Revision Of SGA Constitution Explained To UK Students At Open Meeting Thursday

Revision of the Student Government constitution to eliminate conflicts with the rules of the faculty was explained to students in an open meeting Thursday night.

A special committee of students and faculty members is drafting the new document, and the meeting was called in order that student opinion on matters to be included might be obtained. The old constitution now in effect was drawn up when the University senate was operating; since the faculty was not then a part of the University, conflicts in the two sets of regulations were not noticed.

The committee now at work on the constitution, which will be voted upon by the student body before becoming effective, is composed of Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, dean of the University; Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women; Dr. M. M. White, assistant dean of the arts and sciences college; Professor John Kuiper, head of the philosophy department; Dr. Howard W. Beers, professor of rural sociology; and Jim Collier, Scott Reed, Harry Caudill, Alex Hall and Beverly Griffith, students.

Collier, SGA president, explained that the committee was endeavoring to formulate a "flexible document that may be stretched to meet the demands of the future."

Explaining the work that the committee has done, Collier stated that all campus activity has been divided into three categories: those in which students have primary responsibility, those in which students have partial responsibility, and those in which the faculty has the sole responsibility.

The functions in which the students are primarily concerned include the social, investigations of living conditions and working conditions, freshmen camp, student activities, and student morale, according to the committee.

Partial student responsibility is involved in student recreation, athletic, intramural sports, dances, open houses, forums, art exhibits, attendance at off-campus games and plays, religious life, investigation of activity tickets and student deposits, student publications, improving scholarship, intercollegiate athletics, student conduct, administering an honor code, control of traffic, use of library, and interesting prospective students.

Functions in which the faculty has the entire responsibility but in which the SGA may recommend, request, or advise are those which are primarily faculty and staff matters. These include honoraries, class room instruction and requirements, degree requirements, attendance requirements, revision of college curriculum, vacations, penalties, absences, and similar matters.

Campus Honoraries Will Be Coordinated By University Faculty For SGA, Collier Says

"Honoraries on the campus will be coordinated by the University faculty or by the SGA," Jim Collier, SGA president, stated yesterday. "It seems to me that since the Student Government association is an organization of students elected by the student body, it would be the logical group to coordinate these honoraries."

In explaining the much-discussed elimination of honoraries, Collier pointed out that people have been trying to coordinate the honoraries for various reasons. There are those persons, he explained, who want to keep the SGA from becoming influential. There are those who for personal reasons desire to keep student organizations divided against the university. There are privilege-seeking students who are active at present, who are interested in themselves rather than in the student body. These few students use certain organizations as a means to procure special concessions for themselves. These few students use certain organizations as a means to procure special concessions for themselves.

It has been reported among the students that the SGA is trying to coordinate the honoraries. Collier explained, "was to find out how many honoraries are active at present. We planned to print a booklet with complete information about these groups. This would have benefited both the student body and the organizations. Included in the booklet was a project of building a SGA room in the Union building. We then intended to provide each active honorary with its own set of these in which it could keep its records, books, records, and other materials. This room would then become a centralized point of information concerning honoraries. At present these plans have been discontinued, but we hope to eventually complete the work."

Survey Discloses UK Women Have More Courage, Bravado Than Men

By BETTY JANE PUGH
Kernel News Editor

Joan Ar had nothing on the UK co-eds.

These members of the so-called weaker, daintier, more delicate, sentimental, fragile sex are not running true to their stereotyped form at this University.

On the contrary they are exhibiting far more spunk, courage and bravado than the many males.

Such drastic conclusions were drawn on a campus-wide survey conducted by the Kernel during the past week to determine the true nature of man and woman by the passage of the 18-19-year-old draft bill.

In answer to the question "Do you intend to stay in school and wait until you are drafted, or are you anxious to get into the fight?" nine out of ten 18- or 19-year-old men students voted the intention of staying in school and out of the war as long as possible.

But with the women, the pendulum of opinion took a sharp swing in the other direction.

"If you were a man under 20 and in college, would you attempt to continue your education, or would you immediately enlist and get in the fight?" This was the question put to the weaker contingent, and their answer—in nine out of ten instances it was "We're ready to go!"

In one particular, men and women agreed, that was "We're ready to school after the war and finish their education."

What Price Education

Though the survey explored the fine mesh of young warriors, fearlessness and daring by bringing out statements such as "I'll stay healthy till they catch me," it also put a considerable crimp in the idea of a "What the hell" generation.

Apparently all the soft-spooned boys with the idea that going to college is a job, have a different outlook now. At least so their reasons for staying in school and out of the war would indicate.

"I think education is the most important phase of a man's life, and it should never be cut short," came from one male as his reason for staying in college.

"A man must be prepared to work," said another. "College isn't all fun, its intense training and serious preparation as well as dances and football games; training to fit men for life after the war is over and forgotten."

In no case was any reason other than the desire for further education being used as an argument against enlisting.

Reserves Popular

The majority of University men interviewed had either joined the reserve corps or intended to join that group immediately. A few however just intended to wait until drafted.

"I plan to enlist in the reserves, then wait till they call me. If I don't get shot to pieces in the war I'd like to come back and finish my education at that time."

"I think this bill is a good thing, but I have joined the enlisted reserve, so that I may continue in my course of study as far as I can."

"I am glad that the bill was passed, but I am trying to get in the enlisted reserve, and hope to enlist immediately."

A few male members of the student body indicated that they approved the bill and were ready to enlist immediately.

"I think the lowering of the draft age was advisable because it will increase the number of men in the service."

Women Play A Great Part In National Defense Effort

By SOEMA WEATHERSPOON

Women in Defense Week is being observed in Kentucky November 22-25 by proclamation of Gov. Keen Johnson. And so Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women, and Miss Helen King, assistant director of the public relations department, have opened their files and looked over the activities of University women—both students and staff members—in the all-out war effort.

From dancing with soldiers to saving postage stamps, from taking first aid courses to knitting sweaters, from selling defense stamps to leading scrap drives the women are bringing easy and doing their share.

Before Pearl Harbor, in January, 1941, the preparation program and Red Cross knitting was begun. Classes in first aid, in home nursing, in home sewing, and in Red Cross knitting were organized. Each Friday during the spring of that year, women met in the lounge of Boyd hall to receive yarn and instructions and to return completed garments for the American Red Cross.

Knitting for the Red Cross was renewed in September, 1941, but because of the shortage of wool it had to be discontinued in December.

The American Friends Service Committee made possible further knitting, however, and 22 garments have been completed for that group.

Under their plan, interested women bought wool, made the garments, and then continued that to the Red Cross.

First Aid Classes

With the opening of school in September, 1941, five large first aid classes and two capacity classes in home nursing were organized. This year the first aid instruction was taken over by the physical education department and one course for credit and one non-credit course were offered. The home economics department took over the home nursing classes. Red Cross certificates are being offered to those who complete either course.

There are at least 40 qualified first aid instructors on the campus—Miss Margaret Warner, instructor in physical education; Miss Jane Haselden, assistant dean of women; Miss Mildred Semmon, assistant instructor in anatomy and physiology; and Miss King.

The women's vocational conference during 1941-42 was organized around the idea of giving University women an opportunity to learn what positions have been opened in defense areas for women.

Mortar Board Activities

Selling defense stamps has been one of the most extensive projects on the campus. Last year the stamp committee sold approximately $1200 in stamps. Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, is sponsoring this activity this year. Beverly Griffith, senior from Ft. Wayne, Ind., has been chairman of the committee which sells stamps from 10 until 2 daily in the Union building. Defense stamp courses for the Freshman Rifles since recently increased the stamp fund by $180.

In addition, Mortar Board has given $50 for furnishing a room for home nursing instruction in the home economics building. Sarah Anne Hall, Mortar Board president, was in charge of this project.

Package council is organizing students for a surgical dressings unit. Already 14 girls are working in torn each Thursday, but Mrs. Holmes stated that recruiting for this work has just begun.

Scrap collecting, in connection with the national campaign, was promoted on the campus almost entirely by women. Betty Jane Pugh, Kernel news editor, conceived the idea for a campus campaign, made the plans and arrangements, and was chairman of the drive. A woman's organization, Alpha Xi Delta, also contributed the largest percentage in the campaign.

Patricia Sander, Kernel editor, and Sarah Anne Hall served on the committee for the War Chest campaign. This was not entirely a women's project. Mrs. Holmes stated, but the women did much to insure its success.

Soldiers' Entertainment

Soldiers from Ft. Knox have been entertained at Sunday dinners in the residence halls and society houses about every three weeks since last January. This summer was continued during the summer sessions. At least ten dances have been given and attended by University women for the Ft. Knox soldiers.

Women began the Student Union form work which featured panel discussions of war news, the attack on Pearl Harbor. Men are now participating in planning these dances and the dances are being continued this year.

Newly created this year is the War Chest committee. The Union board, Betty Howard, Louisville, is chairman of the group which sponsors the Christmas letters. Christmas letters will be sent to former students now in the service. A special board of editors, headed by Betty Jane Pugh, will comprise the letter telling of interesting events at the University.

"Frequently I receive requests for recommendations for former students who wish to become nurses or members of the WAVES or the YWCA," Mrs. Holmes explained. "Already we have numerous graduates in these branches of the service."

Many former students now serving as nurses are Elizabeth Bengt, Mrs. Mildred W. Ellis, Marjorie Moore, Pauline Offutt, Ruth E. Rice, Elizabeth May Sams, Martha A. Taylor, Rita Cates, and Rita Riley.

Those who are members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps are Mrs. Lucy P. Berry, Lulu B. Blakes, Lois Perry Brown, Ruby Carter, Nell Hart, Helen Horlacher, Frances Holmes, Louella Mae Jones, Ruth Mason, Virginia, Lewis, Overstreet

Marcia Randall, Lucille Shucklette, Jean Overstreet Smith, Mary Lee Unthank, Betty Pruitt, Erma Jean Rice, Katherine E. St. John, Edith Skidmore, and Virginia Eversole.

Members of the WAVES who attended the University are Agnes Gilbert, Betty Gilbert, Margaret Mayes, Dorothy Paul, Eleanor Smith, Lucy Jean Anderson, and Nancy Jackson.

Many former students from letters from students naming the armed forces are requests received by Mrs. Holmes from Pauline Offutt, Ruth E. Rice, Elizabeth May Sams, Martha A. Taylor, Rita Cates, and Rita Riley.

"I am interviewed by FBI agents about former students who are now in defense work," Mrs. Holmes said. "I am interviewed by FBI agents about former students who are now in defense work."

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1942

Swan Song Is Weak Symphony

No Kernel This Friday

Today's edition of The Kernel will be the only one issued this week because of the Thanksgiving holiday. Publication will be resumed as usual with Tuesday's edition on December 1. Meantime, holiday greetings from the staff.

War Effort Committee Proposes Plan To Send Soldiers Yuletide Letters

The War Effort Committee proposes a plan whereby Christmas letters will be sent to all former students now serving with the armed forces.

A board of editors, headed by Betty Jane Pugh, Kernel news editor, has been appointed to compose the letter, which will consist of greetings, a resume of social, athletic, and administrative news, and war activities on the campus. Members of the editorial board are Mary Norma Weather Spoon, Sally Mason, Virginia Lewis, Overstreet

The Union board is financing the mimeographing of these messages, two copies of which will be distributed to each woman student living in the residence halls, annexes, or sorority houses receiving letters. It has been suggested by the editorial board that the women add a personal touch to the letters by means of a postscript in their own handwriting, extending personal greetings.

Two addresses, will be furnished each woman, along with the two letters, and these women are asked to assume the expense of two envelopes and two stamps only. It has been suggested by the editorial board that the women add a personal touch to the letters by means of a postscript in their own handwriting, extending personal greetings.

Town girls and others who do not receive letters will be distributed by the committee, should Betty Howard, 7792, before Thursday if they wish to help in this program of extending Christmas greetings to University men in the armed forces.

Miss Howard and members of the War Effort committee especially urge University women to take part in this project so that all the letters will reach their destination.

If any feminine receiving letters is unwilling to take part in the program, Miss Howard explained, she should return the copies, Mrs. Rebecca Van Meter in the Union building promptly.

KD'S, AGR'S WIN TAG CONTEST

Field House Fund Gets Proceeds

Kappa Delta sorority and Alpha Gamma Omega fraternities won the annual Tag Contest, easily defeating the University teachers' union as the winners in Omicron Delta Kappa's tag-selling contest.

Over $300 was realized on the tag sales, according to Jim Johnson, manager of the campaign, easily double the proceeds from last year's sales.

During the contest, which was held during the three home games, Kappa Delta turned in $22.90 for tags sold. Alpha Xi Delta placed second with $22.30.

Alpha Gamma Omega, winning fraternity, reported $39.50 while Phi Delta Theta came second with $20.15.

Cups will be presented by Omicron Delta Kappa to the winning sorority and fraternity trophies for their efforts. Total proceeds from the sales will be donated to the University field house fund.

Contests Galore Featured Ag College's Fall Festival

Over 500 students, faculty and townspeople attended the annual Fall Festival of the agriculture and home economics college Friday night in the stock judging pavilion.

Betty Proctor, Lexington, and James Crowley, Butler, resigned over the festivities as king and queen. With Ruth Ellen Link, Lexington, and Martha Adams, Louisville, acting as attendants, and Roy Hunt, Valley Station, and Alex Veech, Taylorville, serving as knights.

David L. Cleveland, agriculture sophomore from Frankfort, was awarded the Alpha Zeta scholarship key for highest scholastic standing during his freshman year. With a standing of 92.5 last year, Cleveland ranked highest among the agricultural first-year men students.

Bag Callers

The bag calling contest, one of the "events" on the festival, was won by Mrs. L. J. Horlacher, wife of the assistant dean of the college, Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women, placing second. Mary Elizabeth Searcy, Simt Junction, was announced as runner-up. Munfordville, senior, last year's champion.

The dairy cattle showmanship class was won by Marina Floyd, Oakland freshman, Rupert Warren

December 1—Frontier Nursing Service
December 8—Kentucky Rivers

UNION PLANS COUNTRY PARTY

An all campus, old fashioned, country party will be given by the Student Union at 7 p.m. Thanksgiving night in the Bluegrass room. Soldiers will be invited to the party.

Students are asked to come in uniform. Men should wear a suit, tie and doughnuts, and a special floor show will provide the country atmosphere. Music will be provided by a string trio, and Bart Peck and Dan Van Sant will call the party.

Students are asked to come in uniform. Men should wear a suit, tie and doughnuts, and a special floor show will provide the country atmosphere. Music will be provided by a string trio, and Bart Peck and Dan Van Sant will call the party.

Today's Open Class Will Be Conducted Solely By Students

First entirely student-conducted open class will be held at 2 p.m. today in room 231, McVey hall.

The committee in charge of the day's class in English 7a, Public Speaking, will speak on "What We Must Learn From the War."

Prof. Charles E. Snow will lead a "Museum Walk" on December 2, and on December 11, Dr. Morris Slaughter will discuss "How Events Cause Disease."

Dorm Residents To Entertain

Residents of Patterson, Boyd and Jewell halls will entertain from 4 to 5 p.m. Thursday in the lounge of Patterson hall. Dancing, ping pong, cards, and other games will be provided. Refreshments, including sandwiches, cookies, coffee, and sport drinks, will be served.

Since supper is not served in the halls on holidays, the residents customarily hold open houses on these days. The affairs are very informal.

Informal Hop Wednesday 9-12

The Troubadours, Frankfort band, will provide music for a Thanksgiving eve informal hop from 9 to 12 in the Bluegrass room of the Union building.

Sponsored by the Union dance committee, the hop will be 50 cents per couple or stag, and tickets can be secured at the Union information desk before the dance. No advance ticket sale will be held.

US's UKs

Virginia Arvie Brynstad, Lebanon, is now enrolled as an auxiliary in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. She has been placed on reserve and returned to her home, subject to call to duty in the very near future.

Miss Brynstad graduated from the University in 1941. At present she is secretary to the principal of the Ft. Thomas high school.

Grocery Basket Donations Asked

Fraternities and sororities have been asked by the Social Service committee of the YWCA to decorate and contribute Thanksgiving grocery baskets for needy families.

Any other organizations on the campus which would like to donate food or baskets should call Miss Rosalie Oakes, YW secretary, or Agnes Smith who is in charge of arrangements. The baskets should be brought to the Y lounge today or tomorrow. It was announced.

Warth Explains In Open Letter

To the Editor of The Kernel:

At the risk of being tedious, I should like to answer Robert Young's caustic comments on one of my columns in his letter to the editor of November 20. It is apparently under the impression that I was attacking professional and technical students as "ignorant." I might be able to make out a presentable case for it, but that was far from my intention.

I have myself taken, and am now taking, courses of a technical and specialized nature, and it has been my general observation that the average native intelligence and ability of the technical and professional student is well above that of the average straight arts student. However, that is entirely irrelevant to the question at hand, i. e., as to whether these students actually make use of a technical and specialized nature, and it has been my general observation that the average native intelligence and ability of the technical and professional student is well above that of the average straight arts student.

These men are extremely rare, and the greater among them would include Galileo, Copernicus, Leibnitz, Descartes, Pascal, Einstein, plus Newton, Pasteur, and Darwin, by all means. Mr. Young, your misunderstanding arose because you confuse skill and efficiency with education. An individual may be both, but the whole point of my article was that the one with the former attributes does not necessarily possess the latter. That is why I call such men "ignorant," and that is why I do not wish to see the liberal arts courses go by the boards in wartime, for unless the student comes in contact with such subjects in his school years it is probable that he never will.

Unfortunately, the great majority of arts students have neither skill and efficiency, and education when their school life has ended, so you are to be congratulated, Mr. Young, you have at the very least, I hope, a head start on, shall we say, 99 out of every 100 liberal arts students.

Themes dealing with religion and ghosts are increasing in popularity. A sports commentator says, "Taking as my motto, we presume, 'Praise the Lord and pass the apparition.'"

UK students last week found out what the Bible means when it says, "All things come to him who waits." Right after Bill Deep brought his year, the WLAP football announcer finally discovered that the Kentucky halfback's name is Charley Kuhn, and not Dick Kuhn.

A UK professor last week was elected president of the Kentucky Conference of Social Welfare. The Lexington Leader's headline: "WELFARE WORKERS TAKE HEELS"

Thanks. We'll have a short one ourselves.

What with a serial in Colliers magazine entitled "Year of Wrath," a novel by Andre Malraux called "Days of Wrath," and one by John Steinbeck called "Grapes of Wrath," we're beginning to suspect that these modern writers are mad at someone about something.

Description of the French foreign policy for the past several weeks—Vichy-washy.

While the world is all in confusion, with the Japs invading China, the Marines retaking the Solomons, the Germans marching into the Caucasus, the Americans invading Tunis, and the British attacking in Libya, we wonder why Kentucky doesn't get up an army and recapture the Purchase.

Or maybe the Democrats could move in and see what they could do with New York.

SLOGANS FOR VICTORY
Wheels in the war plants of America are clicking to the rhythm of slogans—slogans which stress speed, the danger of absenteeism, the perils of inefficiency and the need of working hard, buying bonds, and keeping a silent tongue.

The following slogans are not the best in the world but they get the point across:
"You Can't Sit at Ease and Beat the Jap."
"Not Defense—But Over the Fence and at 'em."
"T. N. T.—Today Not Tomorrow."
"Speed the Wheels to Beat the Heels."
"If it is Nip and Tuck, Make it the Nip That Gets Tucked."
"Bullets, Not Bull."
"I—most 8—ped A-head."
"He Who Naps Helps the Japs."
"If We Equip Them, Our Boys Will Whip Them."
"Let's Zinc the Hell out of Them."

Out Of This World

Flash! The "Out of This World" of this world since Bill Goodie went down with pneumonia. Little bits of dirt. Don't blame me. If a little bit hurts.

SK David Trapp after a huffy run-in with his Chi O heart throb Betty Clardy, announced publicly that he was fed up with the way she played her Sadie Hawkins role. I knew he was close to the saturation point—but they're back again in a student union.

It seems that she prefers the SAE's since her Alpha Xi sister Lois Ogden told her that they had a cute bunch of boys. Tough luck, all you courties of Jamie Moore. . . she took a recent trip to Franklin and came back sporting Phi Delta Dave Collin's pin. We hear Wanda Scrivner was re-nominated for Ag Queen, but what do you know, she's now in the A & S college. Too bad, for my bet is that she could have stole the judges' hearts once again.

Oh well, you know what I always say, "Get padded and improve your standing."

Sacrifice Weeks
Two colleges, the Kansas State Teachers College and the University of Maryland, have launched "sacrifice weeks" on their campuses. Kansas State Teachers will go "collegeless, smoke-less, and candy-less," and the University of Maryland students will give up deserts, movies, coles, and candy bars for seven days. At both colleges the money saved will be contributed to war in the last three weeks than their dates.

Thankful To Be Thankful

This Thursday, November 26 is a day of national Thanksgiving; a day to offer thanks for national blessings rather than our own personal gains.

We have adopted the habit of celebrating Thanksgiving in the past hundred years rather than inherit it as our New England brethren did from their ancestors, the Pilgrims and Puritans. It hardly seems possible but on though we of today have more to be thankful for than they who placed the burden of carrying on Democracy on our backs. We are thankful for them for giving us that certain basic something to be thankful.

From New England Thanksgiving has become a national day set aside by the President and the Governors of the States. If we re-remember our history right it was once a look day of obligation in which all members of the church were required to attend a service under pain of punishment. It has now turned largely into a holiday, a day of jollity and a rest from laborious vocations. Our schools give a holiday, banks close, courts suspend trials and those who love by toil take rest and enjoy Thanksgiving's leisure hours.

But since Thanksgiving last these things have changed; something has happened. Pearl Harbor, Wake Island, MacArthur, Rommel, Shangi-La and a thousand and one other names and places never heard of before now play on the lips of nearly everyone.

Yes, since Thanksgiving last "United States Cagan Has Gone To War."

But happen whatever may, we as American citizens will not become discouraged; we are always thankful regardless of how black the future may look. This is the undying trait inherited from the early New Englanders.

We are thankful for the courage and determination shown by the peoples of the Allied nations; for the taper of flaming hope that never ceases to burn.

We unconsciously recall to mind that there are unfortunate fellow-beings who need our help and sympathy—their orphans and relatives and all those that are friendless and poor and sad. It makes us feel like lifting up the stricken and encouraging the despondent and saying brave words to the despairing. Make them glad that they are alive.

The pause Thursday in the rush and crush of our every day life, in our labor for those depending on us, is in itself an interrogatory—who is there that can't give thanks. Nothing is never too dark.

This Thanksgiving is a day to pause and add and count what has gone before and be glad that we are walking on two legs and are well balanced with two swinging arms.

In times as these, he who is not an optimist is an infidel and full of ingratitude.

What has been, can be again. Our trust in ourselves and the victors of our forefathers should cause us no alarm for the future.

Their homes were very plain, the people were few and obscure but they were pioneers for clear conscience and liberty; they were the founders of New England; they are the everlasting immortals of all that is good and ever.

It should be an inspiration to us during this time to rededicate ourselves to the preservation of liberty and the maintenance of freedom and the perpetuation of that splendid manhood which John Alden and Miles Standish have loaned to the generations succeeding them.

Give The Crippled A Right To Be Thankful

Saturday, December 5th, on Stoll Field, a football game between the star high school performers from the Eastern and Western part of the state will have a two-fold attraction.

Not only will it have two formidable teams against each other in an interesting battle, but it will give the spectators an opportunity to swell the crippled children's fund.

The game is being sponsored by Oleika Temple Shrine Hospital for Grippled Children in an effort to raise funds to purchase braces for boys and girls who have never been able to work or play. Without these braces, the unfortunate youngsters are doomed to lie on their backs, or hobble around on twisted limbs, or be pushed around in a wheel chair.

The cost of these braces is $100, and often two sets are needed for each child before the treatment is completed.

If the 19,000 seats available in the stadium are occupied for the game, the Shriners will receive over $15,000, a sum which will benefit 75 children directly and enable the hospital to continue its work.

Every University student and member of the faculty should consider it a duty and privilege to help fill some of these 19,000 seats, to witness a real show and give the crippled a right to happiness.

Anonymous Voices Blast Columnist

A member of The Kernel staff was besieged with calls Friday night in which anonymous voices demanded an apology by The Kernel for the article that was written by Bob Warth in that issue of the paper.

If these nameless voices will come out from behind the dark skirts of anonymity and give their names, status on the campus, and politics, The Kernel will be glad to make an explanation of the matter.—Ed.

say that it stands for my echo, my shadow, and me. Like We Three, we are all alone.

Campus In Passing:
Gym teams filled and resounding with the efforts of volley ball teams in intramural competition.

A couple of sorority members discussing the possibilities of spiking the punch for a rush party, eventually deciding the result would be loss of rushing privileges for ten years.

Jeanne Thornton either teaching steps to the pickaninnies or reversing their dance-for-a-penny racket on them.

Margaret Erskine and Johnny Taylor playing something with a deck of cards on the sunny south side of the Union, fourth hour.

An number of hurried looking people making their way toward various meetings in the Union all during the week and at all times.

The faces of those who "died" sometime during the week-end down at Knoxville. Mountain dew in Tennessee is potent, too.

The editor's face when this paragraph comes to light.
The epitome of timing was exhibited Friday last when a freshman lassie walked placidly into English class with her eyes on the last page of a book which was to be completed by class time that day. It was beautiful to see the precision with which she finished the last line and closed the cover just as the bell rang.

Baby? No, It's A Stuffed Shirt

TIME OUT by Tommy Moore

We have been the object of a case of mistaken identity. A sad, sad case of mistaken identity. It also can be laid at the door of one of The Kernel's famed (or infamous) feminine staff writers. Struggling along the sidewalk, just after dusk had collected itself, and heavily burdened with books and large bundle of laundry we innocently passed a dark and roomy car awaiting the change of a street light.

A low chuckle emitted therefrom and a soft voice informed us that we had been mistaken for some poor old man carrying a baby or something. That little incident shook our confidence and it was with extreme caution that the next two blocks were negotiated, for who knows what we might meet. Alas, we think the world does not appreciate the problems of carrying home a prized bundle of laundry.

To return or not to return misplaced shirts was the question which came upon opening the bundle, and in the interests of a clear conscience we determined to return the wrong pieces and take the chance of regaining our own. Therein lies a moral, for the establishment defied the rule of lost laundry and returned ours on the spot. Will wonders never cease?

So much for the adventures of the laundry bundle, but use of the word "we" is now in mind. In this corner the writer uses it rather than the first person singular because it makes smoother reading than oft-repeated I's. Let us

GOVERNOR JOHNSON HONORS WAR HEROES

Lieut. Andrew Gardner, Sergeant, Private First class Robert Alexander, Fulton, and Lieutenant Donald Hugh Dorris, Richmond, have been given posthumous commissions as aides-de-camp on the staff of Governor Keen Johnson with the rank of colonel.

The announcement was made by the governor November 12. The three men, alumni of the University, were among the 28 men who have been reported killed or missing and so honored by the governor.

FLOYD GALLOWAY—EX
Floyd Emerson Galloway, Paris, Ky., has been appointed a brigadier general in the U. S. Army by President Roosevelt and assigned to duty in the Caribbean.

An alumnus of the University, General Galloway was a lieutenant in the Army in 1917 and became a captain stationed in Siberia before the end of World War I. He joined the air corps in 1921 and is a command pilot.

SYMPSON—1927
Captain Gordon Symphon, a graduate of the University, was the first United States soldier ashore in Morocco November 8 when American forces began the invasion of North Africa.

Symphon, who received a commission as second lieutenant in the Army reserve in 1937, when he was graduated from the University, was well known to sports fans in central Kentucky as a University backfield star in the 30s. He received his commission as captain in the United States Army last year.

ALEXANDER—EJ
Lieut. Vernon Gayle Alexander, son of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Alexander, 112 Roman road, received his wings at ceremonies at Spence Field, Ga. Lieutenant Alexander is a graduate of Henry Clay high school and attended the University prior to being accepted for training.

GARLAND—1939
Aviation Cadet Larry Garland, who has been stationed at Shaw Field, S. C., was transferred from that post to Turner Field, Albany, Ga., for advanced training. He was elected wing commander of his squadron and president of the Cadet club while serving at Shaw field.

WHITE—EX
John K. White of Lexington is a basic flying cadet at Bristow Army Air Field, Bainbridge, Ga., after having completed his pre-flight and primary training. Cadet White is a former University student, is the son of Mrs. Maude C. White of Lexington. He entered the Air Force last January.

CAMENISCH—1928
Carl Camenisch, a graduate of the University in 1928 from the agriculture college and for the past four years editor of the Kentucky Farm Bureau News, entered the army at a private November 10. Mr. Camenisch was a writer of farm news in daily papers and in magazines after graduation.

Purely Personal

Dorothy Collins and Virginia Gay Osborne entertained a group of home economics seniors at dinner Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Delany, graduates of the University, are returning to Lexington from Knoxville to live. Mr. Delany has accepted a position with the University.

Ethel Smith attended the Tennessee-Kentucky game at Knoxville.

Dorothy Angle visited her sisters in Louisville over the week-end.

Lt. James Williams, former University student, visited friends here Thursday.

Julia Johnson, Peggy and Sally Forman spent the week-end in Princeton, N. J.

Hugette Balzola and Virginia Zanteda attended a performance of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo in Cincinnati recently.

Robert Boies spent the week-end at his home in Hamilton, Ohio.

Maxine Magerd, a junior transfer to this quarter, has left school and plans to get married around Christmas. At present, she is busy at her home in Paintsville, where she proudly wears a pair of silver wings.

Mrs. Will Houston Tinsley, the former Ann Carter, past president of Alpha Delta Pi, spent the week-end as a guest of the sorority at the chapter house. Mrs. Maynard Jankins, mother of Frances Jankins, accompanied Mrs. Tinsley from Nashville, Tenn.

Leonard Chambliss, apprentice seaman, who has just completed "boot training" at Great Lakes Naval Training Station, is now at Lexington visiting friends. Leonard was formerly a student at the University.

The bride attended high school in Tampa and was graduated in June from Sweetbriar college in Virginia.

The bridegroom was graduated from the University where he was a member of Lamp and Cross, honorary society, Scabbard and Blade, military honorary society, and Kappa Alpha, social fraternity. He was given a commission in the Army in July and has been stationed at Third Air Force headquarters, Benjamin field, Tampa.

The young couple will make their home at 323 North Westland avenue, Tampa.

MUSICAL MUTTERINGS by C. Gardner
Ted had dreamed for a career as a civil engineer. But during one summer vacation Ted organized a band which got a few weeks' engagement at a prominent Philadelphia cafe. To keep them there for sixteen months the proprietor made Ted a partner in the establishment. Ted forgot engineering and one of the longest and most brilliant careers in dance history has begun.

In the early days a Victor recording official heard Ted's arrangement of "Somebody Stole My Gal" and immediately signed the band to a recording contract. They now record for Decca.

SURVEY DISCLOSES

"The bill will raise the quality of men in the army."

"We've just as much reason to go as the older men."

"I think the bill is swell. They just aren't drafting us fast enough. I'm in advanced military but would be happy to go otherwise."

"The existing in the air corps at Christmas."

Women take the floor
Although a few women students besides those present were invited to get as much education as possible, the majority were in favor of immediate enlistment.

"We women feel that we are utterly useless in this war," one student said, "of course we can do defense work of various kinds, but that is all so passive, we want to really get our teeth into something."

"I'm going to join the WAAC's and apply for foreign service. It seems to me that boys would be anxious to get such wonderful experience and see much of the world."

"I would enlist immediately, I couldn't keep my mind on my work knowing that I could be of more use in the army."

World "Tear Japs"
"Maybe I'll bloodthirsty but I'd tear those Japs the first chance I got."

When asked how they felt about the prospect of staying in school to get as much education as possible, the women replied that they could understand why it would be "tough" to leave all the fun of college behind, but as for abandoning an education, that was falsifying the situation.

"You would not be abandoning your education, only postponing it, and besides, what good would an education do you under Hitler," one girl expressed it.

"I don't think all these men have joined the reserves to continue their education. I think it's more likely to continue their avoidance of responsibility," was the bitter comment of another whose brother and father are both now serving.

McVey is secretary of the Lexington defense committee in Lexington. Approximately 13 University staff women are now enrolled in a course of first aid training.

A group of approximately 15 staff women were studying surgical dressings before the attack on Pearl Harbor. This class has been organized again this year and 14 women are enrolled. Elizabeth Gifford, senior, is chairman of the committee for surgical dressings.

FK Defense Council
Mrs. Holmes is chairman of the University defense committee of the University and also is Miss Laura Dewhine, assistant professor of home economics; Dr. Statie Erickson, head of the home economics department.

Miss Chloe Gifford, department of University extension; Miss Rankin Harris, head resident of Boyd hall; Miss Jane Haselden, assistant dean of women; Miss Margaret Lester, director of women's residence halls; Miss Rebecca Van Meter, director of the Student Union building; and Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration agents.

Miss Dewhine, Miss Gifford, Miss Weldon, Mrs. Holmes, Miss Mary Elizabeth Hanson and Dr. Vivian Palmer, head of the department of social work, are members of the war center of information.

Mrs. Mary Breckinridge, director of the Frontier Nursing Service, spoke to women at a special convocation last year, and Mrs. Elizabeth Turner conducted a Civilian Protection school.

Old Stamps Collected
Cancelled stamps were collected last year and sold to purchase a bed in a London hospital. Women under the YW collected books for army camps.

Mrs. Holmes is submitting names of University women to "Mademoiselle" contest for practical patriotism. Each month names of women between 17 and 35 who are making notable contributions to the war effort are submitted. The award is a certificate of honor and a pin in the form of an M set with small square-cut sapphires, backed by a gold V.

Mrs. Holmes has submitted the names of Pat Sneider and Beverly Griffith and intends to send others. Before the end of the quarter questionnaires will be sent to all women students. These will contain information as to the qualifications or training for specific activities in war work.

Chemistry Group Initiates Five Men

Alpha Gamma chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma, national professional chemistry fraternity, initiated five new members into the organization last week. Russel Hunt, president announced.

The new actives are Dr. Gerald P. Grillo and Melvin J. Aste, instructors in chemistry; and Wendell Cropper, Burdettville; William Johnson, Frankfort; Carleton Poushee, Lexington; and Joseph Ross, Glasgow.

Phi Sigs Plan "Turkey Hop"

The actives and pledges of Phi Deuteron of Phi Sigma Kappa will entertain with a "Turkey Hop" at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Chaperons will be Dr. and Mrs. M. Hume Bedford, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Piggins, and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Summers.

Pat Conley, social chairman, is in charge of the arrangements.

Then there was the man who arose at 3 o'clock in the morning and measured his bed, in order to see how long he had slept.
