

CLEARING HOUSE

Union Building Notes

Everyone that attended the opening has something to say concerning the building, some even suggesting the energy to write. Although we have received no written notices to the effect, word has come to us that the "grubbers" are just warming up. Vague complaints of no swimming pool, no indoor tennis court, exclusion from the building through non-dancers on dance nights, of failure to wait and build a real structure, all have been managed to drift in.

A Little Rebuttal

In the first place, every college in the country which owns a student union building is swimming pool. It regrets the situation very much. Outside of the water vapor up on the walls and floors, there are the matters of wet bathing suits in furniture and bathing chairs. The union building is a real structure. There is the argument that if we had waited, more money would have been available. But there is also the argument that the money would have been spent for some other building which we are sorely in need of.

Two Innocent Questions

"Dear Editor: Will the opening of the Student Union building cause an increase in class size and a decrease in the number of men and women?" It is interesting to note the result. "I think it will, but I doubt if it will be as serious as you suggest in either matter."

Common Complaint

"A perfect example of things we could do without was the carrying of books into the building. It is in the ballroom of the new Student Union building, perfect opening. Even after being asked by guards to do it, they do it there, where, these non-appreciative students seemed to think it a great deal of trouble to carry books and have their smoke and put out the weed by grinding it into the floor."

Everybody Happy

"It is amazing to note the drastic change in student opinion concerning the Union building after the opening was celebrated last Saturday. The most serious complaint on several aspects of the building were among the first to voice their approval of the interior decorations. Even the most ardent critic will reflect a moment before calling the new buildings a 'born again'."—L. B.

It is Blue Grass Blue

Jack Treasday, Kerrel (74) suggests that all of the students of New York and other foreign countries should take a look at the blue grass now and see that it is really blue. You don't have to drive into the country to see it, according to Mr. Treasday, who is in the high places near the Agriculture building and there it is blue.

The Old Lexington

Jay Jay, Lexington Leader column, in Sunday's paper praised the new Union building but wanted what the old Spotsman who founded this school would like to see in that way. Jay Jay said that "perhaps it's a good thing he was not in the night." Well, we think believe that he might have sputtered at the figures but after he had seen the interior and the way students responded, he would have taken it like a man.

Deaf to His?!

The recent stories on the Colton child, Chicago, operated on for tumor and at first not expected to live, have furnished a pertinent subject for discussion in the editorial writing classes. It brings to mind the old question of whether ideas and the hopelessly issue should be allowed to live. We would like to hear some opinions on the subject.

In His History of Kentucky

In his history of Kentucky, Collins stated that the University of Kentucky was a flourish in the year 1862. Later on, they say the enrollment increased to about 3200.

It's mighty hard to keep away from the subject of the Union building, but we tried to print the most restrictive letters. Thanks to everyone for approval of the paper. There were a few mistakes in proofreading and one different organization was mentioned and was not given credit for its work in helping build the Biological Science building. We regret both errors. Another reprinting of the Senior Election, and so on, will be given in the next issue.

excitement over anything in a gym which, in spite of all manner of colored paper, still remains a sports arena.

Housing conditions still are lamentable although plans are underway for improvement. But the central meeting place has been provided and you saw the result at Saturday night's grand opening. It must have sounded good over the air—that roar of applause which followed the beaming of George Hall's finger.

Of course, there were a few who smoked in the ballroom, tossed cigarette butts on the linoleum, who acted in general like the thoughtless individuals they are.

Maybe it "just goes to show" that when students are given the desirable surroundings when they are placed in the correct environment they will instill with life their dormant enthusiasm and give to outsiders a true picture of spontaneous college spirit.

Behind The Eekdahl

By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

But the clamor of the afternoon was submerged by the portentious tidings of the trials of the evening.

On the afternoon before the dance, a dance-minded secretary happened to the gym with may or may not be as news.

There is no telling what will result if this rule is enforced, and we feel sure that Mr. James S. Shropshire, the director, intends to see that rules are enforced, as of course, they should be.

Every time a student happens to carry his textbooks into the building he will be in a jam. He can not take them out according to the rule.

The rule may not bother some students as a few do not carry any books and others will be happy to be legally rid of their texts. But all this printed matter lying around the SU building is going to clutter up the place more than somewhat.

It would be better if the books could be stored in one room, say the ballroom or the director's office, but such is not the case. The rule explicitly states that they can not be taken from one part of the building to another.

If the latter portion of this rule is enforced all printed matter must be dropped immediately inside the door to avoid carrying it from one part of the building to another. Why in a short time we won't be able to use the entrance ways because the books and papers will be piled so high.

Which means that windows will be pilled so high that they will be piled so high.

Also, we wonder what constitutes a "work of art." In our opinion the way some coeds apply make-up transforms their faces into works of art.

Which means they will put up a howl. There is nothing a coed fears more than to be seen without her face smeared with patented pudding.

And the men won't like it either. Imagine going into the building with a hunk of heaven and coming out with a hag.

Boy, are we glad we aren't Mr. James S. Shropshire, the director.

Louise, I waited from 8:00 to 9:35. Only half over. Had to leave. Congrats. H.M.S.

(The above note was found chalked on the large bulletin board on the first floor of McVey Hall. From the tone of his note we gathered that H. M. S. was a bit despondent, so we thought we would help him along. Maybe Louise reads our column.)

We see that the latest edition of Sour Mash, the one that went on sale last Friday, is dated in the masthead, "April, 1935."

"Competition is open to all in the fourth annual baby chick show, sponsored by the University Poultry Club, which will be held May 17 and 18 in the ball room of the Phoenix Hotel."

(Even Neville Tatum's dog?)

Our friend Butch, the traveler, writes from the deep South as follows: "It is warm down here. Yesterday I was lying on the sidewalk floating to and fro in the heat waves."

"Destruction of the building and its properties and possessions will not be permitted."

REVELINGS

By JOHN ED PEARCE

WITH the most impressive opening ever accorded any campus edifice, the new Student Union building broke the seal on the door Saturday afternoon, and was formally introduced to University society.

The building bulged with the curious. People rushed around trying to inspect the whole layout at once, commenting, laughing, staring, with mouths agape.

Members of ODK stood majestically in the hall looking very happy about the whole thing, although a little red with the nature of this monster which they had helped to create.

At eleven thirty, when the band went on the air for a broadcast over WHAS, Hall asked the dancers to applaud the response was hearty.

Today's column will be short, snappy and to the point. It will deal with various campus personalities and their intrigues, quadrangles and various amours. The theme will be let 'em have their cake and eat it, too.

This business of Dotty Babbitt dating everybody else's men while everybody else is dating someone else is getting to be quite a habit.

Only Yourself To Blame

It is written that moral indignation will not mend the ways of microbes, and that bit of phraselogy certainly applies in the case of syphilis.

Since the inauguration of the anti-syphilitic program in THE KERNEL, certain individuals have suggested that students infected with the disease are not answer "fooling with."

As we can amply see that syphilis is a disease, and as a disease it must be treated. It is causing three times as much damage than infantile paralysis. And at the present time only one person in every ten having the disease is receiving adequate treatment.

No amount of moral indignation can change the fact that the peak age of syphilitic infection females is 19 years and in males, 21 years.

Public scorn of the infected can not alter the fact that only 45% of physicians today treat the disease, and a considerable number do not administer the Wasserman test to suspects. In the latter case there is no excuse.

The University dispensary is equipped to administer the Wasserman test to small numbers daily. The dispensary can also treat the disease. Students who suspect they have syphilis or who may have been exposed to the disease, should report for a Wasserman test immediately. For failure to do this, there is no excuse.

Taking An Inventory

INTERESTING to note during the past week-end of festivities on the campus was the conference held Saturday morning by the Association of Women students for the mothers of women students who attend the University.

A panel discussion centering around the question of what a college education should do for the student was presented by two mothers, two co-eds, and two faculty members. Various reasons were given for a boy or girl entering college, such as to gain a broader knowledge of the world in which we live in order to enjoy life to its fullest possibilities, to grow in understanding and tolerance of another person's viewpoints, and through technical training to insure ourselves of earning a livelihood.

Contrary to the belief harbored by many parents today that the younger generation is living recklessly without a thought of tomorrow, these mothers were appreciative of what the staff of the University is doing to mould the lives of their offspring. The general opinion formed was that if a girl or boy receives the right training within the home, he or she will prove worthy at college and later in life.

It would be worthwhile for us as students to pause a moment in order to evaluate the opportunities offered in college, and to question ourselves as to whether we are receiving the best things four years of college life can offer.

Life To The College Spirit

FOR years now, transfer students and incoming freshmen from other schools where there was a definite unity in feeling and a lot of the rah-rah spirit have bemoaned the fact that U. K. seemed to be lacking in these traits. At football games, it took a 100-yard dash to lift the students from their seats. At dances, nothing short of a miracle would gain spontaneous applause.

There were some obvious reasons for these shortcomings. Housing conditions were such that University students were scattered far and wide. With so little unity in location of living quarters and with no central meeting place to offset this lack, very little unity in spirit could be expected. Secondly, in the matter of dances, one hardly could be expected to explode with

We see that the latest edition of Sour Mash, the one that went on sale last Friday, is dated in the masthead, "April, 1935."

"Competition is open to all in the fourth annual baby chick show, sponsored by the University Poultry Club, which will be held May 17 and 18 in the ball room of the Phoenix Hotel."

(Even Neville Tatum's dog?)

Our friend Butch, the traveler, writes from the deep South as follows: "It is warm down here. Yesterday I was lying on the sidewalk floating to and fro in the heat waves."

"Destruction of the building and its properties and possessions will not be permitted."

Behind The Eekdahl

By ANDREW C. ECKDAHL

But the clamor of the afternoon was submerged by the portentious tidings of the trials of the evening.

On the afternoon before the dance, a dance-minded secretary happened to the gym with may or may not be as news.

There is no telling what will result if this rule is enforced, and we feel sure that Mr. James S. Shropshire, the director, intends to see that rules are enforced, as of course, they should be.

Every time a student happens to carry his textbooks into the building he will be in a jam. He can not take them out according to the rule.

The rule may not bother some students as a few do not carry any books and others will be happy to be legally rid of their texts. But all this printed matter lying around the SU building is going to clutter up the place more than somewhat.

It would be better if the books could be stored in one room, say the ballroom or the director's office, but such is not the case. The rule explicitly states that they can not be taken from one part of the building to another.

If the latter portion of this rule is enforced all printed matter must be dropped immediately inside the door to avoid carrying it from one part of the building to another. Why in a short time we won't be able to use the entrance ways because the books and papers will be piled so high.

Which means that windows will be pilled so high that they will be piled so high.

Also, we wonder what constitutes a "work of art." In our opinion the way some coeds apply make-up transforms their faces into works of art.

Which means they will put up a howl. There is nothing a coed fears more than to be seen without her face smeared with patented pudding.

And the men won't like it either. Imagine going into the building with a hunk of heaven and coming out with a hag.

Boy, are we glad we aren't Mr. James S. Shropshire, the director.

NEWS-BULLET - - CAMPUS BOOK STORE

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

PRACTICALLY all of the campus citizenry elbowed its way into the new Student Union building Saturday night to blend their enthusiasm to the music of George Hall as the structure was administered its baptism into actual service. During the early stages of the swing-fest, seated in a chair on the first floor, was a well known local figure who has been a fugitive from the campus for some time. That person was George William "Bill" Boston, alternate-captain elect of the 1938 Wildcat football team.

Still rather salar from almost two months in cold storage at Good Samaritan Hospital as a result of a leg injury suffered in the practice football game during the spring maneuvers, Bill wasn't at the affair to dance, one doesn't trade very well on two crutches and a game right leg. To the attendees at the dance who could fight their way through the throng to greet him, there was no more welcomed guest at the entertainment, nor was there any guest more pleased to be held among the throng on hand for the ribbon breaking.

Pardon Soon
When, in about another month, Bill's sentence inside the "white walls" is ended and he is granted the doctor's pardon for a discharge, the hospital will lose its best drawing card. The 200-pound variety, who has been here the longest, according to attaches, attendance at the hospital during open house hours has been given a considerable boost, with most of the number finding their way to Bill's room.

For the past few weeks, since his condition has taken a turn for the better, Bill has been given the reins of the building and has toured the hospital from top to bottom in a wheelchair, but Saturday night is the first time since he was admitted that he has wandered and appeared to be adding effectiveness to his slams when the towel was tossed onto the field.

DANVILLE HIGH WINS CKC MEET

Twelve Schools Compete In Track And Field Events

With participants from 12 schools competing, the Central Kentucky sectional track and field meet was held Friday afternoon on Stoll field with Danville high dragging down top honors by registering 38 points with a score of 39%.

No records were threatened as the contestants moved through the events, but the meet served as a warm up for the 19th annual track and field carnival billed Saturday morning and afternoon on Stoll oval.

A two man squad, composed of brothers George and Sam McKinney, registered as students of Ruddle's Mill high school, were the individual standouts as they collected 15 points on a first by Sam in the pole vault with a height of 10-feet, 6-inches.

Heavily captured to retain the title they captured last year, Delta Chi suffered the first upset of the eliminations. Going into the sixth inning Delta Chi led by 10-7 but Delta Tau Delta dinged the fray at 10-up when Haynes slung a runner into right field for two mates abash.

Several times the Phi Taus threatened to push runners across the home base, but each time they were halted by the Det. south-paw.

Alpha Tau Omega annexed their seventh consecutive win by warding off a desperate Alpha Gamma Rho rally to finish on top by 18-15. ATO opened early and pushed nine runs across the platter in the first inning and followed by scoring five more runs in the second.

The golf doubles eliminations have reached the final stage with Fred-Monaghan, driving for Alpha Sigma Phi, due to tee off against the Phi Delta Theta combine of Pippin-Vance.

The dance committee consisted of Prof. C. S. Crouse, chairman, Prof. D. V. Terrell, James S. Shropshire, Roger Brown, Norwell I. Gebhart, Paul Forbes, Roland W. Pridle, Berkeley Bennison, and David Pettus.

CWENS GIVE TEA
Cwens, national honorary for sophomore women, entertained with a tea from 4 to 6 p. m. Friday in the Recreation Room of Patterson Hall in honor of the mothers visiting the campus.

The committee in charge of arrangements were Irene Burk, chairman, Dorothy Hillenmeyer, and Susan Price.

Spring flowers will be for decorations.
