

AP, UPI Select Cotton

Cotton Nash has again been named to second team all-America selections on both major wire service polls.

Kentucky's 22nd all-America player made the select squad despite a rather disappointing season. After winning the Southeastern Conference scoring crown last season, Nash finished third this year with a 20.6 average.

Named to the first team were Jerry Harkness, Chicago Loyola; Art Heyman, Duke; Ron Bonham, Cincinnati; Gary Bradds, Ohio State; Barry Kramer, New York University; and Tom Thacker, Cincinnati. Harkness, Bonham, Heyman, and Bradds made first team on both press polls. Kramer made the Associated Press first squad while Thacker made the United Press International first team.

Joining Nash on the AP second squad were Rod Thorn, West Virginia; Walt Hazard, UCLA; Bill Bradley, Princeton, and Thacker.

Last season, Nash was the first sophomore ever chosen as SEC player of the year. He averaged 23.4 last season.

Nash opened this season with a bang, scoring 31 points in the season opener against Virginia Tech in a losing cause.

The blond bomber became the 13th Kentucky cager to score 1,000 points with his 14-point outburst against Florida Feb. 2.

Cotton's 20.6 average gives him two of the top four single season averages posted by Kentucky cagers. Cliff Hagan holds the other two high averages with 24.0 and 20.8 seasons.

Nash altered between forward and center this year in Kentucky's sputtering attack. Even though he was one of the smallest major college centers, he led the Cats in rebounding again this year.

Nash is also an outstanding baseball player and recently denied reports he would quit Kentucky after this season and sign a professional baseball contract. He posted a 3.15 earned run average and a 4-1 pitching record last season in baseball. Cotton also hit 269 and hit five home runs.

Board Suspends Peterson; Practices To Be Investigated

UK Fiscal Officer States Politics Motivates Claims He Improperly Used Office

By RICHARD WILSON, Managing Editor

The University's vice president for business administration, Frank D. Peterson, was suspended yesterday pending an investigation by a New York firm of University business transactions.

Suspension came by a 5-4 vote of the Board of Trustees after Gov. Bert T. Combs had presented information indicating Peterson used his position to further his personal financial interests.

In the governor's statement it was alleged that Peterson, through his dealings in University-related real estate transactions, stock ownership in a laundry, tire service, and vending machine firm, personally profited over a ten-year period.

The board members were told that although Peterson was not accused of violating a criminal law, his actions were morally wrong.

After considerable debate the board accepted the report of a committee that there were not sufficient grounds for preferring charges. Instead, the committee recommended that a professional study be made, and the board voted to suspend Peterson until the study was completed.

Peterson replied that the governor's statements were erroneous. "This undoubtedly starts a controversy that will not end shortly," he added. "It is not important that I stay at the University, but it is important to the University that the judgment of the University be brought back to the campus."

He also stated that the governor's action was politically motivated. He did not elaborate on this assertion.

Statements from President Frank G. Dickey and President Emeritus H. L. Donovan were issued later in the day defending Peterson.

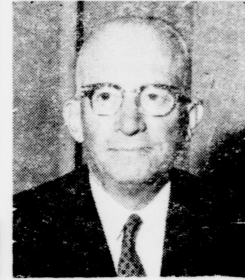

Dickey's statement read:

"This action appears to be the culmination of a long-term effort on the part of some local and state politicians to conduct a 'get Peterson' campaign. I can place no other interpretation on this matter except that political motivations are involved."

The statement further pointed out that Dickey and the Executive Committee members of the Board of Trustees were familiar with Peterson's activities as cited by the governor.

"While there may be a feeling on the part of some person that errors in judgment may have occurred, there seems to be little evidence that would lead to the conclusion that any law has been violated. Nothing illegal has been done in connection with University monies," the statement added.

Dickey said Peterson's labors had placed the University in a much stronger position than it would have been without his efforts.

Donovan's statement merely pointed out his knowledge and sanction of Peterson's business interests. His statement said these interests did not conflict or prevent Peterson from managing the business interests of the University in a superior manner with excellent results.

The governor had previously called two informal board meetings at which Peterson's financial transactions were discussed. At the second meeting, held Jan. 25, a special committee composed of Dr. Harry Denham, Maysville, Dr. Lewis Cochran, University professor of physics, and Judge James Sutherland, Bardstown, was chosen to weigh the evidence as presented against Peterson at that time and make a report at a later date.

After reading his statement to the board yesterday, Combs asked the committee for its findings.

Reading a prepared statement, Judge Sutherland said: "On the facts considered by it, the committee reports that in its judgment there are not sufficient grounds for preferring charges and recommends, therefore, that charges not

Committee Reduces Presidential Field

The list of nominees for the presidency of the University has been reduced to fewer than 10, Judge James A. Sutherland, Bloomfield, said yesterday.

Sutherland is a non-voting member and secretary for the screening committee in search of a successor to President Frank G. Dickey.

"While the members are continuing to make trips to interview and investigate candidates, the committee is also inviting likely prospects to visit the University campus and make their own inquiries," Sutherland said.

Sutherland went on to comment that no candidate's visit to the campus will be announced. This position has been taken to avoid any embarrassment to those who come to the campus as guests of the screening committee, the Board of Trustees, and the University, he said.

Judge Sutherland said, "In view of the developments, the committee is hopeful that within the next month or six weeks a list of outstanding nominees may be submitted to the University Board for its ultimate decision."

"The list now under scrutiny includes several persons who are active in fields of research, two college presidents, and others with administrative experience and scholarly attainments," he said.

The Birmingham News of Birmingham, Ala. reported Saturday night that it had received reliable information that Dr. Frank Rose, president of the University of Alabama, had declined to become the president of the University.

Dr. Rose had told UK trustees that he could not accept the offer, the News stated.

Dr. Rose confirmed that he would remain at the university. Before coming to Alabama, Dr. Rose resigned as president of Transylvania College.

be preferred against the Vice President for Business Administration, Frank D. Peterson."

The report further stated the committee had three matters to submit for consideration. The three were:

1. A professional study of the business organization practices and procedures of the University in the broadest context.
2. The development of a standard procedure for real estate purchases, as to inspection, appraisal, and suitability for University use.
3. Providing the Board of Trustees with a secretary to allow full and complete recollection of its actions and minutes, in recognition of the Board's needs for this service without dependence on administrative officials or staff of the University.

Board member Clifford Smith, Frankfort, took issue with his report, stating it was a "whitewash job."

"I don't say Dr. Peterson violated a criminal law, but he did violate an applicable one," Smith said.

"I don't see how any member of this board can whitewash these actions," he continued. Smith further stated he did not believe the University's business should be operated behind an iron curtain for the personal gain of any one individual.

Smith read a paragraph from the University Governing Regulations, which he stated Peterson helped to write. The paragraph reads: "No member of the Board of Trustees or its administrative staff shall be directly or indirectly interested in any contract with the University for the sale of property, materials, supplies, equipment, or services."

President Dickey stated that two points needed clarification. He said the statement which Smith read was not included in any previous University regulations, but was included in 1950 due to a conflict of interest law passed that year by the General Assembly.

The law was passed in March of 1950 but did not go into effect until the summer of 1951. President Dickey stated he thought it was the intent of the legislature that the period between the enactment and enforcement of the law was to allow anyone so allied to divorce themselves from firms in which they held interest.

Dickey also said that University accounts were audited regularly and that there was no question of fund discrepancy. He also stated there was no intent to hide or conceal any funds mentioned and that all University funds were included in financial reports and were a matter of public record.

In his statement to the board, Gov. Combs made the following allegations:

1. Peterson owned stock from 1950 to 1956 in Hart's Bachelor Laundry and used his position with the University to further the interests of this firm and himself.
2. The fiscal officer had used the authority vested in him by the board to handle University real estate transactions to his financial gain.
3. Peterson owned stock in General Tire Service and received money for consulting services rendered in 1958, 1959, and 1960.
4. From 1955 until 1961, Central Kentucky Enterprises, Inc., owned all candy, coffee, and snack vending machines on the campus. No competitive bids were taken for the placing of these machines by oral agreement with Dr. Peterson, although written contracts were later made assuring the University of 10 percent of the gross.

At the same time, no clubs or student groups were allowed to bring in or own vending machines. As a consultant to this firm, Peterson was paid $6,500 in 1958, $7,900 in 1959, and $2,300 in 1960. The company's articles of incorporation did not contain Dr. Peterson's name in any capacity. Yet, Marcus Trumbo, the president of the corporation, stated that the stock was evenly divided between Trumbo and his wife and Dr. Peterson and his wife.

In 1961, Peterson sold his stock in the firm for $72,284.95, taking a long-term capital gain of $59,754.95.

A board member, Sam Ezelle, Louisville, stated, "I don't believe the citizens of Kentucky would condone a man who would use his position to line his pockets."

"I find this whole affair disgusting and shocking," Ezelle continued. "We have a man here who has made $16,700 as a consultant of a firm of which he was a half owner."

"I think we should take steps to eliminate this sort of thing," he concluded.

Another board member, Robert Hillenmeyer, Lexington, declared that the board should lay some of the blame at its own feet.

"Peterson was not alone in buying this property," he said. He added an indictment against Dr. Peterson was also an indictment against the board for its laxity in overseeing property transactions.

Dr. Ralph Anzuechi, another board member from Lexington, stated many of the governor's figures were erroneous. He said the board was acting as a court of law and was not hearing both sides of the case.

The governor answered that no one was being tried. He said in his opinion and in his capacity as ex-officio chairman of the board he thought it was his duty to present the board with this information.

The New York firm of Peat, Marwick, and Mitchell will conduct an investigation of the University business office procedures.

George Kavanaugh, associate business manager, and Clay Maupin, director of accounting and budgetary control, will be in charge of the University's business affairs during the investigation.

Board Of Trustees Discuss Community College

The financing of the community colleges at Elizabethtown and Prestonsburg, plus the financing of the proposed community centers at Somerset, was brought before the Board of Trustees yesterday in a special meeting.

Dr. Frank G. Dickey said construction of the Elizabethtown center was progressing according to plan. The plans for the Prestonsburg center should be completed in March and the bids for construction will be opened in April. Gov. Combs reported that another site in Letcher County is being considered.

A compromise has been reached on the amount of funds to be provided by the state, and the amount of the bonds to be issued by the University.

The state government was to provide for $975,000 out of the Capitol Construction Fund, with the additional funds of $1,200,000 coming from a bond issue.

"The Bond Council feels each college can't stand alone on the bond issue basis," President Dickey said.

The income for the community centers won't affect the central University campus and its policies, Dickey said.

"The only place it would affect us is that in the past we have utilized fees from the community colleges for the operational expenses," Dickey said.

The board agreed to a proposal to enter into the joint capital construction-bond issue financing program. The exact amounts could later be revised by the board.

John Peters Named Student Of Month

John Peters, a senior agriculture major from Lily, was selected by the Student Union Board as the Student of the Month.

He is presently serving the Agriculture and Home Economics Council and the 4H Club as president; Lamp and Cross and the Dairy Science Club as vice president.

Peters is also a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Alpha Zeta, Lances, Student Congress, Committee of 240, Dairy Cattle Judging Team, and Alpha Gamma Rho.

JOHN PETERS

His selection was made because of his broad experience and influence in the programs of many different campus organizations give an indication of the confidence which other students have in his ability.

Peters was the coordinator of the 1963 Agriculture and Home Economics Banquet and initiated the presentation of $200 to an entering freshman by the 4H Club.

He received the Danforth Award for the outstanding Agriculture senior.

The Student Union Board felt John Peters had exemplified outstanding leadership throughout the year and is truly a Student of the Month.

J-School To Sponsor Press Clinic

The University School of Journalism will be host Friday to the annual publications clinic sponsored by the Kentucky High School Press Association.

The clinic will be divided into three sessions: evaluation and information sessions for high school newspapers; evaluation and discussions of yearbooks submitted; and judging and presentation of awards by Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary, for the best.

Approximately 640 Kentucky high school newspapers and yearbook editors and their advisers have already enrolled for the workshop sessions with faculty members of the School of Journalism, staff members of the University Photographic Service, Department of Public Relations and Admissions Office.

Seven to nine hours of instruction will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for students representing 40 high schools in the newspaper division, and 35 high schools in the yearbook division.

The annual clinic will include tours of the Kernel Press printing facilities, the University Radio Station WBKY, and the Photography Department.

Do Expensive Jewels Scare Women?

TORONTO (AP)—Gems are beautiful and enhance a woman's beauty, yet most women are afraid to wear and enjoy them, says one of Canada's leading authorities on precious gems. Jonathan Fraleigh, a fellow of the Gemmological Association of Great Britain, says people who have precious stones often hide them in safety deposit boxes, and others are reluctant to buy because they are unable to judge good quality.

Since the quality of a stone is judged largely from its inside, the most basic and simplest rule is to buy gems from a reliable dealer, Fraleigh says.

Another rule: The larger the stone, the poorer its quality is likely to be. "Do not be misled by advertising of large gems at low prices, because bargains always mean sacrifice of color, size and quality."

And as far as investment or resale value is concerned, a good quality stone cannot depreciate, Fraleigh says.

The white diamond, the largest selling gem and the one with which Fraleigh does 85 per cent of his appraisals, must be free from color tints and visible flaws and inclusions such as carbon spots, stains, feather and cleavages after a magnification of 10 times, and must be properly cut.

Only an expert can accurately judge a diamond's cut but the shopper can check to see that the stone sparkles from all angles.

Such a stone will be a clear white and will be free from inclusions when viewed through a microscope.

"Any reliable dealer will permit his customers to view a gem through the microscope."

Colored diamonds exist in vivid yellows, greens, blues, pinks, as well as several brownish shades but these are rare and extremely expensive. One of these could cost up to 50 per cent more than a good quality white diamond of the same weight.

"People are scared of buying colored stones because they realize rubies and emeralds are rare but cannot tell the difference between a true, a synthetic and an imitation stone."

Synthetic stones created by man with the same heat, pressure and materials used in nature have the same beauty and durability as the natural stones, although less expensive.

But imitation stones are of entirely natural or synthetic stones, and may be simply colored glass or inexpensive gems heat-treated or dyed.

Even a jeweller can be fooled in the latter sphere if he does not probe deeply, said Fraleigh. He must always be on the lookout for jade that has been vegetable-dyed, for instance.

The upper part of an imitation stone might be real gem, with a bottom part of glass—or the thin outer shell of a real gem might enclose an inner core of much poorer quality.

Fraleigh recommends that all fine gems, possibly all those worth more than about $300, should be appraised and photographed for future identification. "No two precious gems are exactly alike in internal structure and cut."

Crescent Capers

UK now has one more social organization to add to its rostrum. The name of its newest member is the Crescent Club. It is an organization composed of 17 coeds who plan to help the young men they are acquainted with.

The Crescent Club was founded February 5, 1963 in Lexington. Those eligible for membership in the club are lavaliers-mates, pin-mates, fiancées, and young wives of the members of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. The girls plan to help the fraternity in anyway they can.

The organization came into being when Jim Erickson, National Representative of Lambda Chi Alpha, was explaining to the girls various ways in which they could help with Rush. Some of the girls began to wonder why they couldn't get all the girls who were connected with Lambda Chi in some way to help also.

After much discussion, the idea of forming the club was brought into being. Mr. Erickson had told the girls that there were a few of the girls groups already in existence, and that they were going over big on the few campuses that they were on. So, the Crescent Club of Epsilon Phi Chapter of Lambda Chi Alpha came to take its place on this campus.

The girls plan to help not only with Rush, but in whatever way possible. Some tentative plans for the rest of the semester are decorating for any parties, mimeographing song booklets, carrying out small projects for the fraternity, and a car wash. Of course, the girls anticipate that there will be other situations arise which will call for their help.

The club holds regular meetings and has held an election of officers. The newly elected officers are: president—Pat Jones; vice-president—Lynn Trayner; secretary—Pamala Meyer; treasurer—Linda Gray; activities chairman—Betsy Carey; publicity—Judy Keeney.

Old Dog, New Tricks

In a recent speech, President Dickey commented that he "is deeply concerned with the professor who remarks that he can hold the percentage of successful students in his classes to a bare minimum."

We, too, are concerned.

Such an idea, according to Dr. Dickey, does not necessarily mean that the teacher has set effective standards. It more than likely means that the teacher has "dedicated all his efforts to failing and very little or none to teaching."

There are too many instances on our campus where a professor flunks a certain amount of students, just for the sake of "balancing the curve," or satisfying his ego.

Granted, many students deserve to be failed. But we believe that a professor who habitually fails an abnormal number of students is not reflecting the toughness or his course, rather it is a sign of his poor and inadequate presentation of the material in the classroom.

We are all familiar with the old maxim, "He is smart and knows his subject, but he can't teach it." We know this is true, but we also believe there are professors who can't teach a subject, and many times this is due to poor preparation and to the lack of interest in a certain subject.

In the past five years, the University has made great strides in upgrading the scholastic program. Many courses have been re-evaluated and either eliminated or changed. But for the most part, the courses are more demanding, and more interesting than ever before.

The quality of the students is continually increasing, as is evidenced by recent studies, surveys and the declining number of drop-outs.

In like manner, the professors are adjusting themselves and their courses to this more scholastically desirable environment.

Friends Or Foes?

By Collegiate Press Service

WASHINGTON—The friends of President Kennedy's new aid-to-education program are once again killing its chances of becoming law.

It may seem ironical—but it's nothing new. Internecine strife between groups backing increased federal aid to education have killed similar programs before.

Kennedy's sweeping new omnibus education proposal would assist American education from the first grade to the post-graduate level, through construction loans, matching funds and student loan plans.

Opponents of federal aid to education are this year relaxing while the measure's proponents kill its chances. Once again, the apparent cause of death will be the church-state dispute; the administration plan near-perfect, and the National Catholic Welfare Conference, which asserts the program is unfair to parents who pay public school taxes as well as extra tuition to send their children to parochial and private schools.

Backers of the administration plan assert that federal aid to private and church-supported schools violates the Constitution and the traditional doctrine of separation of church and state—while the opponents hold that the administration's way of doing

But just as there are "deadwood" students, there are also "deadwood" professors.

It is a sad irony to note that these teachers hide their ineffectiveness behind the thin facade of failing half of the class or more. It is hard to comprehend how a teacher can justify his conscience for a job that he knows is not his best.

We would like to think that a teacher here at the University is continually re-evaluating himself to see if he is doing his best. If he is doing his best and making a proper contribution to the University ideals, this is fine. But if he is not putting forth a maximum effort, or if his best is not good enough, he should then resign from the University staff, thus not only doing justice to himself and the University but the student as well.

In conclusion, Dr. Dickey said, "The agent of growth is the teacher himself . . . his resolution must be strong enough to enable him at times to compensate for shortage of time, energy, or resources, or even for indifferent support by institutional superiors."

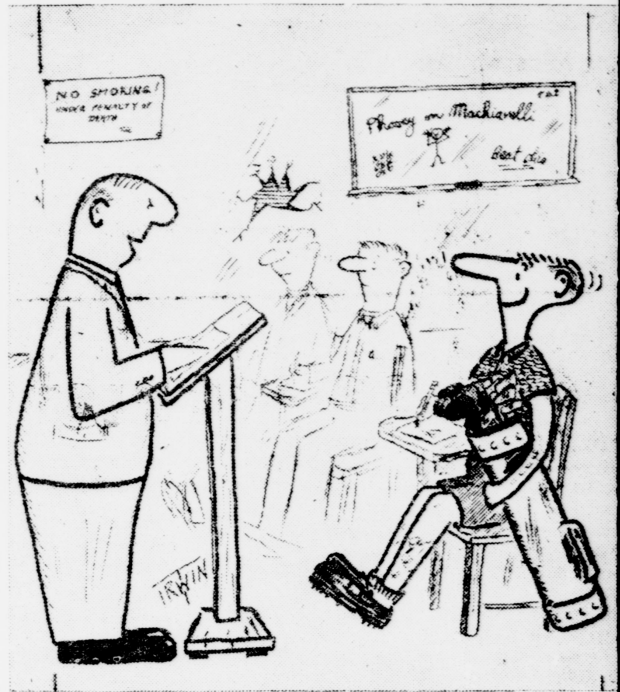

As the University and the students grow, we would like to see professors grow along with us.

An old dog can learn new tricks.

Expresses Thanks

To The Editor:

Somewhat belatedly, I would like to express my thanks to and admiration for Dr. Kenneth Wright and the University Orchestra. Their concert Feb. 18, surpassed all others I have heard at the University in both its beauty and its power to move the listener. Neither the French National Orchestra nor Van Cliburn could touch them, in my estimation.

Why All The Publicity?

To The Editor:

It appears to me that the Kernel has followed quite closely and publicized to a great extent the actions and beliefs of Mr. Edward Morin and Mr. Robert Hallhill. I do believe that everyone has the right to his own opinion whether it agrees with that of the mass media or not; however, I see no reason for giving these men the extensive publicity that has been given them. I for one am tired of hearing about their unamerican ideas and actions which go against the beliefs that have been the foundation of this country for nearly 200 years. I also believe that the actions of these two men could in no way benefit the University, so why give them the opportunity to give the school a bad name due to their radical beliefs?

LKD Described As UK's Big Weekend

The Little Kentucky Derby is described as "an event that is not only the biggest social weekend of the year, but also serves a worthy cause at the same time." This worthy cause is to provide scholarships for deserving students at the University, so that many students who would not have the opportunity to do so under other conditions are now receiving the benefit of a college education.

The Derby itself is patterned after the famous Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, except that bicycles replace the horses. Activities begin on Friday night with a queen contest and the Debutante Stakes.

The Debutante Stakes features a tricycle race by the coeds sponsoring each bicycle team and takes place in the Coliseum before the crowning of the LKD queen. Last year, the Debutante Stakes was won by Boyd Hall.

A street dance follows the queen contest. The street is blocked off in front of the Coliseum for the dance.

The Derby begins on Saturday with preliminary heats and only the winners participate in the final race for the trophy.

After winning the bicycle race for the two previous years, Sigma Alpha Epsilon lost hopes for permanently keeping the trophy when Phi Kappa Alpha won the final race.

The week-end is climaxed with a concert in the Coliseum by a well known entertainment group.

Profit from the Derby is converted into $100 scholarships and awarded to those students judged most worthy.

The Little Kentucky Derby Steering Committee screens each application and selects the scholarship recipients subject to the approval of the Little Kentucky Derby Advisory Committee.

To be eligible for an LKD scholarship a student must:

1. Have been on the Lexington campus during the previous semester.
2. Have carried 12 credit hours during the previous semester, and 12 credit hours carried during the current semester.
3. Have a 2.0 standing.
4. Have been employed the previous semester a minimum of ten hours a week to be eligible for the scholarship. The student must also work a minimum of 10 hours per week while receiving the benefits of the scholarship.

Teenagers Have Fur Fever

Shaggy Pelts Replace Mink

By JEAN SFRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeature Writer

Teenagers have fur fever today. But they yearn not for mink. (How prosaic can you get?) They burn for wild, shaggy, zany pelts.

Not since racoon coats (which are back in favor again, but expensive) has youth been so fond of fur.

Partially responsible for this fur madness is Saul Aronowicz, known to his customers as Mr. A., and in the trade as the "eagerest beaver in the business."

Between wars Paris-born Aronowicz of Polish descent has styled luxury furs for wives of diplomats, theatrical personalities, socialites, and most of Latin America's First Ladies. Despite a concerted campaign, however he failed to snag Mrs. John F. Kennedy, though her mother is his client.

He has even designed several fur collections for the Frenchman Hugh de Givenchy. And yet with all, Mr. A. is a democratic fellow who feels that the young, poor masses should grow up loving furs.

Consequently, he set about putting animal skins on their backs in two ways.

First he determined how to utilize good quality but ordinarily discarded pelts in order, to bring them within the price range of a girl on a babysitter's income. For example, the white stripes on the skunks' backs, once considered scraps, were stitched ribbonlike into a thick white wrap with startling dark roots.

Most of all, Mr. A. followed a trend to give furs a sense of humor, thus transcending the delicate matter of money. Now his wacky, witty, gaudy furs sometimes selling for less than $100 are worn by the young because they're fun, and not at all as status symbols.

After returning from World War II to the U.S. in 1946, Mr. A. nostalgically housed his business in an upstairs showroom overwhelmed by a wall-sized blow-up of the Champs Elysees.

There jammed together are racks bulging with a juxtaposition of shaggy, sleek, spotted, and vivid, deep-piled furs. In one corner hangs a bunch of red fox skins fluttering like the branches of an eerie tree. In another a hat rack leans precariously under its burden of fur toppers, and boxes on the floor are piled haphazardly with spotted or fuzzy hats, along with tiger skin slippers and leopard skins.

A clattering elevator deposits a steady stream of elegant women with minks on their backs, or in brown boxes, or on their heads, or clutching magazine illustrations for the bouncy, pestulating, continental Mr. A. to comment on.

But the elevator also disgorges chattering, excited very young ladies with scarves over their cutlers and a little, very little, money in their pockets.

No pony-tailed miss has dumped her piggy bank in the middle of his gray carpet yet to count out her pennies for her first fur coat, but M. A. wouldn't be surprised if it happens any day.

Alpha Epsilon Delta

Alpha Epsilon Delta, pre-medical honorary, is accepting applications for membership. Applications may be picked up at the Zoology Office in Room 11 of the Funkhouser Building and returned by March 11.

Requirements for eligibility are a 3.0 overall standing in pre-medicine or pre-dentistry and to be at least a second semester sophomore.

Words Of A Late Leader

By JOSEPH BENHAM

SERVANT OF PEACE —
Speeches and Statements of Dag Hammarskjold. Edited by Wilder Foote. Harper & Row. $6.

The written and spoken words of the man who guided the United Nations through a period of tremendous growth go a long way toward showing what sort of man the Swedish diplomat was.

This collection indicates, for example, why Hammarskjold often was described as a "man of mystery" and sometimes even as an ascetic. It was edited by a former U.N. press and publications director and press spokesman for Hammarskjold and his predecessor, Trygve Lie.

Hammarskjold's views, he explained, was that "the private man should disappear and the international public servant take his place," upon election as secretary-general.

"I want to do a job, not talk about it," he told newsmen upon arriving in New York in 1953 to assume his office.

Subsequent utterances outlined his views on what the U.N. should be, what kind of people should make it that, and the difficulties in obtaining these goals.

The U.N. employee pictured by the secretary-general was a mixture of the European civil servant, embodying "a high degree of permanency of employment and professional flexibility," and the American counterpart, with his "high degree of specialization," despite the fact that this leads to "a large number of officials."

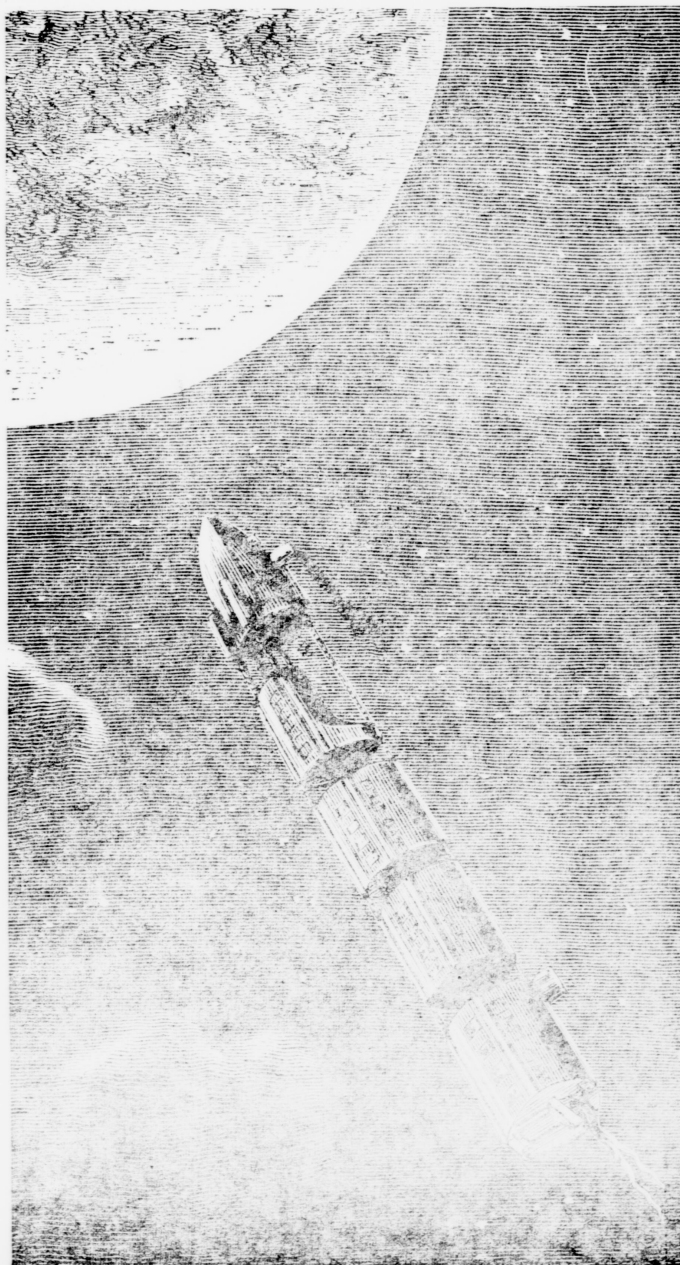

Hammarskjold recognized that "none of us can make ourselves entirely free from our own (national) background" and that this "may introduce an element of diversion," but he sought to make these disparities an asset rather than a liability.

He saw his work as one of "reconciliation and realistic construction" and envisioned not the creation of a new heaven, but the saving of the old earth.

Some of the most illuminating quotations in the book are those which indicate the extent to which Hammarskjold came under such diverse influences as those of the Gospels, Abraham Lincoln, Albert Schweitzer, and Hammarskjold's father, a former premier of Sweden.

Through The Stretch

By Jack Duarte

Indoor track at the University took a giant step forward last Saturday afternoon and evening when the first annual Kentucky Indoor Track Championships put on a show that was warmly received by the near 1,000 spectators in attendance.

Using a shortened track laid out around the basketball court in the Memorial Coliseum, the athletes made the best of their surroundings and turned in some creditable performances, including a really fine effort by UK's Keith Locke in the Two-Mile Event.

Locke, who will be a strong contender for both the mile and two-mile conference crowns, moved ahead of his field at the start and wound up lapping the entire bunch in speeding to a fine 10:00.9 for the distance.

I talked with several of the coaches on the floor that evening, and they seemed generally happy over the conditions for the event. Which subject leads me to the main topic of this week's column, meet manager, Press Whelan.

Press himself, some of the upper classmen will remember, was one of the finest trackmen ever to compete for the University. He was Southeastern Conference Champion for the mile and set numerous local records. Last year, he left UK to journey to Louisville for a teaching job which also included track, but this year is back at UK.

Press loves track like he loves his right arm, and is determined to give it its proper place on the Lexington campus.

"After all," he says, "we have the finest facilities for track in the entire conference, why shouldn't we get our share of the honors?"

If sheer determination and hard work mean anything, Press Whelan will see his dream come true—in the not too distant future.

He has already given us a sample of the terrific possibilities of indoor track for the cold winter months.

On those weekends when the basketball team is away, for instance, it would indeed be a service to overused student pocketbooks to be able to attend a low cost, well handled indoor track meet.

In some areas of the midwest and also throughout the eastern sector of our country, indoor meets are held starting in December. The finest athletes are assembled for the meets, which can be viewed by a great number of people in very comfortable surroundings and, for very reasonable prices.

Louisville has, for the past two years, sponsored the Mason-Dixon Games, and those who have attended admit they have come away satisfied. If people show the enthusiasm for track in Lexington as they have in other areas, it might be conceivable for a joint meet to be sponsored with the Louisville one which would bring these very same top-flight athletes right into our own backyard.

The chance to show your support of the track and field program of the University is drawing near. When the weather clears enough to let the ground become soft again, UK's thinclads will take to the out-of-doors for competition with some of the best trackmen available in this area.

Track meets at the University are held in the afternoon and sometimes on Saturday mornings. In the past, only an interested few have turned out to watch the proceedings. Those of you who are always kicking for lack of things to do, will have plenty of room in the stands if you decide to attend one or more of the meets.

Not to be forgotten during the presentation of these accolades is Bob Johnson, head coach of the University track Wildcats. Since he first came to UK, he has worked hard to secure the type of athletes necessary for Kentucky to compete on a level with other SEC powerhouses.

Last year, Johnson rounded up what appeared to be the creme of the high school track crowd in Kentucky. He latched on to Lexingtonian Jim Gallagher who potentially is one of the best middle distance men around.

John Sears is another freshman who bears close watching. He has already turned in several creditable performances in the field and hopes to crack the 4:15 mark in the near future.

Freshman Bill Arthur from Ashland also runs the middle distances, and is just a shade behind Gallagher. He, too, bears close watching in the future.

Another frosh, Lloyd Wehrung is an up and coming pole vaulter, and could develop into a top-flight height climber. All give promise to making the University a track power in one or two years.

As you can see, Coach Johnson's job has just begun. In order to accomplish anything, the UK thinclads need your support. Just as Kentucky fans rise and support the football and basketball teams, they could do a lot to help the track and field program.

Interest in track isn't what it should be, but it is improving all the time. Get on the bandwagon and help them out. You'll be helping yourself in the long run.

Tennessee Downs Cats 63-55, For First Sweep In 27 Years

Kentucky closed out its regular season in lackadaisical fashion Saturday night by receiving a 63-55 pasting at the hands of Tennessee's Vols.

It was the second straight victory this season for Tennessee, and the first time in 25 years that the Vols were able to pull a sweep against the Cats.

Head coach Adolph Rupp missed the last game of his career as a Kentucky coach when he was prevented from attending the game due to a severe case of the flu. Freshman coach Harry Lancaster handled the Wildcats who finished their worst season in many years.

Tennessee was very hot from the floor for the night, hitting an amazing 25 for 49 for a 51 percentage. The Vols were led by sophomore A. W. Davis, who accounted for 23 markers.

As usual, Cotton Nash and Ted Deeken paced the Cats. The blonde bomber collected eight points in each half and Deeken finished with 13 for the evening.

Kentucky led briefly, 11-12, but brilliant play by Davis placed the home team to a 27-21 half-time lead. In the second half, senior Jerry Parker took the hero's role and popped in four jump shots early in the half to give his teammates a comfortable margin.

Kentucky tired badly during the second half, and with the eventual outcome all but wrapped up, acting Vol coach Bill Gibbs emptied the bench in an effort to let all team members in on the Kentucky win.

The loss dropped the Cats to their lowest finish in the SEC in many years. They were 5-5 for the Conference and 16-9 in the overall standings.

Tennessee finished with a 6-8, Southeastern Conference record and an overall mark of 13-11. The twin wins over Kentucky highlighted what was generally considered a poor season.

Rounding out the scoring for Kentucky, Randy Embry had a good night from the floor hitting for 12 markers, while Don Rolles and Terry Mobley accounted for five each. The only other Wildcat to score was Roy Roberts who hit two field goals for four points.

Mississippi State Accepts NCAA Tournament Berth

Breaking the traditions that have plagued southern schools for many decades, Mississippi State president D. W. Colvard announced late Saturday that Southeastern Conference Champion Mississippi State would accept an invitation to play in the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

State victors over Kentucky in their last two outings, had previously turned down bids to the tournament because of a so-called "unwritten law" against Mississippi teams entering tournaments where they might play teams having negro members.

The Maroons earned the right to go to the tournament last year, but state authorities prevented their departure. Runner up Kentucky represented the SEC instead, and advanced to the semi-finals before losing to Jerry Lucas-led Ohio State. Until the announcement by the school's president, it was again thought by onlookers the Mississippi State would turn down the invitation.

Why worry? We got our halfback from the classified section of the . . .

Kentucky State Captures Crown As UK Thinclads Finish 4th

Kentucky State College at Frankfort swept to a convincing 52 1/2-26 victory in the first annual Kentucky State Indoor Track and Field Championships held last Saturday in the Memorial Coliseum.

A three-man team representing Western Kentucky finished second to the Thoroughbreds, with the University of Kentucky Freshman third with a point total of 17.

A tie developed for the fourth spot between the UK varsity and Eastern State College. Each team wound up with 15 points for the evening's events.

High point man for the meet was Western's Tom Gard who collected 18 points of his team's total. Gard won the broad jump and the 45-yard low hurdles, and was second in the 45-yard dash and the 45-yard high hurdles.

Wildcat runner Keith Locke turned in an outstanding performance in the two-mile event, lapping the entire field and finishing with a time of 10:05.9. Forno Kaywood, another UK varsity runner, was second with a time of 10:21.

The meet, the first of its kind ever held in Lexington, was conducted under the auspices of the United States Track and Field Federation, and was termed, "highly successful," by meet manager Press Whelan.

Another highlight of the meet included the debut of young sprinter Dawn Shannon of Danville, considered to be one of the top young prospects from Kentucky for the 1964 Olympics.

Miss Shannon broke slowly from the blocks in the 45-yard dash for girls, but finished strong to win by about 1 1/2 yards. Her time of 6.1 is considered very good for an indoor track.

As an added highlight, Jim Gallagher, UK's heralded freshman middle distance runner, encountered plenty of trouble from Eastern's Lary Whelan in the 1,000-yard run, but held on to gain the win. His time of 2:24.9 was considered good for the indoor track.

Complete meet results follow:

45-Yard Dash (Girls)—Dawn Shannon, Danville, 6.1; 2. Barbara Thomas, Douglass; 3. Linda Fortney, Lexington; 4. Betty Davis, Lexington.

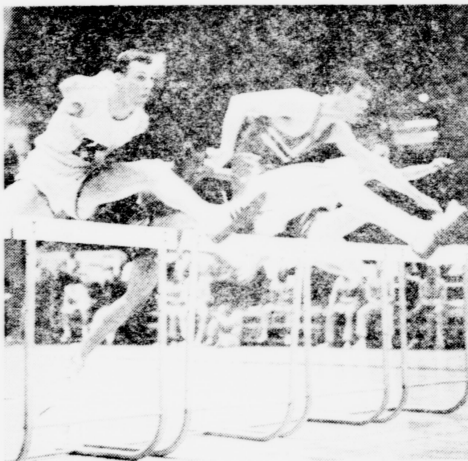

45-Yard Dash (Boys)—Brian Foster Dunbar; 2. Donald Curtis, Dunbar.

45-Yard Dash (Open)—John Crate, Ky. State, :05.0; 2. Gard, Western; 3. John Cox, UK.

100-Yard Dash—Richard Ewing, Ky. State, 1:46.5; 2. Luke Williams, Ky. State; 3. Blaine Vetter, St. Xavier; 4. John Sears, UK fresh.

45-Yard High Hurdles—Walt Maguire, unattached, :06.0; 2. Tom Gard, Western; 3. Eric Roberts, Kentucky State; 4. Bob White, Lafayette.

600-Yard Run—Bill Arthur, UK Fresh, 1:20.4; 2. Theodore McBurrows, Kentucky State; 3.

Winning hurdler Walt Maguire, a transfer student from Wake Forest, as he goes over the hurdle in the 45-yard high. Walt is ineligible this year to compete for UK but will next fall.

Mackie Bradford, Kentucky State, 4. John Cox, UK.

45-Yard Low Hurdles—Gard, Western, :05.5; 2. Sam Boynton, Kentucky State; 3. Bob White, Lafayette; 4. Ernie Dalton, Eastern.

Danville Youngster Is 'Future Great'

By JACK DUARTE
Kernel Daily Sports Editor

In the annals of Track and Field history, one cannot help but notice the absence from the records of topflight sprinters from Kentucky, both male and female. But lately, from Danville, a new hope has arisen along these lines.

The new hope for Kentucky track is a 15-year-old Negro miss with the enchanting name of Dawn Shannon. She has never really competed in track and field prior to this year, but has for an idol the greatest woman sprinter of all time, Wilma Rudolph.

She has a coach, of sorts, Mrs. Doris Bouse, a Danville High School teacher and coach of the school's girls' basketball team, attends Dawn's meets and offers her instruction.

Mrs. Bouse realizes that she will be of little help to Dawn, but explains the connection this way.

"When I noticed Dawn's speed on the basketball team, I became interested in the possibility of her running. We went to the school football field and Dawn ran the hundred yards. Her time, although there was no starting gun and she wore no track shoes, was :11.5, which was good enough for me."

Mrs. Bouse then tried to interest the school's coaching staff with Dawn's possibilities, but they would have nothing to do with her. It seems that no one wants to take the time to bother with female athletes these days.

So, Mrs. Bouse and Dawn determined to stick it out by themselves.

"When I went to the Mason-Dixon Games in Louisville," Mrs. Bouse recounts, "I was the only woman coach there. It sure made me feel funny."

Dawn raced in the first Kentucky State Indoor Track Championships held last Saturday at the Memorial Coliseum in Lexington. There she defeated a strong field of competitors and by virtue of her victory, must be considered the Kentucky State Indoor Girls Dash Champion.

Future plans call for the well-built youngster to compete in as many meets as possible against whatever competition she can find. She has already raised the eyebrows of track coach Temple at Tennessee A&I, the nation's foremost track school for Negroes.

Temple has decided to keep close tabs on the Danville youth, and has invited her to his annual summer camp which has developed such athletes as Wilma Rudolph and Ralph Boston.

Dawn realizes the road ahead will not be an easy one, and is mature enough to realize that it will command a great deal of her time. But she wants to be like her idol, Wilma Rudolph, and if this writer's opinion means anything, she will eventually make it.
