Important to Medical Students.

The trustees of the Louisville Medical College (Louisville, Ky.) have, in accordance with the provisions of their charter, established a Beneficiary System, whereby any young man studying medicine, and being unable to pay for his education, may receive a Beneficiary Scholarship, which relieves him of payment of the professors' fees. The public will be pleased to learn that this well known college has abolished all fees for its diplomas; the faculty being thus wholly uninterested pecuniarily in the result of all examinations for graduation. For particulars, address Dean of Louisville Medical College, 163 Second street, Louisville, Ky.

Patronized by the Ladies.

The delightful, pure, unadulterated and truly excellent qualities of Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts and Cream Baking Powder has secured for them the patronage of the most intelligent ladies in this country. Whenever a sweet, white biscuit is wanted, or a light pot pie, an elegant cake, or a delicious pudding, these articles are made use of, as their purity and uniformity are certain in producing such results. A few cents additional cost does not deter ladies who are mindful of the health of their family from procuring that which is known to be pure and wholesome, especially articles that are used in preparing the "necessaries of life." Dr. Price's powder is not sold in bulk; it is put up in cans, securely labeled. Bulk powder is largely adulterated, and often fraudulently sold for Dr. Price's.

On the new schedule of the Short-line railroad, which took effect last Sunday, they are now having a daily connection each way (Monday excepted), between this city and Cincinnati. They leave here at 6 o'clock A. M. and arrive at Cincinnati at 12:05 P. M. Returning, leave Cincinnati at 4:30 A. M.; arrive here at 11:10 A. M. S. S. PARKER.

As Usual.

The well-known clothing house of C. S. Randall & Co. will, as usual, keep the largest and best assortment of clothing and furnishing goods of any house in the West. To effect a change in the business, the goods will be sold for cash, and at exceedingly low prices. The stock will be kept complete in every department, and will be disposed of greatly to the advantage of every purchaser. C. W. BRADLEY.

The Louisville and Lexington railroad will run a special train from Louisville to Lexington next Sunday, leaving Louisville at 9 A. M., for the accommodation of persons attending the races and who wish to return Sunday.

The Gonzalez Humbugs.

The Paris True Kentuckian gives an account of the sacred concert given at that place by Prof. and Mrs. Gonzalez. They sing very well, but they do other things well, too. They go off without paying their debts, which inclines us to the belief that Prof. and Mrs. Gonzalez are professional humbugs, particularly as we are credibly informed that Gonzalez is not, nor has he been, what he pretends to be—organist of St. Stevens Church, New York. Gonzalez is an imposter, and the public may as well be guarded against him.

A Load of Coal Wanted.

Some of our young gentlemen of philanthropic and Christian disposition, are engaged in teaching a night school at the mission school house, to which all are admitted free. Some of the teachers are among the most intelligent people of the city. They provide everything for the people necessary for the imparting of instruction. But winter is coming on and a fire will be needed. Will not some Christian person aid this charity by presenting the school with a load of coal. To any coal dealer making such a present, we will gladly give an advertisement free gratis, for nothing. Who speaks first? We will give a notice worth something, in the Sunday Press.

A SUICIDE OR A MURDER.

A Young Man is Found Dead, with a Pistol by His Side, in an Alley on Georgetown Street.

It is not often that it is the duty of a newspaper to report a more distressing occurrence than that which took place yesterday evening in this city. About four o'clock it was reported that a youth named John Cook, not more than seventeen years of age, was found dead in an alley on Jefferson street, between Main and Short. When the fact became generally known a curious throng gathered in the alley to view the remains of the unhappy boy, as he lay lifeless, his brain penetrated by a pistol shot, and by his side a small derring, with which, apparently, the deed was done. He was well known and universally liked for his quiet, agreeable manners, and many were the expressions of regret from the bystanders at his untimely end, and of curiosity to learn the cause of the desperate act that terminated his young life.

Mr. Fritz Goebel, the step-father of the deceased, was upon the ground very soon, and at once took steps to make all necessary provision for the care of the dead. Esquire Charles Gibson being present, was requested by Mr. Goebel to act as coroner, which he did, impaneling a jury on the spot. The pockets of the deceased were searched, and there were found therein sixty cents in money, some cigars, and some notes addressed in lady's handwriting, but without date or name. They were as follows:

LEXINGTON, KY.
DEAR ONE:—Here it is and I want you to write to me when you go and believe me your truly girl as every, send me yours and don't forget it either, Your darling,
BELLE.
LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAREST ONE:—I will be down town at three o'clock look out for me. I will go to the office and by the store. Ma has come, have my pistol for me. These notes were addressed J. Cook, City.

Besides the notes was found a lock of hair and a photograph of a young woman, upon the back of which was written with pencil, "put this close to my heart."

The jury after brief consultation arrived at the following verdict: "We, the jury, believe from the evidence before us, that the deceased, John Cook, came to his death by a shot from a pistol in his own hands."
CHAS. GIBSON,
Coroner.

During the examination by the jury, the poor afflicted mother of the youth appeared, and wrung all hearts by her piercing cries of anguish. She was gently removed from the dreadful scene and cared for by kind ladies present. But ever and anon she broke forth in wild lamentations for her poor boy. The scene was heartrending. The afflicted, grief-stricken mother was the object of intense sympathy and solicitude, the poignancy of her suffering bringing tears to the eyes of the beholders. It is not long since she lost by death a darling little daughter, and this second blow, so sudden and so startling, has prostrated the poor lady. Only mothers who have lost their loved ones by death can appreciate her distracted condition and fully sympathize with her in her heavy trial. Religion alone is able to offer her the consolation she so much stands in need of. May the holy angels bend her soul in resignation to the Divine Will. The Lord has given and the Lord hath taken away.
NOT ENDED YET.

And now truth compels the statement that there was no testimony offered before the jury that found the above verdict. No witness was examined and all the evidence that was considered was circumstantial. Very properly, the coroner, Mr. John Byrne, who was easily accessible, refused to recognize the jury verdict that had been rendered. He was on his way to the place where the man was killed when he met the remains being conveyed in a wagon to the home of the deceased. At this place the coroner impanelled another jury, took possession of the papers and adjourned the inquest until this morning at 9 o'clock. It may be useful to the jury to know that the young man had been in a good humor the whole day, that the notes he received and which were found on his person were received by him yesterday, and that to numerous friends he had expressed his intention of going to Cincinnati, all of which can be testified to by Mr. Straus, with whom he was working, on Short street. It is useless to disguise a fact that is well known, that the young woman referred to in this sad affair, is Miss Belle Breezing, who married a few days ago a young man named Kinney, working in the same shop with Cook; that it was her picture the deceased had received that day; that he had met her as the notes intimated, and that he was seen walking home with her. About the time that he must have left her, or shortly after, at her residence on Main street, he entered the saloon of Mr. Garland, on Main street, and bought some cigars, treating a man who waited on him, to a cigar, and asking him to call on him in Cincinnati, whither he said he was going. Within a few minutes afterwards, a Mr. Garland told a reporter of the PRESS, a colored man entered the store of Mr. Garland, and said that young Cook had shot himself in the alley. What evidence there was of this is not known. Certain it is that he lay at the back gate, opening into the yard where Belle Breezing lived, and that the gate was open when the jury gathered around the dead body. When the reporter of the PRESS saw him the pistol was lying upon his person; but it is said that when he was first seen the pistol was some distance from him. It is also stated that the same pistol was seen in a pawnbroker's shop, on Broadway, before the shooting.

More than this, persons who had talked with the deceased boy, represent him as saying that he was perfectly indifferent as to the fate or disposition of the young woman in question, creating the impression that he did not care whether she was married or not. Taking all this into consideration—the fact that he had stated to Mr. Straus, where he worked, that he was going to Cincinnati, his good humor during the day, the joking that he had withstood from Mr. Straus in regard to the marriage and the express statement at Mr. Garland's store that he was going to Cincinnati, it is difficult to believe that the unfortunate young man committed suicide. The wound is above the temple and is a long one, over an inch, and in the absence of any other testimony it is possible that the shot was accidental or worse.

At any rate the coroner's jury which meets at nine o'clock this morning, should have before it every possible material witness, and if any foul play has been perpetrated it should, if possible be brought to light. The boy Kinney who married Belle Breezing was a fellow worker with Cook, but what his doings were during the day, our reporter so far, has not been able to ascertain. It is in no idle spirit of news gathering that these words are written but with the hope that the truth may be discovered and that this tangled skein may be unravelled.

ABDALLAH PARK RACES.

Two Fine Trots, and Little Gipsy the Winner of the Three-minute Race.

CYNTHIANA, Sept. 23.
The third day of the meeting dawned bright and clear, and at an early hour the road leading to the park was crowded with conveyances filled with the race-loving people. The attendance is fully up to the expectations formed, and the trotting is strictly first-class. The management are much gratified at the success of the meeting thus far, and are encouraged to go on and make the season a notable one. For the first time in the history of the Kentucky trotting turf, we hear the drivers applauding the judges and indorsing their actions. This is a reverse of the usual order of things, so to speak; but Abdallah Park has sounded the bell of reform, when such gentlemen as Mr. S. S. Vaughan, of Michigan; Col. Richard West, of Edge Hill; and our fellow-townsmen, Mr. Henry E. Shawhan, preside over the destinies of the trotting turf of this region.

Bold Thieving.

Last Monday, about noon, while Mr. John Geas, of this county, was in Lexington, three able-bodied negro men went to his farm, armed with muskets, intimidated his little son, and killed and bagged eight turkeys and one hog. By this time Mr. Geas' little boy had gone to a near neighbor's and got help. They pursued the negroes so closely that they dropped their plunder, and made their escape through the corn-fields.
