The new mascot for Kentucky has a name at last, and it has been christened "Hot Tamale." This may seem a queer name for a wildeat, but it is not considering where the wildeat came from. Well, if you don't know where Hot Tomale came from, he was captured in the mountains of. New Mexico, and since the people out in that part of the country eat principally hot tomales it was thought appropriate to give it this name.

Now that we have a wildcat from New Mexico, and have a name for him, there is only one thing to worry about; that is to get its native food, hot tamales.

HERBERT

Today we come to say about the originator of our Alumni page, our dear friend Herbert Graham that we first knew him as a lad wearing knee trousers seeking intellectual light from the instructors in the academy of old State University of Kentucky (as it was called in that day). At that time he became a close personal friend and a member of the little band of Preps who termed themselves. The Disciples of She-Pat." It was while yet in this stage of his educational career that we believe he caught the "Neverletge-Spirit" which was so marked throughout his life. We were still in the university when he passed from the portlato of the academy into the halls of higher learning and had first of the academy into the halls of higher learning and had first hand information as to his conduct and leadership. As to show the second well be followed by all who knew him. As a leader he was found among the first in eyervithing that he thought was good for the University and student body. This fact is evidenced by the organizations to which he belonged and of which he was presiding officer. His excellent records in the subjects which he pursued speak for themselves.

We next came in contact with im at Fort Benjamin Harrison.

We next came in contact with him at Fort Benjamin Harrison. Indiana during the month of May 1917 while a member of the Fourth Company of the Officers Training Camp. It was simply a renewine of accuminances and affairs of other days. He displayed an especial aptitude for military work and soon became much interested in that phase of it known as Military Intelligence.

We were commissioned on pecame much interested in that phase of it known as Milliary Intelligence.

We were commissioned on August 15, 1917 and immediately left Indiana not knowing that we would ever meet again but as fate would have it, we response to the state of the state

Bonne as an instruction and of special work.

When we returned to the States we were glad to learn that he had been made full-time Secretary of the Alumni of the University of Kentucky. It was only a short time until Herbert had the Lexington and the University of Kentucky. Alumni Club reorganized with the writer as its president in order that he might become a member of the Executive Committe of the Alumni Association and be actively associated with the Secretary in the affairs of that organization. Our interests were mutual in wanting to see a big alumni organization and to boost the University. Herbert spent all his available time in studying the activities of other such organizations in the country and making plans whereby the best interests of the University of Kentucky could be advanced. It was her to be the University of Kentucky could be advanced. It was her page to the university of the University and activities of the Student body. Herbert's desire was to concentrate all news of an alumni nature on this page where it could be easily found by all active alumni who receive the Kernel weekly.

White Secretary of the Association he assisted in closing up the campaign for the Memorial Building fund and it was one of his most earnest desires that this building be erected which would in a measure commemorate the lives of the 2,400 young Kentuckians who made the supreme sacrifice during the World War.

It was during his term in this office that he came to the World War.

It was during his term in this office that he came to the Executive Committee with the plans for a campaign for a Greater Kentucky Fund. After much discussion the committee accepted his plan and as a result of it we now have one of the most beautiful and useful beaketball buildings in the South; a fine stadium with ample seating capacity for present conditions; added funds in the Student Loan fund and more money for the Patterson Memorial Statute fund. Could there be a more beautiful mountent to the memory of rone who loved the state of the Country and the state of the University?

Herbert's work as Secretary did not stop with the above thines but extended into the feld of organization of local alumni clubs throughout the did to country and in many of the countries of Kentucky. It was not the state who will make it a part of their bears to disseminate proper and all compored alumning the country in the state who will make it a part of their bears to disseminate proper and the state who will make it a part of their bears to disseminate proper and the state of the will of the Supreme Architect of the Universe. Even though Herbert has gone to that land from whose shore no traveler has ever returned, may we follow his example and do his wishes for our Alma Mater.

ress. But there is no donubt but what such obstacles exist.

"These obstructions must be removed. Were there to be cohesion always between the sections; if each geographical division understood the possibilities and limitations, and appreciated the aspirations of the other; if all could understand that the heart of every Kentuckian beats the same and that they should stand together upon matters tending to propietate the welfare of our commonwealth, then indeed, Kentucky with its natural resources and strong foundation of real Anglo-American manhood and native intelligence, would soon forego to the front in the race of State.

hood and native intelligence, would soon lorego to the front in the race's of State.

"There must be a beginning, and some in eastern Kentucky believe that this section might well take the initiative in attempting to bring about real cooperation between the sections. For his reason and the added purpose to acquaint the other parts of the State with eastern Kentucky, the Eastern Kentucky Speakers' Bureau has been formed. It is composed of vigorous, energetic, public spirited and far seeing men, men who have the ability to express their sentiments upon any occasion and to any kind of audience with fire, yet with prudence; with idealism, yet not too much; with true oratory and sentiment, but without bombast.

"A list of these men, together with a short sketch of their accomplishments and qualifications is sent herewith. It is our desire that one of these men appear before any organization that might need a speaker. If you can use, a speaker upon any occasion, it may be that any one of the list herein could respond to your call. If possible, all expenses or part would be appreciated, but do not let a lack of funds prevent your asking for a speaker. There will always be one of these men who might be able to respond at his own expense.

"Practically every civic organization, luncheon club, and newspaper

THE UNIVERSITY'S LEGISLATIVE STATUS

THE UNIVERSITY'S LEGISLATIVE STATUS

Thus far, those who work for the University with the Legislature at Frankfort have been able to either amend or kill bills wrich have been of a detrimental nature of the highest educational institution of Kentucky.

One bill has been introduced which provides for the formation of Agricultural Associations in each county in the State, and where such Associations are formed it would be manitory for the fiscal courts to support them in their county agent and home demonstration work. No doubt, this bill will be passed, and will meet with favor to all agricultural and home-making interests of the State.

Another bill has been introduced which would cause the State of Kentucky to accept certain legislative appropriation passed by our National Congress a little over a year ago. These appropriations would be used for the Experiment Station for the advancement of the science of agriculture. No opposition, thus far, has been shown to this measure.

As to the appropriation for the University, little progress has been made thus far, due to the fact that some of the members of the Budget Commission are not inclined to include the University's request in the appropriation bills on account of there not being sufficient revenues to meet the same.

We most earnestly invite your attention to the letter which Mr. Porter '22 is mailing out to many of the newspapers and civic clubs of the state. It is as follows: "From the beginning of Kentucky's history there has been a failure upon the part of one section of the State to understand the other sections, especially does it seem true that there is a failure on the part of the mountains to understand the mode of thinking and mental attitude of central and western Kentucky, and—the converse. And, it would seem that at no time has the failure to understond and that lack of sympathy between the sections been any more pronounced that it is at the present time in all the course of interningling.

WASHINGTON-THE MAN

One whose life and character yet sways the minds and hearts of man kind one hundred and twenty-five years after his passing will surely neve die. George Washington, whose birth anniversary we celebrate next Monday will live forever as America's guiding star.

Each February 22 recalls the valiant service he gave to his country and the worth of his noble character that has left its impress upon the nation. History has given us no greater example of the true gentleman the courageous soldier, the wise statesman, and the sympathetic friend. Noted for his courtesy, kindness, punctuality, his lack of extrawagance, and his thoughtfulness of others, Washington won the lasting love and high regard of his countrymen.

It was the indomitable spirit of the man and the faith with which the native sons under his 'command were inspired that made Valley Forge the shrine of American liberty. Here Washington's gallant little army, starving and ragged, grimly faced hardships seldom recorded in the long history of the human race in its upward march toward better things; but it was the struggle of these brave men under the leadership of their idolized commander that made Yorktown inevitable and independence a certainty.

nder that made Yorktown inevitable and independence a certainty.

It is difficult for us of this age of modern warfare to realize the sacriand extreme hardship that the warriors of continental days were comed to suffer; still they must be visualized to some extent, in order to receitate the heroism displayed and the spirit of the intrepid leader who ame The Father of His Country.

Washington was as great as president as he was as soldier, but it is a shington the man htat he endeared himself to every American.

COMPULSORY CHAPEL AND LECTURES

The following article was taken from the Yale News

Two institutions which have existed since the college began, and hav stood as the Gibraltar of moral and mental training, are marked for the scrap heap: compulsory chapel and compulsory lectures. These are the preposed changes made by the new editorial board of the Yale News. Hereafter if this editorial policy prevails, Yale men may be both pious and learned but only of their own free will and in their free way.

but only of their own free will and in their free way.

If crabbed age finds itself, for once in a blue moon, in hearty accor with youth insurgent, it may be because the proposed reforms are not s new as the undergraduate editors imagine. Long ago it became evident that the cause of piety is not served by uprooting youth from its slumber and piling it into chapel breakfastless, clad in pajamas, rubber boots an arraincoat. The fact is that, in the multitudinous modern university, but chapel and lectures have lost their ancient function, being a mere instrument of nolicing.

The evil of this system falls primarily upon the lecturer. Men of mine and tepid enthusiasm permit themselves to mumble and drone. Why shou they be doomed to "cover" briefly subjects that have enlisted the peas of the masters of history, literature, science? With all its sweeping radicalist. The Yale News advocates freedom only for juniors and seniors, and only for such of these as maintain a scholarship stand of 75 per cent. It does no occur to it that the effective teaching is intimate and personal—tutoria that no man should be permitted to lecture who cannot command and rewarvoluntary attendance.

What The News proposes is, however, the thin end of a wedge. Who the grave, the reverend, the 75 per cent. seniors beycett will doubtless lost their droning; but no effort at reformation can do more than delay the abolition of a system that has been out of date almost since the advent of the printed book.

THE SELECTION OF A CAREER

Positive results are being accomplished in helping the college graduate find the work he is best fitted to do. A following out of certain specific considerations will materially aid the young man who, after four or more years of intensive training such as is now offered in the major schools of the country, faces life's work. The terms "career" and "life's work" are used advisedly because in most cases the college graduate has fairly well decided what he wishes to do. After this his major problem is the selection of the particular organization in which he is to give his energies play. On the other hand, there are a large number of young men who have little ideas of the line of work in which they can be most effective, and here again the choosing of a company in which they may properly "find" themselves is most important.

A few years ago, except in isolated cases, there was apparantly no scientific method in any young man's mind as to how such a problem could be approached. As a result, the man, as well as the industry, lost a great deal of time in getting to the place where a proper contribution could be made and rewarded. With the recent growth on an increasingly close relationship between educational institutions and industry, however, the program begins to take definite shape; and it is our belief that in later years the average student will attack this problem of choosing the company with which he wishes to become affiliated in much the same manner as he attacks any laboratory test; first setting up his problem, then getting

OIL PAINTINGS COLLECTED BY U. K. ART DEPARTMENT

Art Dept. Possesses Group of Excellent Works by Modern Painters and Reproduc-tions of Old Masters

HAS LARGE COLLECTION

One of the best collections of oil paintings in Lexington is that which is in the art department at the University of Kentucky. The collection includes a number of excellent works by modern painters and also reproductions of some of the old masters. Professor Sax, head of the department, is mainly responsible for securing the works and he is adding to the group as opportunity permits.

Among the collection are two Russian pictures one reproduction of the high ocean surf with lowly blue green tones in the water, and the other of a little gril standing in the path of a pale apring sunbeam with a foreground of a typical Russian room. Both of these pictures have colorings and combinations of the most vivid hue.

However, just to prove to the rest of the world that it was February (for the benefit of those who don't know, I will say February includes the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, and Valentine day) in America, there fell in Minneapolis on Lincoln's birthday a quarter of an inch or red snow, without the permission of the weather bureau. (Can you imagine such a "fox pass," without the permission of the weather bureau.) Honest, that's the truth, though it does seem as if every native of the city had indulged in bad liquor. To cap it off, the people were so "flambusted," they called the fire department to ask where the fire was.

All Akkie said about it though, was, "Well, we have red snow, white moon, and blue grass. Three cheers for the 'Red, White, and Blue.'

During the first few minutes of the game there was some excellent guarding. Kentucky scored first when Jenkins dribbled down the floor for a pretty crip shot. Georgia followed with a field goal. "The said giant centre on Tech's team measured about seven feet in height and was a terror. When he got the bail in his hands, not one of the State players could possibly touch it. He would shoot and miss and shoot again. It was a problem how to stop him.

Then came the eleverest play pulled—the giant got the ball under his basket, with the score 25 to 24 in favor of State, and a half minute to play. "Mike" Carey, State's back guard ran up to him and slightly bent forward. Underwood, State's center, ran up Carey's back and knocked the ball out of the giant's hands as the whistle blew—elever work."

All of which is well nigh a compliment to Carey and one missed by the er of this column as well.

Picked up The Alabamian, published by the students of Alabama Colelge, and the first thing that attracted my attention was a heavy black border around the front page.
"Somebody's dead" I remarked to myself. And sure enough in the left hand column was a story about the death of their beloved president. In the next column was a story about a drey hunt. I turned over to page four and found the same heavy black border. In the first column was as mass of reading matter headed "Jokes," in the second column was jokes in the third column was some more reading matter headed "Wit and Humor," with two or three funny looking portraits half way down the page, in the fourth column was some more junk headed "Jusa Little Smile" and finally in the fifth column a picture of a twentieth century flapper, heading a lot more jokes.

Now if that ain't consistency, what is?

Her Majesty, Basketball, a la Girls' Rules, is now at the very peak of her power in the realm of W.A.A. Every day at 4 o'clock numbers of enthusiasts report to the woman's gymasium for practice. Much progress is being made toward building up class teams. The special class for referees which Miss Skinner is conducting twice a week, has been veil attended, and several girls will qualify this year as referees in girl's-rule basketball. Schedules for class tournaments and Greek letter matches have been arranged by the executive council of the W.A.A.

In order to be eligible for a sorority or dormitory team a girl must report practice at least six times during the season. All Greek letter chapters are urged to form teams and take part in the series of games to be held of the following is have been elected class managers of basketball. Youth has good reason to ask that the church and her asociated agencies, including various movements, asociations, etc., work out a sound, unified philosophy of life work adjustment, and achieve its integration with the educative process. Many students are unaware of the wide range of vocational choice open to them at graduation. This range continues to increase specialized industry. For its suggestive value and information the following list of vocations, in use at Syracuse University, is given:

Hope to Stimulate Interest
The following is taken from the letter sent to the sororities by Frances Lee, president of the association:
"In conducting the contest, the association hopes to stimulate interest among students and greatly to improve its programs by getting them directly into the hands of the students so that there may be expressions of real needs and interests.
"It is also hoped that the variety in programs will satisfy the demand for 'something, different,' and that the program committee may be encouraged to take up its task with new interest and ideas after the close of

But on the other hand it occurs to us that this holiday may, in a way, be the happy motive for causing som "honest-to-goodness" deep thinking among the intellectuals and otherwise of our student body. Take this as a start: Do you honestly believe that George, with all due respect to his worth, couldn't tell a lie? Yes? Then answer this: How, gentle readers, did he ever manage to "rate" at adance without doing some unearthy things to his respective "line?" Move on, Socrates take up your lantern, for the truthful man must be found.
