Class Reunions a Pronounced Success

Now that reunions are over and we have settled down to comparative calm for another year, we have been anxiously inquiring to learn if those who were here really had an enjoyable time and just what they thought of the reunion program. The replies to our questions have been varied, but the meaning has always been the same—all express themselves in terms of enthusiasm and say that they will never miss another reunion of their class.

We planned what we thought was a varied and attractive program. On Friday night, the Senior Ball was attended by nearly 600 students and alumni. An out-of-town orchestra furnished the music and it was pronounced the best Senior Ball ever held at the university.

On Saturday morning, the activities were opened with the annual breakfast at Maxwell Place. President and Mrs. McVey were assisted in entertaining by members of the faculty, senior class, and alumni. After breakfast, the alumni went to the Alumni office to register.

Registration began promptly at 9 o'clock and the first ones to arrive were Howell Spears and Walter McKinney, members of the '07 class. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sumner who traveled to Lexington from Albuquerque, New Mexico, to attend the 25th anniversary reunion of the '07 class, were the first to arrive in Lexington. By 10 o'clock, the alumni office was crowded. It seemed, for a while, as if every one who came in belonged to that wonderful '07 class. They won the attendance honors, as more than half of the original seventy members of the class were registered on Saturday morning. They seemed to have come from every where—New York, Missouri, Texas, New Mexico, California, Chicago, and other places. This class held the interest, admiration, and envy of every one.

At noon, many of the classes held class luncheons. The '07 class met at the Phoenix hotel and their meeting lasted until after 4 o'clock. The 1912 class met at the University Commons. Only nine members of this class were in attendance but their enthusiasm made up for the absence in numbers. They elected permanent class officers, voted to keep in closer touch with all members of the class, and made plans to have a record breaking reunion on their 25th anniversary in 1937. W. H. Townsend was elected president; Dean W. S. Taylor, secretary, and Miss Martha McClure, treasurer. Two members of this class had long distance records—Harry DeAtly came from New Orleans, La., and Frank L. Marx from Mexico City, Mexico.

In the afternoon, we were entertained at tea at Maxwell Place, the home of our president. In the receiving line with the President and Mrs. McVey were Mr. and Mrs. L. K. Frankel, and Dr. and Mrs. George H. Wilson. After everyone had been served, we went out in the garden where Professor Nollau took a birth of the late President James K. Patterson. This celebration will take place next year. Walter Hillenmeyer, our toastmaster, was excellent in his introductions of the speakers and entertainers, the Kentucky Cardinals quartet and the Phi Beta trio.

Last but not least, our retiring President, L. K. Frankel, announced the results of the recent Alumni Association election of officers and introduced the new president, Dr. George Hancock Wilson. Dr. Wilson is a graduate of the University of Kentucky in the class of 1904, a resident of Lexington, an outstanding citizen, and an eminent physician. Dean Sarah Blanding was re-elected vice-president; James S. Shropshire, re-elected secretary-treasurer; W. C. Wilson was re-elected to membership on the Executive Committee, and W. H. Grady, Louisville, was elected as the new member to serve on the Executive Committee.

On Sunday, the baccalaureate services were held in Memorial hall, the Reverend R. W. Ellis, of Paris, Ky., delivering the address. Approximately 700 alumni, seniors, students and friends of the university were in attendance. At 4:30, guests of the university were entertained with a faculty tea in the faculty club rooms of McVey hall.

Monday, the last day of our celebration, the alumni gathered at 9:30 to take part in the commencement parade. There were more alumni in that parade than in any other that has been held at the university. It was a stirring scene to see the deans, alumni, faculty members and seniors on parade. Our president, Dr. Frank L. McVey, delivered the commencement address, after which 415 seniors of the university joined the ranks of the alumni.

Two of our most outstanding and loyal alumni, Mattison Boyd Jones, '94, Los Angeles, Calif., and Joel Irvine Lyle, '96, Newark, N. J., were awarded honorary LL.D. degrees.

The university luncheon was attended by over 350 people. An enjoyable lunch was served after which talks were made by President McVey, Mattison B. Jones, and J. I. Lyle. Dean Anderson presided.

The annual meeting of the Alumni Association was held at 2:30 Monday afternoon and was attended by approximately 40 people. J. I. Lyle talked on alumni loyalty and the problems of the association. The secretary made his annual business and financial reports. Alumni expressed their gratitude for such a group picture of all the alumni and guests.

The annual banquet, said to have been the most enjoyable ever given, was called at 7 o'clock at the Phoenix hotel. Approximately 150 alumni of the university were in attendance. Dr. E. Cronley Elliott, chairman of the program committee kept a menacing hand on the large dinner bell which he had promised to ring if any speaker went over his allotted time. It was not necessary for him to use the bell at all as the speakers seemed "bell-conscious" and finished their talks in record time. James Park, principal speaker of the evening, talked on "Alumni Loyalty." President McVey spoke on "A University Problem," and Dean F. Paul Anderson gave a brief talk on "Centenary," telling something of our plans for celebration on the 100th anniversary of the wonderful reunion program. And thus was ended another Class Reunion at the University of Kentucky, a happy reunion because of the security of friendships once made and now proven everlasting.

TO PRACTICE LAW

Information has been received in Paris that Miss Kady Elvove, honor graduate of the Paris high school, will graduate from the law department of George Washington University, Washington, D. C., this summer and will practice at the bar of the District of Columbia. Miss Elvove is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Elvove, Paris, and was one of the highest ranking graduates of Paris high school. Following her graduation she spent two years at the University of Kentucky, where she also was an honor student.

University Unable to Meet Payroll

The University of Kentucky was unable to pay May salaries, due its employes June 1, and for the fiscal year ending June 30 its income will be several hundred thousand dollars less than the amount state officials originally estimated the institution would receive during the year.

These facts were presented in a minute adopted by the University board of trustees and read at the annual University commencement exercises by Judge R. C. Stoll, chairman of the board. The board, in this minute, stated the financial situation at the University, expressed appreciation for the loyalty of the faculty members and other employes during the present crisis, and pledged itself to make every effort to pay all members of the staff the amount due them.

The minute follows:

Board's Statement

"After a full discussion of the finances of the University, upon motion made, seconded, and unanimously carried, the following minute was ordered to be spread at large upon the minutes of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky.

"The University of Kentucky receives for its support and maintenance, annually, a certain sum of money from the United States of America, a sum of money from students' fees, and other sources, but by far the greatest portion of its income has been derived from the State of Kentucky.

Heretofore a certain percentage of the ad valorem taxes and one-half of the inheritance taxes have been set apart by law for the support of the University, and in addition thereto some direct appropriations have been made by the state to the University and to the Experiment Station, and particularly for agricultural extension work, and these latter appropriations have lately been paid by state warrants.

Income Estimated

"Before the beginning of each fiscal year the University obtains from the proper authorities of the state of Kentucky an estimate of the amount which will be realized by the University from ad valorem and inheritance taxes. With this information in his hands, the President of the University submits to the Board of Trustees, for its consideration and approval, a budget. This budget not only shows the estimated income, but sets out in the greatest detail every expendi-

A Serious Situation

Greatly reduced salaries for staff members with only partial payments made on amounts due for four months; little or no funds for maintenance of buildings and grounds; negligible operating expenses; the almost complete elimination of graduate assistantships and the increase of tuition fees, mark the situation at the University of Kentucky for the coming two years unless special aid for the institution is forthcoming.

The bulk of the University's income has been based on a percentage of certain fixed taxes, principally the Real Estate tax. The tremendous decrease in Kentucky assessments as well as the prevalent delinquency in collections has reduced this income to 75 percent of what it has been in normal times. The coming year, however, indicates even further reduction in this income.

If the University of Kentucky operated in normal times with an abundant income, it would be possible in times like the present, to make retrenchments befitting the situation. Unfortunately, however, the University has always operated with insufficient funds, and as a result the present situation is precarious.

In times of prosperity the average salary of the University of Kentucky teaching staff member is not over $2,000. At the present time these salaries are subjected to cuts ranging from 10 to 15 percent. Furthermore, sufficient income has not been available during the months of April, May, and June, and it has been possible to make only partial payments on this reduced salary, not over $100 a month in any case. Members of the University of Kentucky faculty are faced with an inevitable wait of many months before sufficient funds will enable complete payment to be made.

The seriousness of the situation lies in the fact that the continuation of such conditions will mean the disintegration of the University faculty. The loyalty of the teaching staff has been unparalleled up to the present time. However, they cannot be expected to carry on, run themselves further in debt, and suffer worries and embarrassments contingent upon certain income. Developing a faculty of the caliber of the University of Kentucky's is the labor of years. If the educators connected with the institution are forced to leave the state, a score of years will be required to remold the institution to its present efficiency.

From a physical point of view the institution is faced with suffering. Never equipped with sufficient buildings for its purpose, those in present use are headed for deterioration during the next few years, with no funds available with which to make repairs. The sums necessary for maintenance fall into insignificance in comparison to the amounts needed at the end of these two years to correct the resulting deterioration anticipated.

Even to carry on the affairs of the institution in any manner at all, an increase in fees for the Summer Session and the Regular Terms, has been made. This increase, while relatively small, will fall most heavily upon those Kentuckians with little income.

Besides its teaching functions the University has in the past, through its bureaus and laboratories, carried on many research projects of great value to the state. Curtailment of these is indicated, with obvious results.

The remedy to this crisis lies in the Kentuckian himself. While most of the citizenry of the state are to a certain degree aware of conditions, the seriousness of it all has not been sufficiently brought home. Kentucky has always stood low educationally, but the impending blow to its largest educational institution, the University of Kentucky, would be staggering. Both pride and economies dictate the maintenance of a strong state university. Immediate action by citizens of Kentucky is necessary to bring about this end. Present appropriations can be diverted to educational institutions without any increase in taxes or loss of efficiency to other departments of the state.

ture that will be made by the University for the next fiscal year.

"In the month of April, 1931, Dr. McVey presented the budget for the fiscal year 1931-32 to this Board, for its consideration and adoption, and the amount of expenditures recommended was over $200,000 less than the estimated income, so that if the income had been as estimated the University could have wound up the fiscal year's operation with a surplus of $200,000.

Income Falls Short

"But the income from ad valorem and inheritance taxes fell far short of the estimate, and for this falling off no one can be blamed. Owing to the general depressed financial condition of the country, and the unprecedented shrinkage in values of property, both real and personal, the amount received from ad valorem and inheritance taxes was very much less than was anticipated, and because of the falling off in earnings of the railroads and public service companies, the amount received from franchise taxes was very much reduced. Not only that, but the Court of Appeals of Kentucky had held that the inheritance tax law of our state was constitutional in every respect. In January of this year, the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of First National Bank vs. Maine, held that a state could not charge a transfer tax on stock or other securities passing from personal representatives to heirs, where the corporation was a local one, but whose securities were owned by a non-resident descendent. Non residents owning large amount of stock and bonds in Kentucky corporations such as the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, the Southern Pacific Railroad, the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, and other large Kentucky corporations, and while before the decision of the Supreme Court in the Maine case, the University received a large sum of money on account of such transfers, since then it has received nothing.

Warrant Value Drops

"The state warrants which Kentucky gave to the University for direct appropriations can not be sold today for more than 86 per cent of par, a loss of 14 per cent on each warrant.

"These conditions no one could anticipate when the budget was prepared, and the University finds itself in the same position as many other business enterprises.

"When the University, because of these things, realized that the estimated income would be less than its budget expenditures, it was required to take drastic steps to balance its budget. The Maine case was decided in January. The first part of February the University was compelled to cut all salaries paid to

The University of Kentucky at its 65th annual commencement exercises today conferred degrees on 415 senior and graduate students and honored two of its distinguished alumni with honorary degrees of doctor of law.

The exercises, held in the alumni gymnasium on Euclid avenue, were attended by an audience that nearly filled the large auditorium. It included faculty members, trustees, graduates and underclassmen and friends of the University. Gov. Ruby Laffoon was in attendance.

Judge Richard C. Stoll, chairman of the executive committee of the board of trustees, presided. In a statement, published in full in other columns, Judge Stoll, for the board outlined the grave financial situation of the University and expressed appreciation to the faculty and administrative staff for its loyalty and cooperation in these moneyless times.

Judge Stoll Reviews Growth

Judge Stoll, himself a graduate of the University, class of 1895, said he started to the state college nine years after it had been established as a separate state college on the present grounds, and had witnessed its growth from a small college to a great university.

The selection by the special committee in 1917 of Dr. Frank L. McVey as president of University was one of the greatest steps ever taken by the University, Judge Stoll said, adding that "each year we know that no better man could have been selected." He then introduced Dr. McVey, who was greeted with an ovation.

Describing himself as the self-selected speaker and one who cost the University no extra honorarium, Dr. McVey addressed the graduating class on "The University of Kentucky," concluding with the following words:

"The University of Kentucky has had a unique history. Its story is wound through and through the fibre of the state. The heritage which it possesses today was gained through a long struggle. It had a bad start; it was handicapped by misunderstanding of education. Now it is free to do a great work. It had first to escape from religious entanglements and factional contacts. Today it is free from political domination. The people of the state recognize its interests.

"As this commencement period closes the academic year 1931-32, the University finds itself faced with financial difficulties. These have arisen, not because of mis-management and extravagant expenditures but because of economic conditions. The University hopes, nevertheless for the best, to be understood and to be a great factor in the life of Kentucky. It works for the state at all times. It is, in fact, a part of the state set up by the people and tested again and again through the years. It has now reached a point in its history where it should do its best work. The University is a beacon light to the people, and in these days of complex and difficult financial problems it may help materially in the education of students and in bringing to adults everywhere the principles of government, the growth of science and the work of high citizenship to the problems of Kentucky."

the teaching force of the University 10 per cent. This did not solve the problem, because of the continued falling off of income and the continued drop in the market value of state warrants. So the University was compelled to do a very drastic thing.

No Payment June 1

"The University was only able to pay, and no person employed by the University as a teacher, including of course the president and the deans, received more than $100 per month on April 1 for the March salaries, $100 per month on May 1, on account of April salaries, and was unable to make any payments whatsoever on June 1.

"Despite this drastic action which the Board of Trustees was required to take, every member of the teaching staff has accepted the situation without murmur or complaint, and the morale and esprit de corps of the staff has been splendid.

"The Board knows the hardships imposed upon the staff, and hereby expresses its great appreciation of the absolute loyalty of the men and women who compose the faculty of the University.

"The Board of Trustees hereby pledges itself that it will make every effort that it legally can to pay the staff the amount due by the University of Kentucky."

John Edward Byars, graduate of the University of Kentucky in the class of 1924, died Tuesday, May 11, at El Paso, Texas, according to information received in Lexington. He was a member of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity while attending the university. Mr. Byars' home was at Madisonville before he went to Texas.

Statement From Retiring President

To Alumni of the University:

Optimism has always been the keynote of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association. Even in these trying times when almost every organization is one where the future looks unusually bright. The law of compensation holds good in our case as the officers and members of the association, not laboring under the stress of business, have been able to give freely of their time and thoughts in helping to solve the problems that have been ours during the past two years.

In retiring from the presidency of your association, I wish to acknowledge my appreciation of the great interest that has been taken in the association by the officers and members of the Executive Committee as well as the many loyal Alumni. My only regret is that there are some who have not joined with us in our work and are not enjoying the thrill of serving our grand old university.

Permit me to appeal to those of you who have not been a part of our association to become members. It is true that we must have financial aid from you, but this is the least. We want your cooperation and your encouragement. We want you to join with us in the great satisfaction that we get in feeling we are serving our Alma Mater and remaining a part of the institution that has meant so much to us.

With the induction of Dr. George H. Wilson as your new president you can expect big things from the association during this coming year. I assure you that you are missing a good deal by not affiliating with our association.

To the great number who have been loyal for so many years, may I extend my appreciation for the cooperation and good will that you have manifested toward the university and our association. The university, through its president, appreciates the attitude that the graduates have taken by their membership in the Alumni Association.

The university needs your help. By becoming a member of the Alumni Association you can render that assistance. Therefore, permit me to urge you without delay to get in touch with our Alumni secretary and have your name placed on the roll of honor.

With best wishes to every graduate of our great university, I remain,

Most sincerely,
L. K. FRANKEL.

SIGMA CHI WINS INTRAMURAL CUP

For the second consecutive year the Sigma Chi fraternity won the all-year participating trophy, valued at $250, awarded to the group scoring the most number of points during the intramural program at the University of Kentucky. Sigma Chi defeated Sigma Alpha Epsilon by five points, 640 to 635. Last year Sigma Chi won the cup by a four-point margin.

The winner's trophy becomes permanent possession of the organization winning it four times. To be eligible for the trophy each organization must compete in the sports of the intramural department which include basketball, track, fencing, and others.

University of Kentucky's intramural department is considered the best organized in the south and its program and administration have been adopted by many high schools and colleges.

Points were scored as follows during the 1931-32 school year: Sigma Chi, 640; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, 635; Kappa Alpha, 479½; Alpha Tau Omega, 467; Phi Sigma Kappa, 349; Phi Delta Theta, 305½; Delta Tau Delta, 299; Pi Kappa Alpha, 230;

Kappa Sigma, 22; Phi Kappa Tau, 213½; Alpha Sigma Phi, 183½; Lambda Chi Alpha, 170; Alpha Gamma Rho, 147; Sigma Beta Xi, 139; Delta Chi, 102; Triangles, 71; Sigma Nu, 43; Campus Club, 31; Alpha Lambda Tau, 25.

SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON FORMS ALUMNI SOCIETY

Organization of a central Kentucky Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity alumni association was completed at a luncheon meeting of Lexington members May 28 at the Phoenix hotel.

Homer Baker, Lexington, was elected president of the organization, which is to be known as the Bluegrass Alumni Association of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Other officers named were Pat M. Ryan, vice-president, and Gerald Griffin, secretary-treasurer.

Judge A. K. Nippert, Cincinnati, national president of the fraternity, was a guest at the meeting. In a brief speech, he invited those present to attend exercises at the University of Kentucky chapter house June 3, when the national fraternity presented a number of photographs to the Lexington chapter.

MILITARY DAY IS CONDUCTED AT THE UNIVERSITY

Before a large crowd of spectators which included a number of military officials from throughout this section of the country the annual military field day and R. O. T. C. graduation exercises were held May 26 at the University of Kentucky. The entire University corps, including approximately 900 cadets, took part in the exercise, held on Stoll field.

The program opened with the assembly of the regiment at 2 o'clock, followed by the review in honor of the president of the University and deans, who were seated in a gaily decorated reviewing stand in the south side of the stadium. Other dignitaries in the reviewing stand included Lieut.-Col. Walter Sweeney and Lieut.-Col. Myron S. Crissy, both of Columbus, Ohio, and Major Marvin H. Taylor, Louisville. Col. Crissy is in charge of reserve officers' organization in this corps area which includes Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, and West Virginia. Club News

WASHINGTON CLUB

Clyde D. Harrison, secretary of the Washington Alumni Club, reports that they have a very active membership, consisting of about 50 grads and former students of the university. Their meetings are held the second Wednesday of each month during the school year, a luncheon meeting at the University club.

The present officers of this club are Elmer D. Hayes, president, and Clyde D. Harrison, secretary.

KANSAS CLUB

Mrs. Guy Smith writes that the Kansas Alumni club is still active although most of the members live too far distant to attend many meetings. The organization of this club took place last fall when Dr. Jesse Adams went to Topeka to speak for them and tell them of the aims and duties of alumni clubs.

Their next meeting will take place in the fall, and they are already working to have a large attendance.

Officers of the Kansas Alumni club are C. G. Blakely, president; Dr. J. A. Yates, vice-president, and Mrs. Guy Smith, secretary.

LEXINGTON CLUB

The Lexington Alumni club closes its 1931-32 school year successfully and happily. The 69 members have cooperated with the University of Kentucky Alumni Association in every way possible and it is through contact with this larger organization that we alumni living in Lexington are brought closer to our Alma Mater.

A special business meeting was held in October to plan for Homecoming and the Homecoming dance to be held in the evening, following the Duke-Kentucky football game. From the proceeds of the dance we were able to give the Alumni Association of the University a check for $300. The Student Loan Fund of the University received $100 from the dance receipts.

The November meeting of the Lexington club was a dinner meeting. At the January meeting officers were elected for the coming year. Marguerite McLaughlin was re-elected president; J. Ed Parker was elected vice-president, and Virginia Boyd replaced Helen King as secretary-treasurer. At the spring meeting, the club entertained the basketball team for dinner. The Lexington Alumni club assisted a senior boy to the extent of $41.00 during the past semester. Without this help from the University Alumni the boy, a prominent student in the university, would have been unable to graduate.

We are proud to say that the Lexington Alumni were well represented at the class reunions during commencement, and were in evidence at the meeting of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association meeting held after the luncheon for the graduating class on June 6. The luncheon was partially financed by money from the Lexington Alumni club.

The school year is closed. People are leaving Lexington for their summer vacation. The Lexington Alumni club will not meet again until next fall, but we hope there will be as much enthusiasm shown next year as was shown last year. There is no closer contact to be had with the university than through an alumni association. We are looking forward to a great year here in Lexington with hundreds of members. It may be a dream, but with concentrated effort on the part of the active members there is no reason why this dream should not be realized.

VIRGINIA BOYD, Secretary,
Lexington Alumni Club.

CHICAGO CLUB

The University of Kentucky club of Chicago, which meets every third Monday at Marshall Field's Men's Grill at 12:00 noon for luncheon, is glad to report that it is still in existence; in fact, the attendance (between 15 and 20) has been larger, and the meetings more enjoyable than ever before.

Any visiting Alumni, or Chicago Alumni so far not connected with the club, are most cordially and urgently invited to attend. We are looking forward to visits from many of you (alumnae as well as alumni) during the World's Fair next summer, and although we cannot personally give you the key to the city, we do feel that we can be of considerable assistance to those visiting the Fair who are not familiar with the city. We would appreciate your informing us in advance of your proposed visits so that we may be in a position to be of as much service as possible.

As a special attraction to our club we wish to announce that we have one member, Mr. Woodson, who is our "Hole in One" expert. He will give golf lessons free of charge to those of you who are not adept at the game.

Mr. Curtis Sauer, a former president of the club, has been transferred to the St. Louis office of the Armstrong Cork Company.

Much to our regret, our newly-elected president, Mr. Samuel M. Cassidy, had to resign on account of being transferred to Corbin, Kentucky, where he is in charge of the operations of two or three coal mines.

I am unable, in this letter, to include a list of names and addresses of our active members. When Mr. Cassidy was transferred so suddenly, he wrote to me from Corbin telling me that at the last regular meeting at which I was not present (absent members take note) I had been elected secretary-treasurer. The time is too short, consequently for me to do this, but I do suggest to other associations that they do likewise. It would be such a splendid way to keep in touch with former classmates and old friends. If your list is too long for one issue, divide it—but give us a few names each time the "New" comes out. I'll have our list ready for the next time.

E. B. BOSTON, Sec'y.-Treas.

U. K. ALUMNI CLUB DINNER

LOUISVILLE CLUB

The Louisville club held a reorganization meeting in January of the past year. Several members of the Lexington club went to Louisville to attend this meeting. Practically 45 people were present. There has not been a meeting since, but we are looking forward to next year when we are sure the Louisville club will do a great work.
