A Veteran Pledges His Bonus

Only about $39,000 is needed to reach the goal set by the University of Kentucky Alumni Association for eight projects that will be highly beneficial to the University. This fact was brought out at the recent meeting of the executive committee of the association when it was disclosed that $211,000 of the $250,000 quota already had been pledged through the Century Club operation.

Scholarships, awards to outstanding professors and other contributions are listed among the objectives of the campaign which was launched last fall. A large part of the fund will go to the erection of an alumni building on or near the University campus. The building will be used as an alumni center, will house the offices of the association and will serve as a rallying point for graduates at various times during the year.

A Louisville alumnus of the University has come up with a good suggestion that might be followed by other graduates who want to become members of the Century Club by contributing $500 between now and 1965, when the University will observe its centennial. He has written to Alumni Director Helen King and pledged his $500 veteran's bonus to the campaign. While enough graduates to make up the deficit may not pledge their bonus payments, still enough money should come from this source to make the final goal a little easier to attain.

The above appeared as an editorial in the Lexington Herald-Leader, Feb. 21, 1960.

HEADLINE THIRD

MAY 27-28, 1960

You undoubtedly have heard the names before—for these men are among the most distinguished in the field of communications—and all scheduled to headline the program at the third annual Alumni Seminar, sponsored by your UK Alumni Association.

"Communications 1960—Seeking a Balance Between Freedom and Responsibility" is the challenging topic which will be discussed by an outstanding panel of speakers.

William B. Arthur, who will speak at 2:00 Friday afternoon, May 27, "Are We Becoming a People?" is managing editor of Look magazine. He was graduated from UK with an A.B. in Journalism in 1939. His wife, the former Frances Young, is a member of the class of 1939.

For four years he was a sports writer for the Louisville Courier-Journal. In 1941 he joined the public relations branch of the War Department. During the war years he was chief of the War Department Press branch in Washington, D. C. He joined Look in 1946. He was named to his present post in 1954.

John F. Day, who will also be a speaker at the Alumni Reunion Banquet on Saturday, May 28, is vice president of CBS News which provides all the programming presented over the Television and Radio networks.

Day worked his way through college and still found time to serve as president of the student council and editor of the Kentucky Kernel newspaper. He was graduated cum laude in 1941 and started his newspaper career with the Lexington Leader. He joined CBS News in 1955 with more than twenty years of experience as managing editor in Washington and foreign correspondent, author, wire-service reporter and winner of two prized fellowships in journalism.

In addition to participating in several panels, his major address during the seminar will be at 10:15 Friday when he will talk on the "History and Influence of Radio and TV Elections."

At the Reunion banquet on Saturday evening he will talk about several aspects of politics not of common knowledge—a sure-to-be-interesting topic in view of the approaching political conventions.

Two-time Pulitzer Prize winner Whitehead will be speaking during the seminar on Friday, May 27, at 9:30 a.m. and the Press Secretary.

Preface

Two-time Pulitzer Prize winner Don Whitehead will give his major address during the seminar at 9:40 a.m. Friday, May 27, on "Politics, Propaganda and the Press: An Unholy Alliance?"

Author of the best seller THE FBI STORY, Whitehead attended UK in 1926 to 1928 and was awarded an honorary LL.D. from UK in 1948. He began his newspaper career on the Harlan, Ky., Daily Enterprise in 1930 and joined Associated Press in 1935. He was chief of the Washington bureau of the New York Herald Tribune in 1956-57. His Pulitzer Prizes came in 1950 and 1951 for distinguished foreign correspondence covering the Korean War and in '51 for domestic reporting.

TV-Flash and Fall Out" is the topic of John C. McMillin's major address at 2:30 p.m. on Friday. McMillin is executive editor of Sponsor magazine, the leading broadcasting and advertising weekly. McMillin has been a radio-TV vice president, account executive and creative director at some of the largest advertising agencies including Comptons in New York City. He is a graduate of Yale.

Complementing this outstanding quartet are other speakers we are sure you will want to hear including Burton Milward, assistant editor of the Lexington Leader; William Small, news director of WHAS and WHAS-TV, Louisville; Bill Ladd, radio-TV editor for the Louisville Courier-Journal; and Gilbert Kingsbury, '33, vice president for public relations of Crosley Broadcasting Corporation (WLW).

Members of the University faculty who will appear on the seminar program include Dr. L. Neil Plummer, director of the School of Journalism; Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, Director of Patterson School of Diplomacy, Dr. John Ball, Department of Sociology; Dr. Michael Adelstein, Department of English, and UK President Frank Dickey.

Chairman of the seminar committee which planned this stimulating program is O. L. Press, chairman of the Department of Radio Arts.

The complete program follows:

The Century Club Is On The Last Lap To Victory

Heartening is the word for the success of the Century Club campaign! Less than a year ago your Alumni Association initiated a campaign to raise $250,000 for alumni-sponsored University projects, with the hope that this campaign would reach fruition by 1965 when UK celebrates her centennial.

As of this writing, March 15, 1960, the Century Club Fund has recorded a total of $225,785 in cash and pledges and less than $25,000 now remains to be pledged in order to reach the campaign total.

This is a real achievement and is a credit to the volunteer workers and to the dedicated alumni who have either pledged or contributed to this drive. NOW IS THE TIME to put a little added effort into the campaign, to pledge yourself, if you have not already done so, or, if you have, to see your classmate or neighbor or fellow-Kentuckian and urge him or her to contribute also. Only 50 additional Century Club members are needed to put this campaign over the top. Pledge now, and begin your contributions within the next year or two. WITH YOUR HELP, BOTH THROUGH CONTRIBUTION AND SOLICITATION, WE SHOULD REACH OUR GOAL BY JUNE 1, 1960.

Herewith are printed excerpts from some letters which have been received in connection with the drive. They point up the devotion and interest of UK alumni in doing something really constructive for Alma Mater.

I Want In Too

From Dorothy Tanner Cabot, '35, Honolulu, whose husband is a member also: "I am proud that Matt is a member of the Century Club but I want in, too! So, herewith is my initial contribution—sent in the spirit of Aloha and with deep gratitude to my Alma Mater."

Phil Ardery, '35, Louisville attorney, makes a unique and wonderful pledge, one which might be followed by many veterans. He says, in part: "I have four children nearing college age. The prospect of their financial needs for education in the period ahead is truly frightening. Bearing these needs in mind, in no sense do I consider myself in an economic bracket which . . . enables me to give $500 to the University. However, I spent sometime thinking about it last night and talking it over with my understanding wife. We decided that neither could the Commonwealth of Kentucky afford to pay me a $500 bonus for doing something it was my natural duty to do. . . . All I really can do therefore is try, to the limit of my personal ability, to see that the proceeds of my tax payments are allocated to those things I consider important. Public education in all categories fits that definition so far as I am concerned. Following this thought, this is to say that I will send you my check for $500 when the bonus is paid."

I Want To Assist

David H. Pritchett, '32, Madisonville, Ky., electrical engineer, had this to say: "Enclosed is my check for $500 for the Century Club. I had rather do it this way than obligate myself for five years. It is a pretty good chunk of cash for an average family to put out and I probably can't afford it, but I want to say this—after what the University has done for me and what it is currently doing for my children, I want to assist to my utmost, whether I can afford it or not."

Dr. Roscoe Kash, '25, of Lebanon, Tenn., commented that "it might seem a bit unusual for me to enter into a pledge of this amount since I am now a transplanted Tennessean. However, I am still a Kentuckian at heart and a UK man to the core! In making this contribution I do so with the realization that all of it will be well spent and none wasted, for I still have abiding faith in the principles, methods and policies that have always guided the administration of this great University. Also, when one reaches the age of fifty, he will know, if he has read the price tags in life correctly, that the greatest pleasure comes from having money but in its proper use."

Richard L. Hotaling, '38, Cincinnati, with General Electric there, says "thank you very much for giving me the opportunity to become a member of the Century Club under the monthly installment plan. I am very pleased to be able to help this worthy cause."

To Improve Educational Facilities

Maynard D. Van Horn, Jr., '45, Lexington, also a General Electric employee, sent in his first contribution with this comment: "Having four young sons who, no doubt, will seek higher education than high school, I make this contribution to help improve the educational facilities of the school for the benefit of all students."

An expatriated Kentuckian, now president of Sears Roebuck Overseas Inc., located in Hong Kong, is John Waddle, '49, who writes: "It is a pleasure to be able to participate in this endeavor which has as its goal the interest of higher education in Kentucky."

C. Robert Yeager, '32, executive vice president of the L. G. Balfour Co. and one of UK's staunchest alumni, makes this comment: "I am enclosing my application for membership in the Century Club. I think this is a wonderful idea and I hope a good many alumni support it."

Dr. Harry R. Walker, '35, of Oakland, Calif., states that "it is with great pleasure that I join the Century Club. Finally, David L. Thornton, '20, Versailles, Ky., attorney, comments, "Having three degrees from the University of Kentucky and my daughter one, I feel that the University has done much for our family and want to have a part in its teaching and research expansion."

These are but a few of the dozens of letters which have been coming in with contributions and pledges—three of which, incidentally, are from 1950 graduates. WILL WE BE HEARING FROM YOU SOON?

KEEPING THE UNIVERSITY FREE AND GROWING

EDITOR'S NOTE: The review presented herewith emphasizes the importance of this book to every man and woman interested in the progress and development of higher education and should hold special interest for alumni of the University of Kentucky. It is a vital story of the man and the institution he headed for fifteen years. President Emeritus Herman Lee Donovan made tremendous contributions to Kentucky and her University during his tenure. Read this review and then order your copy from the University of Kentucky Press.

To keep a university free and growing requires a man of heroic mould. Such a man is Herman L. Donovan. For fifteen years, 1941-1956, he performed this service magnificently for the University of Kentucky.

For this strenuous presidency he had an ideal background. Just before assuming his task at Lexington he had for thirteen years been president of Eastern Kentucky State College. Previously he had been a country school teacher, a ward principal, a city school superintendent and a professor of education at George Peabody College for Teachers. A native of Kentucky, he is the product of its public schools, obtaining his college education at Western Kentucky State College and the University of Kentucky. He received his master's degree from Columbia University and his doctorate from Peabody.

Most college and university presidents publish annual reports which should be stimulating to trustees, alumni and other friends of the institution. They constitute also a record of the greatest value to future historians. Dr. Donovan did better; in order to foster understanding of the university's needs, the president's activities and the trustees' responsibilities, he presented written reports at each meeting of the board during his 28 years in the presidential office.

In fifteen interesting chapters the author outlines his problems and their solutions in the areas of finance, buildings, public relations, students, faculty, athletics and so forth. Pre-eminent among them, as would be naturally expected, is "financing the university program."

Dr. Donovan faced his "crisis extraordinary" in 1942, the second year of his administration. The Attorney General of Kentucky had ruled that the state constitution required the salaries of college officers and professors to be limited to $5,000 per annum as for all other public officials of the state. Obviously the president would face immediately the loss of many of his better-equipped faculty and staff colleagues. The Keeneland Foundation came to his rescue by paying amounts needed in excess of $5,000 to help him hold faculty members directing research projects. A distinguished alumnus and former federal judge in Kentucky responded to the president's appeals to initiate gratis a lawsuit to repeal the salary ruling. This he accomplished in 1947, when the Kentucky Court of Appeals ruled that the sovereign power of the state was in the hands of the university's board of regents and that the officers and faculty simply carried out their policies and fulfilled the duties outlined by them. To confirm the court's action, the people of Kentucky voted in 1949 an appropriate amendment to the state constitution.

All college presidents are continually subject to pressures from many quarters of society. The president of a state university is more likely than other presidents to receive cogent, voluble and volatile advice from business men, labor leaders and politicians. In addition he will frequently be advised by professors, students, physicians, preachers, farmers and women's club members. Naturally President Donovan had a quota of self-appointed advisers. He states that his philosophy was to resist "to be swayed by pressure alone, no matter how persistent it might be. A man who cannot withstand pressure has no business being a college president."

Early in his presidency, Dr. Donovan received a letter from a candidate for the governorship urging him to forego the editors of the University Extension Bulletin to propagandize for the calling of a constitutional convention. In his reply he stated that he himself had already indicated his own support of the project before a convocation under the direction of the student government association. He added that if professors "are so negative in character as not to feel the desire to express their opinions about great social and moral issues, they would not be worth the salt that goes into their bread."

stated further: "So long as I am President of the University of Kentucky, I am going to protect the professors of this institution in their right of freedom of speech and academic freedom as generally recognized."

A few years later President Donovan had to wage a harder battle to protect his colleagues from another area of political pressure. In 1950 the General Assembly of Kentucky amended the statutes so that the governor and the state department of personnel would define positions and fix salaries in state colleges. Thus the board of regents would be deprived of their main function. Promptly the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the accrediting agency for the area, took action with the result that the standing of the university was in jeopardy. The American Association of University Professors sent a committee which made a careful study and issued a critical report, with appropriate recommendations. The press of the state, aided by many addresses made by the President, other officers and faculty, soon caused an aroused citizenry to demand the repeal of this hampering legislation. When the General Assembly met in 1952 it amended the law by unanimous vote, so that the bright to fix salaries and appoint employees would be returned to the controlling boards of the state colleges and the state university.

In summing up his presidential record President Donovan pays eloquent tribute to the good teacher. He speaks feelingly of some who influenced his career, with nostalgic mention of his own teaching days. Gallantly he accords praise also to his colleagues in administration.

It was my privilege to work closely with him in a period of upheaval in the policies of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and thereby to recognize his educational statesmanship. We were fellow college presidents during the eleven years I was secretary-treasurer of the Southern Association.

Experienced presidents will be stimulated by perusal of this inspiring record. For new and embryonic presidents it should be "required reading."

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HONORS FOUR OF FACULTY WITH $500 AWARDS

This year for the third time, the University of Kentucky Alumni Association presented four awards of $500 each to members of the faculty of the University who have made outstanding research contributions during the two year period ending December 31, 1959. Presentation of these awards by Dr. Ralph Angelucci, Alumni Association president, was a highlight of the third annual Research Conference dinner on March 11 sponsored by the Kentucky Research Foundation.

The purpose of these awards is three fold: First, to show Alumni appreciation of distinguished research at the University. Second, possibly to stimulate the research activity of our faculty, and finally, to strive by these and other means to forge a closer bond between the Alumni of the University and the scholars of our Alma Mater who are carrying on the work of teaching and research here.

The Committee's rule to base these awards on research published during a prior two-year period was intended to afford younger scholars a better opportunity to be recognized. The Committee does not pretend that its judgment is infallible and that its selections each time represent the most distinguished research in the University. If the Committee's judgment has failed to recognize other research, it is hoped this will be remedied next year.

The first Alumni Association award for distinguished faculty research goes to:

AMRY VANDENBOSCH, Distinguished Professor of Political Science and Director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce, for research which during the two-year period (ending December 21, 1959) has resulted in the publication of two books: one, DUTCH FOREIGN POLICY SINCE 1815. A STUDY IN POWER POLITICS, was published by Nijohn of The Hague in 1959. He was coauthor of another, SOUTH-EAST ASIA AMONG THE WORLD POWERS, published in 1958 by the University Press. Professor Vanden-bosch was also author of three articles for encyclopedias—United Nations in the Britannica (a revision), Vietnam and Territories of the United States, in Crowell-Collier, and articles on Ceylon, Indonesia and Malaya, in Worldmark Encyclopedia. Three articles on foreign affairs by Professor Vandembosch have during this period appeared in Anti-och Review and Current History.

Professor Vandembosch is recognized as one of America's most distinguished students of foreign affairs. Since coming to the University of Kentucky in 1926, when he was awarded the Ph.D. degree by the University of Chicago, he has been the author of four books, coauthor of eight books, a joint author in two, and he has written more than 90 pamphlets and articles which have appeared in important learned journals.

ROY MORELAND, Professor of Law, for research which during the two-year period resulted in the publication of a treatise, MODERN CRIMINAL PROCEDURE in 1959 by Bobbs-Merrill, an article on Criminal Jurisdiction of the Kentucky Courts, published in the Kentucky Law Journal, and various materials published by the Legislative Commission on the Kentucky Criminal Code Revision Project.

Professor Moreland is a graduate of the University of Kentucky, LL.B., 1923; he holds the Doctor of Juridical Science (S.J.D.) degree from Harvard and the Doctor of Law (J.D.) degree from the University of Chicago. Two earlier books, A RATIONALE OF CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE, published in 1944, and THE LAW OF HOMICIDE (1952) and numerous articles have established Professor Moreland as one of America's leading students of criminal law and procedure. His new book, which evaluates the fundamental problems of criminal procedure, has been widely and favorably reviewed by legal scholars. Professor Moreland is now working under a grant from the Kentucky Legislative Commission to study revision of the Commonwealth's criminal code, which has had no major revisions since its adoption in 1854.

WENDELL C. DEMARCUS, Professor of Physics, for research which during the two-year period has resulted in the publication of three important articles in the field of astrophysics and hydrodynamics. One article, "The Constitution of Jupiter and Saturn", was published in the Astronomical Journal in 1958; another, "The Number of Elastic Collisions in a Finite Lethargy Interval", was published in Nuclear Science and Engineering in 1959 and a third, "Planetary Interiors", has recently appeared in Handbuch der Physik.

Known internationally, especially for his work on the physical behavior of the interiors of planets, this distinguished young physicist received the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from Yale University. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky, B.S., 1947. He is the author of a dozen important studies which have been published in scientific journals both in America and abroad.

LOUIS LESTER BOYARSKY, Professor of Anatomy and Physiology, for research on the nervous system which during the two-year period has resulted in the publication, during his year on a Fulbright Research grant at the University of Milan (Italy) of Sulla relazione tra Frequenza di Stimolo e fatica nella Placca neurometrica, in Rendiconti dell'Accademia Nazionale dei Lincei, in 1958, and L'esistenza di un limite di frequenza nel passaggio di impulse attraverso le sinapsi, in the same journal.

Professor Boyarsky, a young scholar becoming known for his work on the chemistry and bio-physics of the nervous system, received the Ph.D. degree from the University of Chicago. He is the author or coauthor of 22 articles in leading physiological and medical journals dealing principally with the nervous system. Professor Boyarsky has been elected to the American Academy of Neurology, and he is now at work, under a United States Public Health Service grant on a study of the reflexes of animals as affected by aging.

William A. McKenney, Jr., class of 1949, has been awarded the Doctor of Philosophy degree from Florida State University. Before moving to Florida, he was critic teacher in instrumental music at the UK University School. He is now on the faculty at Georgia Southern College, Statesboro, Ga.

ARE YOU A CORPORATE ALUMNUS

Cerro de Pasco Corporation recently announced its new program of making cash donations to educational institutions on a matching gifts basis.

Under the Cerro de Pasco "Plan Matching Gifts to Educational Institutions," the corporation will donate one dollar for every dollar contributed by any qualified university, college or privately supported secondary school, a director or employee of the corporation or of any of its divisions or subsidiaries.

Individual donations from $10 to an aggregate of $1,000 per employee in any calendar year will be matched by the corporation, which limits its total to a $50,000 annual expenditure under the plan.

In commenting on the plan, Robert P. Koenig, president of Cerro de Pasco Corporation, told his employees:

"The need for financial support of American educational institutions at all levels is well known, and such support is increasingly being given in the industry.

"It is hoped, through this Cerro de Pasco plan, that the base of private financial aid to education will be enlarged and the encouragement of individual donations."

American business is demonstrating through the Matching Corporate Alumnus program its interest in assisting higher education. You can help, too, by sending in your check and becoming a "matching corporate alumnus" for the year. Check with your personnel manager today.

UNIVERSITY STAFF NEWS

Dr. J. C. Eaves, head of the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy, Dr. Tullio Pignani and Dr. A. W. Goodman examine the manuscript of one of four math books the trio has written since fall. Goodman holds a copy of his book "Plane Trigonometry" already on sale.

Peterson And Shaver Leave On Inspection Tour

Frank D. Peterson, vice president for business administration, and R. E. Shaver, dean of the College of Engineering, were selected as the 1960 reviewing officers for the University of Kentucky projects in Indonesia.

The two educators left in early April on the inspection tour, sponsored by the International Co-Operation Administration. The tour will take them around the world before they return to Lexington in June.

Dr. Peterson and Dean Shaver will be the third UK inspection team to visit Indonesia since the first contract to assist the Institute of Technology at Bandung was let in 1956.

Both men will inspect both projects with Dr. Peterson reporting on the faculties of Agricultural and Veterinary Science at Bogor and Dean Shaver on Bandung.

DAWSON ELECTED FELLOW

Dr. Lyle R. Dawson, distinguished professor of physical chemistry and head of the Department of Chemistry, has been elected a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He has been a Fellow of the American Institute of Chemists for several years.

Dr. Dawson has been head of the chemistry department in the University for the past fifteen years. Prior to coming to Kentucky he was a Research Chemist and Group Leader on the Atomic Bomb Project at the University of Chicago. In 1946 he was awarded the War Department's Certificate of Merit for his work at Chicago.

Currently Dr. Dawson is co-author and collaborating editor for an international series of texts and reference books on the chemistry of non-aqueous solutions being written jointly by German, English and American chemists.

EAVES, PIGNANI, GOODMAN WRITE FOUR MATH BOOKS

The word "busy" seems inadequate for three University mathematics professors who have written four books since last fall and have more books in the publishing mill.

Dr. J. C. Eaves, head of the Department of Mathematics and Astronomy, has already received copies of "Matrix Theory", a book he wrote dealing with solutions to large systems of linear equations.

Eaves and his colleague, Dr. Tullio Pignani, have completed a textbook on "Basic Programming for Digital Computers." The volume presents the language and mathematics involved in solving problems on high-speed electronic computers. The expected publication date is June. Wesley Publishing Co. is printing the book.

Dr. A. W. Goodman published in September a book on "Plane Trigonometry", which presents the modern and classical viewpoints toward the science. John Wiley and Sons, Inc. are the publishers.

Eaves currently is preparing a manuscript for a textbook in mathematics of finance and business affairs. The book, Eaves said, is being prepared with a view to presenting the material in the classroom, on television or in self-study courses.

Pignani currently is working on a textbook on differential equations, a second book by Goodman, "Selected Topics In Mathematics" has been accepted for printing.

Eaves said, "I believe you'll have to look far to find a department of mathematics with a size (10 instructors) which has produced the amount of research and writing this department has turned out."

Schwartz To Conduct Archaeological Survey

Dr. Douglas W. Schwartz, associate professor of anthropology and director of the University Museum of Anthropology, has received a $2,000 grant from the National Park Service to conduct an archaeological survey of the upper part of the Barren River Reservoir.

The grant, to be administered by the Kentucky Research Foundation, is Schwartz's seventh since he started archaeological work in Kentucky four years ago.

He expects the survey—to be conducted in the No. 2 Barren Reservoir in Allen and Barren Counties—to turn up evidence that will have a bearing on the early Indian farmer and his transformation to a more advanced type of agriculture.

Prof. Edward F. Farquhar

University of Kentucky extension class enrollment grew phenomenally during the past year. For the first time, over 100 classes were organized and 1,998 students were enrolled.

PROF. VENNES DIES

Leon A. Vennes, 60, associate professor of Agricultural Economics at the University of Kentucky, died unexpectedly March 5 at his home in Lexington.

Vennes had been a member of the faculty of the University since 1930. He was field agent in marketing, in charge of the Extension Marketing Program and was widely known as a consultant in co-operative marketing.

He was instrumental in organizing the Kentucky Co-Operative Council, the statewide association of farmer co-operatives. He was also a member of the teaching faculty.

A native of Wheeler, Wis., Vennes held bachelors and masters degrees from Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, and did further graduate work at the University of Wisconsin.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Catherine Thompson Vennes and a son, William Thompson Vennes, Lexington.

PROF. FARQUHAR DIES

Edward Franklin Farquhar, 77, former professor of English literature at the University of Kentucky, died March 24 at a nursing home in Wilmington, Del., after a long illness.

Prof. Farquhar became an assistant professor in the English department in 1909 and accepted a change of work status in 1953.

He served five summers as lecturer with the Radcliffe Chautauq. For several years he was editor of "Letters," onetime UK literary magazine, and he has written many articles appearing in drama and theater magazines.

He specialized in the teaching of Shakespearean works and did extensive studies on why people laugh. He was a Bible expert and taught Bible literature.

Prof. Farquhar was a well known public speaker throughout Kentucky. The Guignol Theater had its beginning as the Little Theater under the direction of Prof. Farquhar.

A native of Ashley, Pa., he was a son of the late Thomas M. and Elija Bogert Farquhar. He received bachelor and masters of arts degrees from Lafayette College, Pa., and attended Columbia University.

He taught at Purdue for a year before coming to Kentucky.

Mr. Farquhar was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include a son, Dr. Bruce S. Farquhar, Wilmington; a sister, Miss Sarah Farquhar, East Orange, N.J.; and three grandchildren.

PROF. GARDNER DIES

Prof. John S. Gardner, 73, field agent in horticulture at the University of Kentucky for 34 years, died Jan. 12 in Lexington.

A native of Doylestown, Ohio, Prof. Gardner joined the UK faculty in 1921 and went on a change of status in 1955.

He was the author of many extension publications on gardening and for many years wrote a column on gardening which was published in newspapers throughout Kentucky.

He held an A.B. degree from Muhlenberg College, a B.S. degree from Pennsylvania State University and a

PENROD RETIRES SEPT

Dr. E. B. Penrod, head of the University of Kentucky Mechanical Engineering Department since June, was granted a change-of-work status at a March meeting of the University trustees. It will be effective Sept.

A specialist in heat transfer on fluid mechanics, Dr. Penrod will continue research and writing on Peltier refrigerator and the electric generator.

He delivered a paper on "A Thermodynamic Analysis of a Peltier Refrigerator" at the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at Atlantic City, N. J., in November and spoke on the same subject before the 10th International Congress of Refrigerating Engineers in Copenhagen, Denmark, last August.

Dr. Penrod also expects to contemplate an area of geophysical research involving the storage of heat in the earth.

Before coming to UK, he served as head of the physics department at Mt. Union and Hillsdale colleges, an instructor of physics at Purdue University and as an instructor of engineering mechanics at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

A member of several professional societies and organizations, Dr. Penrod served as group leader of the Kentucky Contract team at the University of Indonesia in 1957.

He was the recipient of the Southeastern Section of the American Society for Engineering Education award for outstanding contribution in research in 1956.

University of Kentucky Experiment Station research projects numbered 217 last year included agricultural economics, 37; agricultural engineering, 52; animal industry, 9; animal pathology, 9; entomology, 18; home economics, 6; horticulture, 26; and rural sociology, 6.

M.S. degree from the University of Missouri.

He lived on the Bowmans Mill and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include his wife, Letitia Sellers Gardner.

UNIVERSITY AFFAIRS

JUNIOR LEAGUE SPONSORS ART COURSE FOR STUDENTS

The state's 50 best high school artists will be offered a chance to attend the University of Kentucky for a week, June 13-18, for a special one-week course to be taught by well-known artists Ralston Crawford, and Andre Racz.

Sponsored by the Junior League of Lexington, in co-operation with the UK Art Department, the course will include drawing, painting, and design classes, art movies, and an opportunity for the students to work closely with creative artists.

Mrs. Bruce Glenn is chairman of the project for the Junior League.

Students will take 2½ hours of classes in the morning and another two hours each afternoon. They will live in the dormitories and will take part in a number of extra-curricular activities planned by the group.

At the end of the period, the Junior League will award full-tuition scholarships in art to the two outstanding students attending the conference.

DR. HAROLD ROSENBAUM NAMED MED COLLEGE CHAIRMAN

Dr. Harold D. Rosenbaum, Lexington radiologist, was named in March chairman of the department of radiology in the University College of Medicine.

The appointment is effective immediately but Dr. Rosenbaum will not assume fulltime duties for several months.

A native of Adair County, he did his undergraduate work at Berea College and was awarded an M.D. Degree from Harvard Medical School in 1944.

Following military service and work in hospitals in Denver and Boston, he opened an office for the private practice of radiology in Lexington in 1953.

He was certified in radiology in 1952 by the American Board of Radiology.

Dr. Rosenbaum is the author of a number of research articles in medical journals.

Donald L. Sproull, 36, was named to the newly-created post of personnel director at the University of Kentucky.

Sproull, whose appointment was effective Feb. 1, previously served as assistant to the personnel director at Indiana University.

UK MEDICAL RESEARCHERS GET $123,570 IN GRANTS

Grants totaling $123,570 for studies involving enzymes and antibodies have been awarded two UK medical researchers.

A three-year, $62,000 grant from the National Institute of Health recently went to Dr. Kingsley Stevens, an assistant professor of medicine, for a study of the production of antibodies.

Dr. Alfred D. Winer, an instructor in biochemistry, was the recipient of a $61,570 five-year Senior Research Fellowship from the United States Public Health Service for an enzyme study.

IBM and University officials are shown admiring a duplicating key punch valued at $1,750 which was given to the UK chemistry department in March by International Business Machines. A. J. Ronvaux and Sam Parrish of IBM, kneeling, discuss the key punch with Dr. H. C. Eckstrom, associate professor of chemistry, who has been using the equipment for a research project. Standing are Dr. Lyle R. Dawson, UK Chemistry department head, and B. E. Toben, C. V. Youmans and H. C. Locklar of IBM.

Curriculum Is Approved Medical College First-Year

A curriculum for first-year work in the University of Kentucky's College of Medicine has been approved and the first students will register Sept. 7, according to Dr. William R. Willard, UK vice president and Dean of the Medical Center.

Dr. Willard, who is also dean of the Medical College, said three-fourths of the first class of around 40 students has been selected. Over 400 have applied.

The freshman program is based on 36 weeks of scheduled classwork totaling 33 hours a week, plus two afternoons a week for optional courses.

Dr. Willard said the curriculum is a result of three years of study by the Medical Center staff, including visits to over half of the medical schools in the country for firsthand observation and discussion.

About 60 per cent of the freshman curriculum time will be devoted to instruction in such fields as anatomy, physiology, biochemistry and behavioral science.

The other 40 per cent will involve joint teaching of basic subjects in which emphasis will be placed on the relationships of the various areas to each other in understanding basic life processes. This would include such courses as human growth and development and study of the neurological and other body systems.

Another feature of the first-year program is a "brief but significant" introduction to clinical work, traditionally offered only to upperclassmen.

"It is deemed important that study of the sciences basic to medicine not be restricted to abstract or theoretical consideration and that their application to clinical medicine be illustrated through joint clinical-basic science conferences in the first and second years," Dr. Willard said.

"In addition to providing a sound education in the basic and clinical sciences of medicine, the resources of the college will be directed toward the training of minds and the nurturing of such important traits as a sense of responsibility and integrity, initiative, intellectual curiosity and an ability for critical evaluation," Dr. Willard added.

The full four year schedule will be based on the following broad outline:

First and second year students will begin each year with concentration on several basic science subjects. There will be a gradual increase in joint teaching during the year, building up to a major emphasis on the interrelationships among the basic sciences and between the basic and clinical sciences.

During the third and fourth years, most of the study will be done in the University's teaching hospital and other clinical areas.

MRS. SARAH CLAYTON DIES

Mrs. Sarah Vaughan Clayton, wife of William L. Clayton, of Houston, Texas, and formerly of Lexington, died Jan. 7 at her home in Houston after a long illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton presented their 13-acre farm on the Cave Hill Road to the University of Kentucky in 1959. The gift, valued at $185,000, included a 131-year-old mansion.

NUCLEAR ENGINEER PROGRAM PLANNED

With a grant of $33,699 from the Atomic Energy Commission, the University is making formal plans to launch its nuclear engineering program according to Dean R. E. Shaver, College of Engineering.

The college hopes to open the program to graduate students in September, Shaver said, but he added that the difficulty of obtaining laboratory equipment may cause a delay in the start of the program.

Part of the AEC grant will go toward the purchase of a subcritical nuclear reactor. Shaver said "subcritical" means the reactor will be safe for laboratory use. The students will work with uranium in their studies.

The reactor will be used for education, not for research. It will be primarily for acquainting students with knowledge of nuclear reactors.

SPORTS NEWS

By KEN KUHN

UK Sports Publicity Director

When a football coach sums up his season outlook in the first days of spring with the seemingly-evasive comment: "Our team should have as good or better a potential than last year," the immediate reaction of suspicious press-radio observers and other skeptics is that the mentor is hedging.

However, when the speaker is Blanton Collier, University of Kentucky's popular and straight-shooting grid chief of the past six campaigns, and the topic is the Wildcats for 1960, a little more credence is lent to such a comment. In fact, when observers take the trouble to examine in detail the outlook for Kentucky football, it is difficult to couch the probabilities in more explicit terms.

First of all, careful consideration reflects the fact that last year's Wildcat band was undoubtedly the best non-winning combination in the country. Their potential, hampered much of the season by injuries and often by a seeming inability to put together two good halves, was demonstrated forcefully against some of the better teams of the country.

National Champion Louisiana State could manage only a 9-0 win as the Kentucky defense bottled up the great Billy Cannon by holding him to a net total offense of 11 yards. Eventual SEC titlist Georgia survived a near-upset by the margin of a touchdown, bowl-bound Georgia Tech was able to top Kentucky by only two points, and nationally-ranked Mississippi managed a mere 16-0 decision padded by a long field goal in the closing minutes and a 51-yard quarterback sneak TD in the final seconds against a relaxed UK defense. Arch-rival Tennessee succumbed for the sixth time in the last seven seasons and the only really poor showing made by the UKats all season came against Auburn. The Plainsmen shocked Kentucky with an opening kickoff return touchdown and went on to win, 33-0.

The Colliermen, although throwing scares into the powerhouses and never a band to be taken lightly, managed only a 4-6 season record and finished tenth in the conference race. Nevertheless, as can be readily seen, the potential was there.

Although the potential may be good again, the big bugaboo in posting a better record will still plague Kentucky this season. Unfortunate schedule arrangement again will handicap the Wildcats in their efforts to keep morale high and to stay in contention for the league title past the first month of the season as they face the perennial "Big Three" of the SEC (Ga. Tech, Ole Miss and Auburn) in the first three games. Other "biggies" on the '60 card are LSU, Georgia, Vanderbilt and Tennessee—adding up to an unfavorably balanced schedule of seven conference and three non-conference games. The feat of winning the SEC title with a 7-3 schedule has been accomplished only three times in post-war years.

Personnel-wise, the losses from last season's club were substantial but Coach Collier is hopeful that '59 reserves, holdouts and a promising sophomore group will take up the slack created by 16 departed lettermen. Among nine men lost who were consistent or alternate starters, the major absentees will be tackles George Boone and Cullen Wilson, guards Bob Talamini and Demo Johns, end Ronnie Cain, quarterback Lowell Hughes and fullback Glenn Shaw. In general, the 1960 Kentuckians will be a young club with 65 percent of the team composed of sophomores and only 19 letter winners returning.

Replacement of the interior linemen, finding a fullback, straightening out the quarterback situation and development of adequate reserve strength at most positions looms as the major problems that must be solved in the organization of a team capable of winning in the tough SEC.

One big step in the direction of solving the guard problem is a decision to move center Lloyd Hodge to guard. The 188-pound native Kentuckian and co-captain-elect is considered to be one of the outstanding linebackers in the South. He will operate at the line-backing left guard post and Coach Collier is confident that Hodge will continue his amazing assault on enemy ball carriers in a fashion that earns the team victories and himself All-America honors.

Getting first call at the signal calling post vacated by Hughes will be Co-Captain-elect Jerry Eisaman, who has seen important service at the position the past two seasons despite injuries. Also on hand is Leeman Bennett, a two-letter vet; and senior Tom Rodgers, who played quarterback in high school and as a Kentucky freshman, is moving over from regular duty at left end to bolster the ranks.

The backfield generally is regarded as one of Kentucky's prospective strong suits in the coming campaign with both starting halfbacks returning in the persons of Calvin Bird and Charley Sturgeon. However, the loss of Shaw at fullback created a big gap which one of three returning lettermen or an untested sophomore must fill. No one man stands out on the basis of past performance. If Eisaman stays sound and comes through as anticipated at quarterback and fullback punch is developed, the Wildcat ball carrying contingent could be a little stronger than a year ago.

Although the guard posts appear in good shape, with the shift of Hodge plus the return of right side alternate starter Don Sinor, and Dickie Mueller comes back to man the right end spot where he started seven times last season, the line is thought of as a major problem. Only eight letterman veterans are available and it appears that a lot of dependence will have to be placed on the promising but inexperienced younger hands. The problem is magnified by the fact that UK ranked fifth in the SEC in total defense last season, allowing opponents an average of only 205.3 yards per game.

Bidding for top individual honors on the 1960 Wildcat team will be at linebacker Hodge, halfbacks Bird and Sturgeon, quarterback Eisaman, junior center Irv Goode and Mueller at end. Among the new faces, the top prospects for eventual stardom seem to include end Tom Hutchinson, quarterbacks Pat Counts and Jerry Woolum and tackle Bob Gebhart.

SHULA RESIGNS TO RETURN TO PRO BALL

Don Shula, backfield coach at the University and a seven-year veteran of National Football League play, announced March 20 that he is returning to pro ball to join the Detroit Lions in the capacity of defensive backfield coach.

Kentucky Head Coach Blanton Collier, in reluctantly accepting the resignation, praised the work of Shula during his one-year stint on the staff. "Don has done a wonderful job for us since he has been here and I am real sorry to lose him. However, I realize this is an opportunity that he could not turn down and he goes with our good wishes and blessings."

The 30-year-old native of Painesville, Ohio, was a four-sport star in high school and played collegiate football three years at John Carroll University in Cleveland. He got his start in professional football with the Cleveland Browns in 1951. He was with the Baltimore Colts for four years and terminated his professional playing career with one season's play with the Washington Redskins in 1957.

Parsons To Captain 1960-61 Basketball Team

Dickie Parsons, junior who was an all-sports star at Harlan High School, was elected captain of the 1960-61 University basketball team. Parsons succeeds Don Mills and Bill Lickert, who were co-captains for the 1959-60 campaign.

The announcement of the selection of Parsons was made by Coach Adolph Rupp at the UK Alumni Association annual banquet for the varsity and freshman basketball teams in the ballroom of the Student Union Building on March 14.

Parsons also was named recipient of the Albert Benjamin Chandler-WVIA Award going annually to a UK captain on the basis of scholarship, character, leadership and ability.

John Y. Brown, Lexington attorney and long a UK sports fan, was the principal speaker.

UK President Dr. Frank G. Dickerson and Coach Adolph Rupp also spoke briefly. Rupp introduced Tommie Harper, senior star of this year's Clark County High team, and said that Harper had applied for a basketball grant-in-aid at UK. "He is the best Kentucky high school player to come to his lot with us so far this year."

Mrs. Pat Nallinger Bell was honored as UK's outstanding cheerleader and received the Stella Spicer Gilbreath Award.

UK Athletic Director Bernie Shivers acted as master of ceremonies and, on behalf of the alumni association, presented watches to the squad's three seniors—Mills, Sid Cohen and Ben Coffman.

Varsity letter-winners were also announced.

"ROOKIE OF YEAR"

Johnny Cox, an All-America wide receiver with the University of Kentucky, recently was named "Rookie of the Year" in the National Industrial Basketball League.

Cox, playing for the Cleveland Pipers, got 110 points in a poll of judges from the United States Basketball Writers Association.

He was graduated from UK in 1959.

OBITUARIES

MISS IDA G. WILSON, 83, died Jan. 17 in Lexington after a long illness. Miss Wilson was a native of Lexington and attended UK from 1892-1894.

ROBERT T. PAYNE, 92, retired employee of the Fourth Street Tobacco Warehouse and former deputy Fayette County assessor, died in January at his home in Lexington. A native of Athens, he was graduated from UK in 1888.

J. MILWARD ELLIOTT, 81, died at his home in Lexington on March 19 after a long illness. He attended UK where he was a member of the 1898 football team, a group noted because it was undefeated and unscored on. Before his retirement, he was associated with the Van Deren Hardware Co. for 30 years. Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Raymond A. Wilkie.

HARVE S. GARDNER, 87, a member of the UK football team from 1892 through 1894, died March 11 in Elizabethtown. He was the oldest stockholder of the Cecilian Bank, Cecilia, which he helped to organize in 1902 and a past president and a director of the bank. He was a member of the UK Alumni Association. Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Mary H. Gardner, a daughter and a son.

DR. MARIUS E. JOHNSTON, 80, known for his charitable contributions in the field of medicine, for his Arctic and African expeditions and for his interest in farming and thoroughbred breeding, died March 5 at his home in Lexington. Educated at Sayre School and the University of Kentucky class of 1900, he later was graduated from the P&S Medical School at Columbia University. Dr. Johnston is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Floyd H. Wright and Mrs. Joseph C. Graves, Lexington; and three sons, Dr. Coleman C. Johnston, Lexington; Morrison C. Johnston, Biarritz, France, and Marius E. Johnston Jr., Hingham, Mass.

CURTIS J. REED, 66, owner and operator of Reed's Kentucky Food Store, died in January after a two-month illness. Mr. Reed, formerly a teacher in Eastern Kentucky, attended Eastern Kentucky State College and received both an A.B. and a M.A. degree from the University of Kentucky, class of 1929. He had lived here for the past 13 years. Survivors include his wife, a daughter and three sons.

MRS. LOLA ELAM CONLEY, 75, of Wenatchee, Wash., and formerly of Lexington, died March 7 in Tacoma, Wash. She was a native of Morgan County, a daughter of the late Frances Nickell and Leander C. Elam. She attended the University of Kentucky in 1901-1903. Survivors are eight children, including Mrs. E. Earl Long, Lexington.

MRS. MARY JO RASH GORMLEY, 45, wife of Joseph Gormley, died March 2 at her home in Park Hills, Ky. She attended Henry Clay High School and the University of Kentucky, where she was a home economics major in 1932-1934. Besides her husband, she is survived by two sons, Jack and Timothy Gormley.

MRS. ANNA DELL SCHOONMAKER BLACK, 50, assistant principal and dean of girls at Henry Clay High School, died March 11 in Lexington after a short illness. She was the wife of Ben W. Black of Lexington. Mrs. Black was appointed dean of girls in 1936. She was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1927 and began her teaching career at Dudley School. She taught at Morton Junior High School before going to Henry Clay as a teacher of English. Mrs. Black was a former president of the Lexington League of Women Voters. Survivors include two aunts, Mrs. Alice Schoonmaker, Cincinnati, and Mrs. Nancy Schoonmaker, Woodstock, N. Y.

HENRY C. THOMPSON, 60, associate professor of engineering graphics in Purdue University's School of Civil Engineering, died last August 25 at his home in West Lafayette. Prof. Thompson had been a Purdue faculty member since 1935. A native of Newport, Ky., Prof. Thompson received his BS in mechanical engineering from the University of Kentucky in 1920. He did graduate work at the University of Colorado. Survivors include his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Sam Heit of Lexington.

MRS. MARY NOLAN PRIBBLE LARKIN, 31, former Lexington resident, died March 11 in Sioux Falls, S. D. She was the wife of John Larkin Jr. and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Birkett Lee Pribble, formerly of Lexington. She moved to Sioux Falls with her parents about 20 years ago. She attended UK from 1946-1949. Besides her husband and parents, survivors are three sons.

HARRY SHARPE CANNON, emeritus professor of modern languages at Montana State College, died last Oct. 27 after several months of illness. A native of Nicholasville, Dr. Cannon was graduated from UK in 1909 and taught at UK just prior to World War I. He received a Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins University. Survivors include his wife and a son, John.

CARL A. NEFF, Louisville, died last December 2. He was a 1920 graduate of the College of Pharmacy.

OVA ELLIS BOGGS, class of '52, died last June 23 from injuries received in an auto accident. He was area agent in Rural Development at Morehead. Earlier he served as assistant agricultural agent in Morgan and Pike counties and county agent in Floyd county in 1953.

RODES K. MYERS, a figure in Kentucky politics for two decades, died March 11 of cancer. He was 60. For the past six months Myers had been practicing law at Bowling Green, Ky. Myers was born on a Warren County, Ky., farm, educated at Bowling Green public schools, Ogden College, and the University of Kentucky College of Law, class of 1925. He taught briefly and coached at Morganfield, Ky. In 1934 he won a seat in the Kentucky House. In 1935 Myers lost to Chandler in the Democratic gubernatorial primary. The next term Myers became lieutenant governor under Gov. Keen Johnson. He subsequently returned to the legislature as a representative, then as a senator in 1947. He retired from the Senate in 1951. In 1957 he was beaten for state representative.
