes, those for 1807 may have been printed in the above form at Martinsburg, or more probably Winchester. The resolution on p. 7 reads: "Resolved, that our present clerk, together with brother Buck our state[d] clerk, (who has failed to attend at this time) do so correct the minutes of this meeting, and those at Frying-Pan Springs, as to save the loss of the last years communication with the churches."

APPENDIX B

The following titles, supplied by Boyd B. Stutler from the manuscript "Copyright Record of the First Judicial District in Virginia, West of the Allegheny Mountains, deposited in the Office of the District Attorney, 1822-1845," may have been printed in West Virginia, but no copy of any edition printed or published in this state has been located:

Picket, Albert.

Picket's American School Class Book No. 1. The Juvenile or Elementary Spelling Book of the English Language, with progressive reading lessons, adapted to the capacities of children; embracing the standard orthography of Johnson, and the pronunciation of Walker. By A. Picket, Author of The American School Books Modified and Improved.

[100]

Copyrighted October 22, 1822, by Charles H. Picket.

This title may have been abandoned for the title entry copyrighted January 14, 1823, which apparently covers the same work. See No. 63, above.

Picket, Albert.

Picket's Grammar of the English (Language), comprising its principles and rules; adapted to the business of instruction in primary schools. By A. Picket, Author of the American School Class Books, Juvenile Speller, &c.

[101]

Copyrighted September 8, 1823, by Charles H. Picket.

Picket, Albert.

Picket's Juvenile or Universal Primer. Being a first book for young children, introductory to the Juvenile Spelling Book. By A. Picket, Author of the American School Class Books, the Juvenile Spelling Book, etc.

[102]

Copyrighted January 14, 1823, by Charles H. Picket.

Picket, Albert.

The Mentorial Reader and Youth's Definition Class Book No. 2, supplementary to the Juvenile Spelling Book: containing three essential articles of instruction, viz: 1. Reading in prose and verse. 2. Definitions of the words in general, both in the Spelling Book and in this volume. 3. Rules for spelling, pronouncing and reading; — forming a convenient manual for primary schools. By A. Picket, Author of Juvenile Speller, Analytical Grammar, &c.

Copyrighted October 4, 1824, by Albert Picket, Jr.
In connection with the Picket entries it is of interest to note an advertisement in the Cincinnati Advertiser of March 3, 1824, page 3, column 1: "Now Publishing, at Wheeling, Va., by A. Picket, Picket's American School Class Books, viz. Juvenile Primer [No. 100, above], Juvenile Spelling Book [Nos. 63, 70-71, above], Juvenile Instructor, Juvenile Mentor [No. 72, above], Juvenile Expositor, Analytical School Grammar, etc."

Smyth, Alexander.

An Explanation of the Apocalypse, or Revelation of St. John.

[104]

Copyrighted December 31, 1824, by Alexander Smyth.
This title with imprint "Washington City: Way & Gideon, Printers, 1825." is listed in Sabin 82324, and is reported in MWA, NjP, BrMus.

Wagner, John.

A Manual for the Deist, Being a revisal of Primitive Christianity; or, incontrovertible proofs that the doctrines of Jesus of Nazareth and of his apostles, is the science of Free-Masonry — Metaphosically [sic] delivered by them — and which science is the knowledge of the mystery of how the Supreme Grand Master Builder, Jehovah, built the world and all things therein, by Christ, his subordinate and only begotten son. By John Wagner, once a Deist, but now a Christian convert.
