AA Executive Committee Revises By-Laws

Two important changes in the by-laws of the UK Alumni Association were made by the executive committee in their January meeting.

(1) Life memberships dues in the University of Kentucky Alumni Association were raised to $200 for individual memberships and $300 for husband-wife memberships when both are alumni.

Because the Alumni Association is making a strenuous effort to institute a plan of annual contribution, the executive committee felt that life membership dues must be raised from the old figure of $50. Money collected from the life membership is invested by your Alumni Association and the Association uses only the income from this investment. Under the old dues plan the Association received only $1.75 income from each life membership. It is apparent that this amount does not even cover the cost of your copies of THE KENTUCKY ALUMNUS magazine. The higher dues will permit you to contribute to the Alumni Association's new vigorous and stimulating programs.

(2) The number of elected members of the Alumni Association Executive Committee was increased from nine to fifteen.

The elected membership of the executive committee was enlarged so the group could more easily handle the increased program of alumni activities initiated in recent months.

The revised by-laws provide for the following changes: The elected members of the executive committee to be increased from three to five each to serve a three-year term on a staggered basis; That in 1960 the new president of the Alumni Association appoint thirteen members of the board to serve one year terms instead of the original nine and in 1962 to appoint eleven members, dropping back to the original nine in 1963.

This is done to balance the board and to provide appointive members for the two year interim period until such time as the total of fifteen would be in effect.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

A visit to the Alumni Office front lines quickly convinced us that the war is still being waged and at a fast and furious pace. KENTUCKY alumni are fighting with almost everything they've got—but apparently, the enemy TENNESSEE is pouring fresh troops into the battle. There has been no direct report from Tennessee, however. The UK command staff is hopeful that the Kentucky team will score a smashing victory.

It's a fight to 1960 between the alumni of Kentucky and the alumni of Tennessee in a fund raising campaign. The winner will be announced and a prize awarded at the Kentucky-Tennessee basketball game in the spring of 1960.

Won't you join the team against Tennessee and help your Alumni Association give your university another victory over Tennessee?

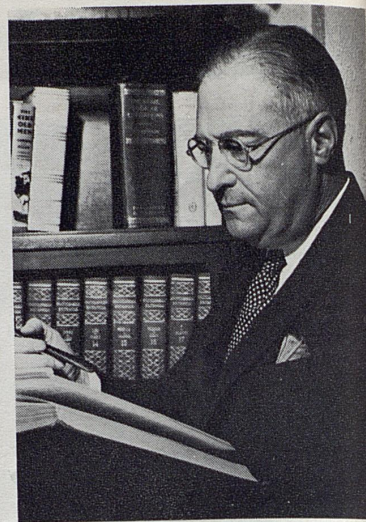

You can boost our total number of contributing members if you will send us $5.00 or more on or before June 1. You who are already members can give your association an added boost when you renew your contribution membership June 1.

MANY OUTSTANDING SPEAKERS WILL APPEAR ON SECOND ALUMNI SEMINAR PROGRAM

A program for the Second Annual Alumni Seminar featuring many outstanding speakers has been announced by Professor Jesse Dukeminier, program coordinator.

"The American Constitution In A Changing Society" is the general topic for the seminar which will be held on June 24 to 27 on the University of Kentucky campus. All alumni of the University are urged to attend.

The idea of alumni seminars at UK was originated last year by the UK Alumni Association and was very successful. Purpose of the seminar is threefold: It provides an experience in continuing education for interested alumni; It brings alumni in closer touch with the academic areas of the University; It facilitates communication between alumni and faculty.

Some of the speakers on the seminar program and their topics are: Malcolm Moos, professor of political science at Johns Hopkins University and administrative assistant to President Eisenhower, "The President and the Constitution;" U. S. Senator John Sherman Cooper, "Influence of American Constitution on India;" Attorney John

P. Frank, Phoenix, Ariz., former professor of law at Yale University, "The Historic Role of the Supreme Court;" and Attorney Paul A. Porter, Washington, D. C., former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, "The Supreme Court and Individual Liberties."

Others appearing on the program include Judge John R. Brown, U. S. Court of Appeals, Houston, Texas; Emery L. Frazier, U. S. Senate Reading Clerk, Washington, D. C.; Arthur Krock, Washington commentator for the New York Times and Pulitzer Prize winner; Anthony Lewis, Supreme Court reporter for the New York Times and Pulitzer Prize winner; and Don Whitehead, Pulitzer Prize winner and author of "The FBI Story."

Those on the University of Kentucky faculty who will appear on the program are: Carl B. Cone, and Clement Eaton, professors of history; Jesse Dukeminier and Paul Oberst, professors of law; Dean of the Law College William L. Matthews; Warren Haynes, professor of economics; Amyr Vandebosch, director of the Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce, and President Dickey.

Judge John R. Brown

HELEN KING NAMED ALUMNI CHAIRMAN-ELECT

Miss Helen G. King, Director of Alumni Affairs at UK, has been named chairman-elect of District Three of the American Alumni Council, for a two-year term beginning in January, 1961.

Miss King was elected at the 1959 district meeting at Daytona Beach, Fla. She will succeed Marcus A. Oliver of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, who took office at the Daytona meeting.

ARE YOU A CORPORATE ALUMNUS?

Corporations throughout the country have implemented programs to aid higher education by matching the contributions of those employees who have graduated from an accredited institution. Graduates of the University of Kentucky who are employed by the firms listed below may aid their Alma Mater by contributing to the Alumni Fund and their contributions will be matched by their firm up to a stipulated amount. The General Electric Company started the program and over 50 graduates of UK have contributed this year. If you are employed by any of these firms, mail your check today to the UK Alumni Fund, Student Union Bldg., Room 124, U. of Ky., Lexington, Ky., along with the "matching corporate alumnus" form, which may be secured from your personnel or public relations office, and the amount you send will be matched by your company. In this way UK receives double benefit for the money you give.

American business is demonstrating through the Matching Corporate Alumnus program its interest in assisting higher education. You can help too by sending your check and the necessary form today.

Frank McGuire Addresses Basketball Banquet

As guest speaker at the annual UK basketball banquet given by the Alumni Association, North Carolina's basketball coach Frank McGuire gave the banquet crowd of over 300 good reason for pride in themselves when he complimented the fans courteous treatment of visiting teams in Memorial Coliseum. McGuire also congratulated UK Coach Adolph Rupp and his players on a successful season.

Coach Rupp, too, complimented the fans on their behavior toward visiting teams and coaches and thanked them for their loyalty. Rupp also thanked the UK team for their performance and said, "A 24-3 record is good enough for me anytime."

Coach Rupp was later given a tribute when he was presented a certificate by United Press International Louisville bureau chief John Dietrich as "Coach of the Year" in a UPI poll. Johnny Cox was chosen in another poll for all-America honors and was given a UPI certificate.

The principal award given at the banquet was the Albert Benjamin Chandler-WVLK trophy, given annually since 1951. Governor Chandler presented the trophy to senior Johnny Cox of Hazard as "best exemplifying the qualities of leadership, scholarship, character and ability."

The Stella S. Gilb Outstanding Cheerleader Award was presented to Susan Bradley of Paducah, captain of the cheerleaders.

A vote among the lettermen taken during the banquet elected Bill Lickert and Don Mills as co-captains for next fall.

Alumni gift watches were presented by Athletic Director Bernie Shively to the varsity seniors—Johnny Cox, Phil Johnson and student manager Jay Atkerson.

William M. Gant, president of the UK Alumni Association, presided at the banquet. UK Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain extended greetings to the banquet guests.

TO APPEAR ON TELEVISION

On Sunday, May 10, a team of college students from UK will be seen on the nationally televised CBS "College Bowl" show when they meet a team from another college in a battle of I. Q. Should the UK team win, the show will be televised from the Lexington campus on May 17 and each Sunday until the UK team is defeated.

MEDLEY APPOINTED

Wathen Medley, '31, Owensboro, has been appointed a member of the Executive Committee of the UK Alumni Association to serve until May 31, 1961.

The vacancy on the Committee was created at the January meeting when William H. Townsend was elected an honorary Life Member.

ANDREW PALMER NAMED "OUTSTANDING" IN KENTUCKY

Andrew J. Palmer, '52, Paducah attorney, was named one of three outstanding young men in Kentucky in 1958 by the Kentucky Junior Chamber of Commerce. Others named were Ted R. Osborn, Lexington, and Thomas Hagerman, Bowling Green.

Nominees for the honor are judged on their civic, fraternal and religious activities, their contribution to the general welfare of the people and the contribution they have made to their work or profession.

Palmer is president of the Paducah Jaycees, a member of the McCracken County and Kentucky Bar Association and spearheaded a drive that led to the building of a civic center.

Thomas Hahn Is New Kansas College Dean

Thomas M. Hahn Jr., who since 1954 has been head of the department of physics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Blacksburg, will be Kansas State College's new Dean of Arts and Sciences, effective Sept. 1.

A native of Lexington, Ky., Hahn was educated in the public schools of Lexington and Chicago, Ill., and returned to the University for his B.S. in physics in 1945. He later was a lecturer in physics at the Naval Academy, a physicist at the United States Naval Ordnance Laboratory, and a research assistant at Massachusetts Institute of Technology before receiving his Ph. D. in physics from MIT in 1950. From 1950 to 1954 Hahn was director of graduate study in physics and director of nuclear accelerator laboratories at the University of Kentucky.

The new K-State dean has had numerous research articles published in technical journals for physicists. Most of his work has been with high voltage accelerators and he has made many studies on distribution of gamma rays from various nuclear reactions. He is international editor for Nuclear Energy Engineer, and has been a consultant to Reynolds Metals Company, Leeds and Northrup company, the Atomic Energy Commission, and the University of Puerto Rico.

Hahn has been a prolific speaker in recent years, averaging 200 speaking engagements a year. Most of the talks have been on general education and popular science subjects.

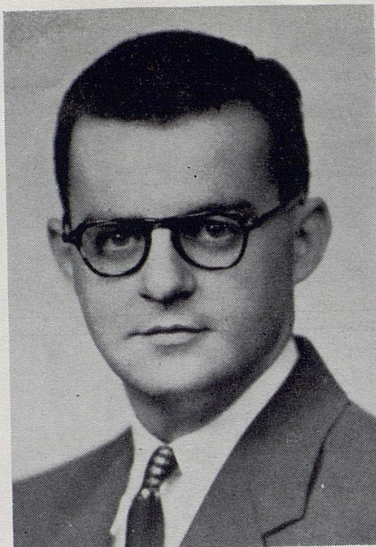

Hahn is married and has three children.

Receives National Award

Copthorne Macdonald, '58, received the American Institute of Electrical Engineers' national student award in February.

Macdonald, 22, was chosen on the basis of a paper he wrote as a UK student describing a unique system he devised for transmitting photographs by radio.

Macdonald is a radio engineer with Federal Telecommunication Laboratories in Nutley, N. J.

RAY JENKINS GIVES $500 ENGINEERING SCHOLARSHIP

J. Ray Jenkins, Elizabethtown, presented a $500 engineering scholarship through the UK Alumni Association to Dean R. E. Shaver of the College of Engineering in January.

The scholarship, given in the name of the Jenkins-Essex Co. of which Jenkins is president, will be given to "a deserving member of the senior class of any public or parichial school in Hardin county, who wishes to study in one of the branches of engineering" at UK. Jenkins attended UK last in 1923.

Recipient of the scholarship will be named by the University on the basis of Kentucky Classification Tests and other standard criteria, according to Miss Helen G. King, Director of Alumni Affairs.

The Jenkins-Essex Co. has established the scholarship in lieu of the usual costum of giving Christmas gifts to customers, Miss King said.

Two other scholarships have been given through the Alumni Association during the past two years. The first was a $5,000 Virgil Kinnard Beasley scholarship for students in the College of Law, and the second was two $500 freshman engineering scholarships presented by the Central Supply and Equipment Co., Danville, through its owners, J. C. Myers Sr. and J. C. Myers Jr.

Miss King pointed out that anyone can make a contribution through the Alumni Association and earmark it for any specific purpose in the University.

CLARENCE MILLER IS ASSISTANT AG SECRETARY

Clarence L. Miller, 46-year-old Shelby County, Ky., tobacco grower, was sworn in the first of the year as an assistant secretary of agriculture. He is directing the Ag department's marketing activities.

New Book By Dr. Holman Hamilton Is Published

"White House Images and Realities" is the title of a new book written by Dr. Holman Hamilton of the UK Department of History and recently published by the University of Florida Press, Gainesville, Florida.

In this study of the presidents and the presidency of the United States, Dr. Hamilton has divided his analysis into three sections: "Roads to the White House," "Greatness and Failure," and "The Presidential Image." He takes up the careers, personalities, and influence of the men who have occupied America's highest office and associates the office with the leaders who have helped develop it.

The book contains an introduction by President J. Wayne Reitz of the University of Florida and a suggested reading list prepared by Dr. Hamilton.

Dr. Hamilton is a former Indiana newspaperman. He did his undergraduate work at Williams College in Massachusetts and received the doctorate degree in history at UK. He has written a number of articles on historical subjects and a two-volume biography of Kentucky's president Zachary Taylor, published by Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis and New York.

Dean Welch Returns To University Duties

University of Kentucky College of Agriculture Dean Frank J. Welch resumed his duties at the school in February after resigning as a member of the board of directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

President Eisenhower accepted Welch's resignation from TVA.

When Welch, in 1957, accepted the appointment to the board to fill a vacancy, it was on a basis of a year's leave of absence from UK.

EMMERT DEVELOPS SUBSTANCE TO HIKE TOMATO PRODUCTION

A substance that will increase production of tomato plants has been developed by a University horticulturist and the school is applying for a patent on the hormone-boron dust.

University President Dickey said at a recent session of the UK Research Conference that the dust, developed by Dr. E. M. Emmert, increases tomato production by about three pounds to the plant.

Dickey said the patent application is the latest of five made by UK. Emmert said that the dust, applied to field tomato plants, resulted in a yield of seven and one-half pounds of tomatoes a plant compared to four and one-half pounds of yield from undusted plants.

TWO ARE NAMED TO DIPLOMACY SCHOOL STAFF

Dr. Max J. Wasserman, international economist with the U.S. Department of Commerce and lecturer in economics at Howard University, recently was appointed as a visiting professor in the University of Kentucky's Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce.

Wasserman, who has been in government service since 1934, will be the school's specialist on international economics and commercial policy. His appointment was one of two in the Patterson School approved by the UK executive committee.

The other new faculty member will be Robert M. Rodes, instructor, who will be awarded a Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins University this summer. For the past two years, Rodes has been a student at the Russian Institute, Columbia University. His area of specialty will be Russian politics and foreign policy.

Rodes, a Lexingtonian, is a 1955 graduate of UK. Both appointments are effective Sept. 1.

The school, directed by Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, internationally-known political scientist and author, will be opened this fall.

Dr. Wasserman, a graduate of Cornell University, was awarded a master's degree from the University of Illinois, and a doctorate in economics at the University of Lyons, France. He has also done graduate work at the University of Chicago and was a member of the economics faculty at the University of Illinois from 1929-1934.

During his period of government service, Dr. Wasserman has worked in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, Resettlement Administration, Farm Security Administration, with the Social Security Board, and the Foreign Economic Administration before joining the U.S. Department of Commerce in 1945.

BRUCE PRICE ASSUMES CHANGE-OF-WORK STATUS

Dr. H. Bruce Price, former head of the Department of Agricultural Economics, has assumed semi-retired duties on a change-of-work status.

Price has been an administrative assistant to the dean of the college since 1956. He will now work on the economic aspects of education and research in tobacco, including a study of the history of tobacco growers' organizations and movements in Kentucky.

For 17 years the head of the Agriculture Department, Price has written more than 30 books, articles and bulletins for publication in his field. He has served as president of the American Farm Economic Association and editor of the Journal of Farm Economics.

Prof. Kelley Makes Gift To University

Prof. James B. Kelley, for 40 years a professor of agricultural engineering at the University, has given a collection of books and papers, valued at more than $800, to the school's Department of Agricultural Engineering.

Dr. Blaine F. Parker, acting head of the department, said the collection would be bound and preserved in a permanent reference room in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

The gift, portions of which are more than 50 years old, includes a complete set of the Agricultural Engineering Journal.

Kelley directed the agricultural engineering section for 38 years when it was part of the Department of Agronomy. The section was made into a separate department in 1955, and Kelley has taught in the department and served as a part-time extension specialist since then.

He has been responsible for the design and construction of many buildings of the University's Agricultural Experiment Station and has been a national officer in the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Since he came to UK, Kelley has written more than 30 articles and booklets on various aspects of his field.

BAKER RECEIVES AWARD

An award of merit from the Life Members Club of the American Society of Heating and Air Conditioning Engineers was presented recently to Dr. Merl Baker, UK professor of mechanical engineering, at a luncheon opening the 65th annual convention of the society in Philadelphia. Baker also is director of the Kentucky Research Foundation.

He was honored for "outstanding work in teaching and research in heating and air conditioning." He is the second person to receive the award.

BOOK BY TEVIS PUBLISHED

"The Hustler," by Walter Tevis who teaches a course in creative writing at the University recently was published by Harper & Brothers. The book explores the world of the big-time pool player.

Born in San Francisco in 1928, Tevis came to Richmond, Ky., as a boy and has remained in the state ever since. For several years he taught high school throughout the state before coming to the University.

Tevis, who has been called "the world's foremost authority on pool hustling," became acquainted with the game of pool during his own student days at the University, working as a poolhall attendant to help supplement his income while doing graduate work for his master's degree in English. The pool parlor became the scene of his first published short stories and his work has subsequently appeared in Esquire, Redbook, Cosmopolitan and the Saturday Evening Post. He now lives in Erlanger, Ky., with his wife and two children and teaches at the UK Northern Kentucky Center.

Bost Is Promoted

Dr. Howard L. Bost, professor of medical and hospital economics, in February was appointed an assistant vice president for program and policy planning in the College of Medicine.

Other changes in the medical center staff included the naming of Dr. Richardson K. Noback, assistant dean and associate professor of medicine, as director of the University Health Service. Dr. John S. Sprague, acting director of the health service, was appointed assistant director at his request.

Research Bureau Adds Six To Its Staff

The Bureau of Business Research has added five research assistants and a research associate to its staff.

Bureau Director James W. Martin said the new employees are working on highway and economic studies currently active in the bureau.

The research associate is Dr. C. Hock Quan who received the doctorate degree from the University of Colorado in '57.

The research assistants are: Bill Gamback, '58 graduate of Transylvania College, Robert Garrison, '48 UK graduate, Don Ehleben and Bill Jackson, both '58 UK graduates. They will be employed on a half-time basis. Mrs. Gayle Thompson, '58, will be employed full-time.

COLLECTION OF CARRIAGES GIVEN UK BY MRS. GRANT

The University Trustees recently accepted a collection of carriages with an estimated value of $150,000.

The collection was donated by Mrs. Pansy M. Grant of Beaumont, Texas, owner of Spindletop farm, Lexington.

The carriages will be displayed at Waveland, UK museum on Kentucky life.

Dr. Hambleton Tapp, director of the museum, said more details of the display of the 33 vehicles in the collection will be announced later.

UK Buys 1,066-Acre Spindletop Farm

The University's purchase of Spindletop Farm, 1,066 acres on the Ironworks Pike, was completed on February 24.

UK Vice President Frank D. Peterson said the farm will be used for general farming purposes under the supervision of Dean Frank J. Welch of the College of Agriculture.

Total purchase price was $850,000. The farm's mansion is valued at more than $500,000. The Spindletop property adjoins a corner of Coldstream Farm, which is already owned by UK and used for agricultural experiments.

Uniform Commercial Code Short Course Scheduled

A three-day intensive Short Course on the Uniform Commercial Code will be conducted at the University of Kentucky on June 23, 24 and 25. The course will be jointly sponsored by the UK College of Law, the University of Louisville School of Law and the Kentucky State Bar Association. Co-operating in its presentation is the Joint American Bar Association-American Law Institute Committee on Continuing Legal Education.

The Uniform Commercial Code, enacted by the Kentucky General Assembly in 1958, to become finally effective July 1, 1960, is one of the most important statutes ever adopted in Kentucky. All major sections of the Code will be covered in the course. Five members of the Short Course teaching staff will be nationally known authorities with experience in states which have previously adopted the Code and six members will be leading Kentucky lawyers who have special backgrounds on the code.

Registration for all sessions will be open to all Kentucky attorneys, to counsel and officers of Kentucky banking and financial institutions and to all other persons having an interest in the commercial law field.

An announcement of the detailed program and instructions for advanced registration will be distributed by the sponsors in May.

COLLEGE OF LAW HAS 50TH ANNIVERSARY

This academic year is the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the University of Kentucky College of Law on September 1, 1908. Two special programs in observance of this anniversary will be of interest to alumni of the College and to the Kentucky bar at large.

During the Kentucky State Bar meeting in Louisville on April 1 the annual UK Law Alumni Reunion and Banquet was devoted to this birthday observance. Grover C. Thompson, Lexington, a member of the class of 1910, described "The College of Law Fifty Years Ago," and Dean W. L. Matthews, Jr., reported on "The College of Law Today and Tomorrow." This program gave a brief portrayal of the development which the College has achieved since its creation.

On May 1, National Law Day, the College of Law held its annual Law Day exercises on the University campus in Lexington. This program too was in observance of the 50th Anniversary and members of the first graduating class in 1910 were honored. The Hon. Robert F. Kennedy of Washington, D. C., was the principal Law Day speaker.

The Law Faculty hopes that all graduates and friends of the University of Kentucky College of Law will join in observing its 50th anniversary.

FEES INCREASED

Trustees of UK in February approved a $10-a-semester increase in fees for the University Elementary School. The new rate will become effective in September.

The $50-a-term fee is already in effect at the University High School.

UK President Dickey said the hike was necessary because of increased operating costs.

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $72,700 contract to the UK Department of Physics to finance a two-year basic research program in high-energy physics. Dr. V. P. Kenney, assistant professor, will be the principal investigator. Dr. John G. Dardis will assist him.

NEW DEPARTMENT SET UP

A Department of Behavioral Sciences, considered an innovation in medical school organization, was established in February in the UK College of Medicine by action of the Board of Trustees.

The new department will be headed by Dr. Robert Straus, professor of medical sociology.

It will be a function of the new department to bring together concepts from various fields and translate them into education and research programs of the medical center. The behavioral sciences include sociology, anthropology, experimental and social psychology.

Mrs. Stanley Scher (seated) and her father, James Strauss, recently donated a portrait of her mother, Mrs. Nanette Wile Strauss, to the University Audiology Clinic. Looking on are Mrs. Herschel Weil and Mrs. Stanley Rose, co-chairmen of the clinic board, Dr. Francis Kodman, clinic director, Mrs. Irving Rosenstein, who served as co-chairman with Mrs. Strauss, and Mrs. James Frankel, first chairman of the board, who made the presentation.

Nuclear Engineering Classes To Start in '60

The first students in the University's proposed nuclear engineering program are expected to begin their studies in 1960, according to Dean of Engineering R. E. Shaver.

The course, leading to a master of science degree in nuclear engineering, will be taught in co-operation with the physics and mathematics departments and Engineering College.

SPORTS NEWS

By KEN KUHN
UK Sports Publicity Director

At the risk of displaying a bit of braggadocio, a great many loyal followers of Kentucky basketball and experts on the game offer the penetrating opinion that Coach Adolph Rupp's 1959 cagers may well have "missed the boat" when they did not win the national title last season.

The faithful and the informed argue, without tongue in cheek, that the situation was ripe for the Wildcats to annex the NCAA Tournament championship for an unprecedented fifth time and lament the upset that cost them the crown.

Although Kentucky found the going in their own back yard roughest in history and failed to annex the Southeastern Conference crown for only the third time in the last 15 years, the youthful Ruppmen posted one of the nation's finest records as they won 24 out of 27 starts and ranked second in the final polls.

The rise of a sophomore-studded and inexperienced quintet to such heights (they had lost only twice prior to tournament time and were first in the polls) was a near miracle that won Rupp national "Coach of the Year" honors and established his cinderella team as the quintet to beat in national title play.

Despite the fact that their only experienced hand was All-America Johnny Cox, Kentucky was favored to trip through their tournament opposition right into the national finals and, the dopesters figured, a climatic return match with powerful West Virginia—a team they had conquered in the UK Invitational without the services of ace soph Bill Lickert.

But something happened. Unheralded Louisville, a late at-large entry with the poorest record of any NCAA team, got "fired up" at the prospect of meeting the mighty cross-state rival Wildcats and the resulting upset (76-61) cost UK their chance to add another illustrious page to the cage record book.

What happened to cause the defeat of one of the nation's finest teams by one that could boast of only a 16-10 mark for regular season battling? Aside from the age-old truism to the effect that any team is capable of beating another on a given night under certain circumstances, the answer is probably that the Wildcats naturally were overconfident. Although it's only one man's opinion, the explanation is seemingly borne out by the circumstances.

Kentucky's players were well aware (or thought so) of Louisville's capabilities, having seen them in the NCAA regional at Lexington against Eastern Kentucky; they knew the Cardinals' record; and—perhaps most important—they jumped out to a 15-point lead in the opening minutes of the game and appeared on the way to winning handily. But the very ease with which the game progressed in their favor probably was the undoing of the Wildcats. Seemingly, they let up on the pressure and stopped running for a while. Louisville hit a "hot streak" and wouldn't be cooled off by the UKats who tried in vain to regain their early-game devastating pace.

That was the story of how history, Wildcat style, was never written into the NCAA record books. But, to add the clincher to the premise that Kentucky "missed the boat", you need to have witnessed the second game that the Ruppmen played in the NCAA Regional. Reacting from their Louisville upset, they bowled over a fine Marquette team, 98-69, in a scintillating display of the brand of basketball prowess predicted for them. The deadly effectiveness convinced most skeptics that the youthful Kentuckians were the best team in the tournament.

Such a conclusion, however, had already been reached by a large portion of the basketball world which almost universally acknowledged Coach Rupp's band as "the surprise team of the year".

The year 1959 was supposed to be a rebuilding year for "Uncle Adolph" and his pore lil ole mountains boys—or so the experts had it figured. It was reasoned by many that the Wildcats had been somewhat lucky in 1958 when the "Fiddlin Five" copped the national

Coach-Of-Year

Adolph Rupp was voted United Press International coach-of-the-year for the 1958-59 season. Rupp received 65 votes, more than twice as many as his closest rival in the balloting, Frank McGuire of North Carolina.

Rupp's unparalleled record includes an unprecedented four NCAA tournament titles and 19 SEC crowns since he became Kentucky's head basketball coach in 1931.

title with a 23-6 record. The same bunch might have parlayed experience into a banner season, but Kentucky lost four fifths of its starting combo plus six key reserves.

However, the script that the "Fledgling Five" was supposed to follow got lost along the way as Coach Rupp moulded a fearsome and effective combination out of lanky mountaineer sharpshooter Cox, a trio of sparsely used reserves, six sophomores and a couple of junior college imports.

Juggling and shifting his 12-man lineup of inexperienced hands, the Wildcat mentor utilized no less than eight different starting combinations during the season in one of the greatest uses of bench strength since post-war days when a couple of All-Americans occupied substitute roles. Only Cox started every game.

The masterful shuffling guided the Wildcats through an unusually tough schedule of nationally ranked and "pointing" opponents with only two defeats offsetting a phenomenal record of 23 victories.

Success did not come easy to the Wildcats this season. Even though they were a predominantly sophomore outfit, every opponent was pointing for a win over the NCAA champions and the Ruppmen had to "pull out all the stops" to take the measure of the many nationally-ranked foes dotting their schedule. The role of victims reads like a "Who's Who of Basketball": Temple, Duke, Southern Methodist, St. Louis, Maryland, Ohio State, West Virginia, Illinois, Navy and Notre Dame to say nothing of 10 members of one of the nation's toughest cage leagues.

Against such formidable opposition, Kentucky suffered only two setbacks—both in their own backyard. After 11 straight wins opening the season, including a surprise conquest in their own high-calibre UK Invitational Tournament, they ran into Vanderbilt on the road and absorbed a first defeat, 75-66. A month and seven games later, Miss. State also turned the trick, 66-58, in a bedlam of cowbell-clanging at Stark(crazy)vile.

Both setbacks, which lent support to the belief that the SEC is one of the strongest leagues in America, were later avenged in a manner of speaking. Outright revenge for the Vandy licking came as the Wildcats annexed an 83-71 decision over the Commodores in a return match at Lexington. Then, late in the season, Kentucky reached great heights to down undefeated Auburn, 75-56, and snap the Tigers' 30-game win streak—which included a 31-point lacing of Miss. State.

Although the secret of Kentucky's success has always been team effort, if one player stood out above the rest as responsible for this year's record it was Cox. The "Wizard of Hazard" pumped in an average of 18.4 points a game, collected 315 rebounds for the season and generally came through in the clutch when needed most. For his efforts, he was pronounced an All-American on many selections and was rated fourth best in the nation by one poll (UPI) picking the "player of the year".

Even more than the great play of Cox, however, balanced scoring, superior work on the boards and sticky defensive play were probably responsible for Kentucky's strongest showing in regular season play since 1954.

NEW COACHES HIRED

The "new look" in Kentucky football in 1959 will not be confined to the new three-unit system Coach Blanton Collier is planning to inaugurate in the influx of a host of new faces in the form of 45 sophomores.

There has been a revamping of the coaching staff as well with the result that three new assistants are on the scene as replacements for four aides who have departed since the close of the 1958 campaign.

The trio adds to the Kentucky staff an aggregate of 14 years' coaching experience plus nine seasons in the professional football ranks.

Bob Cummings comes to UK from Georgia Tech where he directed the famed Engineer "B" team and was chief scout for the varsity in the seasons of 1957 and 1958. However, his career dates back to 1946 when he entered the coaching field as tutor of the Isaac Litton High School team in Nashville, Tenn. After eight successful years, he moved into the collegiate field as line coach at Vanderbilt—the school from which he graduated with an engineering degree. Bob also has the unusual background of playing collegiate ball for two schools. During an interruption of his days at Vandy, caused by joining the Marines, he played on a Georgia Tech bowl team as a Navy V-12 transfer in 1943. He was awarded a master's degree in 1952 by Peabody College.

Don Shula, a highly regarded veteran of both pro play and collegiate coaching, reported to Kentucky from a one-year stint as backfield coach at University of Virginia. Before turning to coaching, he enriched his football knowledge by seven years in the National Football League. Shula got his start with the Cleveland Browns in 1951 and played halfback two years during the time his new boss (Collier) was backfield coach of the club. Later, Don was with the Baltimore Colts four years and terminated his pro career by playing one season (1957) with the Washington Redskins. He played his collegiate ball at John Carroll in Cleveland and holds a master's degree from Western Reserve University.

Howard Schnellenberger, remembered by Kentucky fans as Coach Collier's first All-America in 1955 when he starred at end for the Wildcats, will serve on a collegiate staff for the first time. But the ex-Louisville Fla. standout brings to the staff an excellent background of playing experience and promising leadership ability. He saw duty with the Hamilton Tiger Cats in the Canadian League following graduation from UK, played in '57 with the Ft. Knox team that won the Second Army championship and last season was a member of the Vancouver Lions.

Departed aides are Charlie Bradshaw, who joined the Alabama staff of Coach Paul Bryant; Matt Lair, now at Texas A & M; Dominic Fucci, who entered the real estate business in Lexington; and Charlie Snyder, named head coach at Marshall College. Coach Collier has indicated he plans to select one more assistant who will probably aide Freshman Coach Ed Rutledge.

"IF I CAN DO YOU ANY GOOD . . ."

Recently, we read an excerpt from the obituary of a prominent alumnus of one of our fellow-institutions of higher education. It was not only a fine obituary, it was an epitaph and a character sketch of a man who never was too busy to go the extra mile for Alma Mater.

It read, in part "As far back as alumni records go, he was a faithful contributor. Within a few days after his death came a check for $3,000 from an insurance policy with a note that this was to be applied to the organ fund . . ." Typical of his attitude was a note scrawled in 1946 across a request that he undertake an especially time-consuming job for his Alma Mater. "I hate to take on any more right now," he wrote, "but if you really think I can do you any good I'd feel compelled to accept."

"If I can do you any good . . ." Is that the personal motivation which influences your love for UK? If so, this brief editorial is for you to take to that alumnus down the street, in the next block, in the next town . . . it is not for you. If that is your motivation we need not even ask you to pass the message on; not only will you do that, you will go the extra mile for UK when the request comes to you.
