ABOUT THE LIBRARIES

REMINDER ON CLOSING POLICY

When classes are not in session and the University closes (or delays opening) the Library follows the University statement for University offices. If the University should close early or delay opening when classes are in session, the Library normally continues its regular schedule as an "essential service" with staff coverage as is maintained in public service units on nights and weekends (i.e., usually student coverage). This is the same policy that was in effect last year.

NEWS OF FORMER COLLEAGUE

Susan Csaky, formerly of Government Documents, was invited to record on a one-hour cassette her "How to Use Government Documents in Legal Research," by Condyne/Trans Media. It was advertised in the November 1979 issue of Documents to the People. This is one of five studies in "Audio Research in the Law".

APPLIED ANTHROPOLOGY DOCUMENTATION PROJECT

An initial collection of hard-to-obtain papers, articles, and pamphlets on applied anthropology was deposited in Special Collections last year by Dr. John van Willigen (Anthropology Department). This rapidly expanding collection marks the beginning of the first Applied Anthropology Archives in the country. All the material is being cataloged on-line for national information. A simple accession number is the only classification necessary since the papers are filed in acid free folders in filing cabinets located in a non-public area. Cards in the public catalog will have (in the call number space) an asterisk and under that: aal, aa2, aa3, etc., etc. The aa stands for Anthropology Archives.

LIBRARIES AND CULTURE

This library history seminar will be held at the Driskill Hotel, Austin, Texas, March 19-22. It will provide a forum for scholars of cultural history to share their research. The result for all should be increased understanding of the place of libraries within their cultural and social contexts. The Seminar will include afternoon tours of the Lyndon Baines Johnson Presidential Library, various University of Texas library collections and other libraries. Limit of 125 registrants. For further information write to: Division of Continuing Education, University of Texas at Austin, Main Building 2500, Austin, Texas 78712. Telephone: 512-471-3123.

HEALTH SCIENCES LIBRARY MANAGEMENT INTERN PROGRAM 1980-81

Applications are invited from librarians who have a minimum of five years of professional library experience. Interns will learn and practice managerial techniques and leadership skills required in the daily performance of first-class library directors. Interns will receive up to $25,000 as well as allotments for travel and moving expenses. Application deadline March 15, 1980. Write to: Health Sciences Library Management Intern Program, Council on Library Resources, Inc., 1 Dupont Circle, Suite 620, Washington, D.C. 20036.

PUBLISHING INSTITUTE

The University of Denver Graduate School of Librarianship and Information Management is offering practical workshops in editing, production and marketing with lecture/teaching sections conducted by leading experts from all areas of publishing. The Institute will be held from July 14-August 8, 1980; application deadline is April 1, 1980. The tuition is $725 for the 6 quarter hours credit. The program is designed for, among others, library school graduates interested in publishing. For further information write to the Dean, Graduate School of Librarianship and Information Management, University of Denver, Denver, Colorado 80208. Telephone: 303-753-2557
