LETTERS OF APPRECIATION

The following letters were received by LSO.

I want to thank you all--those who paid for and those who selected--for the beautiful crystal dish you gave me on my retirement. I love crystal. It's elegant and artistic and it doesn't have to be polished.

You have been an exceedingly congenial group to work with, and when I fully realize that this is not just a lazy summer vacation, I know I shall miss you severely. I must say that this new pattern of life is proving very easy to adjust to, and I'm doing it in surroundings made more beautiful by your thoughtful gift. Bless you all.

Vivian MacQuown

Thank you and the LSO for the lovely crystal candy dish you gave me. It will remind me often of all of you and of all the problems we've solved together and all the pleasant times we've shared. I shall miss you all.

Sincerely,

Sally Ann Johnson

My years at the Library have been a very special period in my life. A very important reason for this has been my association with all of the wonderful people I have known and worked with there. I want to thank each and every one of you for the time I have spent among you, and I shall cherish your gift of the beautiful Gorham Lead Crystal dish. It sparkles in its loveliness!

I thank you very much!

Sincerely,

Ruth Vaughn

University of Kentucky Acquires LS/2000

The University of Kentucky has acquired an OCLC/LS/2000 local library system for the Margaret I. King Library and Medical Center Library on the University's campus at Lexington and ultimately, the 12 community colleges that comprise the University of Kentucky Community College System.

First ARL Library

The University of Kentucky is the first Association of Research Libraries institution to acquire an LS/2000 system. The system being installed initially includes a Data General MV 10,000 minicomputer and 27 terminals for circulation, bibliographic and authority control, and limited public access. Later phases will include terminals for increased public access.

Paul A. Willis, Director of Libraries at the University of Kentucky, said: "The LS/2000 integrated automation package will allow us to better serve faculty and students while at the same time permit us to make more efficient use of personnel and other resources. In terms of size, the University of Kentucky is about the median ARL institution, so our requirements are substantial. The LS/2000 system is compatible with the OCLC centralized systems that we have been using since 1975, and we anticipate that this compatibility will be an increasing asset for our local library system."

State-wide

Mr. Willis said that the University of Kentucky Libraries serve 22,000 students and 1,500 faculty members in Lexington, including 12 main campus branch libraries. Moreover, there are an additional 22,000 students served in 12 community colleges located throughout the state which are part of the University of Kentucky Community College System. "LS/2000 will support an ideal blending of local database needs with access to and support from the major national bibliographic utility," he said. "And, the new M300 Workstation available from OCLC gives us flexibility in extending local and national automated services to a number of locations with a minimal number of terminals. At our agricultural library, for example, we intend to install an M300 for access to LS/2000 as well as OCLC's central on-line system."

Libraries involved in the initial phase of LS/2000 include the Medical Center Library and the Margaret I. King Library (the main library) as well as the law and agriculture branch libraries. Plans call for the system to be expanded to other libraries within the University system.

Medical Center

"We are looking forward to expanding our present cataloging and interlibrary loan activities through the LS/2000 system," said Omer Hamlin, Jr., Director of the Medical Center Library. "The Medical Center will be the first library on campus to have an online public access catalog, and we will have the capability of checking holdings in the entire university system."

In preparation for the database load, which is scheduled to begin in August 1984, OCLC will extract the University's bibliographic records from OCLC archive tapes, consolidate them, and convert headings to the proper AACR2 form using the current Library of Congress Name-Authority File.

The University of Kentucky Libraries have 1.8 million volumes and approximately 35,000 current serials.

Under terms of the agreement, OCLC will provide the University of Kentucky with LS/2000 hardware, software and support services — training, profiling, installation, and maintenance.

WORKSHOPS

The following KLA sponsored workshops will take place in August. See Rob Aken for registration forms.

Teaching School Media Librarians to Teach

Debra Johnson and Judy Cooper from the Kentucky State Department of Education will conduct this workshop on current brain research topics and various aspects of skills-oriented curriculum. The workshop will be offered twice: August 7 at Murray State and August 9 at Eastern Kentucky University. (9:30-3:30 both days). Fee: $12 (KLA members), $30 (non-KLA members). Register by August 1.

Newsletter Production on a Shoestring

Bob Gottlieb (Director of Community Relations, Louisville Free Public Library) and Alan Kelly (Professor of Commercial Art, Jefferson Community College) will present this workshop on newsletter production on August 10, 9-3, at the Jefferson Community College. Fee: $15 (KLA members), $35 (non-KLA members). Register by August 1.

TRAINING AT UK

The following training programs are available to UK non-faculty employees. Programs are held in room 15 (basement) of Memorial Hall. To enroll contact Rosemary Veach (7-1851).

Goal Setting and Motivation August 2, 8:30 - noon

Find out how to use goal setting to improve productivity, morale, and job satisfaction.

Effective Student Assistance August 7, 8:30-11:00 a.m.

When dealing with students, it's important to present a friendly and professional image. This workshop will focus on why the reception and treatment of students is important to the University of Kentucky and develop ideas to improve staff/student relations in your department.

Improving Your Reading & Comprehension Speed

August 8, 10, 15 & 17; 9 - noon each day

This workshop consists of 4 sessions, at three hours per session, covering techniques to improve and build your comprehension levels, break poor reading habits, and develop skills to help double your present reading speed. Reading smarter and faster can save valuable time, enabling you to devote more time to other job responsibilities. You must attend all four sessions.

Effective Office Courtesy

August 9, 9 - noon

This workshop reviews general office etiquette rules, including the correct way to answer the phone and to receive students and visitors in the office.

FALL FACULTY MEETING SURVEY

The agenda topic for the 1984 Fall Faculty meeting is the long range automation for University of Kentucky Libraries. Automation for the University of Kentucky is the LS/2000 system. The Planning Committee will give a report and the latest update on the circulation system, and the rest of the afternoon will be spent on the broader topic. We want to present a program of interest to as many people as possible and thereby stimulate discussion. In order to do this we will need your help. Below are listed several suggested topics (with room for comments beneath) and a space for your own ideas. Please take a few minutes to fill this out to enable us to plan a useful program.

_____ Multiple uses of the M300 terminals

_____ Implementation plans for LS/2000 after circulation

_____ Public relations and the LS/2000

_____ Any other ideas or comments
