

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY
AND
CAPITOL SOUVENIR OF KENTUCKY

Volume No. 1
1910

Portraits and Sketches of Senators, Representatives and Officials and Attaches of the Various State Departments.

To the loyal Kentuckians who caused the beautiful new Capitol to be erected, to the Members of the General Assembly and the State Officials who were the first lucky occupants: and to their legion of friends who so heartily commended the efforts of the publishers to commemorate the same by this volume, the book is affectionately dedicated.

Governor Willson's Tribute to Kentucky.

Excerpts from Annual Address, "The People and Their Law," delivered before the American Bar Association, at Detroit, Michigan, August 25, 1909.

(Reprinted from the Proceedings of the Association.)

"Let me declare that nowhere in the world is there a truer, stronger, more intense devotion to law than in Kentucky. It is our heritage, birthright, pride and joy, and prized as the very fortress and heart of our liberty."

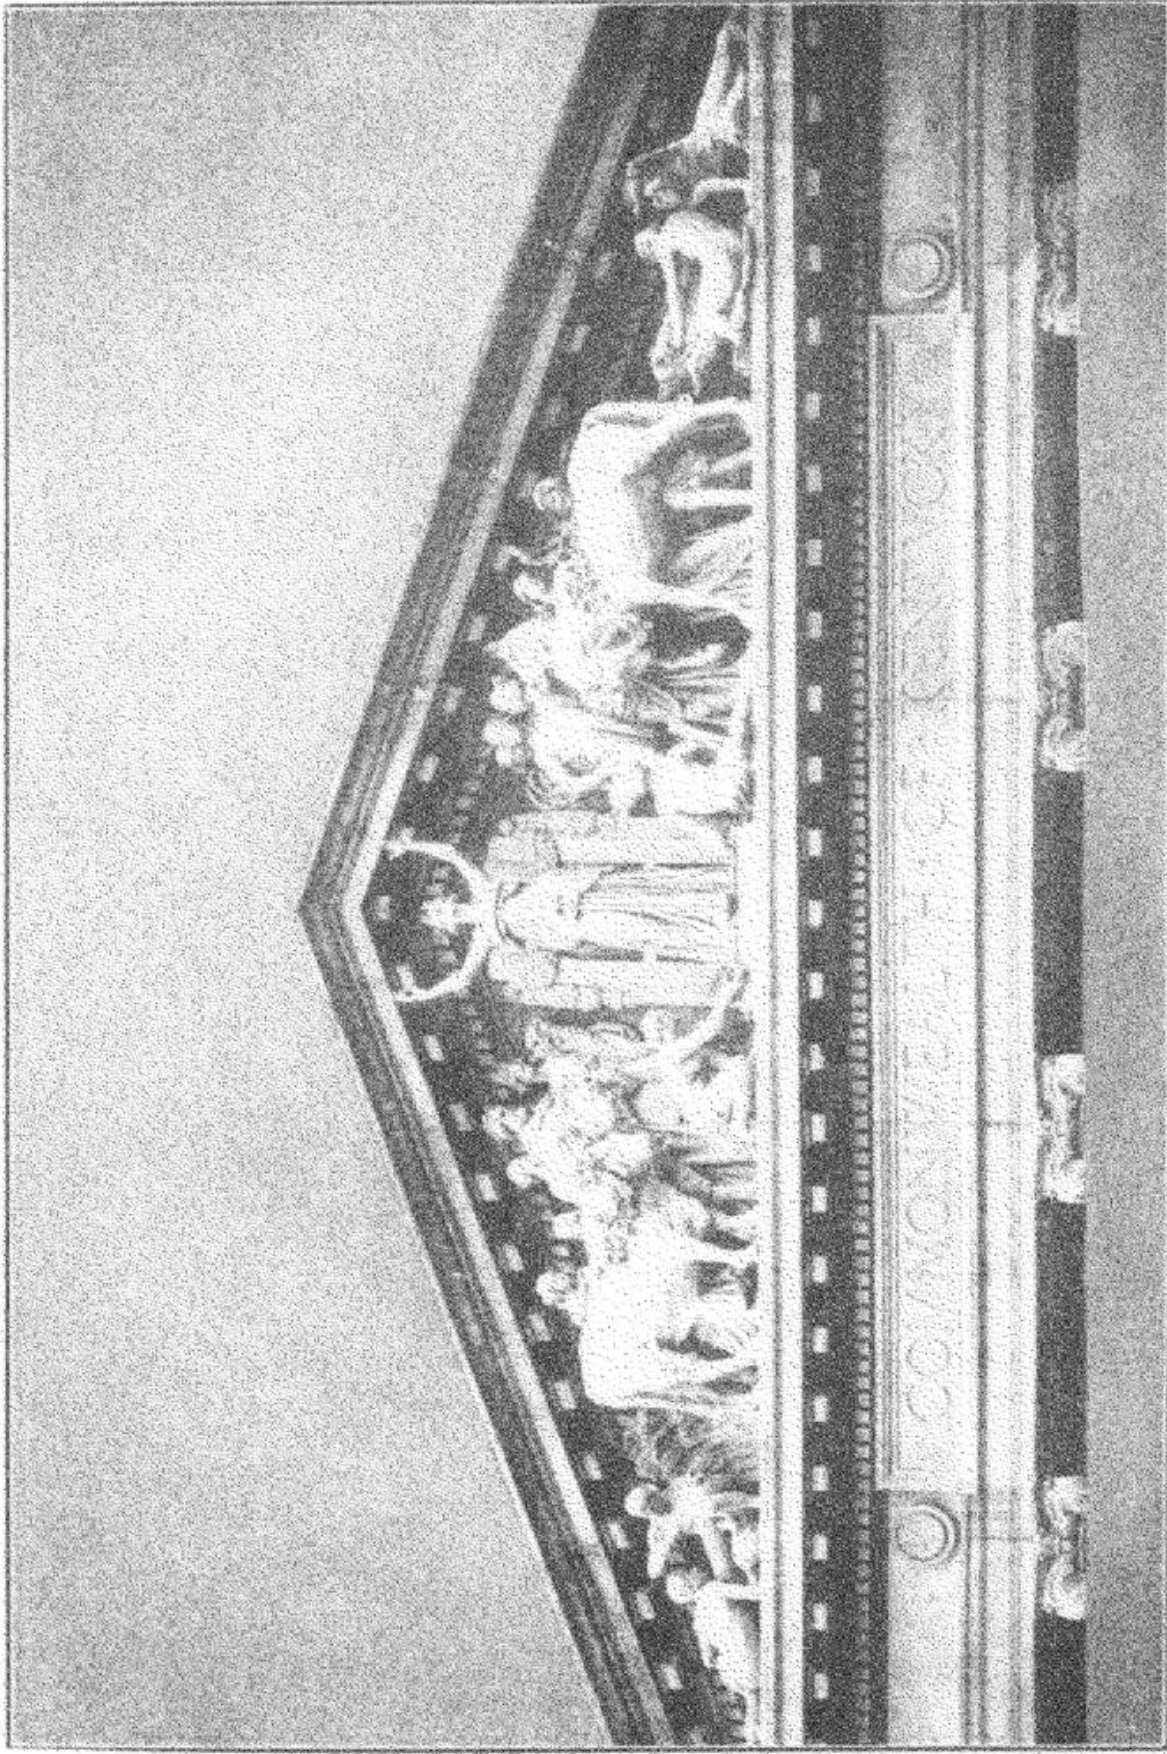

"The pioneer men and women who left home and kin and traveled the wilderness road over the Alleghenies and Cumberland Mountains from the mountains of Virginia and North Carolina and the hills of Maryland, and came down into the deep woods of the dark and bloody ground of Kentucky, occupied by fierce savages, won a place in the history of mankind, which, perhaps, no other people ever gained."

"It is clear that with all our reverence for the desperate courage of our pioneer ancestors, the stock has not run down, but is just as hardy and "game" as it ever was, with the same genius for organization and the same loyalty to law and order."

"The real test of the law and order sentiment of a community is not in the acquiescence of a mild-mannered race, but it is when strong hard-headed, determined people with their feelings and passions excited so that disorders result, finally put down their revolt and restore order and safety. From the earliest times, our race has never been either timid or easy going. It has always been strong, determined, earnest, hard-headed and fearless, and it has been the rule and not the exception for every man to fight against what he believed to be wrong. There are many common instances of what any typical American will resent with violence, regardless of law. He rarely sues out a peace warrant against a man who calls him a liar. Generally, our people have continued an even, steady march, holding strongly to the law; but it is inevitable that such a people, from time to time, should have storms of excitement and passion, local outbreaks, and times of lawlessness."

Kentucky's New State Capitol And Its Construction

BY C. M. FLEENOR

STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF CONSTRUCTION

THE first actual step toward the erection of the new Capitol was taken by the 1904 General Assembly, which convened in the old Ionic porticoed State House in North Frankfort. This body appropriated $1,000,000 for that purpose and constituted a State Capitol Building Commission out of the Sinking Fund Commissioners of the State, who were, under the existing laws, the five chief elective State officials, namely: The Governor, J. C. W. Beckham; the Auditor, S. W. Hager; the Secretary of State, H. V. McChesney; the Treasurer, H. M. Bosworth; and the Attorney General, N. B. Hays.

THE need of new quarters for the State Government had been long felt. The old State House, which was erected in 1827-9 at a cost of $85,000, was considered a fine building in its time and commodious enough to house all State departments. In 1869 it was regarded as outgrown, and the State began the erection of another building to take its place, $100,000 being appropriated for the work. This amount completed the east wing of the new building only, and no subsequent appropriations were ever made. In consequence the State Government was housed in two buildings and an old brick annex until the year 1909 when the present new Capitol building was completed.

RIVALRY between Louisville and Lexington for the location of the Capitol, both seeking to take it away from Frankfort, was responsible for the long delay in the matter of a new Capitol, but this was definitely settled, however by the new Constitution framed in 1891 which located the seat of government permanently at Frankfort and the Legislature of 1904 brought the movement to a culmination by the million dollar appropriation.

FOLLOWING the adjournment of the 1904 Legislature the Board of State Capitol Commissioners met and elected H. B. Ware, of Frankfort, secretary, and appointed a meeting at which time it would elect its superintendent and consider the question of the selection of an architect. In view of the fact that the board was inexperienced in the technics of building, especially in such work as would enter into the construction of a State Capitol, it was deemed the wiser plan to select a superintendent in advance, one experienced in architecture, or an architect by profession, that his first duties might be those of an advisor to the board to assist in the better handling of the matter of the selection of an architect and other preliminary work. At its next meeting, April 7, 1904, C. M. Fleenor, of Bowling Green, Ky., was elected superintendent of construction for the State. On June 10, 1904 Frank M. Andrews, of Dayton, Ohio, was elected architect. Then followed several months' consideration of the State's needs and the most suitable plans adapted to them; style, finish and arrangements, each coming in for its share. The location of the new building came up for consideration with the other matters and the need of a new site was made manifest.

IN January of 1905 a special session of the Legislature was called to consider this question and a site on the south side of Frankfort was selected and an appropriation of $40,000 was made for its purchase and preparation for the new building.

THE preliminary work of clearing and excavating for the site was begun on May 25, 1905. On August 10 the general contract for the construction of the building was let and the work on the excavation for the foundation was begun four days later (August 14, 1905). The general contract was for $880,000, and the time for the completion of the work was twenty-four months from the date of the signing of the contract. This time limit, however, was extended, first, by forty-five days, by reason of extra work found necessary to be done in excavation and on foundation because of rock boulders encountered and treacherous clays found lying between them which were considered too dangerous to risk the foundation walls upon.

OTHER extensions of time were made to cover additional contracts entered into and which would have to be completed along with the original contract; the Legislature of 1906 having appropriated $250,000 additional to the million dollar appropriation made in 1904, the additional appropriation to cover the cost of a change in the interior finish of the building from Bedford limestone to Georgia marble, and for a terra cotta roofing for the dome instead of the copper of the first contract, and also for the enrichment of the pediment of the front pavillion with richly carved allegorical figures. Contracts for the extra work were let in June, 1906, the original contracting firm securing the contract for the new marble and terra cotta work, and Charles H. Niehaus, sculptor of New York City, being selected for the work to be done on the pediment.

IN the year 1907 much work was done upon the building, but it was by no means completed on the date designated in the original contract. Delays of many kinds arising so that the building at the time of this change of the State administrations, January, 1908, was scarcely then completely under roof, while little of the finishing work of the interior had been done at all.

BEGINNING with the year of 1908 a new administration took over the affairs of the State, and, with other things, the active charge of the work of the Capitol building under construction. The Building Commission being, as before stated, composed of the members of the State Sinking Fund Commission, who, under the Constitution, were the five chief officials of the State, Governor Augustus E. Willson, therefore, became chairman of the Capitol Building Commission, and Ben L. Bruner, Secretary of State; Frank P. James, Auditor; James Breathitt, Attorney General; and Edwin Farley, State Treasurer, the other members of the official board. Mr. Fleenor, superintendent under the appointment of the first board, was requested to continue in office by the new board, and on the first of April, 1908, Capt. Edward M. Drane was appointed to succeed H. B. Ware, who had served as secretary with ability and fidelity from the first organization of the board in March of 1904. The firm of F. M. Andrews & Co., architects, was retained, and the work on the building proceeded without interruption.

THE Legislature of 1908 appropriated an additional $460,000 for carrying on the work, the appropriation being divided as follows: For furniture, floor covering, etc., $150,000; for electric light fixtures, $30,000; for metal file cases, $75,000; for architectural terrace and landscape work, $115,000; for power plant and its equipment, $90,000.

UNDER a latitudinal interpretation of "floor coverings, etc.," a number of contracts were let for things quite material for the completion of the building, but not specifically mentioned in the wording of the appropriation, and these were paid for out of the surplus left from the amount appropriated for those purposes which were specifically mentioned. One of the incomplete parts found under the general contract for the construction of the building was the cement floors of halls and corridors. It was never the intention to have anything else than marble floors, but the limited appropriation first made and under which floors properly came, fixed them "cement" for the time being. Believing, however, that the furniture and floor covering appropriation was more than ample for all purposes under these heads, the commission awarded a contract for the omitted marble floors early in the year 1908, setting aside therefor $22,800 out of the "furniture and floor covering" appropriation of $150,000.

IN January of 1909 the contract for the furniture was let for $63,500, which included not only the movable furniture but sectional bookcases and Venetian blinds as well. The architectural finish (counters, railing, wainscotings, etc.) was also contracted for under the head of "furniture appropriation," as were certain decorations, mural paintings and the like. The contract price for the architectural finish was $11,386. The interior decorations of the offices, corridors, etc., cost $14,314. The decorations and furniture in the State Reception Room cost $9,380. The mural paintings over the doors of the House and Senate chambers cost $7,000. The carpets, rugs, linoleums, etc., throughout the building, except those in the State Reception Room, cost $13,501. These several contracts, with a few minor ones, were all placed under the "furniture and floor covering" head, along with the $22,800 for the marble floors, and were paid for out of the $150,000 appropriated.

THE electric light fixtures of the building were supplied at a cost of $29,604. The State Treasurer's vault and all the other vaults and safes in the building, were installed at a cost of $4,850, which was charged to the file case appropriation. The file cases, proper, and the bookstacks of the library, cost the State $37,333. The metal screen contract of $3,005 was charged to the $75,000 file case appropriation; all contracts under that head amounting to $49,500. Some $25,000 of the balance was expended on the landscape work of the grounds.

THE architectural terrace around the building cost $72,922 which came out of the terrace and landscaping appropriation of $115,000. The balance of this appropriation was expended in the purchase of ground for the approaches and for the landscape work itself. The work on the grounds is being done by day labor.

THE power house and its equipment, for which $90,000 was appropriated, cost $85,336 and the installation of the heating, lighting and ventilating work cost $79,099, this latter amount coming out of the original million dollar appropriation.

IT WILL be seen from the foregoing that the total appropriation for the Capitol building proper was $1,250,000; for its furnishing and outfitting, $255,000; for the power plant and its equipment, $90,000; for the architectural terrace and landscape work of the grounds, $115,000, and for the grounds themselves, $40,000; making a total of $1,750,000. The building itself actually cost a little less than $1,200,000, when we deduct the architect's commission and the rest of the work pertaining thereto—including Power Plant, architectural terrace and architect's commissions—to some $397,000, or the whole, including architects commissions on all the work, totaling $1,645,000. Altogether some $100,000 has been expended in the purchase of the grounds for the site and the work done thereon. This in a large measure makes up the rest of the $1,750,000.

CROWNING a gently rising hill in South Frankfort, with the beautiful Kentucky river winding through undulating lowlands at its base, the new Capitol stands a monument to a progressive Commonwealth and to its designers and builders. When the grand approach and landscape work has been completed, the building and its environs will have few peers among State Capitols.

THE building is of the French renaissance architecture with the neo-classic feature of the dome, which characterizes the general designs of State Capitols. In size it is 402 feet and 10 inches east and west, and 180 feet through central pavillion north and south, these figures being exclusive of the terrace walls which add some thirty or forty feet each way. It shows three stories in the treatment of its elevations and is finished with parapet walls which give the appearance of a clere-story, and which do accommodate an attic or fourth floor, which is used for fan rooms, storage, and the House and Senate balconies. The center pavillions rise some five feet above the parapet walls of waists and ends, and above them is the base, and then the true podium of the dome. From terrace walk to top of center pavillion is 80 feet; to lantern on top of dome, 210 feet.

THE base of the exterior of the building is of Vermont granite; the rest of the face work, including the dome, is of Bedford lime stone. The first story is of rusticated work laid up in huge blocks. Through the second and third floors run the seventy large monolithic columns which surround the entire building, the rear and end facades being treated the same as in front. The columns are Ionic in design, and the entablature above, and the treatment of other features of the building, conform to them. The dome is treated in like manner, except that the twenty-four encircling columns are in sections instead of being monolithic. In the matter of its monolithic columns this building stands alone among State Capitols, and the beauty of the feature can be fully appreciated when one has compared these columns with the sectional or drum columns of other buildings. In the enrichment of the tympanum of the front pediment this building is also in the lead of other State Capitols, and it is a question whether there is a richer sculptured pediment in the entire country. The conception and its execution is simply magnificent and will serve to foster and quicken art in Kentucky. Much credit is due the skillful carver, Mr. Peter Rossak, a young sculptor recently from Austria, whose apt interpretation of the models lent much to the design in bringing out the salient points.

THE stone terrace, recently finished, is the real setting of the building without which it were incomplete, and this again will be accentuated by the grand approach to be constructed, and the proper landscape work to be done on the grounds. From any point, then, the Capitol will be a finished product from without, with few rivals in the land.

BY reason of the liberality of the 1906 Legislature which made possible the handsome pediment, money was also appropriated for an extra in the interior finish of the building, namely, the changing of the finish of the corridors, nave, etc., from Bedford stone to Georgia marble and Vermont granite. An appreciation of this will be felt at once when one enters the building. The outer vestibules are of Bedford stone, the interior work of marble. The difference is marked and it gives richness and tone to the general treatment.

THE corridors, stairways, rotunda and naves, are features with which few State Capitols can compare and none surpass. So far as the means were at hand the finish has been unstinted. It shows refinement and it displays taste, a taste that will lead to better things in the public buildings of the State.

THE first floor is for general offices and file rooms. The second floor is taken up with the executive offices and those of the higher State officials. The Court of Appeals chamber is in the east end, in the south pavilion is the Library, in the west end is the Board room, while most prominently in front is the State Reception Room. These several rooms are especially designed and richly furnished in quiet but elegant taste.

THE Court of Appeals chamber is considered by many the handsomest room in the building. It is paneled in solid mahogany to the ceiling with pilasters supporting the massive girders which span the room and which support the floors above. The judges' stand and the balustrade separating the court from the spectators' benches, are likewise of solid mahogany, richly carved, with bases of Verde Antique marble. The ceiling is of 'Old Dutch Metal,' hammered effect, and paneled with egg and dart mould enrichment. The carpet is of deep-tufted "Saxony" of a rich, moss-green color, and the furniture mahogany upholstered in genuine hand-buffed, olive-green leather. The fixtures are of genuine bronze and of rich design, harmonizing splendidly with the other furnishings of the room. As a whole, the room is very fine and rich in design and finish, and was fitted out at a cost approximating $10,000.

TO THE stickler of "styles" and the lover of the "Francaise," the State Reception Room will perhaps make the strongest appeal, as it is decorated and furnished after the period of Louis XIV. It cost nearly $10,000 to fit out this chamber, which is the "parlor" of the Capitol and intended for dignified occasions of state. The walls are canvased and hand-painted with reproductions of famous French scenes about the royal city of Versailles. Cornice and ceiling are brought out in harmony, and the hardwood floor is covered by a one-piece rug, 16½x55 feet, French "Ellane" quality and make, especially designed and woven to match the colors and finish of the chamber. The large French windows are draped with costly lace and hung with damask portieres of color and shade to harmonize with the other fittings. The chairs, benches and sofas are of richly carved Circassian walnut, upholstered with velvet of the finest quality to match the damask portieres. The center table is of the same material and finish as the chairs and sofas, but richer still in carving and covered with a genuine Breche Violette marble top. The handsome old gold fixtures with their thousands of swinging prisms complete the effect, which is one of magnificence and grandeur.

THE other rooms and offices of the second floor, while not so rich and pronounced in their effect as those described, are, nevertheless, finished handsomely and substantially. Mahogany is the finish throughout on this floor, with mahogany furniture upholstered in genuine hand-buffer leather, the color of the upholstery matching the respective rooms. The walls of the executive offices are covered with velvet and the floors with imported Austrian Axminster rugs. Other walls are covered with buckram, while in the nave and corridors they are canvassed and painted "burnt orange" in the general scheme of the later decorative work to be done.

THE two lunettes of the nave are very handsome and striking and represent events intimately connected with Kentucky's history. The one in the east wing, over the entrance to the House chamber, depicts Daniel Boone and his companions upon the bank of the Kentucky river scanning the beautiful valleys below; the one in the west end over the entrance to the Senate chamber, shows the artist's conception of the first convention of the white man with the Indian—Henderson and Boone negotiating with Ocon-os-to-to, chief of the Cherokees, for the "Dark and Bloody Ground."

ON the third floor are the House and Senate chambers and the committee rooms of the Legislature. The House chamber is of Romanesque design with pompeian red color scheme finish. The Senate chamber is more modern in design, with Sienna columns and bases. Both chambers are finished with the columns Scagliola—the only imitations within the building. These chambers, however, are furnished in mahogany and provided with the richest and most substantial furniture of the same material, upholstered in leather. The retiring and reception rooms of House and Senate are handsome, complete and comfortable in their luxury.

THE nave deserves special mention on account of its generous length and breadth and the thirty-six great monolithic columns supporting its massive cornices. On every hand words of admiration have been lavished upon this feature of the Capitol, for in this respect it stands superior to other State Capitols.

NOT only is this great marble nave a thing of beauty and magnificence, but it gives light and ventilation to second and third floors of the building, and is the inclosed area into which all departments can empty themselves with ease. The columns are of Vermont granite, the stairs, pilasters and cornices Georgia marble, and the floors of Tennessee and Italian marbles bordered with Verde antique.

THE furniture throughout is designed especially for this building, as are the handsome fixtures and hardware, the latter bearing on every piece the seal of the State. In fact, everything was designed to an end, that end being a complete structure unified in all its parts. That it has achieved the end aimed at, no one, I think, will deny.

THE heating and ventilation of the building is complete, and constructed after the most approved and scientific, modern methods. The thermal chambers with their heating coils, and the distributing fans, are in the basement; the fresh air intakes in the roof. The fresh air is drawn in, thoroughly cleansed by washing, then passes to the thermal chambers to be heated and blown to the larger rooms, halls and corridors throughout the building, whence the foul or exhausted air is drawn by exhaust fans up through the attic and forced out at vents in the roof of the building. In some of the smaller rooms and corridors the warm blasts from the thermal rooms are augmented by direct radiation when the conditions require such additional heat. The whole system is governed automatically and the temperature regulated in each room by a thermostat. Cold, fresh and filtered water runs from many drinking fountains, while a master clock furnishes time and regulation for all important offices and rooms. The vacuum-system of cleaning is also installed as one among the many conveniences as well as every other modern improvement for an up-to-date building of this kind.

THE power plant is situated on the bluff of the Kentucky river some six hundred feet from the Capitol building and is reached through a tunnel leading from the sub-basement. Through this tunnel all heat, light and power for operating the ventilating and vacuum systems are conveyed, and there is no fire whatever within the building itself. The system is efficient and complete and the work up-to-date in every respect, and reflects great credit upon the engineers and contractors. In the test which was given the plant by engineering experts, it was pronounced one of the best in the country and capable of running indefinitely at a full load, something like a third more than the actual requirements of the Capitol building.

I FEEL that it would not be fair to close this brief sketch without mention of some of the real workers upon this grand building who have hitherto stood in the background modestly enough. I refer to H. E. Kennedy, a former partner of F. M. Andrews & Co., while that firm had its headquarters in Cincinnati, and to George E. Matthews, a member of this same firm, but now located in New York. Mr. Matthews has been very active in the Capitol construction for the last two and one-half years, and many of the details were worked out by him. E. J. Johnson has been the architect's representative on the ground for the last three and one-half years, and his work has been highly satisfactory.

Augustus E. Willson

AUGUSTUS EVERETT WILLSON

GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY

Elected November, 1907, to serve four years from December, 1907, to December, 1911. Was born at Maysville, Kentucky, October 13, 1846. Is a son of Hiram Willson, who was born in Vermont, and Ann Colvin (Ennis) Willson, who was born in Rhode Island, and married to Hiram Willson in Allegany county in Western New York. His father was a farmer and lumberman, and moved from Allegany county New York, to Maysville, Ky., where he had a lumber yard. From Maysville he moved to Covington, Ky., where he engaged in the lumber business until 1852, when he moved to New Albany, Indiana, where his wife died in 1856 and he died in 1859. He left four children: Forceythe Willson, author of the war poem, "The Old Sergeant," published as the Carriers' New Year's address of the Louisville Journal in 1863, and which attracted the interest of President Lincoln, whose inquiries for the author, through Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, and through him of Mr. Prentice, resulted in Dr. Holmes finding the author in Cambridge, Mass., where he had moved with his wife, Elizabeth Conwell Smith, herself a poetess of rare and beautiful spirit, and his brothers and sister, Augustus E. Willson, Mary F. Willson and Hiram Willson, Jr., all of whom are living.

At Cambridge, Forceythe Willson won as warm friends, Dr. Holmes, who read "The Old Sergeant" in full in his very popular lecture on "The Poets and Poetry of the War," and of Longfellow, Lowell and Emerson, all of whom were his guests at his beautiful home on Mt. Auburn St., opposite Elmwood Avenue, and by all of whom he was made a friend and guest. The residence was a beautiful old Colonial home built by the noted Elbridge T. Gerry.

From this home, after preparing for college at Alfred University, a Baptist College in Allegany County, New York, and one year in a Cambridge school, Augustus E. Willson entered Harvard College in 1865, and graduated as A. B. in the class of 1869, receiving the degree of A. M., in 1872. Forceythe Willson died at Alfred, New York, in 1867, in his 29th year.

Following his graduation, and one year in a law office in Boston, Gov. Willson came to Louisville in 1870, was admitted to the bar, and entered the office of Gen. John M. Harlan, now Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, and became a partner in the office in May, 1874, and since 1870 has practiced law in Louisville.

He was appointed chief clerk of the Treasury Department of the United States in December, 1875, and resigned in August, 1876, and returned to his work as a lawyer.

In 1877 he married Miss Mary Elizabeth Ekin, a daughter of the late General James A. Ekin, of the Regular Army, and Diana Craighead (Walker) Ekin, of Elizabeth, Pennsylvania, and great grand-daughter of Col. Stephen A. Bayard, Major John Walker and Major Aeneas Mackay, of the Patriot Army of the Revolution, a lady of great beauty, elegance and distinction, worthy daughter of an illustrious line, and universally admired and beloved as first lady of the Commonwealth.

In 1884, 1888, 1892 and 1904 he was a delegate from the Louisville District, and in 1908 from the State-at-large to the Republican National Convention, and in 1884 1886, 1888 and 1892 he was the Republican nominee for Congress in the Louisville District. In 1897-8 he was a member of the Executive Committee of the Indianapolis Monetary Convention, the remarkable movement of the business organizations for Sound Money. This Executive Committee chose the Monetary Commission, headed by Senator Edmunds as Chairman, and Governor Willson had an active, prominent and useful part in that great work.

From 1876 he took an active part in the Republican campaigns in Louisville and throughout the State, and has spoken in all but seven of the 119 counties. In 1907 he was given the Republican nomination for Governor by acclamation, and, after one of the most thorough campaigns ever engaged in by a nominee for Governor in Kentucky, reversed the Democratic majority of about 28,000 in 1903 to a Republican majority of 18,053 in 1907.

He has been President of the Associated Harvard Clubs, and in 1908 was given Honorary Degree of LL. D. by Harvard University, under President Elliot's administration. In 1908 he was chosen as chairman of the Governors' Conference at Washington and called the conference of 1910, at which he was again chosen chairman of the Conference for another year. His chief trait is his unlimited capacity for work and his earnestness and conscientiousness. He has unflinching faith in the work which he takes up. He makes no claims to oratory or eloquence, and gives his whole strength to explaining his ideas in the simplest and purest English, avoiding long words and words from ancient or foreign languages. He has given his life to upholding the Liberty of the people. He is noted for his respect for the opinions and character of those who do not agree with his views. No one has ever spoken in Kentucky, who has treated his opponents with more unflinching consideration and good will. He believes religiously in what is right and just, and that every man has a right to his opinion and to have it treated respectfully.

While unflinching in his faith, he has always opposed earnestly the bitterness of political campaigns in Kentucky, and his greatest wish and earnest hope in his campaign for Governor was to end the political hate in Kentucky and to be a missionary of peace, good-will and true liberty in the State.

The problems of his administration in the tobacco troubles, with the night riders and in the great pardon cases—two opposition Legislatures and many other perplexing matters—have been worked out with the warmest affection for Kentucky and the most earnest care and thought for all the people of the State, regardless of party lines. It is too soon to attempt a summing up of the results or to fix his true place in the history of this Commonwealth, but no Governor of Kentucky since the war has been able to win for the Commonwealth such recognition, influence and distinction as it has fallen to his lot to win, at home and in other States. A devoted friend has said of him: "Upright, honorable, spotless in character, a plain man of the people, a devoted citizen of the State, unostentatious, but true blue always—that is Augustus E. Willson."

- 1909—August and September, State officials formally transfer offices from old State House to new Capitol.
- 1910—General Assembly first meets in new Capitol.
- 1910—Formal dedication of new Capitol to take place, probably in June. Senator W. O. Bradley has been chosen as principal orator of this occasion.

Lieutenant Governor

WILLIAM HOPKINSON COX: Lieutenant Governor; Maysville, Republican. Elected November, 1907, for a term of four years, from January, 1908. Was born at Maysville, Mason county, October 22, 1856. Of English descent, his ancestors settled in Fayette and Bourbon counties more than a hundred years ago. His mother was born in England. Is a son of William H. and Elizabeth R. (Newman) Cox. His family was among the early settlers of the splendid and progressive little county seat which nestles in the hills of Mason county on the banks of the Ohio river. For more than a century his grandfather and father conducted a mercantile establishment at Maysville and he entered the store when fourteen years old. For thirty years he applied himself to the conduct of this establishment, building it into one of the largest and most successful in that section of the State.

He has been prominently identified with the social and commercial development of Maysville and has been honored by the people of that city time and time again by election to the principal municipal offices. For seven years he served as member of the City Council, five years of which he was President of the Board. Elected Mayor of Maysville in 1893, the first Mayor under the new Constitution, serving four years as the City's Chief Executive. For many years has been interested in the City's leading commercial institutions and enterprises; was President and Director of the State National Bank of Maysville for twelve years. Is a large real estate holder and owns some of the most valuable property in the city. He has always been one of the most ardent and active Republicans in Kentucky and his friends and supporters are legion throughout the State. He also enjoys the friendship and good-will of leading members of the Democratic party in Kentucky. Elected to the Kentucky Senate in 1899 and served eight years. During the 1906 Senate session, he received the entire Republican strength of thirty-four votes of the Legislature for United States Senator. As a member of the Senate he was a consistent supporter of the County Unit Bill. Is conservative in his temperance views and not a prohibitionist.

He married Miss Susan E. Farrow, of Maysville, a lady of beauty and accomplishment, in 1880, and has one charming daughter, Mrs. C. E. Wheat, of St. Louis. Is one of the most prominent men in Kentucky fraternal circles and has been an Odd Fellow for twenty-seven years. He has occupied all the chairs of that order in Kentucky and is one of the four highest Odd Fellows in the State, having been Grand Representative to the Sovereign Lodge of Odd Fellows for seventeen years. Is at present Chairman Finance Committee, of Sovereign, or National Lodge, and member of Sovereign Sub-Committee on Finance. Has established some fifty Odd Fellow Lodges, many at his own expense, in this and other States. Is a 32nd Degree Mason, Scottish Rite, Shriner, and member Louisville Consistory, A. A. S. R. and of Kosair Temple, Louisville; also member of Maysville Commandery, Knights Templar, No. 10.

As President of the Kentucky Senate has made conservative, dignified and uniformly fair and efficient presiding officer, and has many warm friends and admirers among the Democratic members of the General Assembly. Is charitable in an unostentatious manner and generally beloved. For several years he and Mrs. Cox have interested themselves in the education of orphan children, having taken from orphan homes, boys and girls, both white and colored, and fitted them for the serious duties of life. Is an ardent hunter and fisherman. Member of Juniper Hunting Club of Louisville, which owns one of the finest game preserves of Florida. In November, 1909, he killed a wild cat on one of the Club's hunts, thus establishing a reputation as a big game hunter.

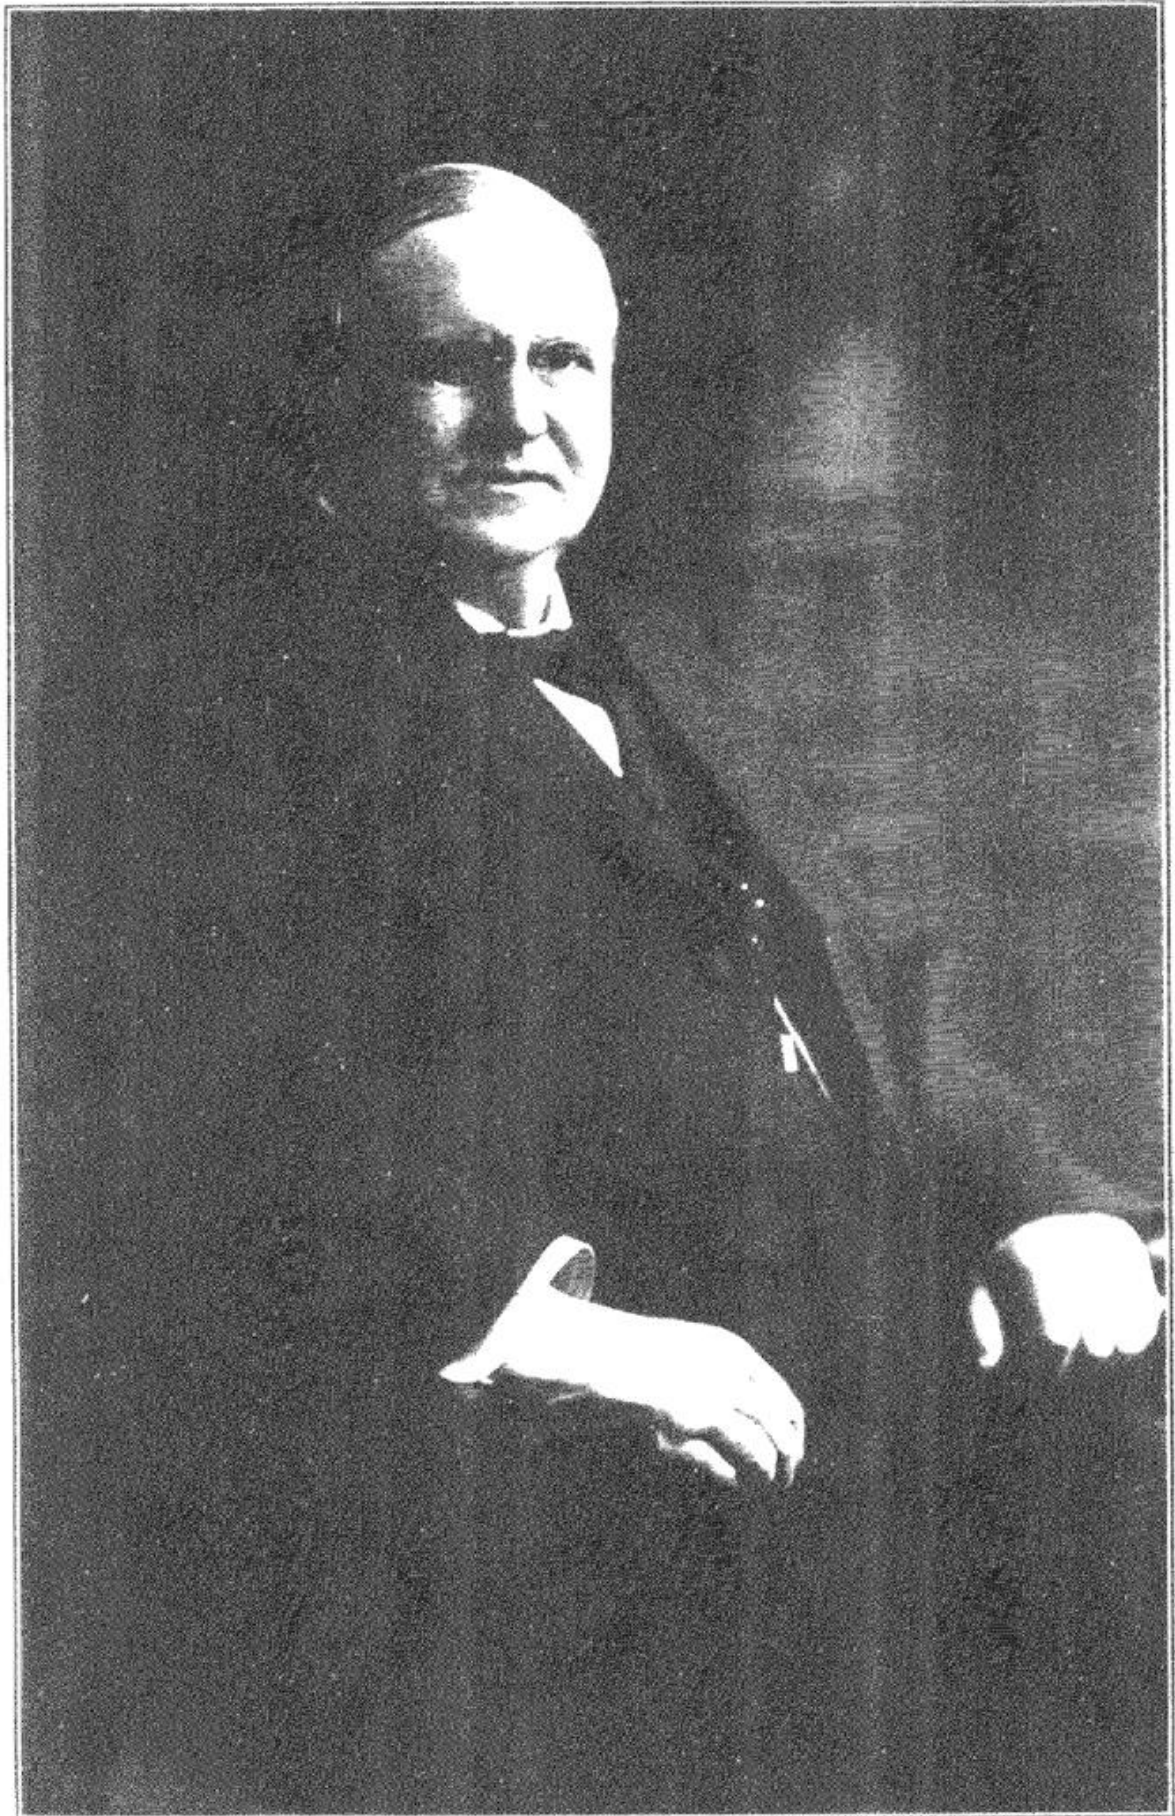

In 1892 was a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Minneapolis, which nominated President Harrison for his second term. Was selected as the member from Kentucky to notify President Harrison of his nomination, President McKinley being chairman of the delegation. His close personal and political friends are urging him to make the race for the Republican nomination for Governor of Kentucky, 1911, but he has given no intimation of his future political plans.

Born in Pulaski county, January 16, 1862, a son of William and Martha (Hudson) Hubble. Father and mother born in Pulaski county. Paternal grandparents from Virginia; maternal grandparents, Kentuckians. Received common school education. At age of sixteen struck out for himself and is now one of Kentucky's most influential stock raisers and farmers. Is owner of a string of promising young race horses. Extensive land owner in Lincoln and Boyle counties. Served as County Election Commissioner and for many years was member of Lincoln County Democratic Committee. Married Miss Sallie Logan, of Lincoln county, in 1888, and has a son, Logan Hubble, and a daughter, Miss Mattie Hubble. Is author of popular bill which exempts old men from being obliged to serve on juries; a bill providing an appropriation for Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Danville and a bill to regulate insurance companies. Is deservedly popular with his associates and is one of the conservatives of the Senate. Committees: Immigration and Labor, Chairman; Railroads and Commerce, Agriculture and Manufactures, Fish, Game and Forestry, Insurance and Debentures, Corporations, Reapportionment of Legislative Districts, Elective Affairs, Religion and Morals.

JOHN T. SMITH
Senator Nineteenth District

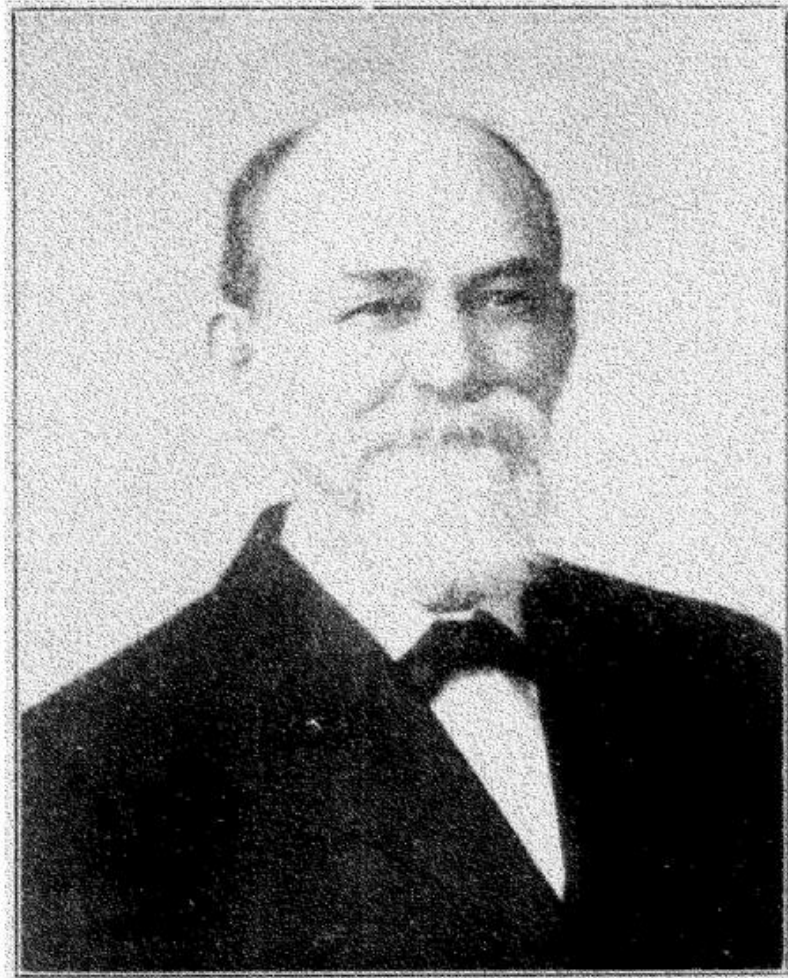

JOHN T. SMITH: Senator Nineteenth District; Dry Fork. District comprises Barren, Metcalfe and Monroe counties. Republican. Farmer, merchant and trader. Elected November, 1907 for four years. Born at Dry Fork, Barren county, October 10, 1854, a son of Ishmial H. and Lucretia M. (Duncan) Smith. His father's family emigrated to Kentucky from North Carolina and his mother's family from Virginia, and they were among the early settlers of the State. Educated in the common schools of Barren county and spent much of his early life on the farm. Has been a successful farmer for several years, raising many acres of tobacco and corn and is the owner of one of the largest general stores in Southern Kentucky. Served as Deputy Postmaster at Dry Fork, and as Division Deputy Collector in the Second Internal Revenue District. Made the race for Sheriff of his county and was candidate for the House of Representatives several years ago. In the 1908 Senate was one of Senator W. O. Bradley's "old reliables" and stuck to him through thick and thin until he was elected to the National Congress. Has been a consistent supporter of the County Unit Bill at the present session and has shown that he is for the interests of the people, irrespective of party. Is conservative in his views and his life and relations toward men have been controlled by the Golden Rule. Is the author of a bill abolishing the Kentucky Racing Commission. He believes that horse racing, with its attendant forms of gambling, is detrimental to the morals of the rising generation, and he wants to see temptation of that variety removed from the young men of Kentucky. Is also author of bill designed to eliminate the office of County Assessor and allowing the magistrates to assess property, believing that the latter know more about the valuation of property in their respective districts and can come nearer securing the listing of taxable property, than can the assessors. Bachelor.

Born in Petersburg, Boone county, January 13, 1847. Is a son of Allen and Amanda (Foster) Donaldson. His father was a Virginian and his mother an Ohioan, the latter's parents being originally from Maryland. Attended common schools at Carroll county, Carroll Seminary and graduated from the Cincinnati and Louisville Law Schools. Married Miss Susie Giltner, of Carroll county, and has three sons: Dr. Allen Donaldson, Giltner A. Donaldson and J. L. Donaldson; and two daughters, Mrs. Donald Sherwood and Mrs. Eula Robertson. Has always made his home in Carroll county with his family. Served as Commissioner of Schools and County Attorney nine years, and County Judge of Carroll county fifteen years. Has been president of the First National Bank of Carrollton for twenty-seven years. Is also Second Vice President of the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company of Louisville. Has served on a number of important committees during the present Senate session, including Courts of Justice, of which he was chairman; Banks and Banking, Fish, Game and Forestry, Insurance and Debentures, Immigration and Labor, Public Health, Reapportionment of Congressional Districts, Judiciary and Reapportionment of Legislative Districts.

B. M. ARNETT

Senator Twenty-second District

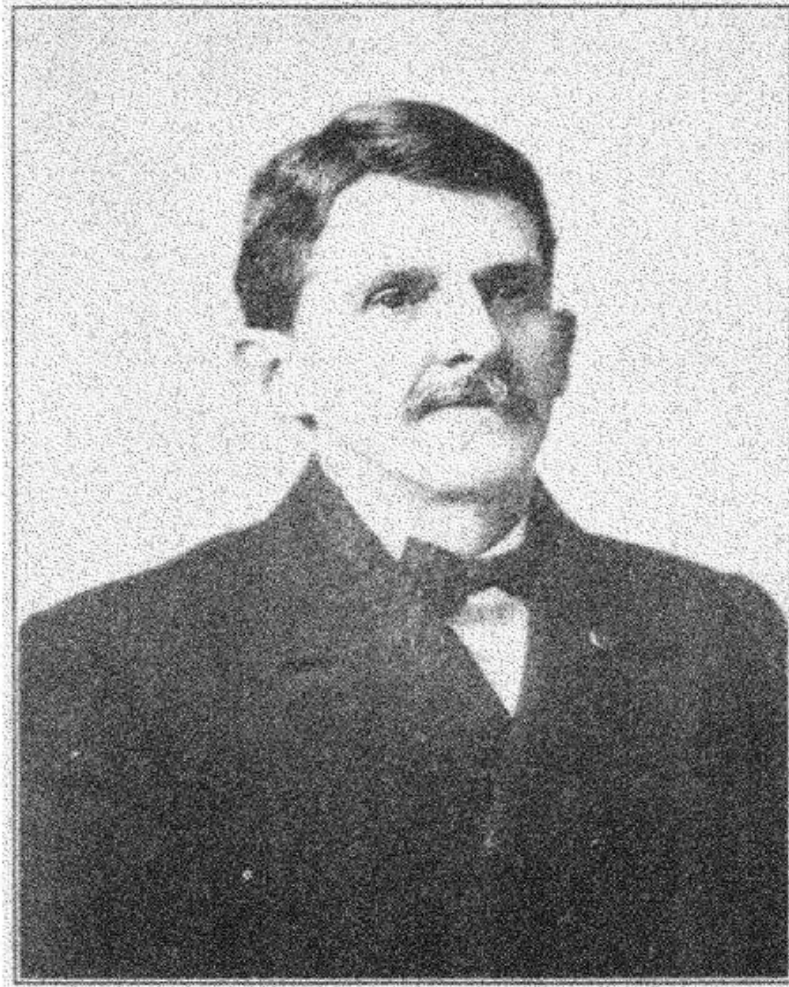

B. M. ARNETT: Senator Twenty-second District, Nicholasville, Democrat, banker. Born in Garrard county, a son of Ellis and Emily (Moore) Arnett, of Jessamine and Garrard counties. His paternal grandfather was a Frenchman, and his maternal grandfather was born in Germany. Both emigrated to America and settled in Pennsylvania. Educated in common schools and was a Junior at Kentucky University. Has enjoyed a successful business career and is one of the most prominent and highly respected citizens of Central Kentucky. Cashier of Farmers' Exchange Bank, of Nicholasville. Married Miss Jennie Barkley in 1869 and has two sons, Senator Louis W. Arnett, whose half-tone occupies the opposite page, and J. B. Arnett. Has occupied chair of presiding officer of Senate several times during present session, and at such times has presided with much dignity and fairness. His courtly bearing and uniform courtesy to his associates in the Legislature have made him exceptionally popular. Has been especially active during the session in behalf of a proposed bond issue by the State for the purpose of wiping out the existing deficit. One of the best known fraternal men in Kentucky and one of four highest Odd Fellows in the State: Past Grand Master of Odd Fellows in Kentucky; and at present Representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. Prominent in all State councils of the Christian church. Senator Arnett and his son, Senator Louis W. Arnett, present the first instance of a father and son having seats in the Kentucky Senate at the same time. Committees—Banks and Banking, Chairman; Library and Public Buildings, State University and Normal Schools, Public Monuments and Historical Records, Railroads and Commerce, Charitable Institutions, Appropriations, Telephones and Telegraphs, Mines and Mining.

L. W. ARNETT

Senator Twenty-fourth District

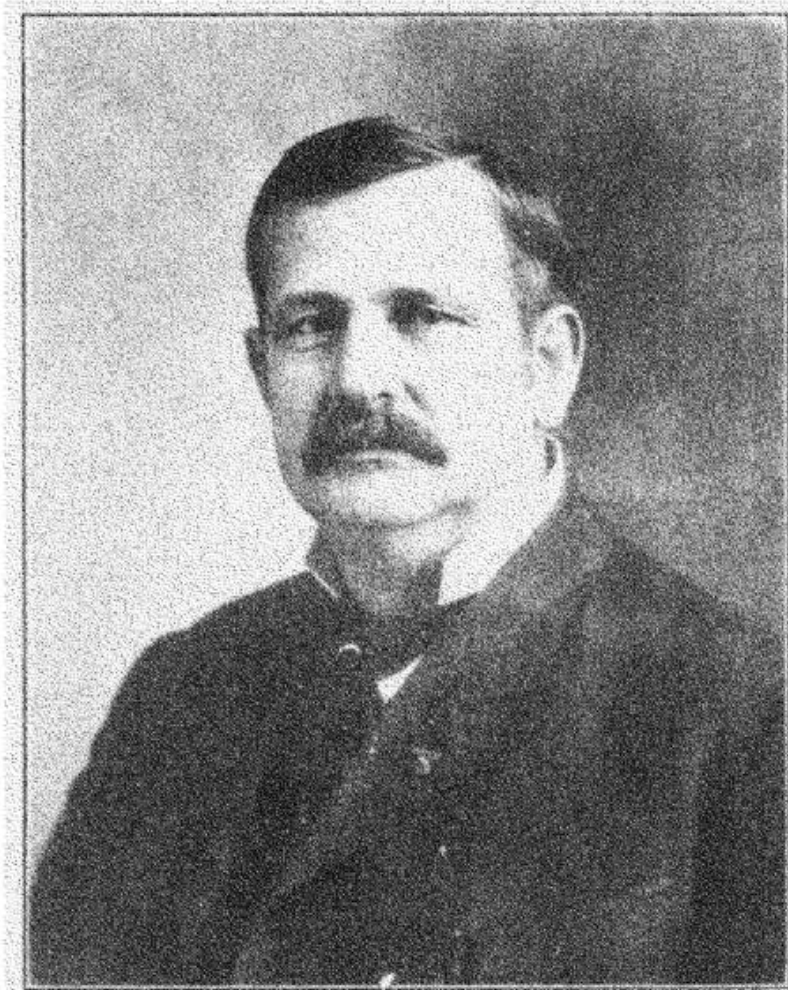

LOUIS WAGNER ARNETT: Senator Twenty-fourth District, composed of the county of Kenton, Covington, Democrat, lawyer. Born at Munday's Landing, Woodford county, Ky., July 10, 1879, and is one of the youngest members of the Kentucky Senate. Is a son of Senator B. M. Arnett, whose portrait appears on the preceding page, and Jennie (Barkley) Arnett. Although a young man, no member of the Senate has had more legislative experience than he, as he served two terms in the House of Representatives prior to his election to the Senate, and was a leader of that body from the beginning of those terms. Educated at Kentucky University and the University of Michigan, graduating in law from the latter institution in 1899, at the age of twenty years. Immediately following his graduation he entered the law office of former Lieut. Gov. Harry L. Gordon, in Cincinnati, and later was associated with former Gov. William Goebel in the latter's law office in Covington. Probably the proudest distinction he claims is his succession to the mantle of Gov. Goebel in the Kentucky Senate. He carried his district by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office, which was 2,000. Next to this distinction is the genuine satisfaction that he and his father, Senator B. M. Arnett, of Jessamine county, sit together as members of the Kentucky Senate. They were elected at the same time and sworn in together, thus establishing a precedent in the personnel of that dignified, law making body. A member of the Committee on Rules—the most important Senate Committee—is an evidence of his high standing among his associates and the influence he wields in matters legislative. Is a diligent worker and a keen and alert representative of the splendid constituency which so signally honored him by its overwhelming endorsement of his candidacy and election to the Senate of the first General Assembly to sit in the legislative halls of the New Capitol.

R. B. BROWN

Senator Twenty-third District

ROBERT B. BROWN: Senator Twenty-third District; Warsaw, Gallatin county. District, Boone, Gallatin and Owen counties. Democrat. Lawyer. Elected in November 1907, for four years. Born at Warsaw, Gallatin county, June 10, 1854. Received early education in common schools and attended law school at Ann Harbor University. Admitted to practice of law in March 1878. Elected County Attorney of Gallatin county three terms. Served one term as school commissioner and has been Chairman of Gallatin County Democratic Committee for 23 years. Is one of the most successful and influential business men in Central Kentucky. President Warsaw Furniture and Manufacturing Co. Director Bogardus-McDaniel Furniture Co., of Warsaw, and Director of the following banks: Warsaw Deposit Bank, Warsaw; Sparta Deposit Bank, Sparta; Bank of Glencoe, Glencoe; Equitable Bank and Trust Co., Walton; Citizen's Deposit Bank, Ghent; Vevay Deposit Bank, Vevay, Ind.; Florence Deposit Bank, Florence, Ind. Was born at Caseyville, Union county, November 11, 1876, the youngest of seven children born to William and Martha (Collins) Wilson. Is of English and Dutch ancestry. His maternal grandparents settled in Virginia and emigrated to Kentucky in the early settler days of the State. Was educated in the common schools of Union and Henderson counties, and graduated from Law Department, Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., in class of 1900. Began the practice of his profession in Union county and is now counted one of the brightest and ablest young attorneys of Western Kentucky. He expects to locate in Owensboro following the adjournment of the present General Assembly, to continue the practice of his profession. Married Miss Virginia L. McGill, of Webster county, a daughter of John L. and Drue McGill, in June, 1901, and has four attractive children, George S., Jr., Henry McGill, Berry Holman and Emma Drue Wilson. Served as member of the Lower House 1906-1908, and has always been one of the energetic and progressive members of that body. During the 1908 session was the Democratic floor leader and one of those who had active charge of the interests of Gov. Beckham in his contest for the Senate before the Joint Assembly. During that session he was frequently designated as presiding officer by Speaker Gooch, filling the Speaker's chair with great dignity, impartiality and consideration for all of the members, and thus enjoys the distinction of being one of the Speakers of the House at the last legislative session in the Old Capitol and the first Speaker of the first House of Representatives to convene in the New Capitol. Made his race for Speaker with three or four opponents, all of whom withdrew in his favor before the Democratic House caucus was held, and all of whom withdrew from the race without feeling or rancor and who are his fast and firm friends. Was elected Speaker unanimously by the Democratic House caucus, which met the day before the convening of the General Assembly, and has made an efficient and popular presiding officer of that body. Is esteemed and admired by the Republican as well as by the Democratic members, and two-thirds of the Democratic members of the House have given him their indorsement for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Kentucky in 1911. Is Past Chancellor Commander, Sturgis Lodge, Knights Pythias. Has been active in Democratic politics for several years and served as member of the Democratic Committee of Union county. Was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Denver of 1908, which nominated William J. Bryan for the Presidency for the third time.

JAMES W. TURNER

Minority Leader, House of Representatives

JAMES W. TURNER: Minority Leader of the 1910 House, is a staunch Republican, born and reared in the mountain district of Eastern Kentucky. He represents the Ninety-sixth District, composed of Johnson and Martin counties. Born at Paintsville, Johnson county, November 19, 1874, a son of Dr. Isaac H. Turner and Louisa (Hager) Turner, he comes from a long line of distinguished ancestors, who located in Virginia in the early settler days and who later emigrated to Kentucky. Received early education in the common schools of Johnson county, then attended Kentucky Wesleyan College at Winchester, two years; Ohio Wesleyan College, Delaware, Ohio, two years; and in 1895 entered Harvard University, taking a special course in literature in preparation for a journalistic career. Entered Boston University, Law Department, in 1897 and graduated in June, 1899 with degree LL. B. Began practice of law at Knoxville, Tenn., where he remained but a few months, then practiced law for two years at Bristol, Tenn. Returned to Paintsville in 1901 and since that time has practiced his profession and been associated with various mercantile enterprises. Is Assistant Cashier of the Paintsville National Bank, his father being Vice President of the Institution. Married Miss Josephine Louise Creede, of Brockton, Mass., a sweetheart of his Harvard days, in 1898, and has two bright and attractive boys, James Douglas and Chester Fleming Turner. Mrs. Turner is one of the most handsome and accomplished young matrons that has visited Frankfort during the Legislative session in many years and is a prime favorite with the younger social set of the Capital. Gov. Willson honored him with the appointment of Trustee of State University, at Lexington, in January, to succeed F. A. Hopkins, of Prestonburg. Received Republican nomination and votes for Speaker of the House of Representatives. Has made good with a rush in his first try at law-making, and is the author of many important measures designed to better conditions in the State. Is a staunch friend and champion of his native State and is interested especially in the development and conservation of the natural resources of Eastern Kentucky. Believes that the indiscriminate carrying and use of fire-arms is responsible for much of the evil reputation which the mountain district of Kentucky has achieved and has introduced and fought for a bill designed to break up this practice. Has also introduced bill providing for a State License Tax on whisky. Mason, Order of the Mystic Shrine, Member El Hasa Temple, Ashland; Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows.

FRANK S. MOORE

Representative First District.

FRANK S. MOORE: Representative First District, Hickman, Democrat, lawyer. Born in Pulaski, Ills., a son of Silas J. and Cynthia (Littlejohn) Moore. Educated in common schools of Illinois and Dixon Business College, Dixon, Ills., Dixon College of Law, B L., Class of 1900. Came to Kentucky in 1901, located at Hickman, and began practice of Law. One of the best known attorneys in Western Kentucky, and enjoys lucrative practice. Is serving first term in Legislature and is one of progressive and influential members of the House. Defeated Ed. Jones, Republican, by 873 majority in November election. Has introduced some important legislation, including automobile bill, which requires all owners of motor vehicles to register with Secretary of State; bill providing for the payment by counties of half toward the support of pauper idiots, lifting that much burden from and preventing frauds against the State; and a measure designed to prevent accidents on railroads by placing persons who trespass on railroad property on same footing with trespassing stock. Is opposed to vicious trust legislation and has been most zealous in behalf of the interests of the people. While it is no small task to analyze some 800 bills, he has devoted himself to a close study of the more important of these and his voice and influence have been felt in opposition to many measures designed to benefit the few at the expense of the many. Has voted consistently against all "grab" measures and has been ever watchful of the interests of his constituents and the people in general. His alertness and activity in this respect have earned him a reputation as "watch dog" of the interests of the common people. Married Miss Stella Royal, of Villa Ridge, Ills., in 1898. Has one child, Dorothy, six years old. Committees: Fourth Class Cities, Chairman; Railroads, Kentucky Statutes, Circuit Courts, State Prisons and Houses of Reform. Educated in the public schools of Crittenden county and admitted to the bar in 1867. Resided in Crittenden county until 1893, when he removed to Madisonville and continued the practice of law. Elected Judge of the Crittenden County Court in 1876 at age of 30 years, and after serving one term engaged in the practice of law in Marion, Ky., until 1893. Elected delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1890, representing the counties of Crittenden and Livingston. At the close of Constitutional Convention became candidate for Circuit Judge of the Fourth Judicial District, but owing to factionalism in the Democratic local ranks, was defeated by small majority. He then formed partnership with O. Waddle & Son, at Madisonville, and continued the practice of law until 1897, when he again became a candidate of the Democratic party for Judge of the Fourth Judicial District. His opponent this time, as formerly, being the Hon. Clifton J. Pratt, whom he defeated by a large majority. In 1902 became a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals to succeed the Hon. J. D. White, and, after what seemed a hopeless deadlock, was given the nomination, and subsequently elected. Has since been re-nominated for a second term without opposition. Married Miss Sallie A. Clement, of Crittenden county in 1869 and has two sons, Clem S. Nunn, of Marion, Ky., and John L. Judge Lockett is considered one of best legal authorities in the State, and since his appointment by Attorney General Breathitt in March, 1908, has devoted himself principally to Fiscal Department of Auditor's office. The noted case of Blanton vs. James, Auditor, recently decided by Court of Appeals was argued before that body by Judge Lockett. He also prepared the documents in the celebrated injunction case of the Commonwealth against L. & N. and L. & A. merger. Attorney General Breathitt has found him a very valuable First Assistant, and lawyers over the State recognize in him one of the leaders of their fraternity.

THEODORE B. BLAKEY

Second Assistant Attorney General

THEODORE BECKER BLAKEY: Second Assistant Attorney General, Beattyville, Republican, lawyer. Born in Auburn, Logan county, September 8, 1861, a son of Churchill and Mary C. (Becker) Blakey. of Revolutionary ancestry, his great grandfather, George Blakey, was a soldier in the Revolution and a pioneer settler of Logan county, Ky., emigrating there from Virginia. His grandfather, Thos. Blakey, was sheriff of Logan county. His father was three times elected to the Kentucky Legislature from Logan county. At the age of eleven the subject of this sketch was a page in the House of Representatives at Frankfort. Received an academic education, and in 1882 graduated from High School at Auburn. Graduate Law Department, University of Louisville, Class of 1883. Entered at once upon practice of his profession at Russellville, Ky. Elected City Attorney of Russellville, serving in that office several years. Located at Beattyville in 1889, where he continued practice of law. In 1890, married Miss Lula Beatty, a daughter of Capt. J. M. Beatty, of Beattyville, for whose grandfather the place was named. Six children have blessed their union. Organized National Bank of Beattyville and for several years was vice-president and manager of that institution. Served four years as City Attorney of Beattyville and eight years as County Attorney of Lee county. Republican nominee for Circuit Judge of Twenty-third Judicial District in 1903, and Republican nominee for Congress in Tenth Congressional District in 1904. Appointed Second Assistant Attorney General in March, 1908, and has made a splendid record in the preparation and argument of cases for the Commonwealth before the Appellate Court.

THOMAS B. MCGREGOR.
Third Assistant Attorney General

THOMAS B. MCGREGOR: Third Assistant Attorney General, native of Marshall county. Born and reared on father's farm at Fristoe-Iola, Ky. Comes from celebrated "Clan MacGregor" stock, so well known in Scottish history. Attended common schools, took active part in debating societies. Entered Marshall County Seminary at Benton when seventeen years old and secured certificate to teach in public schools, which profession he followed for several terms. Entered Civil Service for short time, studied law, procured license to practice and graduated from Cumberland University, Law Department, at Lebanon, Tenn. Formed partnership with law firm at Paducah and Benton. In politics is militant Republican. Began political career at age of sixteen, when he was chosen Secretary of the Republican County Committee. Has always been one of most active and forceful campaign speakers in the Republican party in Kentucky. Living in the Democratic end of the State, has never been elected to office, but led his party as nominee for County Attorney in 1905, and in 1907 made a close race for Representative in the Marshall-Lyon District, reducing a Democratic majority of more than 1,200 to 62 votes. Appointed Assistant Attorney General in 1908 by Attorney General Breathitt in recognition of signal service for the Republican State ticket. Is possessed of characteristic energy, ambition and literary taste, and owns a fine private library. Is an earnest advocate of good roads, better schools and better conditions for the farmers from which class he sprang. In two years has conducted more than 200 cases for the Commonwealth before the Court of Appeals, many involving important Constitutional and Federal questions. Has fought incessantly for the schools and succeeded in having the Anti-Trust Act of 1890 construed with the pooling Act of 1906 as to uphold the farmers in their fight with the trusts. Is a member of several secret orders, the American Political Science Association, the American Institute of Criminal Law, and, by appointment of Gov. Willson, served on State Committee at Lincoln Centenary Celebration. Married Miss Nell Palmer, of Benton, in 1906. Has one child, Eleanor Palmer McGregor, a baby.

CHARLES HARWOOD MORRIS

Chief Law Clerk, Attorney General's Department

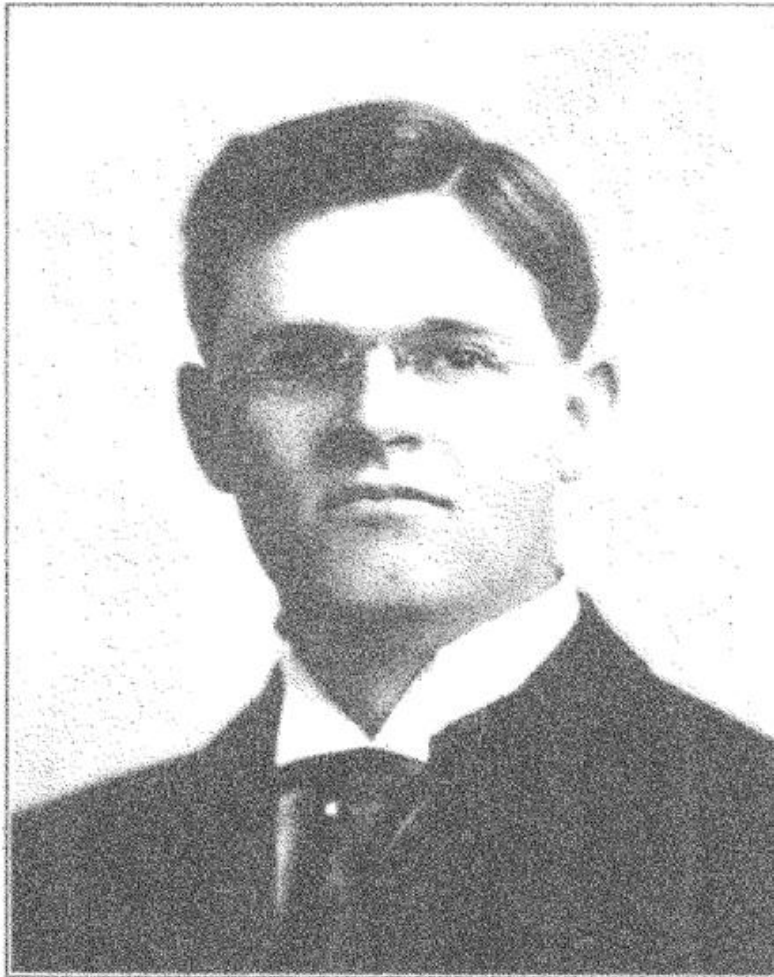

CHARLES HARWOOD MORRIS: Chief Law Clerk, Attorney General's Department; La Grange. Democrat. Born in Shelbyville, Ky., a son of Judge James S. and L. M. Morris. Attended graded school at Shelbyville until 16 years old, and engaged in mercantile business until his family moved to La Grange in 1895. Went into his father's law office and later was admitted to the bar. In 1905 his ability as a brilliant young attorney was recognized by Attorney General N. B. Hays and he was, without solicitation on his part, taken into the latter's office where he served with fidelity and ability as the latter's assistant until the end of Gen. Hays' term. In 1908 Judge James Breathitt, the new Republican Attorney General, recognizing the valuable services rendered the department by Mr. Morris, offered him the post of Chief Law Clerk and he has served in that capacity since that time. Mr. Morris enjoys the distinction of being the only Democrat retained in the Capitol by the present Republican administration. Is deservedly popular and has the routine of the department at his finger tips. For twelve years member, and for eight years chairman of the Oldham county Democratic Committee in which latter capacity he now serves. Takes little active interest in politics except to further the interests of his friends. Probably enjoys a wider acquaintance among Kentucky lawyers than any other man with the exception of Col. Robt. M. Greene. Is a Mason, Red Man and Woodman of the World; Esteemed Leading Knight of Frankfort No. 530, B. P. O. E. Has hobby of collecting stick pins. His collection of these is extensive and varied, each possessing historical or sentimental value. Musician with fondness for flute and saxophone. Single.

ADDIE BRUMFIELD

Chief Stenographer, Attorney General's Department

MISS ADDIE BRUMFIELD: Chief Stenographer, Attorney General's Department, Hopkinsville. Born in Christian county, a daughter of R. F. and S. E. (Shelton) Brumfield. Educated in public schools, and South Kentucky College. Graduate of Hopkinsville High School. Taught in Christian county schools for several years, and relinquished that work to adopt profession of stenographer. For three years was stenographer for law firm of Breathitt & Bell, Hopkinsville, which position she resigned to accept present appointment as chief stenographer and private secretary to Attorney General James Breathitt in January, 1908. Miss Brumfield is a favorite with officials and attaches of the various Capitol departments, and with those having business with legal department of the State. She enjoys her work thoroughly and never wearies with the tremendous volume of labor which her position entails. Hundreds of lengthy briefs and legal opinions are moulded weekly into typewritten form by her nimble fingers.

Secretary of State

DR. BEN L. BRUNER: Secretary of State. Republican, Louisville, Ky. Elected November 5, 1907, for a term of four years from January, 1908. Born at Clarkson, Grayson county, in 1872, a son of Hon. P. S. and Mary (Rogers) Bruner. Reared on a farm, where he had all the experience that come to a boy in farming, saw-logging and the like. Educated in common schools of State, Millerstown Academy, Leitchfield Seminary, and graduated from Sweetwater College, Sweetwater, Tenn., at age of twenty-one. Taught school, clerked and was traveling salesman for two years. Went to Louisville in 1893, where he drove a street car and worked his way through medical college, graduating in 1897 from Hospital College of Medicine, Medical Department of Central University. During his school days evinced a liking for the political rostrum. At age of sixteen was heard in political campaigns and in joint debate with leading Democrats. Member of the Legislature of 1902 from Hart county and nominated and elected Secretary of State in 1907. Has always been liberal and generous, and, while a man of strong convictions not afraid to express his views on any question, has always bowed to his party's will. His success in politics is not alone confined to Kentucky as he had been in demand and has spent considerable time campaigning in other States under the auspices of the National Committee. Is, strictly speaking, a self-made man, having made his own way in the world since he was fourteen years old. Noted for his untiring energy and indefatigable will power. Does not know the word "fail." His motto has always been, "there is no such luck as that which is spelled with five letters "pluck." Since his incumbency of present office has brought secretary of State's Department from obscurity and placed it in the forefront until it is now recognized as one of the most important departments of the State Government. The splendid way in which he has handled the Corporation and Banking Departments of the State has not only strengthened these institutions in Kentucky but has given him fame in the business world outside of the State. Was first to occupy new State Capitol, moving his office and records from the old State House some seven weeks before any other State official.

JACKSON MORRIS

Corporation Clerk, Department Secretary of State

WILL R. LYON: Chief Clerk Corporation Department, Secretary of State's Office. Horse Cave. Republican. Lawyer. Born in Muhlenberg county September 2, 1882, a son of James B. and Mattie (Malin) Lyon. Received his education in the common and high schools of Hart county, where he located with his parents when a boy. Has been prominent in Republican politics in his section of the State since he was old enough to vote, and has enjoyed considerable political preferment for a young man. Served for several years as Chief Deputy County Clerk of Hart county, having been appointed to that office in 1895. Made race for the Republican nomination for County Clerk of Hart county in 1905 and was defeated by one vote, after one of the most strenuous political battles in the history of the county. Served as Chairman of Hart County Republican Committee two terms. Has been engaged for several years in the insurance business at Horse Cave, the firm of W. R. Lyon & Co., which consists of himself and his father-in-law, enjoying a lucrative clientele. Married Miss Emma Logsdon, of Munfordville, in 1895, and has one child, Robert Alexander Lyon. One of the most prominent young men in Kentucky fraternal circles. Mason. Voted for for Grand Junior Warden of Kentucky in Grand Lodge at Louisville, 1908 and 1909. As chief of one of the most important of the State Departments, has made an enviable record, and has done much to make the Secretary of State's Office one of the most progressive and up-to-date in the New Capitol.

W. SHERMAN BALL

Bank Clerk, Department Secretary of State

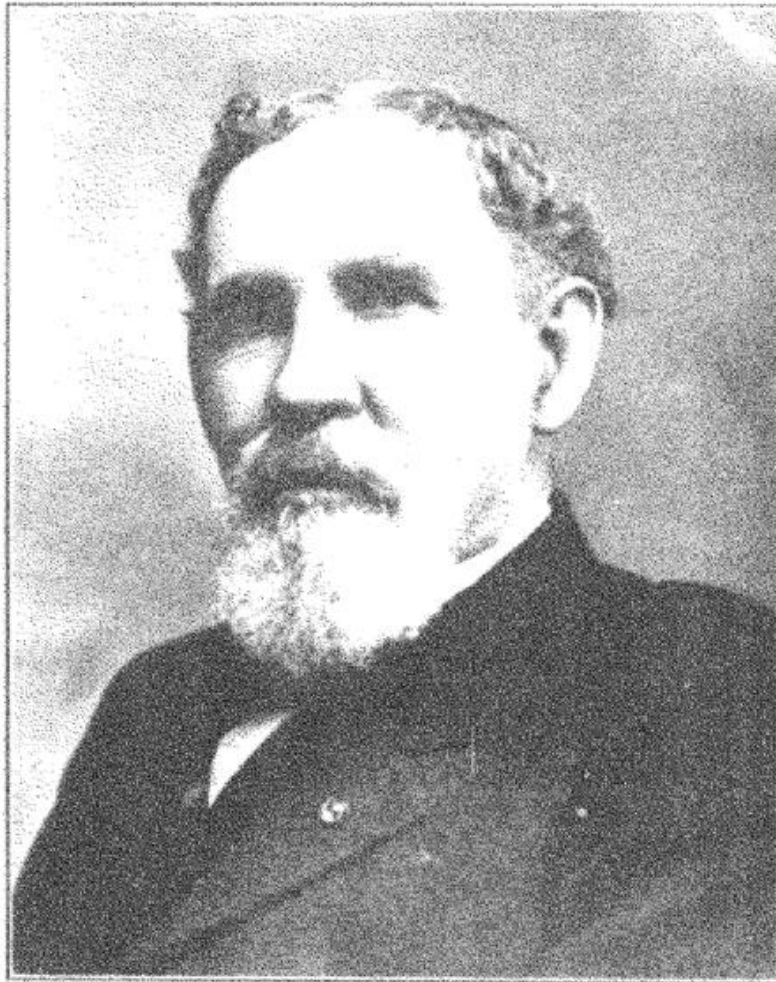

W. SHERMAN BALL: Bank Clerk, Department Secretary of State; Republican, lawyer. Hardinsburg, Breckinridge county. Born in Breckinridge county, a son of Thomas J. and Judith A. (De Jarnett) Ball. Comes from Virginia ancestors who were among early pioneers of Kentucky. Has charge of Banking Department, Secretary of State's Office, some 500 State Banks and trust companies coming under his supervision. Is one of the most active young Republicans in Kentucky, and is always on the firing line in county and State campaigns. Always in readiness for a political scrimmage, he has engaged in some of the most strenuous ever recorded in his section of the State. At the age of twenty-one years he was Republican nominee for Circuit Clerk of his district, and after a game fight was nosed out by 26 votes, while other Republican nominees lost the county by 250 votes. Later he was elected to this office and held it for six years. As candidate for County Clerk of Breckinridge four years ago he lost by a narrow margin in one of the most hotly contested campaigns ever waged in old Breckinridge. Born on a Breckinridge county farm, he received his education in the public schools, the Hardinsburg High School and the Southern Normal School. Taught school for a number of years prior to entering politics. Is a licensed attorney, ambitious and popular, and his friends are for him any time he seeks political preferment. COL. ELIJAH J. GREEN: State Immigration Clerk; Louisville Republican. Was formerly Assistant Adjutant General, having been appointed to that office by Adjutant General Johnston with Gov. Willson's consent, in January, 1908, serving in that capacity until the Spring of 1909, when he was appointed to his present position by M. C. Rankin, State Commissioner of Agriculture. His office is considered one of the most important of the State Departments and was created for the purpose of bringing emigrants into Kentucky. That Col. Green has made good during his year's tenure of office is evidenced by his annual report recently filed with the State Agricultural Department and which shows that he brought nine hundred emigrant families into Kentucky during that time. These are distributed throughout the State and are proving a wonderful assistance to the native farmers. Is a resident of Covington, and married. An athlete of distinction and holds the records for wall-scaling in the National Guard of the United States. In various athletic tournaments, held by the First Ohio Regiment, he won five silver loving cups. For two years was Captain of Co. I, Second Regiment and for six months Captain of Co. A, First Regiment. At one time was member of the Brown Light Infantry. Is a forceful speaker and active Republican and has taken a prominent part in many State and local Republican campaigns.

Member Kentucky Railroad Commission

LLEWELLYN P. TARLTON: Member of Kentucky Railroad Commission; Republican. Frankfort. Elected in November, 1907, for a term of four years. Was born May 27, 1846, at "The Meadows," the home of his maternal grandfather, Dr. Elisha Warfield, near Lexington, Ky. His father, Dr. L. P. Tarlton, and his mother, were both native Kentuckians, and all his grandparents were in Kentucky before, or about the time, it was admitted to the Union. Attended school in Lexington and from the one of which Dr. James K. Patterson, now the honored head of State University, was principal, entered the University of Michigan and graduated therefrom in June, 1862. Graduated from Law School of Kentucky University in June, 1869, and practiced his profession at Lexington until 1885. He married in 1883 and moved to Franklin county, where he still resides. His home, in the suburbs of the Capital City, is one of the most attractive in that section, and is famous for its hospitality. Elected Sheriff of Fayette county in 1872—The only Republican ever elected to that position. Deputy Collector U. S. Internal Revenue, Frankfort, 1888-92. One of organizers in 1867 of Republican party in Kentucky, and has always been active in the councils and campaigns of that party. Delegate in 1892 from his district and from State-at-large in 1896 to Republican National Convention, at the latter taking a prominent part in framing the gold plank of the Republican platform. Mr. Tarlton's election as Railroad Commissioner was one of the earthquakes in Kentucky politics. On thirty days' notice he went on the Republican State ticket by petition, having been urged by the leaders in his party to make the race, in which seemed a hopeless Democratic District, which had gone some 18,000 against the Republicans in the previous election for that office. His opponent was Charles C. McChord, at that time Chairman of the Railroad Commission, a man extremely popular in his party. Mr. Tarlton was elected, wiping out the normally heavy Democratic majority and with a good Republican majority to his credit.

Commissioned by Governor Bramlett, Weigher at the Louisville Tobacco Warehouses in 1863, where he originated and promoted with the various proprietors, the first tobacco fair held in that city. Was an ardent and zealous union man and enlisted under the banner of Lincoln and Johnson and has always voted with the Republican party. Located in Frankfort in 1873 and took charge of the Sheriff's office under William J. Chinn. Later, on account of ill health, sought an out-door life and began navigating the Kentucky River from Lock No. 2 to Shake Ferry. Commissioned by Governor McCreary in 1876 to take possession of slack water construction on the Kentucky River. The General Assembly refusing to appropriate funds to repair the locks and dams on the river, Capt. Drane, with the assistance of Judge Lysander Hord, W. J. Chinn, and others succeeded in getting the first appropriation from the Federal Government to reconstruct the work abandoned by the State. Served as Master Commissioner of the Franklin Circuit Court and for four years as Postmaster of Frankfort under President Roosevelt's administration. Has been of valuable assistance in superintending the voluminous details of the State Capitol Commission's Department, keeping accurate tally of all contracts and expenditures connected with the completion of the New Capitol, and the members of the Commission have found his services invaluable.

GEO. A. LEWIS

Custodian of Public Buildings

GEORGE A. LEWIS: Custodian of Public Buildings, Frankfort, Republican. Born June 24, 1846 on St. Clair St., Frankfort, one-half block from old Capitol grounds. The youngest son of George Wythe and Mary J. (Todd) Lewis. Educated in the schools of Frankfort and in July, 1862, became a contractor for carrying the mail from Frankfort to Paris. State Superintendent, Kentucky Children's Home Society

GEORGE LEWIS SEHON: State Superintendent Kentucky Children's Home Society. Was born in St. Joseph, Mo., July 4, 1859. At early age he came to Kentucky and spent his boyhood in New Castle, Henry county. Left school at age of fourteen and has paddled his own canoe since that time. Elected Deputy Sheriff at sixteen. A contractor at seventeen and commercial traveler at nineteen. Followed the latter profession until 1899 when he was elected to the office he now holds. While Mr. Sehon's field of work and accomplishment is not an item in the commercial world, it no less entitles him to a place on the list of men whose work adds to the greatness of Kentucky. Nearly ten years ago, when the Kentucky Children's Home Society was comparatively new and had but a limited chapter of effectual deeds to its credit, he became State Superintendent. To-day the organization stands at the head of institutions of its class in 28 States, and through the judicious administration of Mr. Sehon, the upright and conscientious dealings, and systematic manner of taking up, placing and careful supervision of the institution's wards throughout the entire State, the institution is widely known and holds the confidence of all. To his credit be it said that he has remained at the head of the Kentucky Institution in the face of opportunities to better himself personally by the acceptance of offers of like work in other States. His personal sacrifices have been numerous but his heart and unflagging energy has been given to the success of the Kentucky institution, and he may well look upon his accomplishments with pride.

ALBERT SCOTT

President State Board of Control.

ALBERT SCOTT: President Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions; Louisville. Republican. Born September 5, 1843, at Rowe, Franklin county, Mass., a son of Thomas and Caroline (Grant) Scott, who descended from the first settlers of Connecticut. Enlisted in the Union army at the age of eighteen as Private; served three years, seven months in Department of Gulf under Maj. Gen. Butler, Banks and Camby. Mustered out September 9, 1865, after the close of the war. Entered service of Jeffersonville Railroad, Jeffersonville, Ky., October 1, 1865, filling the positions of laborer, clerk, yard-master, train-master and Superintendent of the Belt Railroads and Stock Yards Co., at Indianapolis, Indiana. Superintendent Louisville Cement Co., Shippingport, Jefferson county, 1883-1888. Appointed Collector of Internal Revenue 1888 by President Harrison and served four years. Appointed Oil Inspector, Jefferson county, 1895, and served four years. One of the best known Republicans in Kentucky and one of the most skillful and adroit among political leaders. Has been a resident of the Fourth Ward, of Louisville, for 25 years, during which time he has done much to advance Republican interests in Louisville and Kentucky. Served as Chairman of the Jefferson County Executive Committee for twelve years. Chairman of the Republican State Campaign Committee in 1907, and his splendid handling of that campaign resulted in the election of the present State officers. Is a member of the famous Grant family from which came President Grant and is of sturdy Puritan parentage. Appointed to Board of Control by Gov. Wilson in January, 1908, for a term of four years, to succeed Robert B. Phillips, of Elizabethtown. Has proved a most valuable member of the Department which exercises jurisdiction over the State's charitable institutions, and his services are counted invaluable by the Chief Executive of the State.

JUDGE A. J. G. WELLS
Member State Board of Control.

JUDGE A. J. G. WELLS: Member Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions. Democrat. Former County Judge of Calloway county. Born October 23, 1868, in Calloway county. Eleventh of a family of thirteen children born to Andrew Jackson Wells and Mary Margaret Wells, both parents from Virginia and Carolina parentage. Educated in Public schools of State, Murry Institute and Southern Normal University. For many years principal of Trezevant (Tenn.) Male and Female College. Later instructor of Latin at his Alma Mater and in charge of the Practical Business Department. Ability as an educator widely recognized. Graduated in law and began practice at Murray under firm name of Wells & Wells, having formed a partnership with Hon. Ranley T. Wells. Nominated by Democratic party for County Judge of Calloway in 1904 and elected to that office by large majority in 1906. Served with signal ability in that office for three years, during the period of night riding troubles in Western Kentucky. Became famous as "the night rider judge" and his devotion to duty and his oath of office attracted wide attention and admiration, especially from Gov. Willson, who appointed him to his present office. Thousands of endorsements were poured in on the executive when Judge Wells became an applicant for membership on the State Board of Control, the law and order element of the State insisting as one man on his appointment. His work as a member of the Board has been such as to please his most exacting friends. Twice married, first to Emma Judson Hillsman, of Trezevant, Tenn., then to Luby Idella Featherstone, of Newbern, Tenn. Three children were born to the first union: John Hillsman, Mary Marguerite and Sarah Jeannette; two to the second, Helen Stone and Idella Ellen. Four of the children are living. Is learned in the law, widely informed along many lines, a platform speaker of much force and ability, and a convincing and resourceful advocate before a jury. As a young man of marked integrity and sterling character there is none better for honest and efficient public service. Methodist. Odd Fellow, Knight of Pythias and member W. O. W.

STANLEY MILWARD

Member State Board of Control

STANLEY MILWARD: Member Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions. Lexington. Republican. Merchant. Born at Lexington January 14, 1868, a son of Col. W. R. Milward and Belle (Bright) Milward. His grandfather was Joseph Milward, one of the pioneer merchants of Lexington. His father, Col. Milward, entered the Union Army at age of nineteen, as Lieutenant Co. A, Twenty-first Kentucky Volunteer Infantry. Was mustered out in 1876 as Colonel of Twenty-first Kentucky Infantry. His mother was a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John B. Bright. Stanley Milward attended the public schools and State University. At the age of sixteen entered employment with the C. & O. R. R., in the freight department, at Lexington, and occupied several positions of trust and importance. In 1887 his father took Stanley with him as a partner and since that time they have been associated in business together. Is progressive and energetic to a marked degree and the present magnificent structure now occupied by the Milwards on North Broadway, Lexington, was planned and designed by him. His family has always taken a prominent part in local and State politics, and naturally the son came into the family inheritance. In the fall of 1905 he was nominated by the Republicans for City Treasurer of Lexington, and was elected by a large majority. In 1899 was nominated for Mayor of Lexington and was defeated by 246 votes. Has served as Chairman of Finance and Campaign Committees in several local and State elections. Is a splendid speaker and a man of engaging personality and force, and one "who does things." Is a "live wire" of the present State administration. Gov. Willson having appointed him member of the State Board of Control in 1908, following the passage of the law creating the bi-partisan board. Has served as member of this important body with great fidelity and credit to himself and to the State e'emosynary institutions. Married.

JUDGE GARRETT S. WALL
Member State Board of Control

JUDGE GARRETT S. WALL: Member Kentucky State Board of Control for Charitable Institutions. Maysville. Democrat. Lawyer. Born in Bourbon county, a son of Dr. A. H. and Elizabeth A. MRS. JENNIE C. MORTON

Secretary-Treasurer, Kentucky Historical Society.

MRS. JENNIE C. MORTON: Secretary-Treasurer Kentucky Historical Society. Born at "Bellgrove," Forks of Elkhorn, Franklin county, Ky. Resurrected the now flourishing Historical Society from the derelict that she took hold of years ago. By her energy and industry she has made it one of the most famous in the United States. Is a member of one of the most prominent families in Kentucky and a poet and author of national reputation and known throughout the State as "Kentucky's Lady Laureate." Is versatile editor and publisher of "The Register," a magazine of historical writings of Kentucky. This magazine is on exchange with similar works all over the world. At the Centennial of Frankfort, Mrs. Morton wrote and read a poem on "The Women of Frankfort," which was widely complimented by the press throughout the State. As a poet she has won the admiration of critics throughout the country. Her latest effort in this direction, "Her Dearest Friend," is considered a gem of rhythm and beauty. Is noted for her charity and has done much along this line in a quiet and unobtrusive manner. Is a devout member of the Presbyterian church and resides with her friend, Miss Sallie Jackson, on Shelby street, Frankfort, where these two most attractive and lovable women dispense true Kentucky hospitality to a wide circle of intimate and cherished friends.

J. C. W. BECKHAM
THIRTY-FOURTH GOVERNOR OF KENTUCKY

and

Chairman of the Old Capitol Commission, which began the construction of the handsome new building now occupied by the State Government.

As Governor of Kentucky he signed, on February 6, 1904, the original appropriation bill passed by the General Assembly, setting aside $1,000,000 for a New State Capitol.

As chairman of the Capitol Building Commission, he broke ground for the New Capitol on May 30, 1905. The spade used now hangs in the State Historical Rooms.

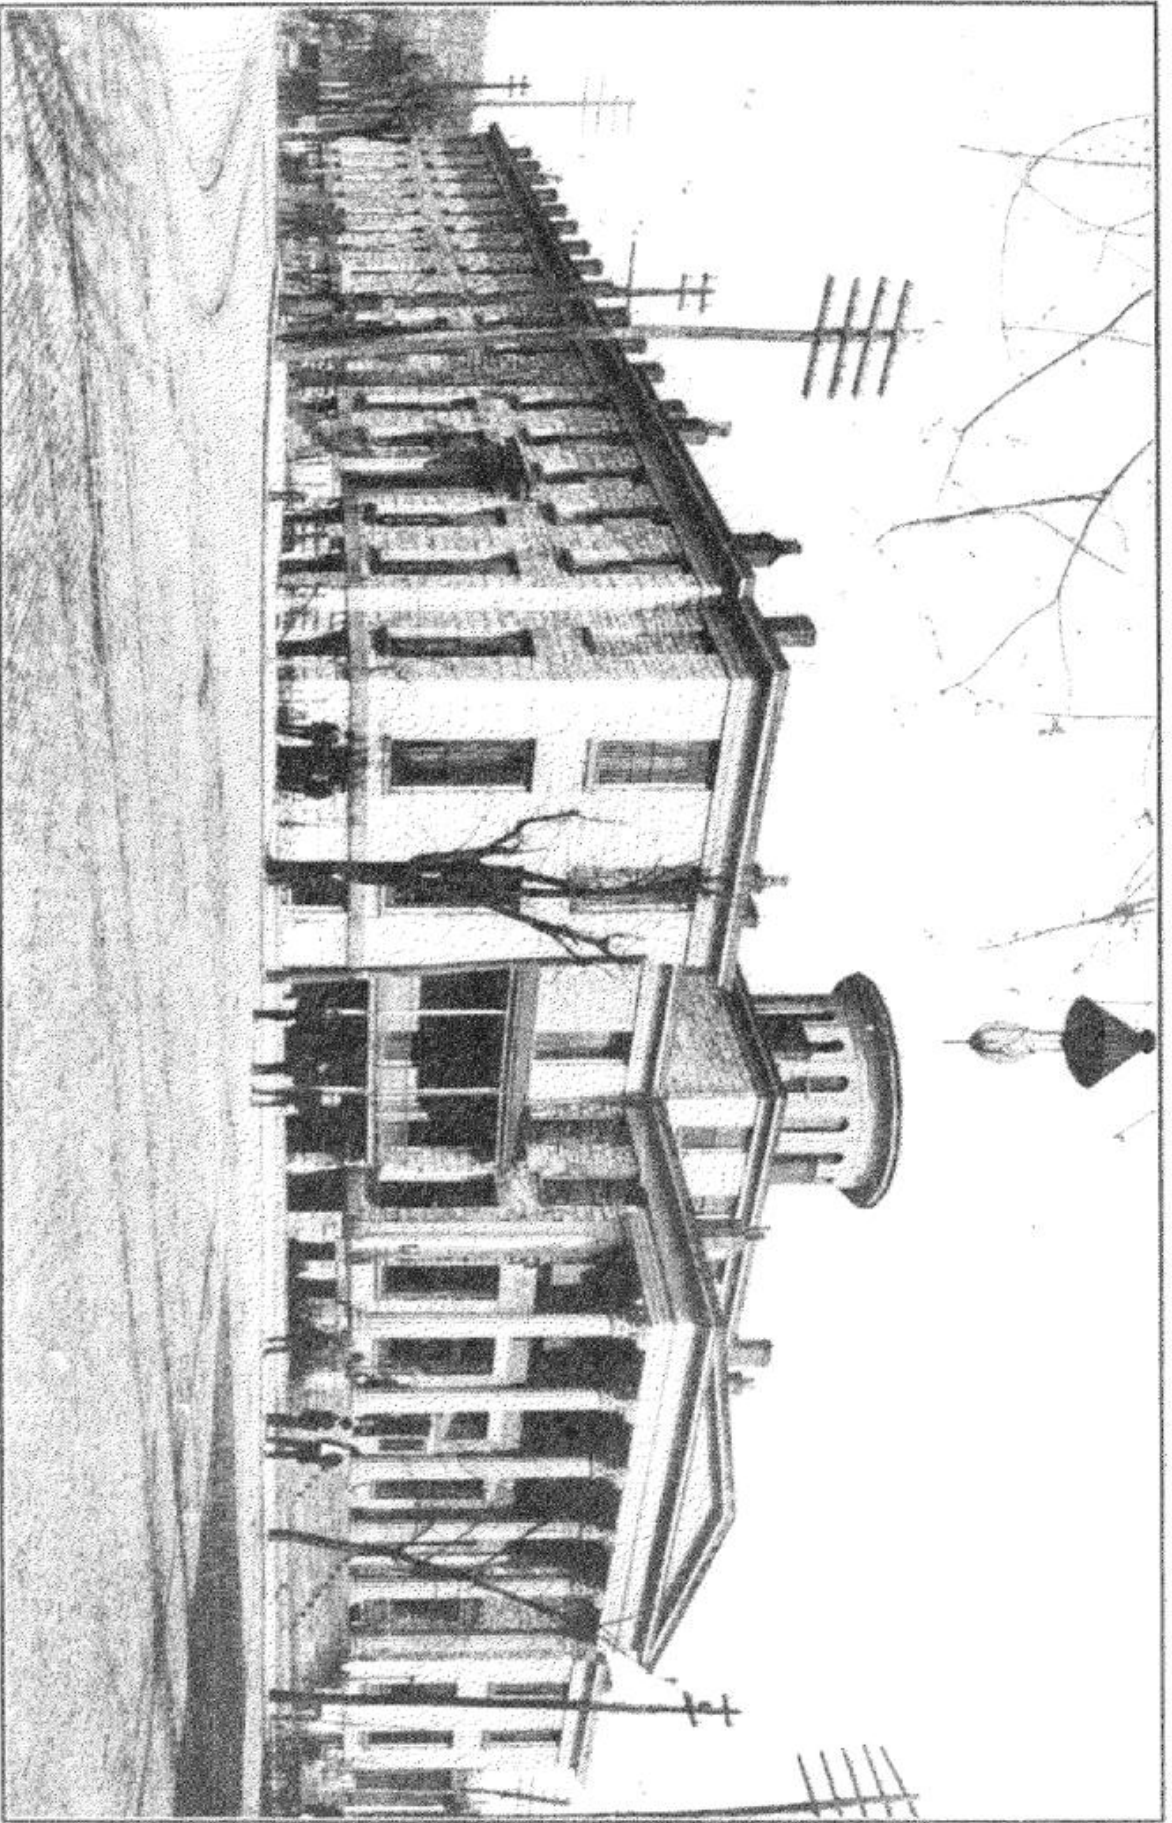

At the corner-stone laying of the New Capitol, June 16, 1906, he officiated as Master of Ceremonies and delivered a stirring address. Secretary of State H. V. McChesney followed with a forceful speech as representative of the Board, and United States Senator James B. McCreary was among the other prominent speakers on that occasion.

JAMES S. POLSGROVE
Mayor of Frankfort.

JAMES S. POLSGROVE, Mayor of the Capital City; Frankfort. Democrat. Lawyer. Born in Franklin county, Oct. 18, 1870, a son of O'Banon and Elizabeth S. (Petty) Polsgrove. Educated in common schools of Franklin county and Frankfort. Graduate, Class of '93, Law Department, University of Louisville. Admitted to practice of law at Frankfort in July, 1892. Elected County Attorney of Franklin county, November 1894, and served seven years. Elected County Judge in 1901 and served nearly eight years. Resigned one month before end of second term to become Mayor of Frankfort. Elected Mayor of Frankfort in November, 1909, and assumed duties of office December 1. Has spent entire life in community where he was born. Comes of Democratic stock and has always warmly espoused the cause of his people. Is careful student of politics and law and by close application and hard work has won distinction in his profession. During the first two months of his term as Mayor of Kentucky's Capital, has won the admiration of Frankfort people by his efforts to make the city a clean and law abiding community. Has earned no little distinction during this time for his activity in the rigid enforcement of the Sunday closing excise laws. In his race for Mayor, defeated George H. Stehlin, Republican, by 390 majority, the largest ever accorded a Democratic candidate for Mayor. In his races for County Attorney and County Judge, received more votes in primaries than all of his opponents. In Mayoralty primary also received more votes than his two opponents totaled. Is most popular and efficient City Executive and his friends predict that he will make splendid record in office. Married Miss Margaret Stone of Franklin county in 1894 and has four attractive and winsome children: Viola, Robert Cantrill, Ben Suter and James H. Polsgrove, Jr. Elk, Past Worthy Master and for two years District Deputy, Frankfort Aerie, F. O. E.; member nights of Macabees.

FRANKFORT'S HISTORIC CAPITAL HOTEL.

THE CAPITAL HOTEL

Almost as old an institution as the General Assembly of Kentucky, is the quaint, old, stone Capital Hotel, that has sheltered for many years the Solons of the Commonwealth and the great men of the day who have visited Frankfort. This splendid, old hostelry was built about 1852 and the same architect designed the Burnett House of Cincinnati and the Galt House of Louisville, making a trinity of hotels that for substantiality and roominess cannot be excelled in the entire country.

The hotel is built of native stone and is simple and beautiful in its lines. It occupies a city square and is furnished with taste and designed for comfort. It was erected at the instance of the City Council in order that Frankfort might prove attractive enough to keep the Capitol within its borders. This historic old building has been the scene of many momentous occasions, and could its walls but speak they would be able to recite many incidents that have made and unmade Governors, Legislators and National statesmen in a single night. These same walls have been the spectators of comedy and tragedy and have witnessed the making of much of Kentucky's history.

In the days of auld lang syne celebrities from all over the world have been entertained by mine host at this celebrated inn. The present owners, Mrs. Jerome Weitzel and her son, E. B. Weitzel, have re-furnished and re-decorated the rooms, re-papered the walls, and made it one of the most up-to-date hotels of the South. Its very name conjures before the eye of the epicure, the varied and splendid fare that can be found only in Old Kentucky. The rooms are large, and commodious and the acme of comfort. Hospitality on a liberal and pretentious scale reigns here as it did in the days of long ago. Edward B. Weitzel, the affable and genial manager of this hotel, is perhaps better known throughout Kentucky than many of the legislators who have been making Frankfort their home bi-ennially for years. He is exceedingly popular both with the legislators and the traveling public and always has a pleasant word of greeting for his guests and visitors. His managerial ability is shown by the splendid condition in which the hotel is found at all times, and his fine organization of helpers, each one having his or her own duty and attending to it, with the result that cleanliness and order go to make one of the many attractions of this celebrated hostelry.
