

Happy Birthday, 'Patrick' Donovan

By YVONNE EATON

Happy Birthday Dr. "Patrick" Donovan!!!

This is probably the greeting that Dr. H. L. Donovan, President of the University of Kentucky, would be most pleased to hear when he celebrates his 69th birthday on St. Patrick's Day on March 17.

He would also have liked to have heard it on other birthdays, too, perhaps, for through the years, the President has been disappointed that his name was not Patrick.

To the personal acquaintances of Dr. Donovan this little disappointment is not surprising, for they know the more human side of him. His life to them has been much more than a university president and a well known educator. Just as important in his life as the honoraries of which he is a member or the recognition he has received in education is the nickname he had at Western or the stories written on him and his classmates at Western, or his first experience with tobacco.

As early as August, 1918, "American Boy" was publishing articles on him, but at that time he was known as "Pepper" Donovan. As a matter of fact a whole series of articles appeared in the magazine on a group of boys that were students at Western State College in 1907, then known as Western Kentucky State Normal School.

The articles, written by A. L. Crabb, a member of the group, were narrative stories on the happenings and experiences of this close group of "Hilltop" boys. He tried to some extent to disguise the names even though the last names were always correct. Many of the incidents actually happened, but were elaborated upon and exaggerated by Crabb, until the stories were a combination of fiction and truth.

According to one story the nickname "Pepper" Donovan came as a result of heavily peppered oysters eaten by the President. Herman Donovan had just arrived at the school and the boys wanted to "break him in." After a long hike they suggested stopping in a restaurant for some "Arabia" oysters, which were supposedly a special kind.

After the oysters arrived one of the group sounded a false fire alarm. While Donovan was trying to see the fire a member of the party peppered his oysters very heavily. After he came back each boy pretended to put pepper on his oysters so Donovan would follow the custom. He ate them with delight and said he wanted to go to Arabia some day to get more of these special oysters. After this he was one of the "Hilltop" boys. To this day the President still likes hot foods and sea foods. Another of his favorite dishes is spaghetti.

Included in the "Hilltop" group and very close friends of Dr. Donovan were Guy Whitehead and Frank Cooper as well as the author A. L. Crabb. Today Crabb is best known as the author of books on the South and for his book on Henry Clay, "Home to Kentucky." He will be here tomorrow for the President's birthday.

Guy Whitehead and A. L. Crabb of the UK English Department are the sons of these men with the same names in the "Hilltop" group. Dr. Donovan was the first student to ever be enrolled by Western Kentucky State Normal School when it was created in 1907. Rather ironically he later became president of the sister school, Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College, that was created at the same time as Western by the Legislature.

Regarded as a quiet and mannerly little boy with very, very blond hair, the President was still a typical little boy. When he was about six years old he went to a rural school. The older boys' favorite delight was to get the stove red hot after piling loads of coal

Eaton To Give Lecture On Henry Clay

Dr. William Clement Eaton, the "Distinguished Professor of the Year" in the College of Arts and Sciences, will speak on "Henry Clay—Portrait of a Kentuckian" at 8 p.m., March 20, in the Guignol Theatre.

Dr. Eaton's lecture will be the 12th in a series of annual lectures presented by recipients of the Distinguished Professor award. The award is presented to faculty members of the College of Arts and Sciences holding the rank of assistant professor or higher.

The professor who receives this award each year is granted a semester free of teaching duties to conduct his own research program and to prepare the Arts and Sciences lecture.

Dr. Eaton, a professor of history, accepted a grant from Huntington Library at San Marino, Calif., to engage in research in the library's manuscript collections. Under the terms of this grant, he will write a social and cultural history of the South. This volume will be included in the New American Statesman Series, being edited by Prof.

Henry S. Commage and Prof. Richard Morris of Columbia.

Concurrent with his present project, Dr. Eaton is also writing a life of Henry Clay, to be published as one of the volumes in the Library of American Biography.

Guignol To Present Taming Of Shrew

The Guignol Theatre's presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew" will open Wednesday March 21. Curtain time will be 8:30 p.m.

Rubinstein To Appear Here

Artur Rubinstein, pianist, will make his second Lexington appearance Monday night, March 19, at 8:15 p.m. in Memorial Coliseum. Rubinstein, who is managed by S. Hurok, appears on the Central Kentucky Concert and Lecture Series. Students will be admitted by ID cards.

Rubinstein is well known as the last of the great romantic performers. Many regard him as the world's greatest living pianist.

In each of the past six seasons Rubinstein played more than 100 times on three continents. In 1952, besides his European and South American engagements, the pianist played in Israel for the first time since 1935. He appeared 29 times in that country in 20 days.

Rubinstein was born in Lodz, Poland. He made his official musical debut in Berlin at the age of 11. He played the Mozart "A-Major Concerto." He rarely plays Mozart today because he says he feels he is no longer simple and unsophisticated enough to play Mozart well. He never went to a regular

Kentucky's Standard Of Living Up 100%

By ALVA CHRISMAN

Real per capita disposable income, income measured in terms of what it will buy in Kentucky, has nearly doubled since 1929. This means the standard of living in Kentucky has increased 100 per cent in the past 25 years, so Prof. John L. Johnson, research associate of the College of Commerce, said in an address to the Covington-Kenton County Board of Realtors at Covington, Saturday, March 10.

The theme of his talk was "The Economy of Northern Kentucky", with particular emphasis on Campbell, Boone, and Kenton Counties. Prof. Johnson added that even state reap the benefits of that education. He listed lack with this great increase Kentuckians only live about 70 per cent as well as do the people of the nation generally.

He reported that 200,000 more people left the state than entered it since 1950. Many millions of dollars were spent on educating these people, only to have some other of jobs as the primary reason for leaving.

Kenton, Campbell, and Boone Counties have increased 20,000 in population, since 1950. Some of the reasons Prof. Johnson gave for this increase were that as cars and roads improve, commuting is made easier, labor markets become larger, and the cost of commuting is lessened by increased wages.

The per capita purchasing power in these three counties is about 100 per cent more than in pre-war years.

Prof. Johnson said that most of the income earned by the people of these counties is in the form of wages and salaries. There are few farmers in these counties and those that do own and operate farms get a large part of their total income from non-farm sources.

He said that of all the income earned by the residents of Northern Kentucky, approximately $150 million a year is earned across the Ohio River, by people who live in Kentucky and commute daily to jobs in Cincinnati and the surrounding areas.

What Is It?

That's a good question. What is it? We've heard rumors that the Guignol group and art majors threw a joint ball last Friday. We've heard they called the thing the "Beaux Art Ball." We also heard that the best costume award was given to Page Williams. If our observations are correct, Page is the young lady lying on the floor in the above picture.

Barney Flaherty, a ten-year-old, who answered the advertisement, "to the unemployed—a number of steady men can find employment by vending this paper," was the first newsboy.

Phi Beta Kappa was the first scholastic fraternity organized. It was started at William and Mary College in December, 1776, with 50 members.

In 1866, the University received an income of $9,900.

RE Week Dying

Religious Emphasis Week, undoubtedly a good annual event, is being smothered to death year after year by over-ambition.

Being an interdenominational undertaking—and taking place at a non-sectarian university—Religious Emphasis Week naturally poses a great many problems. No one creed is being offered students during the week; only the value of religion itself is being stressed.

This worthy goal, it seems, is being lost in the shuffle of other things now being connected with RE Week.

In an effort to be a "campus-wide" event, speakers are sent to classes, clubs, student gatherings, and special meetings. The week is started off with a "mass" convocation at the Student Union.

These speakers could fulfill the aims of Religious Emphasis Week, but there are two big factors working against them as a group every year:

(1) Many of the selected speakers are not qualified to speak on anything, certainly not on such a complex subject as religion. One dull, confusing speaker can effectively kill the thoughts stimulated by three exceptional speakers.

(2) Some students have to sit through as many as three religious talks during the week—generally without previous notice—and he often feels like the horse being forcefully led to water.

The first factor, concerning the poor speakers, is more serious than just boring the students. At least one instance was reported this year where one of the speakers in class harangued his audience with certain tenets of a belief not shared by all of those present. When questioned about the tenets he was advocating, the speaker reportedly became involved in a frenzied argument.

Fortunately, this type of incident is rare. But it only takes a few mistakes to kill a good cause.

The second factor is important to consider because, unlike the general convocation where students are given the opportunity to attend but do not have to go, class religious lectures are still considered class periods. The student feels he must attend.

Both factors apparently stem from over-ambition. It would be better to have only a handful of qualified speakers than to fill out the ranks with incapable ones. Also, it would be far better to risk losing portions of the student audience than not to have optional class attendance at religious talks and discussions.

Briefly, then, Religious Emphasis Week should be left up to the student. If he feels that he is not being forced into something, and if he learns that what is being offered is top grade, he will support the event and profit from it.

Otherwise, RE Week may never be the full success it deserves to be.

SGA Criticized

A new permanent committee, the Social Committee, was added to Student Government this year. It was started off with a lot of noise and promise, and has apparently ended in a sputtering fizzle.

The Social Committee, at its conception, was given extraordinary help from the deans of men and women, the vice president of the University, and Dr. Donovan himself.

Formed to provide inexpensive jam sessions and dances on campus, the Social Committee asked for both a suitable place to have the dances and funds to provide for them. Both items were quickly granted.

The University officials made it possible to stage the Social Committee's first free event on the floor of the Coliseum. This "sock hop" was held after the big pep rally in the Coliseum before the Tennessee football game.

This "sock hop" was encouragingly successful. It drew a fairly large crowd, and thus filled the need of many students—especially independents—of having a place on campus to go for entertainment.

Following the initial try of the Social Committee, permission was given to use the Wildcat Grill on Euclid as a site for Friday afternoon "jam sessions." A bandstand was authorized and constructed.

It looked like that SGA had hit upon a winning combination for both solving a student problem and at the same time gaining student support.

But the "jam sessions" were never held at the Wildcat. The Social Committee simply folded back to the fate of all too many SGA committees. There was a lot of talk and excuses, but there was no action.

Despite the regrettable time lag, it is not too late for SGA to finish what it started over five months ago. The need for a working Social Committee still and will continue.

Queen Candidate

Students have no voice in the selection of UK's Mountain Laurel Festival candidate. The girl who will represent the University in one of the state's most important beauty contests is chosen by a faculty committee.

Most students don't know who their representative is until they see her picture in the papers. Actually the girl can hardly be called the choice of the school if the students have no say in the matter. As it stands now a majority of the students probably don't care who is Festival queen.

There are at least two solutions to the problem. First, the Kentuckian Queen could automatically be named Mountain Laurel candidate. As Queen of ueens, Miss Kentuckian is supposed to be the most beautiful girl on campus. She is also chosen by the students. As the First Lady of the school it is perfectly logical that she should represent the University in off campus contests.

Secondly, there could be a student election, either for the candidate herself or for a panel of five or six girls from whom the faculty could pick the representative. This would give both the faculty and students some voice in the selection.

It certainly would arouse a little student interest in the Mountain Laurel Festival which is one of the most beautiful pageants staged in Kentucky.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

"OUR SORORITY HAS ONLY ONE ENTRANCE REQUIREMENT, ELSE WE!"

Yankee Kidding

(Editor's note: This editorial is reprinted from the Connecticut Daily Campus, the student publication of the University of Connecticut.)

For the past several months, mysterious things have been happening in the chaotic halls of the University of Kentucky. Bombs have been exploding, marijuana fumes have been detected by the sensitive olfactory organs of administrative officials, and the local Coca-Cola man has been on the verge of lunacy because someone has been riffling his vending machines.

Finally the mystery was solved. Five students have been arrested, and more arrests are anticipated. As a matter of fact an organized gang of young Capones was discovered. Why were they at the University of Kentucky? For educational reasons, of course. They wanted to learn how to be big time gangsters.

But greed and avarice conquered them. They couldn't be satisfied with just attending lectures. No, they wanted lab courses. And since they couldn't get them, they decided to start their own laboratory research project. They wanted action and to heck with theory.

So, they started exploding bombs in the dormitories. To be more specific, they exploded bombs in dormitory commodes. Not only was this extremely destructive but it was exceedingly unsanitary and terrible inconvenient for other students who were forced to do all sorts of fierce and prehistoric things in the course of their natural existence. Rumor has it that the Kentucky groundsman has predicted a banner year for the bluegrass lawns surrounding the men's dorms.

Adding insult to injury, the gang began to peddle "stuff". Not wanting to seem presumptuous, they restricted their activities, at first, to barbituates. But again, greed overcame them and they began thinking in terms of a big-time operation. Real narcotics. Suddenly, engineering students began writing poetry, the cheering section at basketball games just sat there, and all sorts of fierce and prehistoric things began happening.

Then came the Coke incident. People began to panic for fear that the machines would not be refilled by the irate victim of these thefts. There were visions of students dying from malnutrition. (Coke does have calories, you know.) Local dentists were anticipating a business decline. The whole school was reaching a state of panic.

Finally, nearby stores were broken into. That was really too much. A policeman, posing as a student, moved in with one of the gang members. Evidence was compiled and arrests were finally made before the gang was to have blown up the whole damn school, Adolph Rupp and all.

The moral behind this whole story is directed to all freshman and sophomore students. It is: Don't consider yourself an expert in anything until you have taken at least one 200's course.

Seriously, we would like to congratulate the University of Kentucky on the apprehension of their little monsters and to extend our hope that their groundsman will have no more reason in the future to be optimistic about the Spring bluegrass crop.

Miss Lucy Hogan In 17th Year Of Assisting UK's Presidents

By MARNEY BEARD
The right arm of the president. These words best describe the petite, brown-haired woman who greets you as you first enter the office of Herman L. Donovan, president of the University of Kentucky.

The lady so described is Miss Lucy R. Hogan, who bears the title of administrative assistant to the president. For 17 years she has served the president's office, at first during the regime of the late Dr. Frank McVey, then under acting president Thomas P. Cooper, and, since 1941, as part of Dr. Donovan's staff.

Due to the shyness of her own personality and the natural anonymity of any secretarial position, Miss Hogan has remained virtually unknown to the vast majority of students and townspeople during the last 17 years. Only the people she has associated with realize the important role she plays in the efficient administration of the affairs of the University.

President Donovan, who is more aware of her qualifications than any other single person, stated emphatically that "if any person deserves recognition, Miss Hogan certainly does. She is an efficient secretary, meets people well, and, most important, knows how to keep the flow of interviewers moving. In this office, we have many visitors plus 40-50 letters to be answered daily. This work is handled solely by Miss Hogan and Miss Paynter." (Betsy Paynter is secretary to the president.)

In her school days, Miss Hogan said she "never thought of becoming a secretary." She graduated from Dry Ridge High School, in Grant County, Ky. From there she went to Transylvania College, where she earned a B.A. in economics and sociology, graduating magna cum laude. After her graduation in 1934 she was awarded a fellowship by the University of Virginia. Here she also did one year of graduate work.

Following this year she returned to Lexington, and worked part-time for the county board of education. She was named secretary to the principal at Bryan Station High School in September of 1935. She remained here two years.

In June 1937, Miss Hogan was appointed to the Legislative Council in Frankfort as secretary and research worker. On Dec. 1, 1938, she became assistant secretary in December of 1938 to President Frank L. McVey. Dr. McVey retired on July 1, 1940 and Dean Thomas P. Cooper was named acting president.

Dr. Herman L. Donovan was named UK president on July 1, 1941. Miss Hogan remained a member of the staff as assistant secretary to the president.

On Sept. 18, 1947, Miss Hogan became secretary to the president when Dr. Donovan's secretary was asked to take charge of a newly-created University office.

She remained at this post until Dec. 1, 1954, when she accepted the newly-created post of administrative assistant.

When asked about her duties, Miss Hogan replied she "handled routine office matters, answered the telephone, etc." However, more questioning revealed she not only did all this, but actually to a large extent handled the minor duties of the president, enabling him to concentrate on the major problems of university administration.

Miss Paynter said that "Miss Hogan not only handles her secretarial duties—she anticipates the wishes of Dr. Donovan almost before he is aware of them himself."

In view of the above, it would hardly seem that Miss Hogan, who lives with her parents at 343 Desha Road, could find time for a hobby. But she does (when time permits) like to travel. She has visited extensively throughout the United States and also in Mexico and Canada for short periods.

"I hope to continue to serve the University if at all possible," said Miss Hogan about her future plans. Dr. Donovan's high regard for her seems to be mutual, as she, in speaking of his possible retirement, stated that it "had been a great privilege and pleasure to work with Dr. Donovan and I regret the time for his retirement has come." Many newly-installed university presidents prefer to bring their own secretarial staff with them. But it's a safe bet the new president, whoever he may be, will not adhere to this policy. To replace any secretary is always hard; to replace Lucy Hogan would be next to impossible.

Here—Try "Go Boy" In The Sixth

It's really not a racing sheet, but rather Miss Lucy Hogan carrying out her normal duties with President Donovan like a good right arm does.

M&O Holes, Sorority Hazing Discussed By Old Proprietor

By RAY HORNBACK
Maintenance and operations men have been busily drilling holes on campus for the past few weeks. We have spent many hours wondering just what in the hell they were doing. It seems rather odd—grown men digging little eight to ten inch holes beneath our fine trees.

One misled person suggested that maybe the M & O boys were aiding the engineering department by looking for a misplaced transit which was lost on one of the engineer's surveying forays.

A real thinker suggested that the M&O crew was looking for a spot to bury unsold copies of Stylus. (We know this to be an untruth, as ALL copies of Stylus were sold soon after its release.)

A naturalist said the holes were being dug to provide homes for victed gophers. (We don't gopher this idea.)

An anthropologist ventured the notion that the M&O boys were digging for ancient ruins or bone structures. (We suggest that if the boys are looking for ancient ruins, they look no farther than the psychology or social science buildings.)

One person mysteriously suggested that our fair trees are not able to receive all the nourishment which is needed for good sound limbs. Thus it has become the duty of the M&O men to place a quantity of tree food in dainty little holes beneath the trees. Thank goodness the stuff doesn't tease the nostrils like the manure which M&O placed on our beloved campus last year.

I've heard wild stories of fraternity "Hell Weeks." But until Monday, I did not realize that sororities reserve a special little "events" period for their pledges.

One of our inner groups rent their little "darlings" to a fraternity den to acquire of all things, a pair of men's shorts. (How utterly shocking! Shades of panty raid days!)

Another group had pledges procure signs from along the sides of local highways. The spirited neophytes of one sorority managed to store away quantities of limburger cheese in the most sacred haunts of the ole sorority shack. Whew!

One young lady was given a real scholarly assignment. Her job was to borrow a pair of President Donovan's slippers. She did it.

Then there's the fine sorority which takes the soon-to-be initiated lass out to a local boozery with the express purpose of getting her loaded before the mystic ceremony.

These are only a few of the many wild tales which have slipped into the Workshop recently. If you care to hear some real solid yarns, drop around anytime.

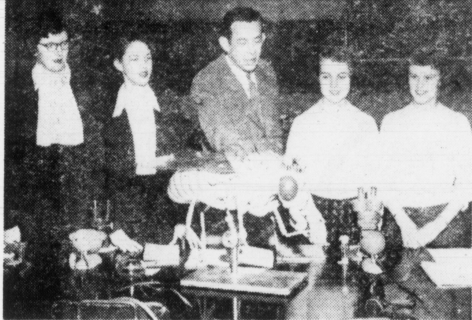

Upcoming events department... Two outstanding events you mustn't miss in the next few weeks are the All-campus Sing and Stars in the Night.

All-campus Sing is a delightful event. All the sororities practice like mad for several days and then trip onto the stage in Memorial Hall to sing delightful little bits of harmony. They then sit back to see which group of non-singing sisters can yell and scream the loudest. The group which pushes the applause meter to the 100 mark wins a nice shiny cup, while the losers slump back to their houses and practice yelling and screaming for next year's event.

In the meantime, the two fraternity entries are backstage flipping a coin to see who gets the winners cup this year.

Stars in the Night is truly a program which all students should be required to attend before graduation. It provides the gaiety of a Mardi Gras celebration and the surprise of a class B movie thriller as UK coeds trip, stumble and fall toward the stage to receive various awards. The sweet coeds seem completely surprised when they are called to receive their honors. But we can hardly believe that any of the wily females at UK would allow themselves to be surprised.

Fruit Fly

An enlarged replica of a "fruit fly" is being explained by Dr. John M. Carpenter, center, head of the Zoology Department. This was one of 26 excellent exhibits which attracted 700 High School students to the Biological Sciences open house Monday. Watching the demonstration are Lexington Catholic High School students. St. Patrick's Day To Be Celebrated In True Irish Style This Weekend

With Lexington turning into the "windy city" of Chicago, and March definitely acting like a lion instead of the lamb, it's only natural for one more event to loom up in this month. No doubt you've already guessed what that is — St. Patrick's Day, and that's tomorrow! Since it's customary for everyone to sport a little green of some sort, rumor has it that even the bars go all out and serve green beer. (Wonder what color those that drink it turn—ugh!)

school but had three tutors, one for French, one for English, and one for everything else.

At 15 he was known as a veteran performer in Europe. He made a trip to the United States about this time but was not well received by the critics. He thereupon returned to Paris where he devoted himself to high living. He shared an apartment with a French count at this time.

During World War I he worked for the Allies as a translator since he speaks eight languages. He was so shocked by German atrocities in Belgium that he vowed he would never play in Germany again and never has. In 1938 he returned a decoration awarded him by Mussolini with a telegram signed "Arthur Rubinstein, Jewish pianist."

After his marriage and the birth of a daughter, Eva, Rubinstein stopped wasting his talent and began to practice regularly. Today he tours the country most of the time. Each year he makes an extended tour of Latin America.

Student Aid Classes To Begin On Campus

A class designed to help students in taking quizzes and exams will be started sometime in the near future, William M. Bass, acting director of the University Counseling Service, said today.

Bass, who will teach the class, said it would be open to all students, whether on probation or not. "If the students know the material, I guarantee I can get them to write it down," he said.

There has been no definite time announced for the opening of the class, but it will probably start some time soon after the Easter holiday, Bass said. The number of classes that will be taught depends upon the interest students show in the idea. Any students who are interested in enrolling in this class should contact the University Counseling Service.

The University Counseling Service was created after the death of Dr. Lysle W. Croft, director of the University Personnel Office, in December, 1955. At that time, the Board of Trustees, acting upon the recommendations of Vice President Leo M. Chamberlain, changed the name of the office from the Personnel Office to the University Counseling Service and the University Testing Service.

Although these offices operate separately, they are both under the supervision of the registrar's office. Dr. Ernest McDaniel of the College of Education is the director of the counseling service.

Bass, who received a B.A. degree in psychology from the University of Virginia in 1951 and is now working on his Ph.D. in counseling, was formerly in charge of veterans affairs and was administrative assistant to Dr. Croft. He emphasized that the counseling service exists for all students and not just for students in trouble.

Bass also said that although the name of the office has changed, the duties remain essentially the same. These duties are, of course, counseling, and conducting veterans' affairs.

Photo Exhibit To Be Displayed In J-Building

Dr. William Moore, associate professor of journalism, has announced that the School of Journalism will feature an exhibit of prize-winning prints from the National High School photographic contest.

The exhibit will be in Room 211 of the Journalism Building March 23 and 24.

The exhibit is a representative sample of the excellent work done by high school students throughout the U. S. and the territories. The exhibit includes all 16 major prize winners from the 1955 competition, plus a selection of pictures that received honorable mention awards.

Subjects in this display include school activities and other photos ranging from striking pictures of birds and animals to photos of babies and small children, sports activities, snaps of people at work and play, and scenic views.

Information about the $5,000 1956 competition may be obtained by writing to the National High School Photographic Awards, 343 State Street, Rochester 4, New York.

The Kernel Was There

By BILL HAMMONS

Five Years Ago
(March 16, 1951)

Kentucky, warming up for the NCAA tournament, dumped Loyola 97-61. Bill Spivey, named on the Associated Press, United Press, Collier's, and Look All-American teams, led the scoring with 21 points. Cliff Hagan and Frank Ramsey followed with 20 apiece. The Wildcats placed fifth in the Southeastern Conference swimming tournament, won by Georgia.

Ten Years Ago
(March 15, 1946)

The University Veterans' Club predicted that colleges of Kentucky would be forced to turn down at least 10,000 applications for admission to college in September, 1946.

Kentucky avenged an earlier loss to Temple by beating the Owls 54-43. Wallace Jones scored 17 points.

Cinemascope To Be Featured At Summer School Cinema

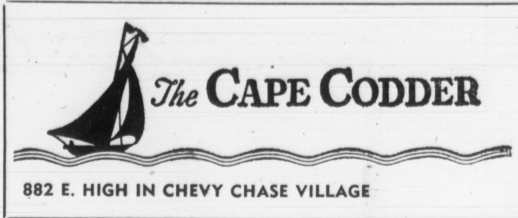

There is a surprise in store for those students who expect to sit under the stars in the University "walk-in" during the coming summer semester.

The Summer Cinema Committee announced today that cinemascope productions will be shown for the first time on the University campus during the summer cinema series.

The University "walk-in" is the amphitheater in back of Memorial Hall where summer cinema productions are shown. This summer the films will be shown each Tuesday at 8:45 p.m., Daylight Saving Time. In case of rain the programs will be held inside Memorial Hall.

Summer cinema is a program of recently released motion pictures which are shown every Tuesday night throughout the summer se-son. This program is sponsored by the Audio-Visual Aids Department of the College of Adult and Extension Education. It has been presented each summer for the past eight years. Unlike campus cinema, which is shown during the regular semesters, there is no admission charge and everyone is welcome to attend as often as they desire.

Mills Attends Personnel Meet Held In Atlanta

Dr. Robert L. Mills, UK registrar, attended a two-day meeting of the Southern Regional Commission on Student Personnel in Atlanta.

The commission, sponsored by the Southern College Personnel Association and the Southern Regional Educational Board, was established recently to enable universities of the South to better organize their programs with regard to their students.

It was created specifically to meet three major problems: (1) there is no organized group study of personnel work in the southern region of the United States, at present; (2) there is an apparent shortage of trained student personnel workers; and (3) no attempt has been made to summarize recent developments which have occurred in Southern colleges and universities with regard to personnel work.

Dr. Mills was appointed to this commission after his office assumed the duties of counseling and testing UK students. These duties were formerly handled by the non-defunct University Personnel Office, directed by the late Dr. Lysle W. Croft.

Freshman Tracksters Prep For Morehead

LET'S take a look at "King Kelly" Coleman.

The 17 year old senior from Wayland High School is in town with his band of Wasps making a bid for the 1956 State Basketball Crown. The talk of Kentucky, especially Lexington, Coleman was picked to be the "darling" of this year's state tournament. Well, he failed the first round Wednesday night although the 6-3 cager netted 50 points to set a new Coliseum record for prep school play.

Coleman is a one man show. He dribbles upfloor, heads toward the basket and cuts loose with nearly any shot imaginable. And usually he connects. He is a fairly decent man on the boards and his ball handling is excellent for a player his size. But defense—Kelly has never heard the word, or he indicates that anyway. He is all Coleman. In fact the Wayland team is not a team. Five players rat-race up and down court running their opponents to death and pouring in the points. But for the season they have been successful at this trick of race-horse basketball since they posted a 26-5 mark.

So, UK wants Coleman. Coach Adolph Rupp bubbled over with praise when speaking of him. He compared Coleman to Frank Ramsey and Cliff Hagan. He said he was the greatest high school player who ever lived. OK, let's see if Rupp's horses agree. We find they don't.

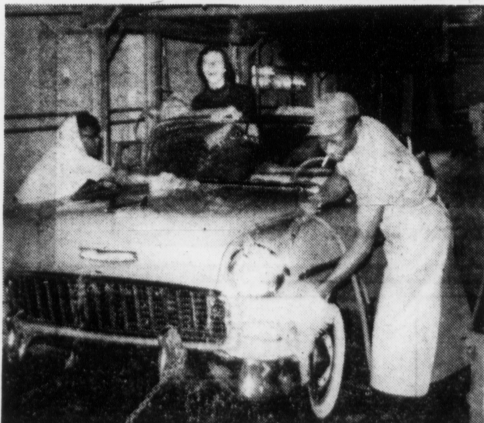

All players interviewed admit that Kelly is good. But all will contend that he is over-rated.

Jerry Bird said, "I don't think he's so hot. I don't think he is worth a on defense!" John Brewer: "He's a good ball player on one side of the fence—offense."

Bob Burrow added, "He's good but I don't think you could compare him to Frank Ramsey."

Ed Beck liked Coleman's teammate, Don Fugate, as well as Kelly. But he said he thought Kelly had done a remarkable job considering the pressure on him at this tournament.

"He is a pretty good country ballplayer," Cookie Grawmeyer admitted. But Cookie was cautious when terming him even "pretty good." On the other hand, Ray Mills liked the way Coleman played. "I think he's pretty good," Mills said enthusiastically. And Earl Adkins, who is holding out one season, replied, "A little disappointing but pretty tough."

Flynn Leads In Intramural Point Race

Jim Flynn, KA, is leading the individual participation race in the intramural league this year according to statistics released recently by the I-M office.

The statistics are complete up to the end of first semester.

Flynn has scored a total of 63½ points to gain an 11½ point lead over runner-up Bill Martin who has compiled a total of 52 points.

Martin, SAE, is closely followed by John Adams and C. M. Boone who are tied for third place with 48 points each. Both men are members of the SAE fraternity.

Ray Hornback, PKT, is currently holding down fourth place with 46½ and points which is ½ point better than Pat O'Brien, SN. Hornback was the runner-up last year with 105 points.

Cats Face 'Little Wayne' In NCAA Regionals

By SCOOP WHITE

A traditional power in basketball and a newcomer to the national tournament scene, battle each other tonight as Kentucky and Wayne University meet in the NCAA regional at Iowa City.

Wayne qualified to meet the Wildcats by defeating DePaul of Chicago 72-63 at Fort Wayne, Indiana. Immediately after the Wildcat-Tartars game, Morehead of Kentucky will play Iowa's Hawkeyes, Big Ten title-holders.

Saturday night the two survivors of the first round will do battle for the right to represent the mid-west regional in the NCAA finals at Evanston, Ill.

Wayne will go into the Kentucky game with a 17 game winning streak. The Tartars have a respectable point spread of 15.6, scoring 79.6 points a game compared to 64 for the opposition.

Leading scorer for the Detroit five is 6-5 center George Brown with an average of 17.8. Guard Clarence Straughn follows Brown with 15.7. Ranking third is forward George Duncan, who averages 13.9.

The Tartars are coached by Joel G. Mason, who is in his eighth year at the helm of Wayne.

Since taking over he has won 88 and lost 71.

The size of Wayne will come as a shock to many fans who had never heard of the Detroit school. Wayne has 18,594 students enrolled, larger than any school in the SEC, and as large as some Big Ten schools.

If Kentucky and Iowa should capture their first round games, an old basketball argument would come up as to which conference is the strongest, the Big Ten or the SEC.

Since North Carolina State and

Holy Cross have already been ousted in the tourney, the winner of the midwest regional has a good chance of going all the way. Kentucky and Iowa are national powers, both are used to the tournament pressure, and have the material of becoming this year's national champs.

Iowa has three outstanding players on its team. At center is 6-9 Bill Logan, who was named on the all Big Ten first team.

Logan and Kentucky's Bob Burrow will present two of the nation's best center battling each other.

The playmaker of the Hawkeyes is guard Billy Seaburg. Last year in the NCAA regional at Evanston Seaburg was deadly on one hand shots, and impressed the fans with his spectacular floor game.

Iowa's second player to make the all-Big Ten first team was forward Carl Sugar Cain.

Cain is only 6-3 but can jump as high, or higher than Ray Mills of the Wildcats. It was Cain's rebounding strength that enabled the Hawkeyes to break up a tight game with Illinois that gave Iowa their second consecutive conference championship.

Iowa is practically the same team that won the midwest regional last year. The only player they lost was forward Deacon Davis, an exceptional rebounder.

So both the favorites at Iowa City will be at full strength. Kentucky has all their players eligible for the first time in three seasons.

Iowa will present one of the strongest teams to represent the Big Ten since Indiana won the NCAA three years ago.

The stakes will be high, the pressure great, and the winner will be in a good position to capture the national basketball championship of 1956.

GOOD LUCK WILDCATS.

TIPS ON TOGS

HEIGHT OF FASHION — In casual wear is the outfit chosen by Phil Christian, Arts and Sciences student and a Kappa Sigma fraternity brother. Phil selected one of the new blazer coats in black, gray and cognac stripes, tailored with natural lines which goes perfect with the gray Ivy League slax he picked to compliment his blazer. Since the coat is boldly (but tastefully) striped, he naturally selected a solid color tie — in fact — a black knit. Nice dressing, Phil... Hope you enjoy them!

ANOTHER — Nice selection was made by J. G. Stuart, Education Department student. His choice was a midnight blue (almost black) three-button "Springweave" suit by Palm Beach. This model is called the "Savoy" and carries neat tailoring plus the fact that it is wrinkle resistant. Stuart can wear this suit anywhere with the assurance that he is well dressed — and comfortable. Both of the above mentioned students used their "College Club" cards while making these purchases and saved themselves some money — so don't forget to stop by and ask for your card now.

CONFUSED — As there are so many new things in the wind for summer wear, so many new styles, so many new colors and materials, it is confusing for me to decide just what to tell you about. Today, for example, we received some really beautiful sport shirts in a variety of colors and designs — some smart looking summer belts — loads of sport hats in felts and straws, and some new "brief model" swim trunks by Jansen. Tomorrow there will probably be more new stuff and I will be more confused than ever — So I guess I'll put an end to the confusion for today by saying—

So long for now,

Guards May Hold Tourney Key

By BO GRIFFIN

Kentucky's fate in the NCAA tourney may well depend on the performance of its guards.

According to final statistics released by Ken Kuhn of the Sports Publicity Office, the guards were easily outscored in three of the five defeats inflicted upon the Cats this year.

In the loss to Alabama though, the backcourt men were only outscored by two points. And when defeated by DePaul, they outscored their opponents by 21 points.

This lack of scoring by the guards in defeat does not, however, give a true indication of their scoring in the other games played this year. For the season Kentucky guards averaged 32.1 points a game to 30.9 for their opponents. Reason for failure to follow in the tradition of great Kentucky floormen may be attributed to lack of experience since last year's captain Billy Evans and Gayle Rose graduated.

The big difference in the comparison of position scoring is in the pivot play. The spread in the center post is 22.2 for Kentucky and 12.5 points a game for their opponents.

Wildcat centers were outpointed in only four games during the regular season.

In the early part of the season, UK's forwards had some trouble finding the basket, but they came back strong the last part of the season and finished with an average of 30.5 points per game—compared with 25.2 for their opponents.

Five of the twenty four games on the Cat schedule ended with Kentucky outscoring the opposition at every position, and in only one game did the reverse happen to the Big Blue—remember Alabama?

on it, and then trying to spit chewing tobacco on a particular spot on the stove and hear it sizzle. The older boys decided to give the new little boy some tobacco to see what he could do. Thinking that if they told him to do it, he should try the little blond tried chewing some of their tobacco, but he immediately became ill.

His teacher, who was only 18, made him a bed in the school and drove him home at the end of the day in her buggy. The little boy just knew his mother would give him a "switching", but the teacher just told her he had been sick and perhaps should stay home the next day until his mother could cure him. Through the years this woman has remained one of the teachers that Dr. Donovan has admired most because of her human sympathy.

Just like other children, Dr. Donovan had fights as a boy. While going to school at Maysville, he and a bully in the school went to the livery stable and fought it out with the President coming out on top. The bully wasn't a bully again so sav those who observed the fight. The boy with whom he fought the most often was his best friend and they always hugged afterwards.

Even today the President still has determination as when a boy. He may explode, but he is calm afterwards and never holds a grudge. Those students whom he has punished most severely and disciplined are the ones that come back to him afterwards for advice.

Another characteristic of the President is his quick wit. Unless one knows him fairly well they would not observe this trait. The educator has always been very careful not to let it come into his speeches or lectures for fear that people will disregard the main purpose of his talk and think of him as just being an amusing and witty person.

Even though the President may out of YOU...*

Give me your skinny, pepless, run-down body. Let me put it in an After Six tux. Right away, you'll begin to feel different, look different, LIVE a little!

Before I discovered After Six Formal Wear, I was a spindly weakling. Fellows threw me out the window when parties got dull. Girls snickered at me behind my back. I was a real nothin'.

Then, I bought an After Six tux! Almost immediately, my scrawny chest, my pipe-stem legs and arms began to ripple with new-found strength and energy. My confidence, my joy de vivre had returned. At proms and dances, girls elbowed each other to gain my favor. I owe it all to the flattering fit of my After Six Dinner Jacket. Don't let life pass you by. Enjoy new-found zip and go... in an After Six.

be celebrating his 69th birthday—he still has a full day. He arises at 6 a.m. each morning and reads the newspapers and listens to the radio until about 7:30 a.m. He is usually at his office by 8 or 9 a.m. From then on his day is filled with engagements and the nights are usually the same way.

His greatest interests are in his two book collections. One is on the Constitutional Conventions of the United States. The other is on biographies and autobiographies of college presidents. This collection has over 200 volumes and it is doubtful that there is another collection similar to this.

This year as a birthday present, the Lexington Optimist Club voted him the outstanding citizen of Fayette County. But the gift of UK students will probably be a greeting using the name he would most liked to have had—"Happy Birthday Dr. 'Patrick' Donovan."
