Extension Of Holiday Considered

By Rosemary Hilling

Classes after the holidays will begin Wednesday, Jan. 3, instead of Tuesday, Jan. 2, if the faculty approval of the calendar is changed so that the University will open Jan. 3 instead of Jan. 2, and that the penalty for students missing post-holiday classes because of the Sugar Bowl game be applied until Thursday, Jan. 4.

"FACULTY MEMBERS WHO desire to attend the Sugar Bowl game may make arrangements through their deans for absence after the start of school Jan. 3, but the days they are absent after the opening of school will be counted as part of their vacation.

"Extension of the vacation period this year is due entirely to our football and basketball teams playing in the Sugar Bowl and it does not establish a precedent."

Shakespeare Play Reported 'Lots Of Fun'

By Ed Coffman

The Gougel Theater presents "Twelfth Night" in its true light as a comedy. They succeed admirably in their attempt.

The play is a lot of fun from beginning to end. Symbolic of the spirit of the play is the Clown's songs at the beginning and the end. The mood for the play is set by Elizabethan proper music played as an overture. The scenery also helps to create the proper mood of the play.

Reigning All-Student Party Fails To Name SGA Slate

By Rosemary Hilling

The All-Student Party, inaugurated last spring on the campus, and present holder of many of the SGA offices, failed to present a slate for the elections this fall.

DR. ROBERTS, PRESIDENT of the All-Student Party explained the failure of the party to present a slate. "We advertised and personally tried to contact students to run for SGA. But everyone seemed to have too much to do this winter. We could find no one who had time to assume the responsibility for carrying on the party. We promise that next spring we will have a definite, organized party and will run a full slate. We feel that staying out one semester, even though necessary, won't hurt the party too much."

Why SGA?

It is discouraging to learn that the fall Student Government Association elections are going to be of the old one-party-no-opposition type.

Don Rogers, president of the All-Student party, explained in a statement to the Kernel that after advertising and personal contact with students, they "could find no one who had time to assume responsibility for carrying on the party this winter." Rogers states it is confident that next spring the All-Student party will have a definite, organized group and will run a full slate for the big elections.

Our first impulse is to say, "No wonder we can't have a strong SGA when the students don't even take enough interest in it to run for office." But then, when you stop to consider it, what strong reason is there for enthusiasm? As far as governing power is concerned, the "G" might as well be dropped from SGA.

This brings us to another oft-heard and true line of thought:
"The administration doesn't give SGA enough freedom to do really important things on campus."

But then we wind up right where we started. Have the students proved themselves capable of handling an actual Student Government Association? It's like the familiar case of "no experience, no job - no job, no experience." SGA has accomplished some worthwhile things in the line of student affairs. Maybe it should be made just a student association to sponsor such things as the student directory, parking, and the professor rating project.
It's a tough problem. And it's not likely to be solved unless the entire student body is interested in solving it.

Where's The Fire?

The letter entitled "The Other Side" in this week's Mailbox echoes the opinion voiced by the Kernel following the Elmer Davis lecture.

Evidently, it's the opinion of a great many other UK students.
The comments were especially widespread following the appearance Monday night of the Don Cossack chorus, when many of the people seated in the chairs on the Coliseum floor started to leave even before the chorus got off the stage.

Again, it was the townspeople rather than the students who left en masse. UK students were criticized harshly for leaving the Florida football game because of the snow, rain, and sleet. The townspeople don't even have this excuse for their early leave taking.

We heartily agree with Mr. Ballantine when he says it's time for the town to examine its own sportsmanship.

"Let's keep our eyes on our own papers."

DEAR Editor: The Mailbox

The Other Side

For months on end now, the students at the University of Kentucky have been assailed for their lack of spirit or sportsmanship. We have stood by, taken it on the chin, and emerged the better for the criticism we have received. We could not deny the fact that our spirit was not up to par last year. So SUKY went to work with a card section, newsbreakers, and pep rallies to really give the student body a lift.
And as for sportsmanship - we've gone to work on that, too. A committee of the Student Government Association has drawn up a sportsmanship code to be presented at the Kentucky-Purdue basketball game this Saturday. And the students as a whole will do their best to stifle
the few who give the University a black-eye by their jeers, sneers, and boos.

But I would like to examine the town's sportsmanship, too. The Community Concert Association has done a great job in engaging some of the best artists in the country.
And their thanks seems to be in the quick evacuation of the Coliseum
the very instant the last concert is given on the scheduled program.
Instead of staying a few extra minutes for the artists, they seem to quickly don their greatcoats and adorn for the evening. We realize it is their prerogative to leave at any time during any performance. And we further realize they may have pressing duties that call them. But we who would like to hear more of a performer's ability ask the deserters to be considerate of us. It makes it awfully hard for us to get an extended performance
when people by the score seem uninterested. And if this be not enough reason for remaining, we remind them of common decency and fair play toward artists. It seems too bad that men like Melton, Davis, Laughton, Beecham, and Jar-off have to see their audience diminish rapidly before and during any encours.

So how about it, Lexington? We're a striking usher take one out of line and demand a ticket for Junior.

It was irritating, inconvenient, and just plain disgusting.

Writably yours,
Violet Banks Robinson

(Athletic Director Shively told the Kernel that the rule requiring every child to have a ticket was passed by an athletic council and has been in effect many years. If children have previously been admitted free, it was a mistake on the part of the gatekeeper, Mr. Shively said.—Ed.)

Tickets For Children

Open Letter to Bernie Shively:
"We'd like to know since when?
and how come? Since when have students with children been refused admittance to athletic events at the University unless they shell out a buck and a half for the small fry?
When was this rule initiated and by whom? Students bringing children to the West Texas-UK basketball game in The Gymnasium were either required to (1) pay $1.50 for each child, or (2) take Junior back home and find a sitter, or (3) go home and forfeit seeing the game. There was no notice in the Kernel, and warning of any kind that children of students were required to have tickets nor any sort of announcement from the Athletic Office to the student body of any such new policy.
Last of all how come? Heretofore children of students have been welcome at basketball games in Alumni Gym and at football games too. We could take our kids to these events and felt no hesitancy in doing so—but now this. It was not only humiliating to walk up to a gate and nave

Dislikes Lipstick

At a recent concert in Memorial Coliseum I witnessed something which made me very happy. Two young ladies were present with no lipstick on. The freshness and attractiveness of their natural beauty strongly appealed to me. It required originality, initiative, and independence for these ladies to appear thusly.

The use of lipstick is to be condemned on many grounds. First, it is unnatural. Ninety-five percent of our male students have never seen a woman without lipstick. They will have to take my word for it that a woman's lips are no redder than a man's. Then why shouldn't men wear lipstick also, since redness of lips belongs equally to men and to women? Among birds and animals, it is the male that is more brightly stuffed. I am not arguing for male lipstick, but against female lipstick.
The use of lipstick is a waste of time and money. A woman wastes many minutes each day painting her lips. Millions of dollars are spent each year on lipstick. The laundry bills on men's shirts due to lipstick are terrific.

Most women wear lipstick only because other women do. If some of our social leaders on the campus
and elsewhere would take the lead,
we could eliminate this unsavory
custom.

I have seen some poor sports in my time, but never have I seen anything to compare with my Draft Board. Recently, feeling very reckless, I ventured into their office and made a proposition with them to the effect that I was to fight in only every other war. Guess what a humorous bunch of people they turned out to be. I think I'll quit fooling with them and let them go their way and I'll go mine. Mine, they say!

It's great to have a sense of humor so you can laugh at your dumb friends' ridiculous mistakes.

A professor was trying to illustrate a point of logic to his class—"If the Pacific is bounded on the east by the Atlantic Ocean, on the west by the Pacific, on the north by Canada, and on the south by Mexico, how old am I?"

To his surprise, the dumbest student in the class spoke up, "You're 48, sir."

"That's right, young man, but how did you know?"

THIS IS THE "NEW DORM," that is the new dorm of 1870. Neville Hall (the present name) was the second dorm for the men on campus. Housing 85 men it was once repected the men kept their rooms so mused that shovels were used to make a path to enter.

Once Was 'New Dorm'

Old Neville Hall Was Named For Latin-Greek Professor

By Janet Payne

In your first wanderings about the UK campus, do you remember passing by a ghostly looking building? If you noticed this building, no doubt you wondered just what it was used for and if it ever looked any different.

Indeed this building, Neville Hall, did appear a little more in common with other buildings on the campus when it was built back in 1890. "New Dorm," as Neville Hall was then called, was built as the second dormitory for men with accommodations for about 85 men. A three-story brick structure, it was built at a cost of $12,000.

AS EVIDENCED from a story which Prof. Ezra L. Gillis tells, students in "New Dorm" were a little lax in keeping their rooms clean. Prof. Gillis met Virgil Y. Moore with a shovel across his shoulder. When he asked Y. Y. what he was doing, Y. Y. told him that his father was coming to visit him and that he was on his way back to "New Dorm" to clean up his room. Although Y. Y.'s room in "New Dorm" may not have been kept straight, he graduated in 1909 with an A.B. In 1911 received his LL.B. and then became a lawyer in Washington, D.C.

Gorman Leading The Pack Of Ugly Men; Jones is Next

By Melvin Mitchell The "Ugly Men" polls will close at 5 p.m. today ending another election of the University's "Ugly Men." The votes were coming in slowly at the beginning of election week, but the "campus politicians" produced a last minute rush to the polls.

As reported late Wednesday afternoon, Joe Pat Gorman, running on the Delta Tau Delta platform, is leading the 15 candidates with a total of 574 votes. A close second place candidate with 483 votes is Elliot Jones, Phi Sigma Kappa. Third is Sol Weisenberg, 330 votes, who is on the Zeta Beta Tau ticket. At this time, the total votes cast were 268.

The Ugly Men contest, which is now being held for the third year at UK, is sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega, a service fraternity. The price of one vote cast for an ugly man is one cent. The voting booth is set up at the Student Union Building. All the money that is collected from the contest will be returned in various beneficial ways to the students.

The winner of the contest will be announced Dec. 14, during half-time of the Kentucky-Jordan basketball game. The organization who sponsored the winning candidate will be presented a trophy at this time.

French Stand Topic Of Talk

"Would France Stand Up to Soviet Aggression" will be the title of a talk to be given at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Memorial Hall. The speaker, Barry Bingham, is president of the Courier-Journal and former head of the Economic Cooperation Administration mission to France.

This is the second in a series of lectures being sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blazer of Ashland. This semester the talks are on European problems. Next semester they will concern the Americas.

The Blazer Series lectures are usually held in Guinon Theatre, but Tuesday's lecture will be transferred to Memorial Hall because of the production of "Twelfth Night."

Dr. Herman E. Spivey, dean of the Graduate School, spoke at the Alpha Nu Chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, graduate honorary education fraternity, luncheon Wednesday in the Blue Grass Room of the Student Union Building.

As an illustration of how a writer should limit his subject to the level of his readers, he read an article from Harper's Magazine entitled "Nature of the Universe."

Dr. Spivey named Emerson and Shaw as examples of writers who had challenged the minds of readers.

People Of US Appreciate Good Music, Say Cossacks

(Ed. Note - The Kernel was fortunate this week and was the recipient of two reviews of the Don Cossack Chorus presentation. Each review is printed in its entirety below.)

By Ed Coffman Since my partner and I interviewed the same people this week my contribution to this report of the Don Cossack Chorus from the Coliseum will be limited to random impressions mostly, with one exception. This one exception is an athletic little fellow by the name of N. Bot-schko. More concerning him later, say I.

During a number of weeks reporting on the performers in the Coliseum, it's impossible not to be attuned to comments and criticisms concerning the performances. At this stage of the concert series most of the students' gripes seem to boil down into these three outstanding ones:

1. Selection of material for presentation - most of the students I've talked to seem to feel that the music especially lacks variety and is over the heads of most of the audience. They realize that they form only part of the audience, but an important enough part to be listened to.

2. The sound should be turned up so that the softer passages in music performances can be heard in the peanut gallery.

3. Those seats are still too hard. They should also come equipped with backs.

BACK TO THE INTERVIEW with my friend Bot-schko. He is a nervous little guy with apparently rubberized legs. He is handsome to begin with, but square features of the present descent. He was born in the Ukraine, near the Don River. He is 27 years old, having spent the last 12 of those years studying the dance.

Bot-schko joined the Chorus two years ago. Previous to that he worked with a jazz band touring the U.S. Army circuit in Europe. He has danced with various ballet groups in Europe, but prefers to work with dances of a nationalistic nature. He calls them "character" dances.

Bot-schko was very much impressed with two of Koutsky's most widely advertised products. In his words he liked "your fine horses and your friendly women."

The little dancer was quite articulate on the subject of dances and dancers. He has worked with some of the best dancers among them, another Russian comparatively unknown here but whom Bot-schko regards as one of the best: a man with the tongue-twisting name of Yuskevitch. He thinks that the type of dance he did Monday night is probably the toughest to execute, requiring more strength than ballet. He admires the great American institution of the jitterbug; since working in this country he has become expert at it and considers himself quite a "cat." Other forms of dance per-

Another member of the chorus, W. Flustikoff, agreed with his director in the increase of musical appreciation in this area. This sense of appreciation he made its first American tour. He recalled, "On our first tour after we gave our concert in Carnegie Hall we had to use a lighter program. Now, the people ask for the serious music." Flustikoff continued that people are learning to appreciate choral music in particular more than they used to.

WHEN I ASKED SEVERAL of the Don Cossacks what they thought about the Coliseum. After conversing among themselves in Russian I later found out that they were comparing it to all the other concert halls in which they had sang; they presented the opinion that it is tremendous, however, they had performed in one larger auditorium. That was Madison Square Garden. One of them added that the Garden was much more suited to prize fighting than singing.

The dancers were younger than the other members of the organization. When I talked to one of them, Kozak, he was very hot and sweaty since he had just finished one of his dances. He said that he had started dancing when he was six years old. He went to a school which taught folk dancing.

WHEN ASKED IF all of the dances were Russian folk dances, he replied, "Some of them are. Others I make up myself." He also solved another problem in my mind when he gave me some idea of what keeps him from falling flat on his face. "Dancing every night keeps my legs in shape. If I lay off for a while, they get stiff."

An old Coliseum janitor broke off my interview with Kozak, but in talking to Kozak he summed up the Don Cossack chorus. "Son, you've the best I've ever seen."

Kernel, Collier's All-American Alike Except For Bob Gain

Collier's All-American team for 1950, announced last week, is with one exception, the best that has been named this year, in the opinion of the Kernel sports staff.

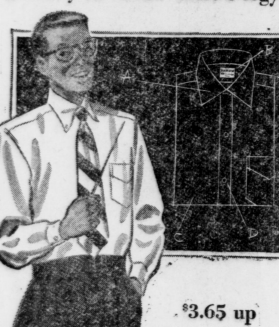

The 11 best in the country as picked by Collier's and shown above, has only one flaw we think. We believe they should have included Kentucky's Bob Gain at one tackle berth.

Banquet Set For Dec. 13

The annual football banquet, honoring the varsity and freshman grid squads, will be held next Wednesday, Dec. 13, Miss Helen King, alumni secretary, has announced.

Charles Zatarain, president of the Sugar Bowl, will be the principal speaker, and Coach Paul Bryant and others will talk at the festive Athletic Director Bernie Shively will act as toastmaster.

Scheduled to be presented at the banquet is the Huey scholarship award to be given the senior with the highest academic standing. The Jerome Leisler trophy for the senior voted most valuable will be presented after the Sugar Bowl game.

There are other fine backs in the country but no four can match this quartet for all-around competence.

The line of McColl and Foulberg at ends, Donnan and Weatherall at tackles, Daffer and McFadin at guards and McCullough is also tops, except, as we have said before, Gain should be in there somewhere.

Kentucky Opens Basketball Season With Win Over West Texas State

By Fred Lawson

Moving out of familiar Alumni Gym into the new Memorial Coliseum seemed to have no effect on the Wildcats last Friday night. Coach Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats whipped West Texas State 73-53 to run their winning streak to 25 consecutive home victories and the first victory in the Coliseum.

The game, played before 10,000 fans, attracted the second largest crowd ever to see a basketball game in Kentucky. In July, 1948 a crowd of 14,000 saw the Wildcats Olympic team play the Phillips Oilers of St. Paul, Minn.

Jumping into the lead at the start, the Cats were never pressed after the first few minutes Coach Rupp substituted freely.

Big Bill Spivey, seven-foot center led the Kentucky scoring with 11 points, although he played only slightly more than half the game.

Carl, Walt Hirsch and Bobby Watson followed with 10 each and Bobby Watson had nine points.

West Texas State, which went down to its first defeat in four years, was led by Mose Hale and Dwayne Stewart. Hale had 16 points and Stewart had 15.

In the first half the Wildcats hit 21 of 41 shots from the field for a 31.2 average. But they wound up with a 37.9 mark on 33 out of 87.

West Texas hit 13 out of 63 shots for 33 per cent.

Honor of making the first goal in the new gym went to Linville, who hit from the side after 40 seconds of play. Stewart hit a free throw for the Texas' first point a few seconds later.

Watson hit from the side and Spivey from under the basket to make it 6-1. From here on the game wasn't close.

The Buffaloes' first field goal came after 6:40 of play. Playing a slow, cautious game the Buffaloes committed only six personal fouls during the game.

Phi Sig's Pace Volley Ballers

Phi Sigma Kappa became the only team to hold an undefeated first place in intramural volleyball play when they defeated Alpha Tau Omega, two games to one, Monday night. They held top honors in Division Three.

The win gave the Phi Sig's a record of four victories, a perfect slate and dropped the ATO team to second place with a three and one record in round-robin play.

In another Division Three contest Monday night, Delta Tau Delta shut out Alpha Gamma Rho, two games to one. The Delta thumped Zeta Beta Tau by taking two straight games.

Division One was in a three-way deadlock after Tuesday night as the SAE's dropped the previously undefeated Sigma Nu's, two games to one. The Ingleide Independents ousted out the top trio of the division by taking Tau Kappa in two games.

Lambda Chi and PiKA maintained their dual domination of Division Two as they both claimed wins. The Phi Kaps took a pair of games from Omega Psi Chi.

Kentucky's basketball Wildcats get their first severe testing Saturday night when the Purdue Boilermakers help dedicate the Coliseum, and the game is the first step in a rugged pre-Christmas series that can make or break the Cats' 1950-51 season.

Purdue, though admittedly not the power it was last year, still has a well-balanced ball club and the success Coach Adolph Rupp's charges enjoy will be a tipoff on what Blue and White supporters may expect the rest of the season.

Rupp has gone on record as saying that this year's team is a "better balanced, more experienced team" and more stable than last year's.

But he added that the Cats don't have the deadly shooting ability the 1949-50 club possessed. "We don't have anyone who can destroy a team as (Jim) Line could," the Man in the Brown Suit explained.

The wily mentor was right on one count, but his boys proved him wrong on the other. He was right that he doesn't have a man who can destroy a team, unless Bill Spivey starts connecting. But with the Cats hitting an unenviable 51 per cent in the first half against West Texas State in their opener, it appears they do have some deadly shooting ability.

Their final percentage was 37, but the drop was due to errant flings taken by the reserves in the final half.

Cats Face Boilermakers Here

Big Ten Opponent To Help Dedicate Memorial Coliseum

By Lewis Donohoe

Coach Adolph Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats, rated second in the nation by most sports writers, will face their second test of the young season Saturday night when they take on the Purdue Boilermakers at 8 o'clock in Memorial Coliseum.

Against the Boilermakers, Rupp is expected to use the same starting lineup that he sent out in Kentucky's 73-43 conquest of North Texas State last Friday.

In that case it will be Shelby Linville and Walt Hirsch at forwards, Bill Spivey at center, and Bobby Watson and Frank Ramsey at guards.

The Purdue outfit of Coach Ray Eddy will probably use Carl McNulty and James Stone at forwards, Don Bol at center, and John Dermody and Norman Greiner at the guard posts.

Martin Horn, regular center for the Purdue team, is on the ailing list and is expected to see little action in the UK contest.

Purdue's invading casters are reported to be an extremely fast, excellent ball-handling outfit noted for accurate, height-of-the-floor passes. To date they have won one and lost one, whipping Wabash, 75-46, in their opener last Saturday night, and losing to Kansas State, 60-54, Wednesday night.

The Boilermakers have a sophomore-laden squad, 12 sophs being listed on their 21-man roster. The remainder of the contingent contains six juniors and three seniors.

The Wildcats are one of the best teams in the country, boast an equalizer in seven-footer center Clyde Lovellette, and are coached by Froyd Allen, one of the country's top mentors.

The game promises to be one of the toughest, if not the most rugged, one Kentucky's schedule. I wouldn't miss it for a peck of green apples!

UP Ratings

In the United Press ratings this week, Kentucky received four first-place votes and 288 points compared to CCNY's 23 first-place counters and 330 points.

Following Kentucky in the order of their ratings were Bradley, who will be playing in the Sugar Bowl tournament along with the Wildcats on Dec. 29-30, Syracuse and St. Louis, also playing in the tourney, were rated 12 and 20, respectively; North Carolina State, Kansas, St. John's, Oklahoma A & M, Long Island University, Iowa, and UCLA.

Scippy Whitaker, forced out of starting berth in last week's game because of intestinal flu, was released from the hospital Wednesday and is expected to see action in Saturday night's game.

The Purdue team will not arrive in Lexington until the day of the game. They are scheduled to arrive in Cincinnati today and spend the night there before making the last lap of their journey here.

The starting lineups:

Kentucky: F. Linville, G. McNulty, Hirsch, C. Spivey, B. Watson, G. Ramsey

Frosh Cagers Edge Lindsey

Bill Evans' free throw in the last four seconds gave the Kentucky cage Kittens a 63-62 win, their second of the season, over Lindsey-Wilson Junior College Monday night at Somerset.

Poor shooting — they hit only 18 per cent from the field in the first half kept Kentucky behind all night. Dick Prater's two-pointer brought Kentucky abreast of the Columbia, Ky., team for the first time since the early stages at 62 all.

The Kittens played conservative ball in the last few seconds of the tie game, and it paid off when Evans was fouled driving for a lay up.

Gene Neff, starting at center for Kentucky, led both teams in scoring with 15 points. Bedy Massey, playing before his home town crowd of 1,200, got 12 for second high honors among the Kittens.

Lansky-Whaley connected on 59 per cent of their second half field shots on top of their 29-26 halftime lead.

The biggest surprise this corner has had in a long time is the reluctance on the part of basketball fans to snap up tickets for Kentucky's clash with Kansas in the Coliseum.

Two Kentucky Fencers Place In AFLA Meet

UK played host to the Amateur Fencers League of America, Kentucky division, last Sunday in the Alumni gym. Sabre was the only weapon fenced as contestants met to decide the top three sabre men of the Kentucky AFLA.

Albert Wolf, former U.S. Olympic fencer, took top honors in the field. His record for the meet was 7-0. Alan Solomon, last year's captain of the varsity fencing team, took second with a 5-2 record.

Tied in the number of bouts won, for third place were Carl Burge, this year's Kentucky sabre champ, and Bill Seiler, a member of last year's team. Solomon and Burge qualified for the Midwest regional tournament which will be held in Ohio sometime in January.

Last Thursday at Winchester the Kittens defeated the Kentucky Wesleyan Frosh, 74-66. Prater and Garry Rose were high scorers.

The Kittens travel with the varsity to Cincinnati for a game with the Xavier yearlings next Tuesday, Dec. 12.

Coach Lancaster said that his club would be at a definite disadvantage in height until Center Randy Whaley's broken left leg mends.

The six-foot—seven-inch South Carolinian was at first thought to be suffering "shin splints."
