ONE YEAR GONE

Last Sunday marked the end of the first year of the New Deal program in this country. Under the leadership of President Roosevelt a dismal, discouraging outlook has changed into one of hope and cheerfulness.

The experimental methods of the government have met with considerable disapproval, and with criticism not always of a constructive nature. Perhaps in some respects blunders were good, honest blunders, resulting from attempts to alleviate lamentable conditions.

SELFISHNESS

A prominent speaker recently declared that college men and women were ruining their own lives and those of others by being too selfish and self-centered.

There is no question but that the economic status of this country is much better than it was a year ago. Swiftly, surely the newly-elected President moved. Plans were designed, checked, tried. Slowly the grinding wheels of commerce gathered momentum till a smooth, even speed was attained.

mentals of the country's economic system. Included in the first category are the Public Works and Civil Works Administration, federal purchases of agricultural surpluses for relief purposes, the emergency conservation corps, federal refinancing of home and farm mortgages, and reconstruction corporation loans to banks and railroads.

Voicing in a few words the underlying principles and aims of the administration, President Roosevelt, on the first anniversary of his presidency, said: "In the broader problems of government, of all kinds, local and state and federal and international, we in this country today are thinking not merely in terms of the moment, but in terms that apply to the rest of our lives and to the lives of our children."

Where could wiser foresight be found? Was there ever a finer spirit, a deeper insight into the life of America's President Roosevelt, your country honors you for your courage, integrity, and humaneness.

THE BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT

In yesterday's Herald there appeared an editorial that reminded us that even though our Wildcats have completed their 1933-34 season, Lexington and central Kentucky still have some first class basketball games in store in the way of the annual state high school tournament.

"District basketball champions already have been crowned and regionals will be played this week throughout the state and it should be teams who will gain coveted invitations to the Kentucky state tournament."

"This basketball extravaganza, for that is what the tournament usually becomes by the time the opening gun sounds, will be just as colorful and as exciting as it has been in the past. A few of the strongest teams in the state already have fallen by the wayside and other quintets which thought that they had little chance to meet and it should be entered the district tournaments have their colors flying and still have the chance to battle their way through the state tournament."

"Newport, one of the strongest teams in Kentucky, will be among the missing when the roll is called for they lost their first game in the district tournament, but there will be other powerful teams from all sections of the state to pick up the battle where more favored but less fortunate quintets have been halted in defeat."

"Lexington is proud of its state basketball tournament and happy to play host to the many visitors who come to Lexington to see the tournament battles."

This expresses very well the attitude toward basketball tournaments taken by Lexington merchants and business men as well as supporters in general. Lexington just naturally is a good basketball town; then why should we not have the Southeastern conference tournament here? It seems that if the tournament is to be continued, all points are favorable to Lexington as the location.

Not so many years ago, Mississippi was confounded by a tax which was similar to ours in many respects. Her assets were only a fraction of her liabilities. However, she met it in much the same way as it is proposed by some that we meet ours by reorganization and revision problems.

that these persons who are successful in getting themselves into jobs lending prestige to the possessor have "larded" it over their less fortunate brethren to the extent of causing these "ordinary" students much mental anguish. Although equipped with high intelligence and personality, they think of their college career as a failure if it does not include some sort of individual distinction upon the campus.

Why should students concentrate upon seeking campus appointments and membership in various honorary fraternities? It is to be reluctantly granted that possible success satisfaction is gleaned while the student remains upon the campus but what does the honor mean after he is graduated? It will not aid him in securing a means of livelihood nor will it serve to place him in a coveted position among his fellow men who take lightly any such college honors. It means so little in the world, why should it mean so much on the campus? Is not the college campus a training ground for the problems to be faced after graduation? Granted that this is true, why then should so much stress be placed upon university distinctions by students whose viewpoints are stretched to include themselves in everything and terming naught anything that does not enfold them in its "select" embrace.

All this is doubtless due to the calous selfishness of certain groups upon the campus attempting to "control" everything for themselves. They have not the general student welfare at heart but rather seek to promote members of their own group into the foreground of campus affairs.

Each student enrolled in a university or college should be treated in all matters as his fellow student. There should be no any discrimination of any sort. If each student is looked upon in the same light, then harmony, good fellowship and a spirit of unity will exist. This will serve to make happy the four years that each student spends upon his university campus.

A BIDDING ROMANCE

The Bank of Kentucky is "absolutely bankrupt." The firm of Griffenhagen, auditors, made this announcement last Wednesday following a detailed audit of the State's books which began last August.

Another Alphasg freshe, after being told that he would have to borrow a pair of boots, a Sam Browne belt, a pair of riding pants and a Pershing cap and prepared to be drilled before he was formed by one of the brothers that only Colneels were the type of uniform that he should donned.

Kappa Lucille Thornton, who says that she has "fallen out of time," claims that she is having the time of her life during these free days. Personal observations lead to believe that she is having the time of her life during these free days.

The Rose Girl of the Week

Several letters have been received during the past week. One flattering note calls our attention to the surviving romance of Kappasia Harvey Mattingly and Delia Mae Mary Higgins.

Girl, it is better to have loved and lost than to have never loved at all.

Are You Sincere?

Several days ago the Pickap crew, who are so busy making their pre-initiation period (Hell Week to you), were assigned the unpleasant duty of meeting Phil Zieve at the Star Spangled Banner when he Senator made his appearance.

Last Saturday an Alphasg freshman remarked that he just couldn't decide whether to wear the Alpha, the Alphasg, or the S.P.E. dance.

conducted by JANE ANN MATTHEWS

December days are brief and chill. The winds of March were wild and drear, And nearing and receding still, Spring never would, we thought, be here.

Falling Star

Mad, dynamite say, fun-loving Hollywood depicted in a glittering way. The heroine is a foreign actress; a star of the silent pictures, her hero is the idol of millions of fans. A true picture of one of the celebrities who came to a tragic end.

A Modern Tragedy

It is enduring fiction because of a theme like George Elliot. The plot is a story of a young man and woman who are in love, but the man is a playboy and the woman is a girl who is in love with him.

The Native Return

"A gorgeous work"; "a treasure house"; "an elegant book"; "a literary treat"; "one of the books that had to be written"; these are a few of the many compliments that have been paid to this novel.

PETITE PIECE

By LOHRAINE LEPERE

Along with the rotten weather that has cluttered up the campus, we have something more to worry about. Plans are being completed at one of the houses for the dying of heads. The brunettes will be bleached and the blondes dyed at you've seen a lot of the southern gentlemen carrying eggs—a rather expensive custom, I should think. If I am so misinformed, the members of the same outfit bark and make for the nearest tree or bush.

It seems to me that the most pitiful of all are the ones who cannot go home to their parents on account of the extreme hazing, and not at all ashamed to admit it. I could go into the cases as they are, but I would not want to give a few ideas they have left out.

Consider for a moment the boy who is rather in love and can't see his girl for that length of time. And think of how the girl feels all by herself. And another thing, what do they take out of their brains when they know their boys are going through a lot of foolishness that might be harmful to them? Hell week certainly has a serious side, a seriousness that lurks in the background and doesn't seem to be noticed.

CLAY HILLS
It is easy to mould the yielding clay.
And many shapes grow into beauty
Under the facile hand.
But forms of clay are lightly broken;
They will be shattered and forgotten in a dusky corner.

But underneath the slipping clay is rock.
I would rather work in stubborn rock
All the years of my life,
And make one strong thing
And set it in a high, clear place,
To recall the granite strength of my desire.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By DELMAR ADAMS

After carefully weighing both sides of the question, it seems to Press-box that after all, the best way to decide a championship of any kind is by taking the season's record and awarding the crown to the team with the best composite average for all the games played.

After having read Ed Danforth's letter to Neville Dunn, in which he scathingly rebukes Dunn and Coach Rupp for the stand they have taken as concerns the continuation of the Southeastern conference basketball tournament, we will probably be admitted to that sacred circle to which both the Wildcat basketball coach and Neville Dunn belong.

If you have not read this letter, it behooves you to do so at once. It is both a masterpiece of partisan scorn and unjustified indignation. In a nutshell: he contends that the Wildcat mentor is disappointed about the attempts of his team to win the tournaments at Atlanta and that if a game is not played for sport alone it is not worth playing at all.

Mr. Danforth is slightly out of focus it would seem, or else he has changed his mind several times since he last turned his pen to the string of disparaging comments upon the heads of the Wildcats and Lexington sports writers.

Did he not contend after the Georgia Tech fracas of 1932, that the Cats had practically stolen the game and that it was like unto a highway robbery?

At many other times has the "Georgian Whi" turned his piquant ire against the University athletic teams and organizations. This last outburst was to be expected, in that the Georgian Sports editor still remembers that one touchdown victory of the Big Blue in Atlanta a season or so ago. In fact, after attacking the Cats so violently after that game because his favored team failed to win, it hardly behoves Danforth to criticize anyone for something he himself has done a number of times. It is just another case of the pot calling the kettle black.

The recent action of the athletic council, in appropriating funds with which to sponsor a baseball team this season, was one which deserves commendation, since the discontinuation of the sport in 1931, there

Following these meetings, members of the freshman cabinet of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. will meet to discuss the points taken up in the two lectures.

"The Race Question" will be the subject of Rev. R. S. Mosby, speaker scheduled for March 27. Other programs for the semester are: April 3, "How to Treat Reptiles," Dr. W. D. Funkhouser; April 17, "Life Invested in Boys," Mr. Aubrey Morse; and April 24, "After the First Year—What?" by the Rev. Wallace Aiston, pastor of the Maxwell Presbyterian church.

Car Registration Now Numbers 408

Approximately 408 cars have been registered by members of the student and faculty body, according to a report issued yesterday from the Dean of Men's office. Registration will continue all semester, as all students desiring to park their cars on the campus are required to register.

A nominal fee of 25 cents is charged per semester for each registration. Cars are assigned to a certain area for parking and can not be parked anywhere else on the campus without special permission from the traffic authorities. First offenders will be warned, but later offenses will draw a one dollar fine.

Students to Argue Case at Frankfort

From the eight participants in a preliminary tryout which was held at the College of Law of the University, March 1, W. R. Jones, William Mellor, H. C. Smith, and J. E. Walker were selected to argue a case before the Court of Appeals at Frankfort, April 9.

Students who participated in the preliminary were B. H. Pumphrey, W. R. Jones, P. A. Neal, J. E. Walker, H. C. Smith, W. H. Counts, William Mellor, and William Wells. The following members of the Lexington Bar acted as judges of the preliminary: Rufus Lisle, Earle Fowler, and Frank S. Ginechelo.

The subject for argument before the court by the students will be the constitutionality of a proposed statute permitting a defendant in a criminal case to waive trial by jury.

Intramural

By J. DARWIN STEPHENS

Some teams are not aware of the fact, or have paid no attention to the new ruling on the eligibility and numeral men.

Last fall, before the Intramural football season, a number of organizations protested the eligibility of numeral men in Intramural sports. The question was put to a vote among the Intramural house managers, and it was decided by a large majority that numeral men should be declared ineligible.

All protests of the eligibility of a man should be made before playing time, as stated in the by-laws of the Intramural constitution. Protests made at a later period will have no effect upon the game; however, men declared ineligible will be barred from participating in that sport for the remainder of the season. It is necessary for all of the Intramural sports organizations to note this rule and, by all means, act accordingly.

SHOP SIGHTS

By MARY REES LAND

Are you one of those persons who hurry to class and then finds that there are many minutes before the bell? Or one of those who incur the professor's glaring stare by coming late? In either case, try an Elgin or a Waltham wrist watch from Wechter's. They have night dials and are rectangular or round. They have seven and fifteen jeweled movements. In the ladies' Bangette wrist watches one may choose either a metal, leather, or silk band. Some of these watches are set with two to six diamonds.

Envelope bags worn by the Churchill Weavers of Kentucky may be found at Mitchell, Baker, and Smith. They come in a multi-colored weave which can be used with anything or in just two colors. They fasten with a wooden button. At a nearby case, try Mexican compacts for your own loose powder. Some represent snakekin and others are striped. Another is a rising sun in a green sky, decorated in a way that astronomers might not recognize but which is very effective.

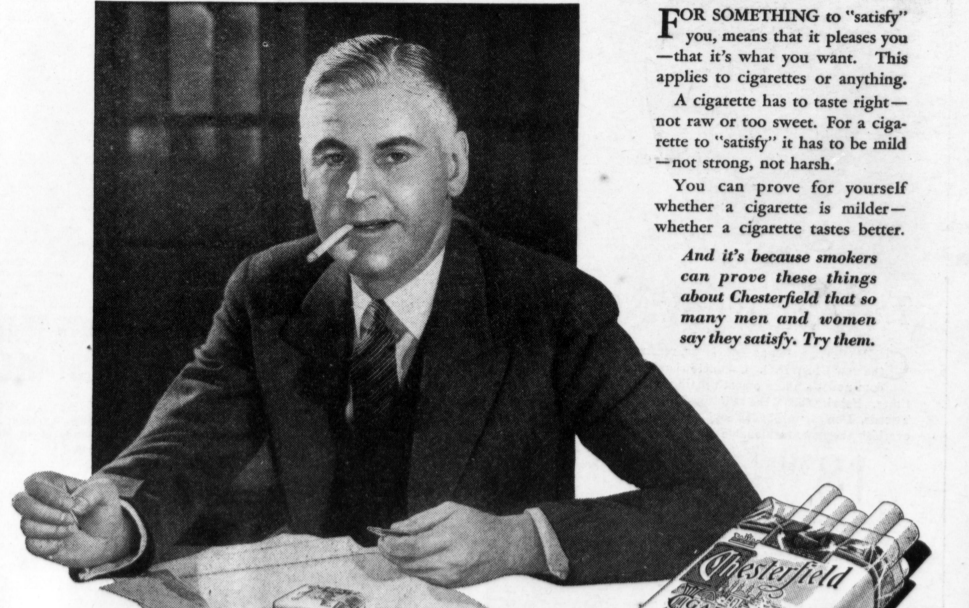

We have windblown nightgowns now. A ruffle of net which matches the gown is whipped in the V-neck and falls towards the lace insertion. Also at Emory's, where these gowns are found, are double ruffled, taffeta evening slips cut low in the back. The ruffle gives the slip a break in its evenness if you want to lift up your train. They are just the thing for the spring organdies and they do swish nicely as you walk.

Why Men and women say They Satisfy

FOR SOMETHING to "satisfy" you, means that it pleases you—that it's what you want. This applies to cigarettes or anything. A cigarette has to taste right—not raw or too sweet. For a cigarette to "satisfy" it has to be mild—not strong, not harsh. You can prove for yourself whether a cigarette is milder—whether a cigarette tastes better.

And it's because smokers can prove these things about Chesterfield that so many men and women say they satisfy. Try them.
