

TO THE WOMEN EMPLOYEES IN YOUR OFFICE:

It has come to our attention that perhaps the story of the Katherine Legge Memorial has not been told to the women employes at the various Company branches and works' offices, and this letter is written with the thought that many of these employes come to Chicago occasionally and will wish to visit the Memorial.

The Katherine Legge Memorial, established in 1924 by Mr. Alexander Legge in memory of his wife for the use of the women employes of the International Harvester Company and its subsidiaries, comprises a wooded tract about 18 miles southwest of Chicago and two miles south of Hinsdale, Illinois. Swimming, tennis, hiking, bridge parties and an occasional dance afford year-round activities. The Memorial is easily accessible by automobile and by Chicago, Burlington & Quincy suburban trains from Chicago to Hinsdale. The round trip fare is 48 cents and the trains are met by the Memorial bus.

The clubhouse, with a resident host and hostess, is the central gathering place and the scene of many gay parties. Arrangements may be made for meals at the very nominal charge of 70 cents for dinner and 25 cents for breakfast. Mixed parties are held occasionally, and the girls may invite men guests for dinner at stated times.

The original Legge cottage and the McCormick Memorial cottage provide sleeping quarters and have combined accommodations for fifty girls. Each cottage is equipped with a kitchen where meals may be prepared if desired. There is an overnight charge of 25 cents for the first night and 15 cents nightly thereafter.

The latest addition to the Memorial is the Convalescent cottage, built especially for Harvester employes, both men and women, or members of their families who are in need of rest and quiet. The two bedrooms with connecting bath, large living-room, kitchen and dinette, and its isolation from the other buildings make the cottage an ideal place for the purpose. An invalid or convalescent must have some one in attendance, of course, as the facilities of the clubhouse do not provide for such cases.

Mere words cannot describe the Memorial's many attractions, but the enclosed booklet, published at the time the McCormick Memorial cottage was dedicated, indicates the character of the buildings, all of which are in keeping with their beautifully landscaped setting.

All Harvester women employes are cordially invited to visit the Memorial. Arrangements may be made in advance by writing to Katherine Legge Memorial, County Line Road, Hinsdale, Illinois, or by telephone, Hinsdale 1436.
