

CLEARING HOUSE

By The Editor
Now, it seems like Lexington has a good idea in planning for a municipal auditorium.

Dear Sir: Numbers of students have complained that the Gunguiso theater does not offer enough opportunity for University students in theater work.

Maybe this is our fault, in that the little campus publicity has been given to Gunguiso lately.

Dear Editor: I want to complain about the overwhelming number of advertisements in comparison to the printed matter that appeared in Friday's Kernel.

Pure Prejudice
"Clearing House" in the past week, there has been an increasing amount of controversy over the question of allowing Negro students to enter the University.

Call For Interviewers
Final plans are being made for the establishment of a student organization on this campus.

Must We Dance?
Dear Editor: The "Clearing House" column in Friday's Kernel was regrettably weak as well as almost totally devoid of thought.

Unpronounceable
"Breaking down still further, Jim says bitterly that Rimsky-Korsakoff is an unpronounceable name; well, all I can say in reply to such a foolish statement is that many of us native Americans have no trouble with the name, but do quite often misspell "unpronounceable."

Library Prize
An excellent chance for those students desiring to read a good supply of books to add monetary wealth to mental wealth is offered by the University Library.

PICKETT TO TALK AS DINNER ENDS VOCATION MEET

Fifteen Speakers Will Discuss Prospects For Women

Dr. Alice N. Pickett, Louisville physician and head of the Department of Obstetrics at the University of Louisville, will be the principal speaker at the closing meeting of the Vocational Information Conference at a banquet at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Union Ballroom.

Attendance Cards
Vocational Information Conference attendance cards will be distributed and punched at the group meetings today.

Fifteen speakers from the East and Mid-West will discuss vocational opportunities for women in individual sessions of the conference today in the Union building.

Why Not Get Rid Of Them?

The Interfraternity Council recently suggested that the custom of open houses be abolished, or at least changed to a more favorable system.

Open houses were established for the purpose of introducing sorority pledges to fraternity men. This aim in itself is good, but it has been carried too far. The affairs have become dull and monotonous because of the manner in which they are conducted.

The duration of open houses is much too long. They begin in October and last until Spring, or at least until every fraternity has been invited.

There are two ways in which this situation could be remedied. First, by narrowing the open-houses to one or two general occasions at the beginning of the year.

Second, by inviting two or three fraternities at the same time. This idea was tried last year by Kappa Kappa Gamma, but the fraternities felt that they had been grossly insulted, and they retaliated by a grosser insult; they did not attend.

If the fraternities could be educated to attend in groups, this plan would be excellent. It would shorten the duration of open-houses, and would also create a more friendly attitude among the fraternities.

Although the objection to open houses has come from the Interfraternity Council, if the pledges of sororities were questioned, they would undoubtedly voice the same opinion.

A custom that has caused as much antagonism as open houses is certainly non-effective, and the situation should be remedied in some manner. There is absolutely no point in observing a precedent that has become dull and lost its flavor.

Summer School First; And Then?

According to the Lexington Sunday Herald-Leader, the University of Kentucky will boast a course in marriage and family life for the first term of its 1950 summer school.

Of course, as in early days when there was any deviation from a strict adherence to the classes, there are those who gloomily foretell a "had effect" on students, who see an emphasis on sex increasing alarmingly, who immediately brand this course as another "sex" course or point with rigid finger to the "horrible example" (who probably flunked the course).

But as was emphasized in a KERNEL editorial on February 7, the well-regulated course does not lapse into an over-grown bull session nor does it cater to sensation seekers.

In some cases, in early days when there was any deviation from a strict adherence to the classes, there are those who gloomily foretell a "had effect" on students, who see an emphasis on sex increasing alarmingly, who immediately brand this course as another "sex" course or point with rigid finger to the "horrible example" (who probably flunked the course).

But as was emphasized in a KERNEL editorial on February 7, the well-regulated course does not lapse into an over-grown bull session nor does it cater to sensation seekers.

If the summer school classes prove popular and worthwhile, and there is every reason to believe that they will be, why not include the course in the regular curriculum? It seems that a vital course of this type is necessary in a university which wishes to educate and train its students to live successfully.

Good Preparation For "The Test By Fire"

The University YMW-YA is to be congratulated upon the series of open forums which will be held next week. Although complete plans have not been made, the idea is certainly a step in the right direction.

As was emphasized in a recent KERNEL editorial, there is need for more active discussion of controversial subjects and problems, particularly those affecting our relation to the campus and the outside world.

The individual student should also be considered and his training directed in those channels wherein he can cultivate self-reliance and practical common sense.

Scrap Irony By HARRY WILLIAMS

News stories and publicity releases concerning the New York World's Fair recall for us the wide-eyed amazement with which we viewed certain mystical goings on in the Hall of Science at Chicago in '33.

It was in that Devil's sanctum that we were introduced to the photo-electric cell, the maddening little gadget that opened doors before we got to them and squirted water in our face when we bent over for a drink.

Well, we are four years older now and have learned to keep a weather eye out for the future when things like photo-electric cells threaten to revolutionize industry.

Girls will carry them along when they have dates and pretty soon we'll have a war between the sexes. All policemen will have them (probably set in the head of their clubs like a compass) and within a few weeks everybody will be in jail.

Some Redeeming Vices... Steve White plays the guitar, especially "Dark Eyes."

Jimmie Wine does imitations, especially Old English Colons.

Frank Davis has his shoes made to order, five pairs at a time.

Jimmie Borders, assistant operator at the University radio studios, plays a bassoon in the philharmonic.

Don Irvine does imitations, especially old Russian Colons.

Virginia Hayden likes jokes, especially millinery ones. (And she wears them, too.)

Marian Gardhouse does imitations, especially seals.

Another thing about this Jimmie Borders, the operator-bassoonist, is that he and Chet Stratton (Chet is the chief operator over at the studios) have a perverted sense of humor.

A Dead Dictator?
By JIM CALDWELL

Collegians should point with pride to the recent proposal by twelve U. S. Senators that this country hold a national referendum before it may enter a war on foreign soil.

Two hundred and sixty-seven men is not a very large number when one considers the fact that there are around 60,000,000 qualified voters in the land.

Finally we have twelve men in the land with sufficient fortitude to stand up for the rights of collegians as apply to the question of going across several thousand miles of ocean to shoot and be shot at by a race of individuals whom they probably have never seen before.

Cats' 16 Champion Teams Will Begin Fight For Title Thursday In Gym

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

What the Rose Bowl is to football, the Kentucky Derby to horse racing, the World's Series to baseball, the Davis Cup to tennis, and rain to the farmer—the Kentucky high school basketball is to state cage teams.

Thursday afternoon 16 teams, regional winners, will go to bat in the first inning of the 22nd annual state tourney in Alumni Gym. From the original starting field of over 500 eligibles, these select teams only have qualified for the big race, a claiming event for the year high schools over a distance of four rounds to the final wire.

The qualifiers in order of the regions they represent are: 1—Tilghman of Paducah; 2—Madisonville; 3—Morgantown; 4—McHenry; 5—Olmstead; 6—Horse Cave; 7—St. Xavier; 8—Eminance; 9—Holmes high of Covington; 10—Brooksville; 11—Madison; 12—Danville; 13—Corbin; 14—Hindman; 15—Inez; 16—Breckinridge Training School of Morehead.

To attempt to pick a winner from this group of teams, one would have to be moved by the same sort of madness that inspired the first man to span Niagara on a tight rope. Following a most disastrous swing on the football picking circuit last fall, as a New Year's resolution, I solemnly promised that forever more I would confine my selections to ladies' cracker eating and whistling contests or perhaps a shot or two at mixed-doubles chess using eating machines. However, as a matter of civic pride, allow me to point out that I did pick Kentucky to win the Southeastern Conference basketball tourney. Which they did.

Predictions Pass In Reverse

Few seasons have been tougher on the fellows who gradually work their way into a padded cell by selecting winners than has this year. On the eve of the district eliminations two weeks ago, a pool of slate sports scribbles found 33 teams deserving to win the blue ribbon, four-ball, six-star event. A total of 7 of those 33 favorites are now still in the running for the state crown. The district and regional taffer-puffer mowed down (and selections) down like a thunderbolt from Jove's fist. Only St. Xavier, Madisonville, and Morganfield are repeaters from last year's tournament.

Last year the state basketball population was jarred by its greatest upset since Carr Creek, with its punykins ball and overall uniforms took the affair several years ago when unheralded, ya unheard of, Sharpe breezed into the champions tank with a 35-27 win over Louisville in the final round. Located in Marshall county, deep in Jackson Purchase section of Western Kentucky, Sharpe, although carrying one of the best seasonal records of any team in the meet, received a thorough nose thumping from the experts, who classed the team a darkhorse. The term darkhorse, in sports, is used to cover more territory than the British flag. For example, in Thursday's meet, Sharpe will probably be two or three favorites and the remainder of the field will be darkhorses. How wrong am I on selections like that? As far as I'm concerned there are 16 darkhorses in the tourney.

Tourney's Popular

No one dares deny the position the state tournament holds in Kentucky high school basketball. It stands as unchallenged as Joe Louis in a kindergarten. The tourney is like an oasis at the end of a desert journey. All during the year the teams perform with but one thing before their eyes: they are fighting for a shot in big time competition. For this chance the boys are willing to put all they have into each game.

Last year the six sessions of the tournament were played before a total of over 22,000 persons. Most of the games are so close that one postage stamp would mail both teams and the customers do like a run for their money, and get it. Every game is packed with enough thrills and drama to make a Hollywood scenario writer pale with envy.

Prediction Practice

It won't be long until Kentucky Derby post time rolls around and I, like everyone else, will want my predictions to be astride some one of the hay-barners. Predicting takes not only fool-hardiness, luck and madness, but practice as well. So I'll throw in a little practice by predicting a few games in the tournament. The winners in order of their appearances Thursday will be: Being prejudiced I like Tilghman name them, over Rain's nose, Madison team. Throat that game out, McHenry and Hindman may be darker than a South African coal miner. I never heard of either of the two. So disregard that game. A number of times I had urged me to pick Corbin over Breckinridge but being a conservative I'll call the game. Hater also a passenger with the verdict going to the team that scores the oftener. St. Xavier and Eminence look pretty hard, so let's pick that game Friday morning. Madisonville may take Morganfield if they score ten enough, but keep your money in your pocket. The Horse Cave-Brooksville game scares me. I don't get that one. Olmstead and Danville looks plenty close with the

XAVIER, HOLMES RANKED HIGH BY EXPERTS

Kentucky's 16 regional basketball champions, survivors from an original starting field of 550 teams, will square-off in the 22nd renewal of the annual state cage tournament Thursday afternoon in Alumni gym.

From last year's field, but three teams, St. Xavier, Madisonville and Horse Cave, were able to survive the rigors of earlier eliminations and qualify for the blue-ribbon event. Sharpe, 1938 champion, was wheeled from the list in the second round of the fourth district tourney, while Mayville, last year's runner-up, also failed to pass its district pruning knife. Only St. Xavier and Corbin of the entrants have previously taken the state title.

The first round will start Thursday with five games falling during the afternoon and three at night. The quarter-finals will be held Friday, the semi-finals Saturday afternoon and the final round will be due Saturday night.

Pairings for the opening showings Thursday:

1 p. m.—Tilghman vs. Madison.
2 p. m.—McHenry vs. Hindman.
3 p. m.—Corbin vs. Brooksville.
4 p. m.—St. Xavier vs. Eminence.
5 p. m.—Madisonville vs. Morganfield.
6 p. m.—Olmstead vs. Corbin.
7:30 p. m.—Horse Cave vs. Brooksville.
8:30 p. m.—Olmstead vs. Danville.
9:30 p. m.—Covington vs. Inez.

According to experts, this year's tournament should be a wide open affair with any one of the entrants capable of hauling home the title. Although totally overlooked in title gossip a few weeks ago, St. Xavier, top heavy favorite for the title the past two years, looms as a distinct threat as a result of their win in the 6th region. Most of the smart money so far rides with St. Xavier and Holmes high of Covington as finalists.

Tilghman high of Paducah, also forged into the title talk by its 37-24 win over Calver city in the final of the first region tourney. The calibre of such teams as McHenry, Madisonville, Hindman, Morganfield, Horse Cave and Olmstead is as unknown as the originator of the first nose-thumping. Ralph Cavle's Madison team, 11th region champs, has picked up many supporters as a result of its tournament showings. From another source comes the word that Brooksville, 22-14 winner over Paris in the 10th region final, is the team to watch.

The lower bracket, say the experts, looks like Covington all the way, with possibly its hardest test coming from Inez in its first start. Danville, an alternately hot and cold team, has shown enough power at times to extend the favored Holmes team, but inside sources contend the team can't be considered for the crown. Hindman, upset winner over Hazard, the team favored for the title three weeks ago, may prove the revolution in the upper bracket.

Based on the interest shown in the preliminary eliminations, this year's tourney is expected to outdraw last season's affair, when the Alumni band-bus was stuffed to the rafters for every season.

Harned's Condition Is Called Serious

Hal Harned's condition was reported as "serious" late last night by Good Samaritan hospital attendants. Harned was injured at 11 p. m. Saturday when an automobile in which he was riding crashed into a telephone pole on South Upper street near the University training school.

Examination revealed a fracture of the skull, concussion, fracture of the right jaw and a fracture of the left collarbone. X-ray pictures made on Sunday morning.

The case of Harry Reed, driver of the car, was continued to April 14 in police court yesterday. The charge was assault and battery with a deadly weapon. Reed received a $100 fine for a gash on the forehead and was released Saturday night.

Hunter also a passenger in Reed's car but received no injuries.

Reed told police that he lost control of the car after crossing railroad tracks on South Upper street. The crash threw both car doors open and Harned and Reed were hurled from the seat.

Rupp Gives Talk

Coach Adolph Rupp, Kentucky basketball chief, opened his annual look of the banquet circuit last night when he served as principal speaker at the St. Catherine Academy basketball banquet in the Lafayette hotel.

The banquet was presented in honor of the St. Catherine team and their coach, Andy Anderson, former All-Conference guard for Kentucky. Other special guests were Mrs. Adolph Rupp, Mrs. Anderson, and Father George O'Brien. John S. Yelman acted as toastmaster at the dinner.

DRILLS BATTER FOOTBALL MEN

Spears, Gholson Hurt In Spring Practice

With near perfect conditions from the weatherman, Coach Ab Kirwan last week presented a menu of heavy contact for the 63 candidates that are taking part in daily spring football drills on the Stoll Field practice area.

During the week, which found daily workouts that were rougher than a Northwoodman's beard, two men, Larry Spears, and Ed Gholson, were sliced from the coterie for the remainder of the drills, though minor injuries were suffered during the week to start a Red Cross training station.

Spears was kicked in the head during a scrimmage last Thursday and a possible brain concussion was at first feared. At present the 200-pound tackle is recovering in the Good Samaritan hospital. The same afternoon, Gholson, 185-pound end, received a badly wrenched elbow that will keep him out of the remainder of the spring session. Others on the shop worn list include Luke Linden, Hook Combs, Noah Mullins and Captain Joe Shepherd.

All battered like retired bowling balls. The main headache confronting Coach Kirwan and his assistants Bernie Shively, Frank Moseley, Joe Rupert, Gene Myers, Joe Huddleston and Bert Johnson, seems to be the selection of 11 men to class as the first team from the horde of capable hopefuls. But four members of last season's varsity squad, Sherman Hinkelstein, Randal Phillips, Danmore Davis and Harry Brown, will be lost by graduation, leaving 22 letters to go toward making the 1939-40 Wildcat grid machine.

TO ADDRESS CLUB

Leut.-Gov. Keen Johnson and Tom R. Underwood, editor of The Lexington Herald, will address a dinner meeting of the Lexington Business and Professional Women's Club Inc., at 6:30 o'clock tonight in the Gold room of the Lafayette hotel.

Oberst Will Speak On Drug Addiction

Studies of nature and treatment of drug addiction at the U. S. Public Health Service hospital in Lexington will be discussed by Dr. Fred W. Oberst at a meeting of the Lexington chapter of Sigma Xi at 7 p. m. Friday, March 17, in the Perce hall physics lecture room.

Particular reference will be made to relationship of the modification of the chemistry of the opium alkaloids to physiological action.

Specific substances, furnished to the health service through co-operation with the National Research Council which is supported from a grant in aid by the Rockefeller foundation, are being studied as to their addiction liability.

Dr. Oberst will also refer to biochemical changes resulting from therapeutic doses of the opium alkaloids, administered during the course of the routine care of patients, in terms of single therapeutic doses, and repeated doses when necessary. Results of observations during the period subsequent to withdrawal of the drug of the addiction will also be mentioned.

Seats for spectators at the practice sessions have been erected at the west end of the practice field. Last year for the first time in some years the practices gave through open and the fans welcomed to attend the rehearsals. The only restriction that the coaching staff asks is that the spectators stay off the field during practice.
