By DAVID NAYLOR
Contributing Writer

Applications are now being accepted for $30,000 in scholarships offered by the University Bookstore and the office of academic affairs.

The scholarships are awarded through a joint agreement between the academic affairs office and the bookstore.

"Three years ago, we decided to begin a scholarship program to benefit the general campus community, and last year, we began this program," said Donald Sands, vice chancellor for academic affairs.

"We decided that with the money we were making from rental of the bookstore, we could use that money for a good purpose. We wanted to put the money the students had spent on books back into the campus."

Faith Harders, assistant to Sands, said the program attracted between 430 to 440 applicants last year, resulting in 230 awarded scholarships.

The deadline for applications is March 7.

Both Sands and Harders said the bulk of scholarships go to undergraduates, while a lesser amount go to graduate students in professional fields and to other graduate students.

"Last year, about eight to 10 scholarships were granted to medical and dental students," Sands said. He added that because these students are not usually financially able to afford their education, they amass large bills at the end of their terms.

Sands said less scholarship money

UK's past revisited for birthday party

Governor's proclamation, singing visit by Chandler highlights of SAB affair

By WENDY SUSAN SMITH
Staff Writer

"Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday to you, Happy birthday, dear UK, Happy birthday to you."

It's that time of the year again and UK is celebrating its 121st.

And Gov. Martha Layne Collins present to the University is a proclamation declaring this week UK Celebration Week.

This week-long celebration, sponsored by the Student Activities Board, will be highlighted by a birthday celebration at noon tomorrow in the Student Center Great Hall. Former Gov. Albert B. "Happy" Chandler will be the guest speaker and he will sing "On, On U.K." and "My Old Kentucky Home."

"I think this event is a good chance to help the community celebrate like a regular birthday party. It is our treat to the University," said Paul Hayden, SAB president.

"This celebration is a reminder to let students know how long this institution has been here and hopefully how long we will continue to be striving for academic excellence," Hayden said.

A 500-piece, three-layer cake is being donated by the University Food Services.

"This birthday party and week of events will be one of the greatest attempts to make it a campuswide celebration. I want to make the entire campus aware of the University's founding day," said Christy Bradford, SAB member at large.

Also during the party, a 9'-by-5 1/2' mural of campus life that will hang in the Student Center will be unveiled.

"I am expecting this celebration to go over really well. Not only will it be fun, but I think it is important that everybody is aware of the history of UK," Bradford said.

Theater department degree lets students concentrate on acting

By MICHELLE D. RUSSELL
Contributing Writer

"We have one of the strongest theater programs in the country because people just want to do good work," said Richard Rand, a UK theater professor.

And these instructors bring that good work to the classroom and to stages on and off campus.

The theater department's main responsibility has always been to educate students to work not only as actors and directors, but also in the areas of technical theater.

But now the department is expanding its responsibility. Last month, the department began offering a more specialized undergraduate degree, a bachelor of fine arts in acting. This degree is geared more to the student concentrating on acting. The degree will be offered in addition to the bachelor's and master's degrees currently offered.

James Rodgers, chairman of the theater department, said there is a possibility that the department will offer a bachelor's in technical theater in the next five years.

"We have a terrific faculty here and one that is really qualified to address the B.F.A.," said Patrick Kagan-moore, a professor of theater. "I think we can turn out a talented and educated actor."

Some students have taken what they learned in the classroom and succeeded in theater off campus.

Henry Kevin Haggard, a fine arts senior, said the new degree provides him a more positive focus and more time to concentrate on his acting training not only in the department but also in community theater in Lexington.

Haggard said community theater enabled him to be paid for his acting and to work in different aspects of theater with a wide range of people.

"It gives me a chance to grow that I wouldn't have had elsewhere," he said. "It is more of a challenge to work with a smaller cast."

Rodgers said: "We encourage students to audition here first but if they aren't cast, it (community theater) gives them an opportunity to do other things, and it gives instructors a way to keep up their craft."

Aquino issues a call for national protest to denounce Marcos

going to drive me out. The people are behind me," he said.

MANILA, Philippines — Corazon Aquino called yesterday for non-violent protests against newly re-elected President Ferdinand E. Marcos, who declared, "I am the president. They are not going to drive me out."

A day after the National Assembly declared Marcos winner of an election marked by charges of fraud and terrorism, more than half a million Filipinos joined his opponent in a downtown park rally — a much bigger rally than any that had gathered in the campaign leading to the Feb. 7 presidential election.

Aquino called for strikes and school shutdowns on the day after Marcos' Feb. 26 inauguration for a new six-year term, and urged a boycott of banks and newspapers owned by Marcos' cronies.

Aquino, who had vowed to lead any demonstrations if she was cheated at the polls, also called on the military and police to disobey orders that were "unjust."

"Although unarmed, I feel like the young boy David prepared to face the giant Goliath," she said. "If Goliath refuses to yield, we shall escalate our non-violent struggle."

In a news conference at the presidential palace, Marcos again rejected and charged he won through fraud and said he would not step down.

"I am the president. They are not going to drive me out. The people are behind me," he said.

Marcos also announced that Ver, the armed forces chief, had resigned, and he had accepted the resignation. But he said Ver would remain available as a consultant.

Constabulary Chief Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos was appointed interim chief of staff, Marcos said.

Ver, 66, was charged in the August 1983 assassination of Aquino's husband, opposition leader Benigno Aquino. But a court later acquitted him, as other military men and one civilian also accused in the murder.

U.S. officials, concerned about a growing communist insurgency in the Philippines, saw Ver as a hindrance to military reforms.

Ver's resignation was announced a day before Marcos, Aquino, and other Filipino leaders were to meet with Philip Habib, a special envoy sent by President Reagan to observe the aftermath of the divisive election.

"I am convinced that if there was any fraud, it may have been committed by the lower levels and was not authorized by the upper leadership," Marcos said.

Asked to comment on Reagan's statement that his victory over Aquino was marked by fraud, Marcos said Reagan "has been wrongly informed, and I intend to see it that the correct information reaches him."

Aquino called for "a day of standstill" after Marcos' inauguration, advocating work stoppages and school boycotts.

Marcos links U.S. aid, future of military bases

By BRIAN BARGER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — One day after being declared winner of the Philippine election, President Ferdinand Marcos threatened yesterday to abrogate the military bases treaty with the United States if the Reagan administration cuts off aid to his government.

"If that happens, we will have to talk about renegotiating the bases," Marcos said yesterday on CBS' interview program "Face The Nation."

Marcos added, however, "We have to renegotiate those bases anyway because you have not paid the compensatory package for the use of military facilities, to the tune of about $70 million."

During his 20 years in power, Marcos has repeatedly used the treaty covering the bases — the two largest U.S. military facilities outside the United States — as a bargaining chip to assure support from Washington.

He also brought up the issue during the election campaign, accusing challenger Corazon Aquino of being ready to break the treaty, while denying he ever faltered on the issue.

Both Marcos and Aquino have said the United States should pay a higher rent for use of the bases.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who led the official U.S. delegation that observed the election, said Marcos' refusal to carry out reforms has jeopardized the security of the bases.

"As a matter of fact we believe our bases are in jeopardy because the Philippine army doesn't have the efficiency it ought to have," said

Personal care

Research by former UK doctor paved way for machine that allows patients to self-inject painkillers

By J. D. VANHOESE
Contributing Writer

While President Reagan was recovering from colon surgery last summer, instead of pushing a button to call a nurse for a morphine injection, he pushed a button that immediately sent a small amount of painkiller into his system.

The procedure Reagan used to administer his own painkiller is called Patient-Controlled Analgesia, and some major research on PCA therapy was done at UK by Lexington anesthesiologist Richard Bennett.

PCA involves the connection of the patient to an infusion pump by an intravenous line that transports painkilling medication to the patient's bloodstream whenever it's needed.

The main research on PCA, Bennett said, is that it individualizes narcotic therapy. "It allows patients to give themselves just the right amount of pain medication that they need at every instance of time that they need it."

The traditional way that pain is controlled in post-surgical patients is by intramuscular injection of narcotic painkillers by physicians or nurses. Bennett says the medical community has been somewhat hesitant to accept PCA, simply because it involves the use of narcotics, which are addictive and have high potential for abuse.

"It is a new therapy and a new concept, and like all new concepts, it takes a while to catch on," he said. "One thing that slows its acceptance is the fact that it uses narcotic analgesics and health-care professionals are traditionally very conservative in their use of narcotics."

"With this machine, if you feel mild pain you just press the button and the pain eases off."

Lonnie Weddington, former Medical Center cancer patient

One of the benefits of PCA, said Lonnie Weddington, 57, a former cancer patient at the UK Medical Center, is that he didn't have to worry about waiting for a shot.

"With this machine, if you feel mild pain you just press the button and the pain eases off," said Weddington.

This added psychological benefit to the patient, who knows the medication is available at the push of a button, is significant, Bennett said.

probably hesitant to accept the pumps at first, but only "until we learned more about it."

An impediment to the use of PCA has been widespread physician fear that patients could become dangerously oversedated or even addicted to the morphine or Demerol that is commonly used to alleviate pain.

But in both cases, the fears are unsubstantiated, according to Bennett's research and by the nature of the controls on the pumps themselves.

A timer built into the device controls the minimum interval that a patient can activate the pump, thereby making it virtually impossible to overdose himself. The dosage is controlled similarly and is set by the physician in advance.

"I conducted a study that demon-

Campus Calendar

Information on this calendar of events is collected and coordinated through the Student Center Activities Office, 203/204 Student Center, University of Kentucky. The information is published as supplied by the on-campus sponsor, with editorial privilege allowed for the sake of clarity of expression. For student organizations or University departments to make entries on the calendar, a Campus Calendar form must be filled out and returned to the Student Activities Office. Deadline: Forms will be accepted no later than the Monday preceding the publication date.

Superstar Diana Ross bringing her familiar hits to Lexington

By LYN CARLISLE
Assistant Arts Editor

Some names are household words. And one of those names has never asked "where did our love go," as audiences have been following her since the beginning of her career.

Diana Ross will be stopping (in the name of love) at 8 p.m. on March 2 in Rupp Arena to eat Lexington alive.

Since the Supremes No. 1 pop hit "Where Did Our Love Go" in 1964, this master of delivery has recorded 25 plus albums in addition to easing her gleaming white smile onto the big and small screens with such works as "Lady Sings the Blues," a tribute to the legendary Billie Holiday for which Ross received an Oscar nomination, and "The Wiz," which flopped despite the all-star cast in this movie version of the popular Broadway play.

Her most recent album, Eaten Alive, has been out 18 weeks and on its down swing is still in the last quarter of the top 200 albums on Billboard's Top Pop chart and last week it was 67 on the black chart.

According to Billboard, the extended twelve-inch version of "Chain Reaction" has been well received in the clubs, making it to No. 12 on that chart.

She's also been in the news for tying the knot with the Mt. Everest-climbing millionaire Arne Naess Jr.

According to People magazine, the couple is now honeymooning at a private Tahitian islet that Naess purchased in 1972, and if you've got a sharp eye you just may spot him front row at Rupp.

When Naess was found front row at Ross's concerts in Paris, Los Angeles, London and Stockholm she serenaded him with "Reach Out and Touch (Somebody's Hand)." Apparently he was charmed by what Rolling Stone's "History of Rock and Roll" editor Jim Miller calls her "feel for superficiality mixed with eroticism," that can make "your skin crawl."

And well he should be. For it was Ross's voice that helped launch Motown records during the 60s with the Supremes, on whose career the successful Broadway play "Dreamgirls" is largely based. All three original members lived in Detroit and were friends in high school when they formed a group and named themselves the Primettes, after the Frimmes who eventually became the Temptations.

Through the Temptations they met Motown president Berry Gordy Jr., who signed them with his label after they graduated in 1961. With the writing trio of Lamont Dozier, Eddie and Brian Holland behind them, the Supremes held 23 hit singles between 1963 and 1969.

Gordy convinced them to change their name to the Supremes and proceeded to pay special attention to his dreamgirls, making sure they took classes in dance, charm and singing while they continued to record. But from the start Gordy knew who his star was and foreshadowed that career by changing the trio to Diana Ross and the Supremes in 1967.

In December, 1969, Ross broke away into a solo career, initially handled by the husband/wife writing team of Nick Ashford and Valerie Simpson who gave her the hit she now sings to Naess, "Reach Out and Touch," as well as the number one pop and R&B hit "Ain't No Mountain High Enough."

Ross managed to keep afloat throughout the turbulent '70s, and though her film "Mahogany" did not hold commercial success, the theme song "Do You Know Where You're Going To" hit number one on the pop charts in 1976.

Even when disco flashed its sequined tights, Diana Ross was still a name to be discussed over dinner as she conquered the charts with "The Boss" in 1979.

Since 1980 her clear vocals have still dominated the airwaves with "Upside Down," "I'm Coming Out" and Michael Jackson's "Muscles," Diana Ross brings 22 years of Motown music to Lexington's Rupp Arena March 2 at 8 p.m.

even though she switched from Motown to RCA records. If her track record holds, the 41-year-old Mrs. Diana Naess should stay a familiar discussion topic for several years to come.

Diana Ross will perform at Rupp Arena at 8 p.m. on March 2. Tickets are $17.75 and may be purchased at Rupp Arena box office and both Disc Jockey Records locations. Lower arena seats are still available.

Mellencamp tickets on sale

Staff reports

Tickets are now on sale for the John Cougar Mellencamp concert on March 12 in Rupp Arena.

Riding the success of his Scarecrow LP, Mellencamp has been selling out concert halls around the nation. In fact, according to sources at the Rupp box office, Mellencamp is likely to cancel any show that does not sell out in advance.

That kind of snobbery stands in sharp contrast to Mellencamp's current "hometown boy" stance so prevalent on his latest album, which is packed with hard-hitting songs about the working class' struggles against unemployment, farm foreclosures and the like.

His attitudes about stardom notwithstanding, Mellencamp's current tour has been well received. The Indiana native draws heavily on songs from his Scarecrow and Uh Huh LPs, including the hits "Lonely Ol' Night," "Authority Song" and "Pink Houses," as well as earlier hits such as "Jack and Diane."

Mellencamp's concerts also feature a 30 minute set of '60s classics, anchored by his soulful cover of the Drifters' hit, "Under the Boardwalk," available on the flip side of his "R-O-C-K in the U.S.A." single.

Tickets are $14.75, available at the Rupp Arena box office and both Disc Jockey Records locations.

Tennis teams finish successful weekend

By JEFF ASHLEY
Contributing Writer

Mike Patrick might not have expected his team to start off its spring season with a 7-0 record, but with a shutout over Wake Forest yesterday, he's more than happy with its play.

"We're better than I thought we would be," the UK women's tennis coach said. "We've had some good wins over some solid teams. We've really put it all together."

UK freshman Sonia Hahn defeated Jackie Van Wijk in No. 1 singles play, 1-6, 6-2, 7-5 yesterday. In the No. 2 spot, sophomore Tamaka Takagi beat Monica Kowalewski 6-1, 6-0.

Patrick was particularly impressed with the play of freshman Chris Karges, who beat Laurie Jackson 6-1, 6-1 in the No. 3 singles.

"Chris Karges has been playing extremely well for us," said Patrick, who is in his second year at UK. "She's beaten some good players lately and has kept a positive attitude by working hard."

Karges was ranked 63rd in the National 18 for 1984 and fifth in doubles. She reached the quarterfinals of four national doubles tournaments in her junior career.

In No. 1 doubles, Takagi and Hahn defeated Van Wijk and Kowalewski

6-2, 2-6, 6-3, and the team of Karges and Caroline Knutson defeated the No. 2 spot by beating Jackson and Ludowyks 6-4, 6-1.

The 19th-ranked Wildcats also shut out Mississippi State 9-0 last Thursday and beat Minnesota 8-1 Friday.

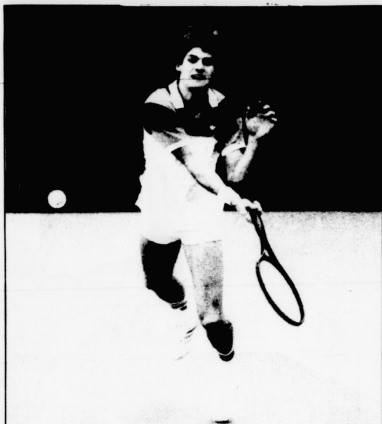

"The girls really worked hard during the month of January and it has shown," Patrick said. "I hope we keep it up for Georgia. They (Georgia) are probably a little bit better on paper than we are, but it will be a very good match."

UK takes on the 12th-ranked Bulldogs at noon on Saturday at UK's Hilary J. Boone Indoor Tennis Center.

In a match that finished up later last night, the UK men's team defeated Vanderbilt 7-2 to up its record to 5-0 on the season and 1-0 in the SEC.

In singles play: No. 1 seed Jeff Barry (Vandy) defeated Pat McGee 7-6, 7-6, 6-4. UK's Greg Van Emburgh defeated Cliff Rietief 6-2, 4-6, 7-6 in No. 2 singles. No. 3 David Keavins (UK) defeated Reid Rafter 6-4, 6-3. No. 4 Richard Benson (UK) defeated Brad Goodman 6-4, 5-7, 7-6.

In the No. 5 singles, Andrew Varga (UK) defeated Steve Herzog 6-2, 6-1, while Murray Garrots

BRUCE SMITH/UK Staff

UK's Pat McGee lost to Vanderbilt's Jeff Barry in No. 1 singles play yesterday. UK won the match 7-2.

(Vandy) defeated Kenny Rylee 7-5, 5-7, 7-5 in No. 6 singles.

In doubles play: UK's McGee and Van Emburgh defeated Barry and Rafter 6-3, 7-6 in No. 1 doubles. Benson and Rylee (UK) defeated Rietief and Fletcher Lance 6-2, 2-6, 7-5. And Keavins and Varga (UK) defeated Goodman and Garrots 4-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Vanderbilt dropped to 1-2 on the season and 0-1 in the conference.

Gymnastics team beats North Carolina State

By JIM WHITE
Staff Writer

Ranked Nos. 2, 3 and 4 in the nation and LSU is the 12th-ranked team.

The UK women's gymnastics team defeated North Carolina State in a dual meet Saturday, but the win didn't quite reach the expectations of Coach Leah Little.

UK's 175.20-170.50 win reflects the type of scores the women have recorded this season, but they're not high enough to be competitive on a national level, Little said.

"Today was to be kind of a turning point," she said. "I thought we would have a really good meet today that would send us off to SECs, but we're not scoring any better than we did a month ago."

UK freshman Diane Sill edged N.C. State's Paulina Probst in the all-around competition with a score 35.55 to 35.45. Sophomore Robin Leggett finished third with a score of 35.35 for UK.

Little sees improvement in the team. However, the scores of the squad are at a level too low for national competition.

"So far we really have not come along like we are capable," she said. "With each meet they gain experience and by this point we should be starting to hit our routines, but we aren't."

One reason for Little's concern is that the SEC is the No. 1 conference in the country in gymnastics. Florida, Georgia and Alabama are

The difference between UK and other SEC teams is very simply summed up by Little.

"The bottom line is, they execute and we don't," she said. "They make their routines and we don't."

Injuries have also contributed to UK's problems this season. With some of the team's top performers out of competition, Little has had to rely on some of the less-experienced athletes.

Sophomore Cindy Durr, who holds the school record in the vault, had knee surgery last year and has been out of competition.

"We are fortunate in the fact that we are deep," Little said. "I thought (her injury) would hurt us, but these other girls have really come through."

UK will next travel to Gainesville, Fla., for the SEC Championship where they will compete with the highly ranked teams in the conference.

"We could do well against these top teams," Little said. "Our goal is to improve our standing every year and to establish some credibility for UK gymnastics."

Blocked shot helps Devils defeat Irish

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke guard Johnny Dawkins blocked David Rivers' jump shot with one second left to preserve the second-ranked Blue Devils' 75-74 college basketball victory over No. 14 Notre Dame yesterday.

Duke led 73-65 with 2:16 left, but Notre Dame, helped by missed Blue Devil free throws, rallied. A three-point play by Jim Dolan with 29 seconds left pulled Notre Dame within one point.

Duke's Billy King, a 50 percent free-throw shooter, then missed the front end of a one-and-one with 13 seconds left, giving the Fighting Irish their final opportunity in the nationally televised game.

After a timeout, Rivers drove to the right of the foul line and went up for a 15-foot jumper, but Dawkins slapped it away as the final seconds ticked off the clock.

Dawkins, who scored 18 points, canned three buckets and fed King for a dunk as Duke stretched a seven-point halftime lead to 31-41 with 14:27 left.

Notre Dame, 17-5, cut the lead to four several times, but was unable to get closer until the final 1:44 when a 9-2 run brought the Irish within one.

During that run, Duke's David

Henderson missed a one-and-one with 41 seconds left before King's errant free throw.

Duke, 25-2 after its ninth straight win, grabbed a quick 6-0 lead, but Notre Dame tied it 8-8 and led 20-19 with 9:15 left on a short jumper by Mark Stevenson.

Duke meets Miami (Fla.) and Notre Dame goes up against Manhattan Wednesday night.

Bodine staves off Earnhardt to win Daytona 500

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Geoff Bodine outlived Dale Earnhardt yesterday to win the crash-marred Daytona 500 NASCAR stock car race.

Bodine took the lead for the final time 33 laps from the end and was holding off the determined Earnhardt when the latter suddenly slowed and drove into the pits for gas on lap 197 of the 200-lap race.

When Earnhardt roared back onto the track, his engine blew, allowing Bodine to cruise to his first victory at Daytona International Speedway and the fourth of his career.

Bodine won a stock-car record $192,715. That broke the record of $185,500 set in this race last year by Bill Elliott.

Terry Labonte wound up finishing a distant second, 11.26 seconds behind Bodine's Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS, followed by defending Winston Cup champion Darrell Waltrip, the last car on the lead lap. Labonte drove a new Oldsmobile Delta 88, while Waltrip and Earnhardt also were in Chevrolets.

Rusty Wallace was fourth and Bobby Hill Jr. fifth.

The late battle between Bodine and Earnhardt lent drama to what had been until that point a race highlighted by attrition.

The heavily favored Elliott, the defending champion who started from the pole after a qualifying lap of 205.039 mph, led only the second lap. He appeared to be running a very controlled race when his Ford Thunderbird was damaged in a wild fourth-turn melee that damaged or took out nine cars.

The 36-year-old Bodine, from Cheung, N.Y., averaged 148.124 mph in the race slowed by eight caution flags for 46 laps, all of them in the first 126 laps.

State's tanning bed could be yet another of Collins' legacies

A person is only as good as his degree of browning. Apparently that's the philosophy of a whole string of state officials who may have participated in the purchase of the now notorious Governor's Mansion tanning bed.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins has a lot of devoted civil servants. Deputy Parks Commissioner Bill Flora, who "couldn't see anything wrong" with the $3,250 purchase, said Michael Diehl, director of purchasing in the Finance and Administration Cabinet, told him to arrange the acquisition. Diehl said Lowell Clark in the Cabinet's office of management services, asked him. Taxpayers finally found out that Beverly T. Greenwell, who oversees the mansion, ordered it.

The purchase brightened the face of Steven A. Bass, president of the Tropical Sun Distributing Co. Inc. in Louisville, which made the particular bed. "I think it adds a lot of credibility to the industry that the governor has a tanning bed. This way she has some color. During the winter she needs a little color in her face."

And that's so true. How can Kentuckians expect their First Lady to do them proud when she goes to the mats with people like Toyota and the Dubai sheiks if she can't at least match their complexions? This tanning bed could be as big an investment in the commonwealth's future as John Y. Brown's helicopter. In fact, a good tan these days will get you a lot further than a Sikorsky.

Of course there's makeup, but $3,250 now can save some money down the road. A good makeup program can be costly.

The governor's press secretary doesn't know, though, how often Collins or her family uses the bed. "It's a private matter," she said. "I don't ask how often (Collins) uses the (mansion's) washer or dryer."

Washers, dryers, tanning beds. Let's hope our next governor continues this tradition of support for industry.

OK, trivia buffs, try these: Why was an old ROTC building burned down in the 1970s? What famous astronaut was a graduate student at UK? And who really was the founder of UK? It's not James K. Patterson!

The answers to these questions are only part of the 121-year history of UK, which will be celebrated at noon tomorrow in the Student Center Great Hall. History is being made every day, and you can take part in it by attending this birthday party, which will feature guest speaker Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler, a 50-piece birthday cake and coffee (donated by University Food Services) and the unveiling of a mural.

Why bring this up? Most students feel that getting to, and doing well in, classes is more important than the history of UK. However, knowing how yesterday's campus evolved into today's does mean something (or should), because it reflects the growth of the first truly public university in Kentucky, and the people who founded it.

Maybe it doesn't seem important that James K. Patterson put his own money up as collateral so the three campus buildings could be finished, but if he hadn't would UK be here today? Would you have the opportunity to attend a good pharmacy school, law school, nursing school, etc.

With the weight of midterms on their way, sometimes UK seems mundane, the campus life apathetic.

Memorial Hall bells make strange music

The campus is, needless to say, a noisy place. Collect a thousand or so people in such a small area, and you can expect as much sound as any herd makes.

An interesting thing is that one can walk along, alone or with friends, and not hear the masses on either side.

This combination of crowd and introversiveness effectively shuts out other campus sounds. One must choose the time of day carefully to listen in on the birds, or the carillon bells in Memorial Hall.

Such a set of bells is a very traditional aspect of university campuses, but the irregularity with which these bells play their tunes tends to push them even more to the periphery of students' sensual experiences here.

Furthermore, one needs ears that hear to grasp the point of the whole affair. For some of these students who have the quiet and the inclination to listen, these bells emit just a scarcely differentiated jumble of sound.

It is a meager remnant these days that can pick out the Reformation classics "Now Thank We All Our God" and "If Thou But Suffer God to Guide Thee," the sacramental "Pans Angelicus" or the evangelical favorites "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past."

But there they come on the vagaries of the wind, unheard or ignored, as anomalous perhaps as a canary in a coal mine.

No doubt there is an irony, and a pleasant one at that, in an institution that bends over backward to shun religion or to dissect it in the classroom, but that at the same time is involuntarily serenaded by the very sentiments it wishes to deny.

It seems hardly believable that the University could have chosen such offensive songs for the Memorial Hall repertoire. Not that people in the Administration or Service Buildings might not sing those same tunes on Sundays, but they have been carefully taught that such activities and beliefs are only tolerable if kept inside that closet where — we are constantly reminded — Jesus taught people to pray.

Perhaps the music was prescribed by the donors, as being appropriate for memorials. One hopes that is indeed the case, and that the hymn tunes won't succumb to the latest version of pious zeal.

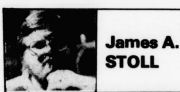

Aside from their musical attractiveness, they are a reminder of older, healthier days when things still fit together. That's a scarce, precious vision at almost any university now, where the grove of academe resembles the trees in Patter-

"700 Club" host Pat Robertson (concerning a possible bid for the presidency)

James A. STOLL

It is hard to come to grips with the incredible fact that the presidential era of Ronald Reagan is nearing its home stretch.

It makes your average hippie-liberal feel democratic all over. Even the frivolity of the recent election in the Philippines can be taken with a grain of salt, now that long-lead democratic power is resurfacing here at home. 1988 is shaping up as one of those truly "up-for-grabs" elections that can make a free society proud of its system of government.

Even if we lose again. And for Reagan, one way or the other, it will be "back to the shadows again."

These glorious tidings are only slightly tarnished by news reports offering such ludicrous election possibilities for 1988 as Lee Iacocca of Chrysler vs. Pat Robertson of the "700 Club."

Here we are, entering a new era of freedom and process, and our sacred pool of "political analysts" are all out getting drunk and making silly predictions.

Well, they aren't the only ones. You want heroes, America? How about a Democratic ticket composed of Clint Eastwood for President and Sally Ride for Vice President?

Or, if you are inclined toward subtlety, maybe the Leonard Nimoy/Mark Hamill ticket is the one. And may the Force be with you.

Then again, if the hard-hitting sort of hero is preferred, we might be able to conceive Sylvester Stallone and Kyle Alzado to serve their country.

I cannot bring myself to offer the Mr. T/Hulk Hogan ticket. Some things are better left undiscussed.

Still, you just never know. If Bonzo's buddy can hold the White House for eight years, we had better not completely discount the fan.

After all, the Republicans will need candidates, too.

I wonder if they'd consider Jethro

Bodine. Even Larry Bigg would have to admit that a colorful character is worth something.

As much as I'd like to see a Democratic president in 1988, I would prefer a race that offers a real choice. Not just a couple of differences in opinion, mind you, but two — or even four — candidates that everyone can respect . . . at least to some degree.

The candidates I most fear include Henry Kissinger, Jimmy Swaggart and George Will.

Hitler had a real way with words, you know?

But for now, with the real thing but two years away, Republicans and Democrats alike can enjoy shuffling and re-shuffling the odds and ends available for nomination.

Why not a race between Dan Rutherford/Harry Reasoner and Billy Graham/Jerry Falwell — winner takes all the media.

In the "lesser of two evils" category, we could have Billy Martin/Tom Landry vs. Howard Cosell/Dick Vitale.

But my real choice, my "dream race," would have to be Dustin Hoffman and Jane Fonda against George Bush and Richard Nixon.

Oh, the humanity.

Lack of snow removal makes UK paths risky

I returned from lunch at the library deli to my office in the Patterson Office Tower last week. While following the "path" cut by the grounds crew, I slipped and fell flat on my back. I was wearing tall boots with tread meant to supply traction and stability on snow, but the "path" was ice.

All the paths on campus were ice, barnished to a high luster by the marvelous machine which, instead of plowing or scraping the snow, mashes and polishes it.

The walkway at the main entrance to the Office Tower was solid ice and I slipped again attempting to enter the building.

Earlier in the day, while making a trip to the Service Building, I walked carefully down the main walk to Limestone Street. Though slick, the walk could be maneuvered until I reached the steps — supply traction and stability on snow, but the "path" was ice.

I didn't check the steps in front of the College of Law, but experience has shown that these too are seldom slick of chunks of ice, packed clean and shiny by feet trying to gain access to the building. You'd think the faculty, especially there, would be aware of liability in the event of a serious injury from a fall. Believe me, if I break something in the line of duty, traveling through campus, I shall sue.

I'm amazed that more injuries aren't caused by this lack of care in maintaining safe passage from building to building, particularly in regard to the steps.

Perhaps our alumni and supporters should pass a few $100

GUEST OPINION

While I have the floor, another situation has been bugging me as I make my way from the car to the office. Each morning the bells high in Memorial Hall chime music into the air over North Campus. The chimes always play Christian hymns. Why? I could understand perhaps Bach or Beethoven or the even the Hallelujah Chorus, but why Christian hymns?

This is supposed to be a state institution, supported by taxpayers' money and facilitated and staffed by people of diverse religious affiliations. Why religious music at all or doesn't UK subscribe to separation of church and state? In particular, why Christian music? Where are the Buddhist chants, the Hindu ragas, the Jewish hymns? I deeply resent this assumption that Christian hymns are the only music fit for tolling on the morning air.

I'd like a response to both these complaints from whoever is in charge of campus snow removal and of what is played from the steeple of Memorial Hall.

Irvine police chief shot to death

IRVINE, Ky. — Irvine Police Chief Robert Walker was shot to death yesterday while answering a domestic dispute call and a suspect was taken into custody, authorities said.
Estill County Deputy Coroner John Toler said Walker, 65, was shot in the arm and back while in his cruiser about 1:30 p.m. An autopsy will be performed today at the University of Kentucky Medical Center.
State Police Trooper Greg Gay said Walker was at the site of the domestic dispute on Hood Avenue in Irvine and had not left his cruiser when the shooting occurred.
Gay said a suspect was later taken into custody for questioning. The suspect was not charged as of early last night, Gay said.
Walker was shot last July while a deputy sheriff. An Irvine man was arrested in connection with the shooting, but the case has yet to come to trial.

U.S. closes doors to ousted Haitian

WASHINGTON — Ousted Haitian leader Jean-Claude Duvalier will not be allowed into the United States because U.S. officials cannot guarantee his safety from angry Haitians or from extradition to his homeland, a State Department spokeswoman said yesterday.
The statement, read by department spokeswoman Anita Stockman, followed reports from France that Duvalier and his family had been booked to fly from Paris to New York, but canceled the reservations after U.S. officials declined to accept him.
Duvalier's attorney in France, Sauveur Vaissie, said it appeared that French authorities were seeking to ship the former president-for-life to the United States, but that talks had reached a "dead end."
Stockman said that "if he is put on a plane to the United States, Duvalier does not have a visa and would not be allowed in."

Soviet ship sinks, one person missing

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — A Soviet cruise ship carrying more than 700 passengers and crew struck rocks and sank in stormy seas yesterday, but only one person, a Soviet sailor, is missing and presumed drowned, officials reported.
Chief Police Inspector Owen Dowse, in a mid-morning announcement today on Radio New Zealand, said one crewman was missing but all of the others aboard the 200,000-ton Mikhail Lermontov had been rescued. Initial reports had said 34 people were not accounted for.
The passengers, many of them elderly Australians and New Zealanders, were taken from lifeboats aboard rescue craft from Port Gore where the liner sank.
Ten people were hospitalized with minor injuries, Dowse said. Search coordinator Barry James said the Mikhail Lermontov had about 400 passengers and some 300 Soviet crew members.
But the chairman of the Marlborough Harbor Board, Bruno Dellessi, said the ship carried a total of 841 passengers and crew. Dellessi also said there had been 25 children aboard, but Les Goss, the cruise manager, said there were none.

Groups use phone to contact freshman

Admissions office, CAE's phone-a-thon follows up students after admission

By CATHY LUSH
Contributing Writer
Some academically talented incoming freshmen heard their phones ring recently.
These students were contacted by UK faculty and members of Collegians for Academic Excellence during the annual admission office's phone-a-thon.
The phone-a-thon lasted three weeks. During the first two, faculty members called 484 incoming freshmen. In the final week CAE members called 493.
Tim R. Burcham, associate director of admissions and the student phone-a-thon coordinator, said the students they called "are the most outstanding applicants of the incoming freshman class." Those called have American College Test scores of 27 or better.

"It is not nearly as much a recruitment program as it is a follow-up to our applicants," Burcham said. "These students have actually applied and been admitted to come to school here.
"We call these students to see if we can be any assistance to them, and also to demonstrate our sincere interest in them being students here."
CAE chairman Ben Clifford said members tried to answer the students' questions about UK. They also made sure the student had a confirmed advising conference date.
Each night before the phone-a-thon, Burcham conducted a 30-minute workshop. To help the callers answer questions, manuals were provided explaining the basic procedures of the University.

The phone-a-thon is a "double service," Clifford said. "It lets you know who definitely is coming to the University, and who definitely is not."
Steve Popham, a CAE member, said it was important to talk with students and make them feel comfortable. "The majority of the students coming to UK feel that the University is a really big place and they feel lost," he said. "But through the phone-a-thon you can have personal contact with the students which will make them feel more comfortable with the bigger University."
Clifford said those called were very responsive and asked many questions. However, he said, "the parents were the most fun to talk with. . . . If you got a hold of a parent, they'd just go crazy."

The first phone-a-thon, in December, 1983, was an experiment of the academic excellence committee chaired by Donald Sands, vice chancellor for academic affairs.
The initial philosophy was that faculty members were the best to call the students because they could answer academic questions, Burcham said.
After seeing how positive the program had become, it became more an admissions program, he said. "That's when CAE also got involved.
"We thought that it would be good because students of similar caliber would be involved in some student-to-student dialogue," he said. "It has proven to be very successful."

is awarded to many graduate students because they have teaching and research assistantships which include remittance of in-state tuition.
The scholarships cover in-state tuition and fees. That means a breakdown of approximately $1,228 for undergraduates. Scholarships for students also cover tuition and fees. For adult students, the money covers payment for classes.
Sands and Harders encouraged all students to apply. The process involves completing an application and writing a 500-word autobiographical essay.

Sands said an applicant's grade point average is only one factor among several in terms of awarding a scholarship. "We also take into account their contributions to the campus and if they are involved in campus organizations."
Sands said each scholarship lasts for one year, but students can reapply each year. Each winner must keep his or her grades up so they remain eligible.

After the application is submitted, a committee of three professors will review each one, analyze each essay and rank the applicants. Awards are made on the basis of the rankings.
"We want to underscore a few things," Sands said. "We want students to realize that the money they're spending is being used right here on campus, and we want them to realize that they're all welcome to

PITTSBURGH — A 39-year-old businessman kept alive by an artificial heart for nearly two weeks was in critical condition yesterday after receiving a human heart, while recipients of the temporary implant made progress in Arizona, Minnesota and Texas, hospital officials said.
After waiting nine days for the transplant, Joseph Burello of New Alexandria, Pa., received the heart in a 7½-hour operation that ended early yesterday, said David Lash, administrative assistant at Presbyterian-University Hospital here.

"His has been conscious for brief periods," Lash said yesterday morning.
Burello received a Jarvik-7 mechanical pump in a five-hour operation that ended Feb. 3, and was placed on the waiting list for a heart transplant on Feb. 6 after his condition stabilized. Hospital officials declined to release any information about the donor.

The only recipient of two temporary artificial hearts, Braden Chayres, continued to make slow progress yesterday at University Medical Center in Tucson, Ariz., said hospital spokesperson Nina Trassoff.

strated that patients were both less sedated and had substantially better pain relief when they used PCA therapy," Bennett said. "On PCA therapy, the patients actually used less medication on the whole and they slept better at night and had better activity at day... and all of those are desirable."

In Bennett's view, the main drawback of PCA is that it requires a fair time investment on the part of the physician and other health professionals in setting up the device and monitoring it. The pumps are also somewhat expensive, costing from $2,000 to $3,000 each.

One aspect of PCA Bennett thinks will be important in the future is the use of the devices by terminally ill patients who need more than oral painkillers at home. "I think that home use for cancer patients is a very important potential use of the therapy."

He has used PCA therapy with one cancer patient before. That patient had used the device at the UK Medical Center but wanted to spend his remaining days at home so Bennett arranged for him to continue to use the device at home. And according to Bennett, "he did so with very good success for the remaining weeks of his life."

One of the four types of pumps currently available in the United States is specifically designed for home use. The device is about the size of a portable VCR and is easy for the patient to reload with painkiller.

Bennett, who now is in private practice in Lexington, has found his research contributions rewarding. "The biggest sense of accomplishment and satisfaction for myself comes from observing widespread use of the therapy among a large number of people."

He also thinks it's encouraging that the physicians attending the president thought PCA was a significant therapy and made efforts to make it available to Reagan.

Maker denies cyanide was placed in Tylenol at plant or distributors

By RICK HAMPSON
Associated Press

NEW YORK — The chairman of Johnson & Johnson yesterday disputed suggestions that cyanide was put in Tylenol capsules at the plant or distribution center, saying it seemed too great a coincidence that two bottles would "end up at two stores a block and a half apart."

At least 14 states and the District of Columbia, along with Italy, have banned sales of Tylenol capsules or ordered them off store shelves, and one official called on the federal government to control production and sale of all drugs in capsules.

A young woman died in suburban Westchester County after taking two capsules that contained potassium cyanide. A second poisoned bottle of capsules was found later in a store less than two blocks from the market where the woman's pills were bought.

Investigators reported no new leads in the case, according to the chairman of the company that manufactures the popular painkiller.

Interviewed on the ABC News program "This Week with David Brinkley," Johnson & Johnson's James Burke said FBI Director William Webster told him yesterday morning that, "Unfortunately, there's nothing new at this time."

Burke disagreed with Westchester District Attorney Carl Vergari, who said FBI test results led him to believe the capsules were poisoned "at the plant."

Vergari said FBI officials told him that tests indicated the seals on both tainted bottles had not been broken after they left the factory.

But Burke said the bottles came from two plants, one in Pennsylvania, the other in Puerto Rico. He also rejected a theory that the pills were tainted at a distribution center, also in Pennsylvania, where both bottles were handled last summer in the space of two weeks.

A tamperer at the distribution center would have had to penetrate

"an awful lot of material" in which the capsules were packed, he said.

Then, Burke said, the tamperer would have to ensure that it would "end up going through the A&P (supermarkets) distribution center which goes to 38 states." And then you've got to get (the other bottle) into a packing center that goes to the F.W. Woolworth distribution centers in 26 states."

Finally, he said, the pills had to "end up at two stores a block and a half apart at the same time."

Frank Young, head of the federal Food and Drug Administration, noted that the bottles had several layers of protective coating. "It really sounds like it's much more of a professional-type job," he said.

Westchester County Executive Andrew O'Rourke called on the federal government to ban the use of such capsules, except where medically necessary or prepared by local pharmacists for sale only from behind the counter.

Lugar, who also appeared on the program.

The United States considers its two principal bases in the Philippines, Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base, strategically important to its security interests throughout the Pacific, particularly since the Soviet Union took over use of Cam Ranh Bay from the United States after the Vietnam War.

Although faced with a troubled economy, a military unable to stem a growing communist-led insurgency and mounting political unrest, Marcos ruled out the possibility of stepping down.

"That's ridiculous. That's foolish. Why should I step down?" Marcos said. "I am not a dictator. I am not unwanted, and therefore I don't think that will ever happen."

Lugar said he may support halting aid to the Marcos government. "The problem is trying to separate aid for military reform from an endorsement of President Marcos. I think that's a very delicate problem, maybe not impossible, but one we will have to consider carefully."

Higher Education in Kentucky

The Facts:

- Kentucky ranks 50th among the states in the percentage of adults who are high school graduates.
- Kentucky ranks 48th among the states in percentage of adults who have four or more years of college.
- Since 1984, the Kentucky legislature has increased funding for higher education 8 percent, compared to an average national increase of 19 percent. Kentucky ranks 44th among the states in this category.

The Future:

Significant improvements must be made to Kentucky's education system to make the future bright. Ashland Oil and other Kentucky-based companies need well-educated employees to lead the way into the next century. Governor Martha Layne Collins has said economic development and education go hand-in-hand. Ashland agrees.

The future will be better if we invest in quality education today. In particular, Kentucky's higher education system needs your support. Ashland Oil urges you to let your elected officials know that they have your support in making our schools better.
