Bush plans to tour UK cancer center, speak at dedication

Vice President George Bush will be greeted by a host of VIPs and medical specialists when he tours the $9 million Lucille Parker Marky Cancer Center and participates in the building's dedication today.

Bush also is scheduled to speak with a patient in the facility's examination room, but the person will be a fake.

"It's a simulated situation since we haven't officially opened the building for patients yet," explained Leonard Heller, vice president for academic affairs at the Medical Center.

To ensure that the vice president's 15-minute tour of the building goes as smoothly as possible, the participants have staged dress rehearsals, with medical specialists timing their short talks about the center's facilities to the minute.

"This is our first run-through with an official like this. It's not something we do every day," Heller said. "So it's something we want to be handled very well."

After the tour, Bush will speak at the center's dedication ceremony at 4:30 p.m. The ceremony is open to the public and shuttle buses will run from Commonwealth Stadium to the center from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Rose Street will be closed at 3:30 p.m.

The cancer center, which was funded by private donations, will open for patient care on Jan. 6.

"It's a rather remarkable philanthropic institution," said John S. Macdonald, associate director for clinical activities at the center.

The center was the "culmination of efforts of thousands of people, not only in Kentucky but around the

UK victor in recruiting war: Chapman becomes a Wildcat

By BRETT HAIT

The suspense has ended, and UK coach Eddie Sutton called it "a great day for Kentucky basketball."

Rex Chapman of Apollo High School in Owensboro, Ky., regarded as one of the nation's premier high school basketball players, signed a national letter-of-intent with UK Saturday morning.

"I'm very excited about going to Kentucky," Chapman said at a press conference in Owensboro. "It was a tough decision, but once I sat down and thought and thought about where I would be the happiest, I knew I belonged at Kentucky."

Chapman said he "really knew a couple days ago" that he was coming to UK.

"He can go inside, has great ballhandling skills, can play point guard, off-guard or small forward," Sutton said yesterday. "Defensively, he has the potential to be outstanding. He's an outstanding athlete."

As a junior at Apollo last season, the 6-foot-4 guard averaged 27.2 points, 10 rebounds and five assists a game. Chapman becomes Sutton's second recruit since taking over at UK. Pulaski County's 6-foot-7 forward Reggie Hanson signed last Wednesday.

"Rex is unquestionably the best player in the state and we, along with most media people, rate him as one of the top two or three prospects in the country," Sutton said.

Many schools throughout the country recruited Chapman, but he reportedly narrowed his list of schools to six — UK, Louisville, North Carolina, Georgia Tech, Western Kentucky and Kentucky Wesleyan. Chapman's father, Wayne, is the head basketball coach at Kentucky Wesleyan.

Chapman said he has relatives in the Lexington area who are Wildcat fans, but they didn't try to persuade him. "They only wanted what was best for me," he said.

Chapman said the camaraderie and family-type atmosphere of UK was one factor in reaching his final decision.

"When I came up for my official visit, I stayed at the lodge with the players," Chapman said. "Reggie (Hanson) and I stayed together and we were impressed at what a close-knit group of people the players and the other students at the lodge are. I really got along well with everyone."

"Plus, Coach Sutton was a big factor," he said. "I am really impressed with him and I am impressed with how well all of his

Collection dedicated to library

Described by Art Gallaher as "an occasion to honor one of our own," the W. Hugh Peal gallery was formally dedicated yesterday.

Peal, who donated more than 15,000 rare manuscripts before his death in 1984, is one of the University's most important library donors. Gallaher, chancellor of the Lexington campus, told about 75 people at the ceremony.

Highlighting various examples of the collection, the dedication began with a slide show which called the Peal collection "of major scholarly importance."

Peal, a 1922 UK graduate, was symbolic of what this University is trying to do, Gallaher said. "He became a man who throughout his life continued to grow intellectually."

John L. Cluthe, a professor of English, called the holdings and manuscripts "absolutely spectacular." Pointing to the research possibilities of the Peal manuscripts for staff and students, Cluthe said "Behind every book lurks some manuscript. We are so fortunate to have so many manuscripts."

Cluthe, a specialist in the early English Romantics, noted that the collection has research possibilities for others also. Peal acquired American and French literature and letters from monarchs, artists and statesmen among others, he said.

James D. Birchfield, associate director of collection development, also spoke of the importance of the collection, especially the unity of the numerous autographed letters. Collectors in the 19th century would obtain only one letter of an individual author, and thus the complete correspondence would be dispersed across the world, Birchfield said.

Peal's holdings make available to scholars complete collections of autographed letters, he said.

As part of the program, Paul A. Willis, UK director of libraries, read excerpts from Peal's diary which he kept daily since Feb. 1, 1911.

Closing the dedication, Peal's widow, Margaret W. Peal, reiterated his love for UK. "Of the 52 years I'd known him, he never ceased to speak of the professors he'd known."

Soviets say Weinberger letter will deter arms talks

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press

GENEVA — President Reagan, inspecting summit sites yesterday as he prepared to meet his Kremlin counterpart, sought to brush aside evidence of administration discord on arms policy, but the Soviets turned up the heat and described the episode as an attempt "to torpedo the arms control process."

Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, said, "We are not changing our views one whit" as a result of the leak of the "Weinberger letter."

In the letter, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who was left off the U.S. summit delegation, warned Reagan against agreeing to several arms positions when he meets tomorrow and Wednesday with Mikhail Gorbachev.

The Soviet leader arrives here today, but he was well represented by a Kremlin official who told reporters the summit will be a "trial-by-fire" test of Reagan's commitment to arms control, and denounced in advance the arms policies Reagan brings with him to the summit table.

A key member of the American delegation, insisting on anonymity, said he thought the summit would produce some U.S.-Soviet agreements.

He said odds that they would agree to hold periodic summit meetings, were "more than 50 percent." And he said, it was "highly likely" that the summit would produce an agreement for the two superpowers to guard against proliferation of nuclear weapons to other countries.

National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane, part of the administration blitz on the Sunday TV talk shows, said "if we try hard," there might be agreements on cultural exchanges, opening new Soviet and American consular offices and the Groups working separately to establish an independent UK radio station

By TIM JOHNSON
Senior Staff Writer

Increased interest and support have motivated two student groups to develop plans for campus radio stations.

And while the two proposed stations are completely different in form, they face similar obstacles in becoming a reality.

"It's a lot more complicated than just deciding to have a station that plays your music," said Herbert Drennon, dean of the College of Communications. "A lot of details and plans still need working out."

Although both stations are still in the planning stages, the two groups — the newly formed Radio Free Lexington and a group of three telecommunication students — have met several times with different administrators to plan their next moves.

In a recent meeting with Robert Zumwinkle, vice chancellor for student affairs, the telecommunication students discussed "construction needs and funds," said Don Wheeler, general manager of WBKY, who also attended the meeting.

"What our students are proposing is an AM carrier current station that's totally different from your regular broadcast station," he said.

A carrier current station transmits its radio signal through lines, commonly telephone lines, from the control room at the station to a transmitter in another building. That transmitter sends the signal through the electrical circuitry of that building. The signal can only be heard within that particular building.

The station would be a lab experiment for the students who would run it, Wheeler said. They would also sell commercials for revenue.

The exact format of the station has not been discussed, Wheeler said, but the Student Center has been proposed as a possible location.

Before the proposed radio station can begin broadcasting, several problems stand in its way — the main one being money, Wheeler said.

J. TIM HAYS/Kernal Graphics

"The cost to build it and get it started would be the first and foremost problem," he said. "Personally, I don't believe the station could run for the first two years without some subsidization from someone.

"But they want (the station) self-sufficient, and I don't think it would generate enough revenue for that."

Another problem for the telecommunication students would be the cost in using telephone lines to transmit the signal, Wheeler said.

"Unless they get the lines dedicated from the University, they're going to have to pay $82 a month per line from GTE," he said. "That's probably a major flaw in the students' plan."

Wheeler presented a hypothetical budget for such a station to exist. "Let's assume the station would want to serve 10 places on campus. That's already about $10,000 a year in line charges."

"For maintenance, they'd probably need $8,000 and at least a $10,000 operating budget for tapes, records and salaries," he said. "That adds up to an approximate annual budget of $30,000."

The revenue potential for a station such as the one proposed is not more than $15,000, Wheeler said.

"They've put in a lot of real hard work and effort and they should be commended," he said. "But I think

Women impressive despite loss to OU

Men's team wins, but coach pleased with women's effort in narrow loss

By JIM WHITE
Contributing Writer

Even though UK's women swimmers lost to a tough Ohio University team Saturday, their effort was more impressive than the win of the UK men's squad.

The Lady Katfish, who were beaten 77-36 by the same Ohio University team last season, "gave them a pretty good scare," said UK swimming coach Wynn Paul.

The women's team, which stayed with the Ohio team throughout the meet, narrowly lost 64 to 49.

"Last year they kind of humiliated us, but this year it wasn't won for them until the next to last event," Paul said. "The score 64 to 49 is kind of misleading. We were never ahead but we were in striking distance throughout the whole meet."

The UK men easily defeated the men of the Ohio University team by a score of 75 to 38, but the outcome of the men's competition was not as surprising as that of the women's.

After all, the varsity women's swimming program has only been in existence at UK for three years.

"This is pretty good for a third-year varsity team," Paul said. "Ohio U has had a varsity team for about 10 years."

"We knew it was going to be a very close meet from the times they gave us," said diving coach Bridg Devries. "They have a really good, established team and they have depth in every event."

"We knew we had to be absolutely perfect, no slips," she said. "The firsts had to be there, the seconds had to be there, there was absolutely no leeway."

Freshman Julie Jelf won the women's one-meter diving competition and finished second in the three-meter for the Katfish.

"Julie was a standout; she looked really good today," Devries said. "She won the one-meter competition and was really strong."

Also turning in good performances for the Lady Katfish were freshman Cheri Baxter and junior Allison Hicks. Baxter took first-place finishes in both the 100- and 200-meter freestyle competition and Hicks finished first in the 50 freestyle and the 400 freestyle relay.

Although the men's win may not have been as impressive as the women's loss, Paul was still pleased with the outcome.

"We expected to win the boys," Paul said. "We are swimming better now than at this time last year when we swam Ohio U. We are swimming far better."

Sophomore Chris Godfrey led the men's effort with two first-place finishes in the 300 and 1000 freestyle.

"I thought it was a good meet," Godfrey said. "I didn't perform anywhere near my best times but I was pretty pleased."

Senior Robbie Cottrell finished second for UK in both the two and three-meter diving events.

"It was a long meet," said junior Tony Barnes, adding that the team was tired from the Friday night meet with Eastern Kentucky. "We swam (Friday) night for three hours and we swam for four hours today and that will take a toll on any swimmer."

"The meet was all right but we were a little tired as a team," said players like him and look up to him. He really seems to have a good rapport with his players."

Chapman also said he and current UK forward Winston Bennett are good friends, and Bennett had a lot to do with his coming to UK.

Sutton said that he and his coaching staff tried to sell Chapman on UK by stressing the importance of attending the state university.

"We want every kid in Kentucky to come to UK," Sutton said. "If I were a basketball player in Kentucky I'd want to go to UK."

Although Chapman is considered a solid, all-around player, his uncanny jumping ability, which he says is around a 38- or 39-inch vertical leap, has drawn raves and helped him win a slam-dunk competition in Las Vegas, Nevada last summer.

"It isn't how tall you are, but how tall you play," Sutton said. "Chapman can outjump two-thirds of our team right now."

Orange Bowl appeals to Penn State players

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — No. 1-ranked Penn State said yesterday it would accept an invitation to take on the Big 8 champion in the Orange Bowl in a contest that could decide the best college football team in the nation.

Coach Joe Paterno met with players yesterday afternoon to discuss the various bowl options. Invitations to the bowl games go out Saturday.

"And the team's sentiment was that their leading choice, if they received a bid, would be to go to the Orange Bowl," Dave Baker, Penn State sports information director, said last night.

"It was not a formal vote," Baker outlined. "It was a sentiment that that would be their leading choice right now and the reason being that it would appear right now that bowl would offer the highest ranked team that we could play."

The Orange Bowl, in Miami, plays host to the winner of the Big 8. Nebraska is currently ranked No. 2 in the country.

The 10-0 Nittany Lions, doing an about-face of last year's 6-5 season, one of the worst in Paterno's head coaching history, have steadily climbed the polls, beating — though not always convincingly — the likes of Maryland, Alabama and Boston College.

Nebraska, which trounced Kansas 56-6 over the weekend, meets No. 7 Oklahoma, which defeated Colorado 31-0, at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Kats lack intensity in 2-1 weekend play

By JASON WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

What's wrong with the Lady Kat volleyball team?

"I don't have the answer," said Kat coach Kathy DeBoer after losing to Penn State Saturday night. "I wish I did."

DeBoer says she has some pretty good ideas, though. In UK's Lady Kat Invitational at Memorial Coliseum, the Kats got revenge wins over Eastern Kentucky 15-12, 15-8, 14-16, 15-6 Friday night and Cincinnati 15-9, 15-2, 15-7 Saturday afternoon without having to exert a major effort.

However, Penn State proved to be another story as the Nittany Lions prevailed 15-3, 15-3, 15-13.

The loss dropped Kentucky to 11-20, further blemishing the record of the Kats' first-ever losing season.

The only hope for redemption will be a strong showing in the Southeastern Conference tournament, which begins Thursday at Mississippi.

"There's more to it than putting on your shoes and tying the laces," DeBoer said. "We have some people that have no intensity. They're not coming to play."

The psychology of losing is the major factor, DeBoer said.

"When you take 20 losses in a season it's difficult to not get used to losing," DeBoer said of the Kats, who blew a commanding lead in the third game against Penn State. "You just wait around until you lose, even when you're ahead."

Any chance of a winning season has been dead for nearly a month now, so many of the Kats may be overlooking the regular-season games as the SEC tournament looms near.

The winner of that tournament will play in the NCAA playoffs.

"We've been focusing more on the SEC tournament all the time," said junior setter Irene Smyth. "It's hard to think about the other matches."

"I don't think you ever forget a loss," said outside hitter Machele Elliott, the only senior on the team. "But we're just looking right now at saving the season by winning the SEC. I think we can do it. It's just a matter of getting it together this week through hard work."

The Kats will play at Louisville Tuesday night before leaving for the tournament. The championship match will be played Sunday afternoon.

After that, UK will have a final home match Nov. 26 against Ohio State and close the season Nov. 29-30 in the Illinois State Invitational. The matches are largely irrelevant and will be hard to get motivated for if the Kats don't come back as SEC champs.

"Physically we're ready," Elliott said. "It's just mental. It's not going to take long. I really think we can do it if Coach just works us hard in practice this week, and I know she will."

"The key is to keep our spirit up, be confident," Smyth said. "We have to keep pushing ourselves so we can make up for the season."

Kentucky was 2-4 in the SEC, but except for a three-game win over Mississippi State, all those matches went the maximum five games, as have many of the other SEC teams' conference matches. This leads DeBoer to believe the championship is up for grabs.

"Anyone can win this," she said.

"It's going to be a matter of who gets hot at the right time. We want to salvage the season and the only way to do so will be a strong showing in the tournament."

UK cross-country team finishes 2nd in district, heads to NCAA finals

By STEPHANIE WALLNER
Contributing Writer

The women's cross-country team is bound for the NCAA National Championships after a second-place District III finish this weekend.

The women defeated 24 teams in Greenville, S.C., for the runner-up spot behind North Carolina State.

N.C. State dominated the race, placing its top five runners in the top 10 for a final score of 26, ahead of Kentucky's 95.

Freshman Sherry Hoover was the only Wildcat to infiltrate N.C. State's dominating group with an eighth-place finish.

"They were pretty good. I wish we could've come a little closer to them."

Hoover finished the 5,000-meter course in 17:40, edging out two of State's runners in ninth and tenth places.

"I didn't realize who they were," she said, adding that she was just trying to pass as many people as possible.

"I probably passed more people in the last mile than I usually do. I think I was more nervous than I had been for other races."

Running No. 2 for Kentucky was freshman Becky Gallivan in 16th place with a time of 17:52. Close behind was Patricia Padorno, who managed a strong 21st-place finish despite a fall early in the race.

Assistant coach Charles Schultz, said Padorno's heel was caught from behind by another runner causing the spill.

In 26th place was junior Audrey Pierce who also overcame adverse conditions for a strong race.

Schultz said Pierce suffered from an intestinal virus prior to race day and was questionable for participation at all. Her fourth-place finish for Kentucky was an impressive 18:07.

Rounding out the scoring for UK were freshman Lisa Breiding in 28th place, sophomore Elisa Frosini in 37th and freshman Lynne Segretti in 18:56.

Hoover said she was happy with the team's performance overall. "I was really glad. That was the most important thing, whether we made it to nationals or not."

The team will travel to the NCAA Final Championships in Milwaukee, Wis., a week from today.

UK's men's team did not enjoy the same success as the women as its hope for national's Richard Edge, was plagued with stomach cramps a mile and a half into the race.

Schultz said the freshman was running strong in fourth place when he began to tighten up and had to drop out of the race.

The men finished 13th in a 31-team field.

Late field goal ends Wildcats' upset bid

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Kentucky was 20 seconds from victory when Jeff Dawson booted a 19-yard field goal to clinch the win for Florida in the Southeastern Conference match Saturday.

Kerwin Bell threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to Franke Neal, and Jeff Dawson's two other field goals led the 11th-ranked Gators to a narrow 15-13 win.

"Our record in this tough conference is unbelievable," Florida coach Galen Hall said of Florida's two-year mark of 10-1-1. "I am as proud of this team as any I have ever been around."

Dawson's field goals of 34 and 22 yards, and Neal Anderson rushed for 134 yards as Florida bounced back from a 21-point loss to Georgia that cost the Gators the top spot in The Associated Press poll.

The triumph, before a crowd of 73,672, improved Florida's record to 8-1-1 and assured Coach Galen Hall's team of at least a tie for the best mark in the SEC. The Gators, 5-1 in the SEC, are ineligible for the league title, however, because of NCAA probation.

Dawson's game-winning kick completed a 15-play, 85-yard drive that Bell started from his own 15-yard line with seven minutes remaining.

The sophomore quarterback, who completed 17 of 29 passes for 226 yards, highlighted the march with completions of 23 yards to Ray McDonald and 18 yards to Neal.

The Gators drove to a first down at the Kentucky 3, but the Wildcats' defense stiffened and nearly intercepted Anderson's halfback pass intended for Bell in the end zone on third down.

Kentucky, a 17-point underdog, had taken a 13-12 lead 3:21 into the fourth quarter on freshman tailback Irv Joe Hunter's 4-yard touchdown run that was set up by Maurice Douglass' interception and 43-yard return to the Florida 18.

Hunter scored on a 7-yard run that gave Kentucky a 7-6 advantage with 9:02 left in the third quarter.

The lead was shortlived, however.

Bell launched a 69-yard scoring drive with a 21-yard completion to Ricky Nattiel. Two plays later, the quarterback found Neal streaking past Douglass into the Kentucky end zone to regain the lead with 7:43 left in the period.

"All we needed to do was just catch the ball," said UK coach Jerry Claiborne, "and the game's over with."

Despite pessimism, summit talks allow break from tension

When you get right down to it, the mood of the country is anything but favorable for any sort of U.S.-Soviet agreement. Look at what could easily be called the most accurate indicator of popular thinking — the box office.

This Christmas we'll cheer as Rocky beats a Russian boxer-turned-killer into a bloody pulp and bite our fingernails to the nub as we see Mikhail Baryshnikov and Gregory Hines demonstrate what it really means to be rather dead than red.

If life imitated art, the international atmosphere would be cool indeed. So it might not seem like a good time for our president to cross the cold Atlantic to dust off the old bargaining table for yet another round of arms talks with yet another leader of the U.S.S.R.

A simple glance at the history of broken, expired and what seem historically fruitless U.S.-Soviet arrangements leaves a question gnawing at our sense of better judgment and working its way out of the depth of our cynicism: Why bother?

Wouldn't it be just as simple for us as countries to admit we have differences we can never hope to reconcile and leave it at that? Couldn't we save ourselves a lot of time and wasted effort by existing in our respective shells of hatred, misunderstanding and a justifiable mistrust of "the other guy"?

It certainly would. But then, nobody ever said maintaining what we foolishly like to call peace between the superpowers would be easy.

Of course, there is no peace between the U.S. and U.S.S.R. Peace implies harmony, and harmony implies a lot more than just not belligerently crossing each other's borders or not blowing each other up.

And even with all that in mind, the leaders of the world's two superpowers — the two countries possessing enough firepower to destroy the planet in a matter of hours — are sitting down at a bargaining table to go through the familiar motions of another Geneva conference.

Why bother?

Why not? Every second spent at the bargaining table is another second of hope in a time when we desperately need it. The Soviets probably aren't going to pull out of Afghanistan and the U.S. probably won't quit tinkering with "Star Wars." But as long as we're at that table, we get a hopeful reprieve from nuclear nightmares.

Exposure to arts improves imaginative ability for job world

It was very gratifying to see the Kentucky Kernel's Oct. 28 editorial praising the 1985-86 University Artists Series. Feeling so pleased about what was said about the series, I thought I might take the opportunity to add a few words on behalf of the arts, such as they are, on the UK campus.

I feel, as the Kernel does, that the fifth artists series season has something very special to offer to UK students. Those of us in the College of Fine Arts who administer the series are glad that we are able to continue to offer it to students at a modest price. I sincerely encourage all those students who have not yet sampled one of the concerts, but who feel they might enjoy an evening of great music, to give at least one of these productions a try.

Four more concerts are left in the series this year, each of which features one of the world's outstanding soloists, and one of which features an acclaimed orchestra. This should appeal to anyone who has even a glimmer of interest in serious musical listening — and by this I don't necessarily mean listening to "classical" music, but listening to good music including such ensembles and artists as R.E.M., the Talking Heads or Sting seriously.

One of the things we in the college would like UK students to consider are the more than 250 events, most of them free, offered by our college through the departments of art and theater, the school of music and the Center for the Arts, during the rest of the 1985-86 year.

These recitals, concerts, exhibits, plays and operas are designed, among other things, to enrich life on campus. Our presentations feature an expansive range of old and new art, music and theater. Not all of what we present is "classical." A fair amount of what is presented has experimental or contemporary overtones, including some pop and even new wave influences.

Often a single program contains a mixture of the established and the new, such as the Oct. 31 UK Symphony Orchestra concert that featured works from Mozart to Silvestre Revueltas, a 20th-century Mexican composer.

I believe that one of the questions students everywhere ask themselves about a proposition such as the arts series, is "Why should I care about this kind of thing?"

Often their answer is: "I've already gotten along without this in my life. I can continue to get along without it — and I've got too much else to do anyway." This question could better be answered by saying that the arts improve a person's quality of life, that they enrich one's experience and provide insights and understandings seldom achieved by other means.

All of this is true, but it's also pretty abstract. I'd like to be able to state things more concretely, so let me try to do so in what follows.

The fact is that a college education provides a preponderance of information and of understanding, at least once in a while) that is cognitive — factual, observable

Reaching out

On Wednesday, Nov. 20, I will be attending a General Telephone Consumer Advisory Panel in Durham, N.C.

I will be representing all college students in the southeastern United States.

As the student member on the Consumer Advisory Panel, I will be presenting any complaints or opinions to GTE.

If you have any complaints or praise for GTE, please drop by the Student Government Association of office, send a letter or give me a call. I will make sure that your voice is heard at this panel. The SGA office is 120 Student Center; the phone number is 257-3191.

John S. Cain,
SGA president

Increase input

The Student Government Association has established a commission to study the need and the uses for an increase in the student activities fee. This commission will listen to any and all students desiring to speak on the proposed increase, both against and for.

There will be three hearings discussing the proposed activity fee increase: Tomorrow at 7 p.m., to discuss the Student Center portion of the increase; Nov. 26, at 8 p.m., to discuss the SGA/Student Activities Board portion; and Dec. 4, at 3:30 p.m., to discuss the student organization portion. All hearings will be held in 115 Student Center.

We are trying to gather as much student input as possible in order to make the right decision. Please help by letting us know how you feel about the proposed increase of $10 per semester. We appreciate your response.

If you have any questions regarding the hearings, please feel free to call me at the SGA office at 257-3191.

John S. Cain,
SGA president

Football makes better TV than Geneva

At the time of this writing, the world waits precariously for an epic summit conference and Dallas is in the locker room on the short end of a 24-0 first half.

I don't want to talk about it. The summit, I mean.

It's like this: Why in the heck is Reagan downplaying any outcome? Americans have been bombarded with coverage by the overexcited media that — once again — are forcing the issues, but this excitement has not gripped the people in any meaningful sense.

Not like the Chicago Bears, anyway.

So why is the big guy telling us not to expect much? Who's paying attention?

"This meeting can be a historic opportunity to set a steady, more constructive course to the 21st century," Reagan has said. "The history of American-Soviet relations, however, does not augur well for euphoria."

I had to look up "augur." The second definition has something to do with foretelling or predicting.

What I would like to have foretold is just what Reagan and Gorbachev can discuss that their negotiators cannot. How can President "You Guys Are An Evil Empire" Reagan expect to have more success than his army of middlemen?

Apparently, he doesn't intend to. And after months of summit headlines, I don't even want to think about that.

So let's talk football. At least that's a subject that can be bantered about the of UK campus without frustration or regret or...

James A. STOLL

Hmm.

Okay. It's like this: The problem is deceptive. The real trouble is not with the summit but with how the various officials play against it like some carnival backdrop. They talk big, but it is difficult to believe either Reagan or Gorbachev considers future American-Soviet relations the most important aspect of the upcoming meetings.

All's fair in love and war, but all's unfair in politics. The pressures of global problems yield instantly to the pressures of world opinion.

Unfortunately, the media are more than happy to provide the flashbulbs and video cameras on cue. Reporting the event is truly important, but the hours newsmakers spend interviewing experts and debating each other is more than a bit verbose.

By now, the summit's discussions have all been discussed.

All that remains is for the fat lady to lay it on us, and you can bet this week will be one long aria.

We will be treated to interviews with the Geneva locals. We will be taken to interesting little Geneva restaurants. We will tour the city time and again.

Those of us that don't give the coverage a miss, that is.

"WELCOME TO ANOTHER EPISODE OF 'BATTLE OF THE NETWORK STARS'..."

In football the aggression and violence is open and honest. . . . The summit is like an election-year debate without the substance. . . . In football the only mugging for the cameras takes place on the sidelines — where it belongs.

Give me a Cowboys-Bears game any day, even if Coach Landry is getting stomped. And even if UK has lost sight of a bowl game, I look forward to the thunder against Tennessee next weekend.

It's like this: In football the aggression and violence is open and honest. When 300-plus-pound William Perry manipulates a defensive line, there is little or nothing subtle about it. It is, in a very literal sense, a straightforward approach.

The summit is like an election-year debate without the substance: a photo opportunity with overtones of glory. In football the only mugging for the cameras takes place on the sidelines — where it belongs.

In the final analysis the summit may still be more important, but I'm not completely convinced. At least in football only one team can claim they won.

Senior Staff Writer James A. Stoll is a theater arts senior and a Kernel columnist.

It's even said that this information is processed primarily in one hemisphere of the brain.

If we're concerned only with cognitive matters, we're unfortunately developing only part of our human awareness. Under these circumstances, our imaginations may suffer.

Possession of a somewhat stunted imagination after 16 or more years of education seems undesirable. But in this condition really something to worry about? Yes, if functions less effectively than it could, it's harder for us to relate all the bits of information we learn into networks of understanding.

In fact, imagination helps us achieve understanding in the form of seeing relationships not only among the concrete facts we learn, but also among the myriad experiences we live through as people.

If someone wants to develop the ability to clarify, interpret and make better sense of human experience — as well as to make sense of that barrage of data we receive every day in these high-tech times at this large University — the arts will most likely help.

If the notion of possessing a more operative imagination and better understanding of your own and everyone else's human experience is not enough, here's another and perhaps more pragmatic reason: People with some exposure to the arts will most likely do better in the arena of the post-college work.

In a world where it is now predicted that the average employee will change careers at least three times during his or her working life, and where it is estimated that in certain technical fields much of what a college graduate has learned will become obsolete within five years, it seems obvious that those who have developed flexibility of imagination will be the ones who will adapt most easily to changing job requirements.

Moreover, people with broad experiences, with the ability to make sense of seemingly unrelated elements, to perceive how their own contribution relates to a larger scheme are the people most often called upon to supervise and eventually lead others.

Georgetown may see Toyota plant

GEORGETOWN — Mayor Charles Lenahan believes his town has a good chance to land a new car plant and says local residents, with a few exceptions, are willing to accept the growth that would accompany such an event.

"You're going to find some who aren't in favor," said Lenahan, who was grilled by Toyota representatives recently. "You'll find some who would like to see all the factories leave, so they could go back to the way they lived 40 years ago. But most are thrilled to death: They want jobs."

Toyota officials haven't said anything publicly about their site selection work, but Kentucky has been mentioned in published reports as one of five states still in the running for the plant. The others are Indiana, Tennessee, Kansas and Missouri.

Kate passes Puerto Rico, heads westward

CORAL GABLES, Fla. — Hurricane Kate, with gusts of almost 110 mph, continued its slow westward drift Sunday and hurricane warnings were issued for the southeast Bahamas and the north coast of the Dominican Republic.

A hurricane watch was in effect for central Bahamas and the north coast of Haiti, the National Hurricane Center here said.

At 8 p.m. EST, the 11th named storm of the 1985 Atlantic Hurricane season was centered at latitude 21.4 north and longitude 70.0 west, or about 75 miles east of Grand Turk island in the southeast Bahamas, or about 700 miles east-southeast of Miami.

The storm was moving west-northwest at 10-15 mph with maximum sustained winds of 92 mph near its center and seas to 12 feet, the center reported. The storm was expected to continue moving in the same direction for the next 24 hours, and should strengthen through today, forecasters said. Gusts reached more than 109 mph, the center reported.

Archbishop returns from hostage talks

LONDON — Terry Waite, the archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy, returned last night from Lebanon after a secret meeting with kidnappers holding four Americans hostage and declared "progress is being made."

Waite, who spent five days in Lebanon, left London's Heathrow Airport to report immediately to Archbishop Robert Runcie, primate of the Anglican Communion, at Lambeth Palace. He said he would confer with U.S. officials in Europe today.

Before leaving Beirut, Waite said he would fly to London and then Washington. But authoritative church sources said he probably will meet in London with the U.S. officials, whom the sources did not identify.

Waite told reporters in London that he had "hope" after meeting with the kidnappers, but he repeated the warning he gave during a stopover at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, saying, "The situation is still very difficult and dangerous. I still regard that lives are at risk."

Waite's meeting was seen as the first real breakthrough in the long hostage drama. It is believed to be the first contact between a Western intermediary and the kidnappers, thought to belong to the Shiite Moslem extremist organization Islamic Jihad, or Islamic Holy War.

State has few smoking rules, study says

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Kentucky is the nation's largest producer of burley tobacco and has the second greatest percentage of smokers in the nation. It also lags behind other states in restricting smoking in public places, research shows.

Speakes told reporters Reagan had no intention of making any decisions about a SALT II extension until the issue can be taken up next month after Reagan hears the views of Weinberger, Secretary of State George Shultz and others.

McFarlane called the letter leak "unfortunate" and told hundreds of reporters at the International Press Center here that Weinberger feels "the timing is not right" and "is taking steps to find out how it occurred."

Administration officials were reportedly hoping the Soviets would not take the matter seriously, said Speakes told reporters. "I'd be willing to put five bucks right here that General Secretary Gorbachev will not say a word about the Weinberger letter."

He also raised the questions of funding for Radio Free Lexington

Health, an anti-smoking lobbying group. Twenty-seven states don't allow smoking in elevators; 23 forbid it in government-owned buildings and 22 ban smoking in cultural buildings, the report showed. Ten states limit smoking in retail stores and eight have restrictions that apply to private work places, it said.

world," said Benjamin Roach, chairman of the board of directors for the McDowell Cancer Research Foundation.

The formation of the McDowell Foundation in 1978 was the first step in the development of the center. Since then, the foundation has raised more than $28 million for the construction of the cancer complex.

Lucille Parker Markey, from whom the center takes its name, donated $5 million toward the facility's development before her death in 1982.

The center consists of 26 private patient rooms; ambulatory care facilities for the Hopeline, Outreach and Cancer Resource Center programs; administrative offices for the McDowell Network; and laboratories for clinical investigations.

Not only will the center improve the care of cancer patients in Kentucky, but it will "allow for a great amount of clinical research" as well, said Mary Sue Coleman, associate director for research at the center.

But Soviet official Georgy Arbatov, briefing reporters here yesterday, was quick to discuss the subject, describing the Weinberger letter as "a direct attempt to torpedo the arms control process" and saying it exposed a struggle between administration moderates and conservatives.

At a news conference, he said the Soviets would like to believe Reagan is committed to arms control, adding, "In the next two days we will see in fact this will be a case of trial by fire. We'll see just how serious those words are before the whole world."

Wang Chung makes music for L.A. film

THOMAS J. SULLIVAN
Contributing Writer

To Live and Die in L.A. Wang Chung Geffen/Warner Bros. Records

"I wonder why I live alone here/I wonder why we spend these nights together/Is this the way I'll live my life forever?/I wonder why in L.A./To live and die in L.A."

From To Live and Die in L.A. By Wang Chung

Jack Hues and Nick Feldman are back, and their latest album is the soundtrack from the William Friedkin film "To Live and Die in L.A."

Their names may not ring a bell, and their group, Wang Chung, may be only distantly familiar. But the 1984 song "Dance Hall Days" should refresh the memories of the music minded listeners. It was Wang Chung's first hit single.

The past is but a taste of what this talented musical duo has to offer. Move over, Hall and Oates, keep your guard up Tears For Fears, and you Wham! boys better keep looking over your shoulders, 'cause Wang Chung just might be the hottest two-man group around.

To Live and Die in L.A. presents seven new, original songs (along with one song, "Wait," carried over from their last album, Points on the Curve) which are soundtrack strong and yet good enough to stand on their own as a legitimate album, a rarity among recordings of movie music.

The orchestral talents of Hues and Feldman as evidenced on this album of lushly-wrapped tunes can't be ignored.

Even the director of the movie comments in the album's liner notes about his admiration for the work of Wang Chung. And that's no small praise, considering that Friedkin, the director of such cinematic classics as "The Exorcist" and "The French Connection," worked with the highly-touted German synthesizer masters Tangerine Dream on the suspenseful soundtrack of his "Sorcerer" film.

"To Live and Die in L.A." tells the story of a cop searching through Los Angeles for a counterfeiter who killed his partner, with Friedkin commenting along the way on the near-counterfeit lifestyle of America's most chic city.

So it probably comes as no surprise that the tightest song on the album is "Wake Up, Stop Dreaming." It begins with a strong acappella flute section and slowly builds to a fast paced lyrical drive. The lyrics of Hues and Feldman stream off the vinyl, matching the song's dizzying ascension with the bewilderment proclamation that "There's a hole in the ocean the world is pouring through." Don't miss giving this one at least one listen through.

"To Live and Die in L.A." is the type of soundtrack you can enjoy even before you see the chase scenes which the songs enhance in the film. It's a wonder that the makers of "Miami Vice" haven't picked up a couple of these songs for their selves. It's their kind of music.

Zappa declares 'Porn Wars' against Congress, lyric labels

By BARRY MASSEY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Francis Vincent Zappa, rock music's Jonathan Swift, found inspiration in the halls of Congress. So much, in fact, he's incorporated America's lawmakers into his new album.

"An average musician doesn't really think about Washington, D.C. You don't keep your mind on politics," says Zappa. "But you can sure get mad if you get a whiff of it."

This is the same outspoken Frank Zappa, looking more like a stockbroker than a 44-year-old rock musician, who came to the nation's capital in September to do battle against the forces who want to put warning labels on rock albums.

He angered at least one senator, and left town disturbed by the machinery of government and vowing to fight on.

Zappa's plan is to launch the youthful forces of rock 'n' roll as a ship of attack.

He said, "there's a lot of people out there who are 18 years old and I think the people in Washington, who are wasting everybody's time and money, should be alerted to the fact that they can vote like a beast. And I'm going to encourage them to do so."

Phase one of Zappa's plan is his newly released album: "Frank Zappa Meets the Mothers of Prevention." It contains a 12-minute cut called "Porn Wars," which was inspired by the Senate hearing on record labeling demands by the Parents' Music Resource Center.

The song, a typical Zappa creation, is a computer-generated musical collage. It blends electronic and rock music with remarks by senators and witnesses at the Senate Commerce Committee's hearing. The statements often are speeded up or slowed down to change the pitch.

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., for example, can be heard repeating the phrase: "Fire and chains and other objectionable tools of gratification in some twisted minds."

Phase two of Zappa's attack is still uncertain, but he hopes to fashion a music video of the committee proceedings.

Zappa is no stranger to outrage. He thrives on it. His albums, since "Freak Out" was released 20 years ago by The Mothers of Invention, have lampooned and slung satirical darts at many targets.

Along the way he fought the record industry for censorship and accounting practices, suing three record companies. He now owns his own label, Barking Pumpkin, which frees him to pursue interests beyond the rock world.

In 1983, for example, he released a digitally recorded album of his atonal orchestral music performed by the London Symphony Orchestra. Last year, Pierre Boulez conducted three Zappa compositions during a performance in Paris and he recorded his performances of Zappa chamber music. Earlier this month, the Aspen Quartet performed a specially commissioned work by Zappa at the Library of Congress.
