Hal Harned, Jr., Class Of '41

One of the voices that cheered at basketball games, that answered the professor's questions...

The career of Hal Harned, Jr., was severed in the middle of his sophomore year. A member of the University band, the YMCA, participant in Intramural sports...

In a University of this size, it is impossible for any student to know every other student and there may be some who say that any loss could be replaced. We challenge that. The walk, the voice, the tilt of the head, the look in the eyes...

In sincerest sympathy, may we say to his family and to his fraternity brothers that your loss is our loss, too.

The Boys Who Cry Wolf

If the national American Student Union is really a representative union of American students, then we beg to secede.

Of all the crack-pot, propagandistic hokey we've ever seen in our lives, the purported "new releases" of that august body disgust us most.

The past month provided the "union" with its prize lulu. Through its national office in New York City, it designated Friday, February 24, as a day for a national student protest of the U. S. Arms Embargo on Spain. The idea was for students in America to get together on that day and send letters to congressmen, make fiery speeches against the horrible barbarities being practiced by the Spanish Insurgents...

Here are some of the startling pleas, some of the insidious catch phrases used by the Union's propagandists to stir up feeling for this big protest against Embargo:

"Students Ask Where Is the Conscience of America?" "America's Fate Depends on Spain." "From Spain's Valley Forge—Forward to Liberty!"

The idea their circulars tried to convey was that the loyalist Spain was fighting to preserve the republic, the constitutional rights and the democratic traditions of the United States.

How absurd—how typically propagandistic—to cloak the issues of a foreign war with the ideals of our own country.

But the real stinker was this unqualified statement: "This is a nation at war that could be at peace if America flicked a finger and lit the embers."

The Loyalist armies are prepared to fight for several more years for their rights and freedom if only we will send them guns, arms, planes—yes, that would be peaceful, wouldn't it!

The Neutrality Act was set up to protect the youth of America from entanglement in foreign wars by eliminating as much as possible the participation of American capital in those wars.

And yet this American Student Union, which claims peace for a goal, attempts to stir up collisions against the very acts which are designed to keep us from being another war generation.

Our Waste Basket Wails Note to the American Student Union: We're reserving a special corner in our waste basket for any more driving you may care to send us in the form of "new releases."—The Mississippian, University, Mississippi.

And Here Is The Happy Ending

You remember the editorial of last issue ending with this paragraph: "So the campus made ready for the great Sadie Hawkins day, and much was the planning for the costumes, and the day was fast approaching for the test, and the trail blazers were holding their breath, and—

Well, the ending is "And they lived happily ever after." The costumes, orchestra, conduct, and dance in general were all that could be wished—thanks to the students. May Sadie Hawkins day become an annual affair!

Scrap Irony

To a person of our simple tastes the climate of this city is a perpetual amusement. Though without tornadoes, earthquakes, or tidal waves of any sort, the limestone-infested soil on which we trot about from day to day is continually surprising us with discordant notes and variations in its weather theme.

Dick Scoop's radio program, "The Blue and White Review," honored Kappa Kappa Gamma last Friday by airing the traditions and achievements of that sorority over WLAP. During the course of the program President Emmy Lou Turk was asked to name several Kappa alumnae who had gained recognition in world affairs.

Absent from the list of names and accomplishments which Miss Turk read was that of Kappa alumna Alva Alexander Bolle, who is national president of the W. C. T. U.

Notes On The Ballet Russe The funny little man who sold programs in the lobby—his nose described a perfect arc from forehead to chin, wonder to us he could talk at all.

Lucy Elliott's remark, "I love Wagner for his nose and the ballet for its color, have you got a cigarette?"

Our amusement at seeing some men during intermission wearing turned down collars with full-fur. We saw one with a button-down collar (but then he was wearing a tuxedo which is more informal).

Mr. Clifton Fadiman, whom you may have heard on the radio program "Information Please," or whom you may read in "The New Yorker," or whom you may have read in "Stage," or whom you may have read in "The Saturday Review," was in the city last Saturday to address the Central Kentucky Woman's Club at the Lafayette hotel.

Mr. Clifton Fadiman, whom you may have heard on the radio program "Information Please," or whom you may read in "The New Yorker," or whom you may have read in "Stage," or whom you may have read in "The Saturday Review," was in the city last Saturday to address the Central Kentucky Woman's Club at the Lafayette hotel.

"Trouble with the younger Southern writers is that they are all so morbid. I can't believe on any more moral disintegration is going on in the South than there is in any other part of the country. The South has no corner on gloom, no monopoly on melancholy."

"In New York we get our impressions of Georgia from Mr. Erskine Caldwell, who writes of that state as if the population consisted of a lot of first-rate imbeciles."

"I think American realism reached its highest point in Drieser's 'American Tragedy,' not, as so many believe, in 'Suds Loutan.'"

Mr. Fadiman said the South was producing two good writers to the North's one good writer, but that the Southern writers were a little provincial in their novels, not writing enough for the country as a whole, giving the nation an incomplete picture of the South. He said he thought Ellen Glasgow was the most intelligent, most civilized of the Southern authors.

"Only 6.24% of the books published in this country are read in the South." (And, we thought to ourselves, we give literary tests to Negroes before we let them vote.)

Which Will It Be?

Southern Women Cannot See Daughters In Domestic Service

If servants were given decent hours, attractive uniforms and called "Miss," nearly two-thirds of the women of America would be willing to have their daughters go into domestic service.

This was revealed today in a nationwide survey of feminine opinion conducted for the Ladies' Home Journal. The only dissent on this question came from Southern women, college graduates and women who come over $1,500, who opposed the idea by bare majorities.

Part of the dance was taken up by an intermission, and a judging contest which was chosen Daisy Mae, and little Amber. But Nellie Rashie, who was the judge for some purposes, is a long cry from Daisy Mae-don't, and Joe Bailey, while a possible Hankie, was a little too hairless, and not nearly so convincing as the hairless one as was Luke Linden, when he mounted a boy from Blue Diamond pose.

One of the funniest costumes of the evening was shown by edited Ielghart, who appeared in a foolish outfit, looking like a second-grade school-boy, impersonating the funny gongs-on-in the pan-brother, Kappa Kappa Gamma recently put the pledge act on Ginger Watt, one of the year. Gals who never have dates had fun.

Nancy Duncan, promised a three hour dance in the Phi Kappa Psi house, became irked when they reneged, and promptly cut three weeks' vacation to take the vacation, Phi Kappa Psi.

Frances Woods is radiant, which makes her a thing, over her recently broadcasted engagement to Will Hillemeier.

Betty Roberts, KD red-plumaged scowbird, sang "Deep Purple" and "The Masquerade is Over," at the Phi Kappa Psi house the other night. The boys did hope. Jack Spratt's "Deep Purple." The Kaydee te party was hokay. A good music for a leaf affair and a cut trick for the Phi Kappa Psi house, or perhaps it is a pre-requirement for active members.

In The Control Room

By PRENTISS BEATTY Nodes and nogginis for the radio studios. On "All Pools Day" they will have been in existence ten years since...

How many know that there is a disease peculiar to radio? Ehrrrhms! It's hardening and infamating of the ear drums due to continued listening to the loud speaker run at high level.

The most extensively heard program that ever originated in studios was presented Christmas, 1937. The half-hour program featured Jacob Niles, pianist, composer, and collector of Southern Appalachian Mountain ballads...

Radio has a vernacular that makes the lingo of the swing enthusiast look like his computer. The "Gods," of course, could be nothing more than the dignified organ. The "putty blowers" are the iron-

University radio takes another step forward! The first radio broadcast which will be broadcast this summer under the direction of Elmer G. Sulzer, director of the Radio Club, will be broadcast in the new three credit course in radio production, continuity writing, and discussion of radio equipment.

Frank Burger, former head announcer of the studios, brings us a new class of one hour of the studies in which he works in Charleston, S. C. It seems that a U. P. man, a reporter, came to the studios and was bombed, was to be interviewed on the air. The interview was to compare the two radio stations. They thought they could not make a sound to simulate the fall and the rise of the radio industry. A staff member found he could make the noise with his mouth.

- We Love Artie... But T. Dorsey And Larry Clinton Rate Too By JIM CALDWELL

When Artie Shaw's orchestra stopped by Joyland last summer on its way to the top, little did the local college generation think that within six short months it would be recognized by the nation at large as the first swing band in America. And yet a poll of the University's tastes in popular music today gives it an overwhelming preference.

With 24 out of the 36 places voted telling of their love for Shaw, the disputes for 2nd and 3rd places then took the limelight. Tommy Dorsey's crew, with 18 points, takes second. Third goes to Larry Clinton, who garnered 16 votes.

The poll was conducted by visiting or calling the various fraternities and sorority houses and collegiate hang-outs, and inquiring as to the names of the orchestras whose records they played most often. The results follow:

WPA Shovel Forsaken For Paintbrush

By CHARLES K. STEELE The WPA worker with his shovel has become a classic figure in American life, but very little is known about the man who has been called the shovel man.

One of the most difficult painting jobs, according to Mr. Cunningham, was the multi-color scheme of the new Faculty Club, formerly the Patterson home. In some cases, as many as five colors were mixed to bring out the shades desired by Prof. Edward W. Rannels, who planned the color scheme. It is the only interior of that type in the section of the country. WPA mixers followed a color chart in blending the shades. Highly skilled painting technique was required to prevent brush marks and overlapping. In order to secure the stippled finish on the walls.

According to Mr. Cunningham, the most outstanding painting job on the campus since the project began, the work recently completed in Memorial Hall. From six to eight men worked for two weeks setting the interior of the building's first coat of paint since it was built in 1928 as a memorial to soldiers and sailors of Kentucky who died in the World War.

"Painting of such a building as Memorial Hall requires soft colors such as a flat white ceiling, oyster white walls, and perhaps a warm gray woodwork," said Mr. Cunningham. "Any other colors would tend to create an atmosphere not in keeping with the personality of such a building as Memorial Hall."

So far, 900 gallons of paint have been used on the interior of Memorial Hall, and a huge network of scaffolding also built by WPA workers was necessary before painters could work on the Adam period ceiling. Sixteen skilled painters and 40 helpers are registered on the WPA rolls at present, and according to Mr. Cunningham, their work on Memorial Hall has been one of the fastest jobs done on the campus.

The interior of Norwood hall was the first painting job completed by the WPA on the campus. Since that time painters have been over the old law building from top to bottom, transforming it into a place of brightness and cleanliness which characterizes the dispensary.

Outside work on the Administration building and gymnasium has been painted. Pence hall, both inside and out, the Woman's gym, and walls and ceiling of the library, the old law building, both inside and outside, have received their attention. Buildings have received some attention from WPA painters.

In addition to being able to apply paint to walls and woodwork, considerable skill is required in mixing.

While we're still running a basketball tournament fever—how about inviting next year's Southeastern Conference tournament to be played in our new field house?

As an excuse for not holding the Big 13 eliminations here, the logical place, we've been hearing that Alumni gym did not offer the proper accommodations, and now a field house is due any minute. So why not, as a house warming gesture, ask for the conference tourney?

In doling out the trophies and individual awards Saturday night, Gov. A. B. Chandler, a swell guy who has more than once given active evidence of his interest in Kentucky's athletic program, assured the 5,000 customers that stuffed inadequate Alumni gym like a Thanksgiving turkey, that next year's blue-ribbon cage tournament would be contested in the comfort of a field house that would seat 12,000. Last May, a year of work, 12 years of planning and decades of hounding were climaxed when the Student Union building was officially opened. Now the athletic family is to be brought out of the backwoods and settled in a new house.

Plans for the building as revealed Saturday specify a rectangular structure 120 feet long and 120 feet wide with a ceiling clearance of 43 feet. Not only would extensive care for the spectators be provided, but practice space would be provided for the football team. The track team could show off their wares indoors before 5,000 and a boxing arena could be fitted together that would accommodate 2,000.

Three Sites For Building

There are about three possible sites for this newest addition to Kentucky's expanding program of buildings: the lot bordering South Limestone in front of the Union building, the lot between South field and the Gym and the lot that borders Rose street behind South field.

Personally, I like the latter site, provided there is enough available space. If the building was located there one side could be used as the foundation for throwing the stadium into a horse show, should the attendance ever warrant such action.

Returning to the original proposition, in favor of inviting the Conference tourney to our new field, even if the field house dream is not matured by next year. No one realizes more than I that our accommodations are faulty but we could offer the tournament the one thing that would make it an event to be remembered—crowds. The high school classic drew at least 25,000 fans past the front office, to a merry set, looks upon 1,000 as a record. Just think what some of our crowds would look like.

Short Drabbles
Notes taken from a program at the high school tournament were so long since the time 10 years ago when I saw a pleasing performance from a basketball referee that I'm at a loss to complain, but the officiating during the tournament's six sessions was really swell—Arnold Winkendorfer might be called the "human referee" for he calls fouls only when they are absolutely necessary. That final game at Brooksville by 42-39 over Hindman, was one of the closest contests since Gen. Pershing's capture of game of hares and hounds with Pancho Villa down in Mexico years ago. The best individual player goes to Coper John Campbell of Hindman, whose arm seemed to stretch like a clothes line when he went after rebounds—Campbell looked awkward, both in making shots and handling the ball but trying to keep him down was as difficult as trying to play against a game of pins the tail on the donkey in a hurricane. During four games he dumped in 44 points and caused seven neat back boards in an umbrella.

Brought In Field Goals
The best defensive show was given by Corbin against Breckinridge Thursday afternoon. For 39 minutes the game the Breckinridge score sheet was as bare of field goals as Old Mother Hubbard's Cupboard. Warren Cooper of Brooksville, whose basket eye was as deadly as a dose of strychnine, led the scorers with a total of 72 points in four times out—Jeff Hudson of Covington, the most publicized man in the meet, although as inconsistent in his scoring as the crowd on a pneumonia fever chart, rolled up a total of 37 points in four games.

Annual Track Meet To Be Held May 20

With only the winners from each of the eight district meets eligible to compete, the annual Kentucky high school track and field meet will be held on the St. Louis Field track.

Classie Remark
Despite the high calibre of the officiating it was impossible to please all the customers. The classic remark was caught at the Brooksville-Covington game. After three rounds the fouls on Brooksville, M. Cooper was given a foul shot when he was charged by Hudson; as he prepared to shoot a fan from high in the bleachers yelled: "Don't shoot, it's a trick!"
