BOT votes to delay its review of allegations

By JAY BLANTON
Editor in Chief

The UK Board of Trustees decided Saturday to wait at least a week before reviewing the response to allegations against the men's basketball program because of the legal uncertainty surrounding Eric Manuel's academic records.

The board was to review the University's response to the allegations Saturday, but Manuel, a sophomore forward, received a temporary restraining order Friday, prohibiting the release of records concerning his American College Test score.

Judge Karl Forester issued the order after Manuel filed suit in U.S. District Court in Pikeville last week after the Courier-Journal, using unnamed sources, reported that Manuel's test score had been invalidated.

The NCAA alleges that Manuel cheated on the ACT he took in the summer of 1987 in Lexington.

A hearing has been set for Friday in U.S. District Court in Lexington to decide whether Manuel's records can be included in the response.

The deadline for the University's response to the 18 allegations was today. But NCAA Director of Enforcement David Berts said he doesn't want the University's response until a decision is made concerning Manuel's records, according to James Park, the independent lawyer leading UK's investigation into the allegations.

Manuel has voluntarily withdrawn from practice or play all season because of the allegations.

If the courts prohibit the University's release of Manuel's records, it would mean the deletion of all references to Manuel's test scores in the response, which consists of 129 interviews and depositions.

Such a ruling also would raise questions about how future cases concerning possible academic fraud would be handled by universities and the NCAA.

John Darsie, the University's legal counsel, said he expected newspapers to file suit today to have the University's response to allegations made public.

The NCAA is "quite concerned" about the possibility of the response becoming public, Park said. "They've never had this kind of a situation presented to them before."

Circuit Judge George Barker ruled last semester that the University had to make the NCAA allegations against the men's basketball program public.

The BOT had directed UK President David Roselle Tuesday — in a 12-6 vote — to review with the board the University's response to allegations before being sent to the NCAA.

The board still intends to review the response before sending it to the NCAA, as stipulated by a final motion made by trustee William Burnett.

That motion followed about two hours of discussion by the trustees. See TRUSTEES, Page 5

UK player scores upset, wins indoor tennis championship

By TOM SPALDING
Sports Editor

Adam Malik capped off an incredible Southeastern Conference Indoor Tennis Tournament yesterday afternoon, stunning third-seed Al Parker of the University of Georgia to win the SEC singles title.

Malik, a UK junior, was unseeded and largely overshadowed in the four-day event, held at UK's Boone Indoor Tennis Center. But the Malaysia native didn't let those factors hinder his performance; he knocked off a host of seeded players in a victory stretch that ended 7-5, 3-6, 6-3 over Parker.

"Adam had a sensational tournament, not only a great final, but a fantastic tournament," Georgia Coach Manuel Diaz said. "He had to play some tough (matches), but he went through the field playing well. He earned a championship."

Malik, who won the SEC Indoors two years ago as a freshman, did earn it. Trailing 5-2 in the first set and headed for troubled waters, the right-hander stormed from behind, winning the last five games and as a result, the set.

That win set the tone for a Malik victory. Parker, ranked fifth in the Southern Division of the Volvo Tennis Collegiate Polls, won the second set 6-3. But the Clayton, Ga. native admitted it was hard for him "to get a good rhythm" and fell easily in the third set to Malik.

"Frankly, I expected Al to win," Diaz said. "I thought that Adam would be nervous in the first set... and he was. (Parker) had a slight letdown in concentration. (Malik) did a great job of taking advantage of it."

As surprised as Diaz was, Malik was even more so.

"I didn't expect it at all," Malik said. "It sounds silly, but I've been saying, 'Why me? I guess everybody gets (this) one shot of glory.'"

"This," he continued, "is sweet."

Malik's win was even better than that because, according to UK coach Dennis Emery, the UK player did what it took to win.

"He played really well all week, real aggressive and he was really going for his shots," Emery said.

"He's a very good indoor player," Diaz added. "He's a very good player, period."

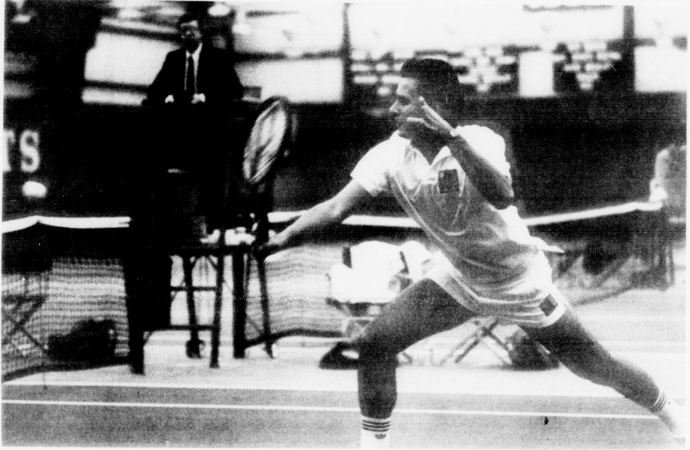

If its performance as a team was any indication, then UK's No. 6 national ranking is no fluke. On the contrary.

Besides Malik, two UK players reached the quarterfinals as well. UK senior Rich Benson could've made the semifinals had he not lost to teammate Malik 6-4, 6-4.

Mario Rincon, the No. 6 seed in the tourney for UK, was beaten by Parker 6-2, 6-4.

All in all, it was a pretty good way to begin the new year for UK after losing to the University of Minnesota.

Confirmation hearings dot Bush agenda

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate bores ahead with confirmation proceedings on President Bush's Cabinet this week, while the political imperative for most House members seems to be to stay out of sight and pocket a $45,000 pay raise without a vote.

Little or no major action is expected on the key issue facing Congress — reducing the federal deficit — until after President Bush presents his own proposals at a joint session of Congress Feb. 9.

In the meantime, Democratic officials say at least three and perhaps more Cabinet appointees will come up for a vote in the Senate this week, and all are expected to win easy confirmation. The list includes Robert Moshbacher as Commerce Secretary, Carla Hills as trade representative and Samuel Skinner to run the Transportation Department.

Votes also are possible this week on the appointments of Manuel Lujan as Interior Secretary and Michael Boskin to head the president's Council of Economic Advisors.

The timing is less certain for Defense Secretary-designate John Tower, whose hearing will continue before the Senate Armed Services Committee on Tuesday. Ed Derwinski, Bush's choice to lead the Department of Veterans Affairs, has his confirmation hearing beginning on Monday.

Dr. Louis Sullivan, who has emerged as the most controversial Cabinet appointee because of uncertainty over his views on abortion, faces the Senate Finance Committee at a hearing Wednesday on his appointment as Secretary of Health and Human Resources.

Sullivan sought to reassure conservative Republicans that he shares their opposition to abortion last week after he was quoted as having told one lawmaker that he does not favor overturning the Supreme Court decision that legalized the operations.

The Senate confirmed three Cabinet officials last week, approving Secretary of State James A. Baker III, Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole and Budget Director Richard Darman on votes of 90-0. In addition, Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Attorney General Richard Thornburgh and Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos are hold-over appointments from the Reagan administration and do not require confirmation.

UK law squad captures 2nd in national contest

By LAURIE DELK
Staff Writer

When a U.S. Air flight landed at Bluegrass Field on Friday, it had several passengers. Among them was a moot court team from the UK College of Law which placed second in the nation at a championship competition in New York City last Thursday.

Although a team from the College of William and Mary finished first in the competition, UK's two-member team of Margaret Alfred and Kerry Smith defeated teams from Montana, Denver, New York University, Vanderbilt and Case Law School at Northern Kentucky University.

"It was quite exciting," said John M. Rogers, court adviser and law professor. "UK moot court teams have traditionally done well, especially in the last few years; but no UK team has ever gone as far as this team."

The moot court competition began last semester with some 300 teams from 14 different regions across the nation. The teams were narrowed to 28, two from each region. The two teams that won first and second to represent our region were the College of William and Mary and UK, respectively. The 28 remaining teams went to New York to compete for the national championship.

"The fact that the number one and number two teams at nationals were also the number one and number two teams at regionals shows that quality of regional competition is comparable to that at national competition," Rogers said.

Rogers said that one of the senior organizers recognized at a banquet that the third best team in the nation may not have even made it to nationals because it ran up against the two best teams in the nation at regionals.

UK's victory warranted an immediate celebration as soon as the team members departed the plane.

"We had champagne and celebrated at the airport for a while," said Ann Schiavone, co-vice president of the moot court board. "They're pretty excited and pumped up right now."

"The support of UK's team was very strong. I thought there might be three or four people (welcoming us at the airport), but I certainly didn't expect such a turnout," Alfred said. "There were 20 or 30 law students and one or two law professors."

But the path to the National Team's success wasn't always smooth. "It was time consuming and I intentionally had taken a light load last fall," Alfred said. "There were times when I went to class not as prepared as I normally was."

Alfred is supportive of UK's moot court program.

"It's one of the few avenues in law school for developing skills in public speaking," Alfred said. "It teaches you to think on your feet and to be prepared."

OXFORD, Miss. — For many years, Wildcat fans from western Kentucky would make the trip to Oxford and fill almost half of C.M. "Tad" Smith Coliseum.

This season, however, Ole Miss officials decided that a home court advantage was more important than a full arena and denied out-of-state ticket requests.

This decision proved vital with almost 2,000 empty seats, but an overwhelming home court crowd helped the Rebels in defeating UK 70-65 for only the seventh time in the 80 game series.

UK, (10-10 and 5-3 in the Southeastern Conference) with a chance to move into a first place tie with Louisiana State University in the SEC, came out flat in the first half, fell behind and was never able to overtake the Rebels (11-6 and 5-3 in the SEC).

"This league is so balanced that if any team does not play well that day it will get beat," UK coach Eddie Sutton said. "And we did not play well today."

UK got its first look at Mississippi's Gerald Glass first hand.

"He puts a lot of pressure on opposing defenses, but he also makes good defensive plays himself," Sutton said.

Glass hit the Cats for 24 points and six rebounds, both under his season averages of 25.9 points and 7.3 rebounds.

While Glass sparked, his counterpart on the UK side did everything but.

UK's LeRon Ellis, who entered the game averaging 17.4 points per contest, hit only 2 of 10 shots for only four points in 30 minutes of play.

However, Ellis grabbed a season-high 10 rebounds.

"I wasn't hitting my turnaround jumper and I let it really bother me," Ellis said. "I got flustered offensively because of that, but I just tried to help my team."

Coming into the game, who would have thought that Ellis would be out-performed by the Rebel's center, Sean Murphy? Murphy pumped in only seven points but grabbed a game-high 11 rebounds.

"We're playing pretty good basketball right now because we are finally healthy and our center is playing better," Ole Miss Coach Ed Murphy said.

UK took the lead when UK guard Derrick Miller, who scored 21 points and grabbed seven rebounds, hit a three-pointer to open the contest. The 3-0 lead soon vanished as Glass hit a pair of field goals to give the Rebels the lead for good.

"We got behind early and that's not a good thing to do on the road," Sutton said. "We played much harder and better in the second half but every time that we made a run, Ole Miss was able to hold us off."

Lady Kats lose to Ole Miss

The Lady Kats, 10-9 and 1-2 in the SEC, played the eighth-ranked University of Mississippi Lady Rebels (15-3 and 3-3 in the SEC) tough before bowing late in the game by a score of 70-52.

The Kats, behind a game-high 24 points and nine rebounds from Lisa Ellis, played Ole Miss tough despite shooting 40.7 percent from the field.

"I feel like the game could have been much closer if we had just done the little things like hitting layups," UK Coach Sharon Fanning said.

The Lady Kats trailed 30-21 at intermission.

When Stacy McIntyre hit a layup with 14:17 remaining, UK trailed by only three points.

UK's Malik triumphs in SEC championships

"I think this is one of the best tournaments we've had as a team," Emery said. "We played real well (with) just two bad matches."

"We do have a lot of good players, but we're not unique in that."

Malik's comeback in the first set was marred by two controversial calls that went the UK player's way.

Both shots, which came with Parker ahead 5-3, seemed to disrupt both players' concentration. Both of Malik's calls, which were backed by the referee, came on Parker serves.

On the second call, which came after Parker had double-faulted to end the game, Parker looked at Malik and shouted, "No way!"

When the two players switched sides, more words apparently were exchanged.

"He got mad," Malik said.

"(But) I'll stick to my guns. I'm not going to be intimidated. I don't care if it's John McEnroe or Al Parker, and that's what I told him. He was calling me a cheater. I didn't want him to call me (that)."

Parker stopped play after the second game of the second set because of a slight injury — UK trainer Al Green said it was a groin pull — but Parker indicated that the injury had happened late in the first set — right when Malik made his comeback.

"I lost my concentration," Parker said. "I knew I had pulled it ... but that's no excuse."

"I don't want to take anything away from (Malik) ... he played great, had a wonderful tournament. He deserves a lot of credit."

Malik jumped ahead 1-0 in the third set and appeared cool while his opponent wasn't. During the game break, Emery walked over to Malik and offered him some advice.

Emery told his player he needed to be aggressive — to play 20 minutes of aggressive tennis.

"The only way to win was to be much more aggressive," Emery said.

Wilkinson's speech reflected change but not enough

To hear Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's state of the commonwealth address Tuesday night, one would think all is well in Kentucky.

Most of Wilkinson's speech dealt with his plan to restructure the state's educational system, or "perestroika," as he referred to it.

It was encouraging to see that Wilkinson recognizes the embarrassing shape Kentucky's schools are in. Wilkinson said that "never again should a Kentucky high school diploma be looked on as a disadvantage . . . and never again should a checkbook be the only passport to an education."

Wilkinson said he was committed to working with members of the General Assembly to hammer out reforms in the upcoming special session, but on whose terms?

At one point, he said he will meet with lawmakers and "agree on a plan," but later in the speech he characterized himself as a "hard-headed" and "stubborn" crusader who is "on a mission" to improve education. Not exactly words of man who is willing to compromise.

What was even more confusing is that Wilkinson repeated his pledge against a tax increase of any kind.

There is a general consensus among experts that in order to improve Kentucky's education to a level Wilkinson vaguely spoke of last week, state leaders need to take the following actions — conform to the federal tax code and raise some taxes, both of which Wilkinson refuses to accept.

Conforming to the federal tax code would be a relatively painless decision for state leaders. The move would bring about $100 million into the state's coffers and mostly would affect businesses.

Passing a tax increase might be a little more difficult, but if state leaders, which includes the governor and lawmakers, are genuinely devoted to making Kentucky a better place to live, they are going to have to pay for it.

When people come to Kentucky, as writer John Ed Pearce often says, they think they have died and gone to heaven because the tax rates are so low.

Wilkinson argues that higher taxes will chase away businesses and discourage future investment in Kentucky, but all of the states Kentucky shares a border with have higher tax rates and still attract businesses Kentucky misses out on.

The reason many businesses pass Kentucky up is because the business sector realizes the inexorable link between education and economic development. And since Kentucky is not realistic about improving its economic situation, it is continually passed over.

So Wallace, unless you take a heavy dose of realism and sober up about the dire situation the state is in, a young person from Casey County not only will be deprived of a high school chemistry or trigonometry course in the future, but he also won't be able to find a job.

Kernel Checklist

A weekly public service of the Viewpoint Page to help keep its readers abreast of the hot items in the universe.

✓ Circus Maximus. NCAA Investigation and the UK Board of Trustees. It began Tuesday when 12 members of the Board of Trustees voted against UK President David Roselle's decision to brief the board after UK files its response to the NCAA. Roselle was supposed to update the trustees Saturday; instead, almost 120 minutes were devoted to discussing the legality of reviewing the response. Saturday's gathering, as trustee Raymond Betts bluntly put it, turned out to be a waste of everyone's time.

✓ Comrades. Wallace Wilkinson and Mikhail Gorbachev. During his state of the commonwealth speech Tuesday night, Kentucky Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, also apparently a Sovietologist, revealed his keen understanding of the Soviet system when he said his state educational reforms are very much not unlike Mikhail Gorbachev's "perestroika." At least we now know where Wilkinson gets his political inspiration.

✓ Ain't Misbehavin'. Tracy Farmer. At Tuesday's Board of Trustees meeting, trustee Tracy Farmer successfully proposed a motion to have the BOT meet with Roselle and be updated on the NCAA investigation before UK files its response. But while administrators, board members and the media were on the 18th floor of Patterson Office Tower early Saturday morning, Farmer was reported to be in Acapulco. It's comforting to know he is so concerned about the welfare of the University. Hope you don't get burned there, too, Tracy.

✓ Quacks in the White House. The Bush Administration. President Bush's choice for treasury secretary, Nicholas Brady, proposed last week to place a "fee" on savings and loans accounts. Although some Bush administration officials said the proposal passed White House Budget Director Richard Darmon's "duck test" and therefore was not a tax, the idea was open season for the media and congressional leaders. At an impromptu press conference Friday, Bush said the idea was simply a "trial balloon," but as one reporter put it, the "fee" was more like a lead balloon that crashed to the earth with a thud.

✓ Three Cheers for Barbarism. Execution of Ted Bundy. Serial killer Ted Bundy died in Florida's electric chair Tuesday morning. Outside the prison where Bundy was given the juice, proponents of the death penalty cheered and set off fireworks. Unquestionably, Bundy was an evil person who did commit heinous crimes against mankind, but the exhibition by his "fan club" was equally appalling.

IF AT TIMES HE STRIKES YOU AS "HARD-HEADED" OR STRIDENT OR STUBBORN, IT'S BECAUSE HE IS.

Tri My Pi

Guest opinion gives columnist insight into sorority life

Columnist's note: Although it was done only as an ego-gratifying stunt, my Jan. 18 column unintentionally offended several people in the sorority community. And for that, I am sorry.

It seems that I've been a little too harsh on the female greek system. And the reason for that, I think, is poor communication and a general misunderstanding.

I no more know what it's like to be in a modern sorority than I know what it was like to be a black man in Mississippi in the 1960s or a foot soldier in Vietnam. So I went out and recruited an actual sorority member to write a guest column in this spot.

I hope it proves as an informative and stereotype-smashing piece for you as it did for me. And here it goes.

Hi, my name is Diana Debbie Cuppes, but everyone just calls me D. Cuppes. You can call me that too.

I am a member of the Tri My Pi sorority, which was founded in 1894 and can boast of such luminous members as Phyllis Diller, Linda Blair and that girl with the big boobs in the "Police Academy" movies. We're so proud when Tri My Pi members go out in the world and distinguish themselves as these three women have.

Tri My Pi is not located on UK's sorority row, but is placed advantageously on Pine Street where the sisters can just walk out on the street for all their pharmaceutical needs.

Tim FOGLE

It's so convenient when you're up all night studying and can just put up the window and yell down for a non-addictive stimulant to help you make it through the night.

(Sorority life) is a place where they teach you to quit saying "Y'all" and to use the right fork and to not pick your nose or adjust your underwear in front of Mayor Scotty Baesler or Gov. Wallace Wilkinson.

Translated into English, Tri My Pi means "We do you right." And every Tri My Pi pledge must take a blood oath to always, to the best of her ability, do you right. And if a Tri My Pi sister is ever caught not doing someone right, then she's out.

My boyfriend, Skip Mohammed Quentin is a member of that notorious, orally-obsessed fraternity (you know, the one with the name that translated into English means "Good to the last drop").

His frat has been getting a lot of negative publicity lately, but frankly, I don't see why. What happened there is nothing different than what happens at Tri My Pi every weekend. And in fact we encourage that type of behavior. It's fun.

But back to D. Cuppes. I love to refer to myself in the third person. It's the trendy thing these days. I am active in temple activities (we refer to our house as the "The Temple of Hot Liquid Love").

I am an instructor in our butts-clenching class because no girl can be a real Tri My Pi unless she has a tight butt.

I am also a pep squad leader and write many of the songs and cheers that we sing when we get drunk and go out serenading. Here's one of our most requested cheers:

"We're the girls of Tri My Pi
The house that will do you right
We clench our butts
We thrust our breasts
And then we start on you"

Now didn't that make you just want to do a little hair flip and clench your buttocks real tight. Yeah, I know. It feels good doesn't it?

Don't be embarrassed. Clenched buttocks are tight buttocks, and those are the buttocks that can hook that doctor or lawyer and that fur coat and bon-bon lifestyle that we're all striving for.

We all know sorority life is nothing more than preparing to be a rich man's wife. It's just a place where they teach you to quit saying "y'all" and to use the right fork and to not pick your nose or adjust your underwear in front of Mayor Baesler or Gov. Wilkinson.

I, D. Cuppes, am very grateful that Tim Fogle, that sorry bastard that he is, has allowed me to describe what it's really like to be a sorority girl. I hope I have diffused some myths. Because I really care.

Post Guest Column Note: I am very grateful that Ms. Cuppes took the opportunity to defend sororities and to set the record straight. I think what she said was honest and represented all the female greeks well. She is to be commended for a job well done.

I hope that my relationship with the sorority system will be much improved in the future.

If you have any suggestions for the improvement of my column (except for banishing it), love letters, self-help ideas or death threats, you can reach me by writing to "Tim Fogle: That Sorry Bastard" in care of the Kernel and I'll be sure to get your letter. Thank you.

Staff Writer Tim Fogle is a journalism senior and a Kernel columnist.

Letters

Columnist myopic

Perhaps, at the ripe old age of 25, I have lost my sense of humor. But I did not find Tim Fogle's Jan. 18 column humorous in any way — just sad.

I guess I shouldn't be surprised that a young, male college student would believe that only thin, beautiful girls are worthy of love or male friendship.

Mr. Fogle will miss the chance to meet many fun, interesting females simply because they won't meet his physical standards. (Girls, would you really want a guy like that anyway?)

But I do feel sorry for Mr. Fogle since he, himself, obviously suffers from one of those "annoying personality" traits — narrow-mindedness.

Sandi Scott is a Lexington resident.

Bundy's death was senseless

Paul J. Weingartner's analysis of Ted Bundy's execution as a satiation of society's appetite for violence was excellent.

Proponents of the death penalty consider it as a deterrent of crimes of some kind and magnitude.

Tell me, does anyone out there believe that a mad person setting out on a similar rage is even going to stop for a second and think about Ted Bundy and his fate?

Ted Bundy's execution has done nothing but take a man's life under the sanction of the state.

Raghu Ram Ekambaram is in the department of civil engineering.

'Evidence' shows film to be yet another Reynolds clunker

By TIM FOGLE
Staff Critic

At least in those "Smokey and the Bandit" movies Burt Reynolds got to have a good time while he was playing himself.

But it doesn't really look like he's enjoying himself all that much. And for that matter, neither does Theresa Russell nor Ned Beatty, the other two principals in this schlocky, horrible movie. "Physical Evidence" is complete trash.

I don't even know where to begin in trying to explain how really bad this film is. Let me begin with the plot (and thin, weak and stupid is what it is).

The premise revolves around Boston policeman Joe Paris (Reynolds), who has been suspended from the force for too many run-ins with his superiors. Now he's the prime suspect in the murder of Boston pimp, drug dealer and general sorry-ass Jake Farley, who played a role in Paris' suspension.

The case seems all wrapped up. The D.A. (Beatty) has a motive (Paris and Farley were deadly enemies), the murder weapon (a bloody piece of wire with some of Paris' blood on it) and a suspect who has a history of violent temper explosions and physical altercations. Russell is the public defender brought in to defend Paris. It's all so tidy. And stilted and boring.

Secondly, let me criticize the actors. Reynolds is his usual shallow, smirking self and no more belongs in this film than Charles Manson would belong in a Roman Polanski movie. He continually strikes, poses and mumbles to the point that I hoped he would get shot and die and then we'd get to see more of Russell.

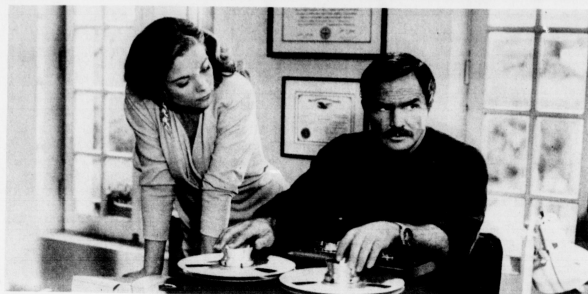

Russell has a habit of generating steam on the screen (see "Black Widow"), but in this film she manages to bring only one thing into the movie that isn't here otherwise — she's good-looking. And it's a cold, sullen beauty at that.

Besides that, her performance is about as natural and genuine as Steve Guttenberg's was in "Police Academy." And we all know how warm and feeling that was. She might as well be a cardboard cut-out with a speaker in her head because she never moves or shows any emotion, except for an occasional sigh of exasperation, or boredom. I couldn't tell which.

The music sounds like the soundtrack of one of those cartoons about sex that you watch in seventh grade, and the ending is quite possibly the most morose, idiotic thing I've ever seen. It is so unintentionally hilarious that I just shook my head when it was over.

Don't go see "Physical Evidence." Go buy some beer and chips and eat some of those "Smokey and the Bandit" movies instead. You'll have a better time. "Physical Evidence," rated R, is now playing at Fayette Mall Cinema.

The makers of "Physical Evidence," starring a came up with a would-be, implausible thriller instead of another "Jagged Edge."
