PRESS COMMENTS ON PASSING OF CENTRE

Now that Centre College, long the honored rival of Kentucky's Wildcats, has been dropped from the University football schedule by the Athletic Council, the press of Kentucky has carried much comment, pro and con, about the action of the Council. The Kernel has not joined the discussion, primarily because there was nothing to voice except complete approval of the change.

However, two of Kentucky's leading newspapers have recently expressed viewpoints so much in harmony with the attitude of the University that the Kernel takes pleasure in reproducing them in part. They express the sentiments of the students and faculty, and at the same time say all that the Kernel deems necessary or pertinent to the passing of Centre.

(Louisville Times)

The University of Kentucky has full authority to decide on its course in relation to athletics. It was well within its rights in deciding to put Centre off its list of football opponents for 1929. But without sharing Danville's resentment, necessarily, the whole state may realize that the break has its unfortunate features.

Centre football isn't what it was in the days of its glory. Indeed, few could expect it to be. Not every year can a comparatively small educational institution bring from its limited number of prospects a topnotch football team capable of meeting and potentially capable of defeating the picked men from the nation's largest colleges and universities. But so long as Centre is doing its best it is entitled to the respect and affection of all Kentucky.

But to bring a charge of ingratitude against the University of Kentucky on the ground that Centre kept the University on its schedule at a financial loss for several years is not likely to strike a popular note. Neither U. K. nor Centre is expected in a practical age to make a plea for football charity. If athletic relations are to be resumed it must not be on that basis.

(Lexington Leader)

The decision of the Athletic Council of the University of Kentucky to omit from its football schedule the game with Centre College, which had become a classic, will occasion regret, no doubt, on both sides. But the action was based on sound reasons and is certain to be widely approved on sober second thought.

There was no tinge of ill-feeling moving the council. Their unanimous action rests on logical grounds. It is felt that no good reason exists for the continuation of the single game with Centre, in spite of traditions and practice, when the University competes on the athletic field with no other institution within the state. No satisfactory explanation could be given in other colleges of the state or the University of Louisville for failure to play the University team against them. The University properly should compete with teams from other states only. It is a state institution, it belongs to all the people; it represents them all, and it stands in a class by itself among the institutions of higher learning in the commonwealth.

The University's ambition to win the Southern Conference championship is laudable and should attract the support of every citizen in the state.

Centre is a great historic college, one of which the state may justly be proud and in whose progress scholastically and on the athletic field all our people should be interested. The University authorities certainly feel this way. So all citizens and the student bodies of all colleges should feel toward the University, the crown of the public educational system of Kentucky, whose growth and increasing prestige should appeal to the pride of all alike.

CLEAN PLAY

When the Kentucky Wildcats and the Clemson Tigers trooped from Stoll field at the final whistle of the game last Saturday, another great chapter of football history on this campus was completed. All Kentucky rejoiced with the students and the team at this decisive step toward the championship of the Southern Conference.

One of the most gratifying observations to be made in connection with last Saturday's tilt was the entire absence of dirty play of any kind on the part of anyone connected with the game. Quoting from the Lexington Leader sport writer: "The Wildcats came out of the Clemson game as free of injuries as when they entered it. Clemson did also. That fact is a tribute to clean football." Two casualties were suffered in the game, one on each side, but both players started the game in poor condition and were reinforced.

When two teams such as Clemson and the University can meet on the field of battle and confine their playing to the rules of the game and to the code of gentlemanly conduct, then surely the time-honored sport is not subject to the charge of un-sportsmanlike conduct such as is practiced by some teams.

We are proud that you uphold the honorable tradition, Wildcats and Tigers, and will look forward to seeing you meet on our field again, for the University of Kentucky is proud to have on its schedule a team which plays clean football at all times.

PROGRESS IN COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

A decided growth in interest in agriculture and its allied subjects has been manifested this year in the fact that the freshman class of the College of Agriculture has increased its enrollment more than fifty per cent over any year since the World War. Under the direction of Thomas Cooper, dean, the college has adopted a threefold program through which it is endeavoring to benefit the citizens of Kentucky.

Through the educational division, it is training men and women in agriculture and home economics, that they may become county agents, home demonstration agents, and field agents, so as to promote modern methods. Enthusiasm for farming among the boys and girls of the state is encouraged.

Research and experiments at the college and at the two substations, are valuable. In the experiment station each member of the staff represents a specialist in his line. There are many who have recently been recognized nationally and internationally. Among these are Professor Roberts, Doctor Dimock, Doctor McHargue, Doctor Valleau, Professor Good, Doctor Buckner, Doctor Martin, Doctor Nichols and Doctor Price.

Cooperation with the various publications of the state, especially the Lexington papers, in presenting agricultural news, has been positive help to the work of the college in promoting its noteworthy program.

Through the conference held last week under the auspices of the college, county agents, home demonstration agents, and field agents obtained a better understanding of the work that should be done. Confidence was renewed in their work. Dean Cooper is endeavoring to promote the work of the farmers and homemakers of Kentucky, by giving them opportunities to learn the best methods of carrying on their work. Through his efforts and those of the personnel of the college, the University is rapidly gaining a wider recognition and a higher rating.

THE GUILGNOL THEATRE

The Guilgnol theater is celebrating its second season on the University campus, with the presentation of a number of excellent plays. The organization, under the direction of Prof. Frank C. Fowler, deserves the whole-hearted support and cooperation of the entire student body.

The campus play-house was originally constructed under the personal supervision of Prof. Carol M. Sax, former director, and was known as the Romany theater. The Romany players staged many excellent productions and became recognized in dramatic circles, as one of the most unique and highly talented organizations of its kind in the United States.

Professor Fowler was engaged to fill the vacancy that was created by the resignation of Professor Sax from the University in 1928. The new director, who had already established himself in the field of dramatics by virtue of his many accomplishments, changed the name of the theater to its present title and supervised the many improvements that have been made to the interior of the building. The former program of high class productions has been closely adhered to by the new organization and, as a result, dramatics is fast becoming an extremely popular extra-curricular activity.

Ours is a mechanistic and materialistic civilization. We pay enormous sums of money to commercialized theaters and in return we receive a conglomeration of risque productions that ooze with sentimental songs, sex life, and back-stage slang. Is this type of pastime truly representative of young collegiate America?

If the Guilgnol does nothing other than to educate the student body of this institution to appreciate dramatic art and to demand clean, moral and instructional entertainment, it will have accomplished a great purpose that is well worth the time, money and energy expended.

Congratulations to you, Guilgnol, for the efficient work that you have done and now are doing. The Kernel extends to you its best wishes for continued dramatic prominence and hopes that you will enjoy another successful season of great achievement.

FIFTEEN FOR THE CHEER LEADERS

The Kernel takes great pleasure in commending the ability of the University cheer leaders in developing an overwhelming desire among the students to make our stadium rock with lusty cheers, as a fitting ovation to Kentucky's gridiron warriors.

At the game last Saturday between Kentucky and Clemson the general attitude of the University rooters showed one hundred per cent improvement.

All of this may have resulted from the dazzling exhibition of the Big Blue on the field, nevertheless the loud and continued cheering demonstrated that a new spirit has been born on the University campus, to help carry Kentucky's gridders home to our Championship heights?

The Pep Club was no doubt a strong factor in the remarkable improvement of loyalty to the team. This organization's concerted effort reflects credit upon its foster parent, Sufky Circle.

LET THE FLAG FLY

Last week someone at the University removed the American flag from the flagpole on the campus in front of the Administration building. Persons who removed the flag were members of the Sophomore class, presumably, because the Sophomore flag was placed at the top of the pole. It has remained there some time despite efforts of the military department to remove it.

Of course the removal of the flag was done in a spirit of play and class competition, but that does not mitigate the insult against the United States War Department. It would be another matter if the University owned the flagpole, but that is not the case. The pole is the property of the war department, and it is the duty of the military science department to keep the flag flying at all times between the hours of sunrise and sunset. The result of the students' action is to embarrass the military department.

Another factor of even more importance in considering the action of the Sophomores is that it is distinctly unpatriotic to do anything interfering with the service of the flag. The emblem of the United States, representing all that is American, all that is embodied in the ideals of people of this country, should swing in the wind above any emblem of state, school or class. To see that it does so is worthy of the entire student body.

All social functions have been discontinued for the first term so that students may concentrate on a higher scholastic standing, at the Colorado State Teachers' College.

The rialto of Lexington was indeed interesting this week, with the record breaking crowds at "The Cockeyed World," and the attempts to get people to bite on "Why Bring That Up?" by staging of a midnight premiere and sticking an extra dime on the admission price. However, it seems that the majority preferred McGlagon, Damita, and Love to Moran and Mack.

Next Monday the Alney Alba Players at the opera house will open with "The Broken Wing," a play built on that quality known as hokum, in which the late Holbrook Blinn appeared on the New York stage. "The Broken Wing" tells of two aviators, whose plane crashes in Mexico and the amazing results of their stay in the land of chile con carne. Frances Sayles has the role originally played by Blinn, and I'll almost guarantee it to be perfect. "The Broken Wing" is a play described as being different from all the rest. The play enjoyed a remarkable run on Broadway and will probably be well worth your attention.

The Itinerant Rhythm Kings in a Striking Pose

By MARGARET CUNDIFF

Notre Dame may be noted for its wandering athletes, but the University of Kentucky has gained renown through the music of its rambling orchestra, the Rhythm Kings, who tooted Kentucky's horn on the Pacific last summer. Six members of the orchestra performed on the S. S. President Jefferson, stopping to play at many foreign ports during the trip.

The trip across the continent to the Pacific coast was made in a new Ford, and the boys have written several testimonials to Mr. Henry in appreciation of his product. In true American style the students camped out, doing their own cooking most of the time (except when they aroused the pity of fellow travelers). Stops were made in Denver, Salt Lake City, and the Yellowstone, where they played at hotels as students from the University, always being well received.

Bidding farewell to the faithful Ford at Seattle, the band of voyagers set sail as the official ship orchestra on June 29. Making an east port on the home coast at Victoria, British Columbia, the liner turned southward to Yokohama, Tokio, and Kobe, Japan. The beauty of Japan is described by the boys in exclamation marks, but when one asked them about the Pacific moon—they only sigh in happy memory. In China they stopped right into the spirit of a Chinese riot and helped fight the jurisdiction drivers with good Kentucky gusto. Seeing old Shanghai at night (to say nothing of a few Chinese night clubs) was an unforgettable experience. At the Brazilian Ambassador's in Hong Kong they were entertained gorgeously, and they decided to pay Brazil a visit in a future tour. From China they traveled via the President Jefferson to Manila, where they visited the old forts of the Spanish regime.

From the Philippines they retraced their steps to Yokohama, stopping at the same ports visited on the way down the coast. On to Honolulu—and here they spent many happy hours seeing the volcanoes, and swimming at the famous Waikiki beach.

Landing at San Francisco August 26, the homeward trip in the Ford was made as an exciting climax to an eventful summer. Through the Grand Canyon National Park, Texas, New Orleans to Louisville, they hurried on their way to the University.

In many a fraternity living room one may hear them say "Japan is the most fascinating, China the most interesting, Manila the most historical and quaint—and Hawaii the most romantic, the place for a honeymoon!"

DR. FUNKHOUSER SPEAKS ON GAME

Makes Plea for Preservation of Wild, Fur-bearing Animals in Kentucky; Protection Urged

In a recent address made over the University extension studio of station WHAS, Louisville, Dr. W. D. Funkhouser made a plea for the preservation of wild, fur-bearing animals found in Kentucky. Dr. Funkhouser pointed out that the people of this country have not learned their lesson regarding game preservation, and even now only a few of the more common fur-bearing animals remain.

According to Doctor Funkhouser, most people consider the majority of our wild animals to be pests—while on the contrary, they are of incalculable value. The skunk and mink are being rapidly killed off, but there are still enough of them left to furnish considerable income to the trapper and they would rapidly increase if given the slightest encouragement. The weasel has always been considered only as a chicken thief, but in all probability his pelt is of a greater value than the total damage that he does. The muskrat, and even the lowly groundhog furnish much desired articles of commerce.

Even while fox hunters are preparing to make extensive trips to other states to run down the wily Reynard, Kentucky has no inconsiderable number of the red and grey fox. The red fox is the cleverer of the two and is probably the shrewdest of all Kentucky wild animals.

Doctor Funkhouser does not, of course, suggest that Kentucky should revert to a wilderness, but there are obvious reasons why the more interesting and valuable of our native animals should be protected.

DEPARTMENT HEADS MEET

The heads of the departments of the College of Arts and Science met Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock in McFey hall. Dean Boyd presided at the meeting and led the discussions. The main topic was the adopting of the quarter system for the University. They discussed whether it would take more to run the University under that plan than it would under the present system of two semesters. No action was taken.

A certain man rushed up to a friend and said "Where have you been keeping yourself? I haven't seen you for a long time." "Just getting back from a New Year's party," was the reply. "Yes, but New Year's was three weeks ago," said the friend. "I know it," replied the other.

tucky beginning Sunday. This is one of the very few western melodramas that is really dramatic and has real story value. Paramount has given the piece a good cast including Gary Cooper, Mary Brian and Walter Huston. It is all talking and I think you will like it.

In "The Broken Wing" there is quite a realistic airplane crash on the stage. In a former production Charles Browne and "Ken" Carter were seriously injured when the thing worked wrong.

Perhaps you remember a motion picture outfit being "on location" in and around Lexington last spring. Well, it was Director Lew Siller making a picture for Fox and now it opens at the Strand Sunday under the title of "A Song of Kentucky." Of course you will see it just to recognize familiar country if for nothing else.

New Playing "Kick In," opera house. By Willard Mack and expertly performed by the Almy Alba players. "The Cockeyed World," Fox picture, Strand. Vulgar, yes, but if you haven't seen this don't fail to do so. "Why Bring That Up?" Paramount picture, Kentucky. Something of a disappointment from Moran and Mack. "The River," Fox picture, Ben All. Good performance from Mary Duncan, but a pretty weak effort from everyone else.

Louisville Frosh to Oppose Kittens Here Saturday

BICKEL IS LOST TO BIG GREEN

Game Is Having Important Bearing on State First-Year Title; Cardinals Have Good Record

By LAWRENCE CRUMP

The undefeated University of Kentucky Kittens will meet the strong University of Louisville Froshmen on Stoll field Saturday at 1:30 p. m.

The Kittens squad, conquerors of Georgetown and Kentucky Wesleyan frosh, is one of the strongest freshmen outfits in the state and the game tomorrow should be close if the record made by the young Cardinals is any indication. The Wabash yearlings hold a 9 to 7 decision over Louisville but this is offset by a victory over the powerful Butler College first year squad.

Coach Priboie's outfit will be without the services of George Bickel, star halfback, who is lost to the team for the rest of the season as the result of a broken ankle received in scrimmage with the varsity. Wilder, another promising back, is also suffering from injuries and may not be available. Bickel's place will be taken by Elvins, an Ashland boy, who has played every position in the line and has also been groomed for a blocking back position in the Louisville game.

The other backs will be Captain Johnson at quarter, Boardman, fullback, and Woodruff at the other halfback post. Boardman will oppose his brother who is playing in the backfield with Louisville.

Darby and Kreuter seem to have the flank positions sewed up and will start the game. Montgomery and Greathouse will take care of the tackles with Aldridge, Clark, Rumber, and Green fighting it out for the guard positions. Seals will start at center.

Kentucky Startles Nation Swamping Clemson 44-6

Last Saturday afternoon, two undefeated Southern Conference football teams met on Stoll field, and sixty minutes later one had been smeared in the mud and the other stood as a possible contender for southern and national honors.

Clemson's 44-6 defeat at the hands of Kentucky made the sport world sit up and take notice.

"Shipwreck" Kelly was one of the stars on the Kentucky team. He contributed two 47-yard runs for touchdowns, while "Bo" Meyers made a 52-yard dash for another touchdown. The Kentucky first string played only twenty-five minutes during the entire game, scoring 34 points in that time. The subs ran up 20 points more, at the same time holding the Tigers, previously the champions, to a scoreless tie to a lone touchdown.

Kentucky's notable victory is best described by quoting some of the principals and leading authorities on football in the country.

Josh Coody, coach of the Clemson team, in congratulating Harry Gamage, coach of Kentucky, said "I saw such a wonderful blocking and tackling football team as that is."

Gerald Griffin, The Courier-Journal: Complete demoralization of the supposedly powerful Clemson Tigers here yesterday by the undefeated Kentucky Wildcats demonstrated that a new football star is arising over the Southern gridiron horizon and gives warning to the old leaders of football in the South that they have a wicked threat to contend with in the big Blue Thunder from Kentucky.

H. L. Sanders, United Press Writer: "Coat" McMillian, star passer and back on Clemson's fine team, said after the game "I have played football for three years and never have I seen such a wonderful blocking and tackling football team as that is."

Neville Dunn in The Lexington Leader: Kentucky did the strutting while the band played 44 to 6.

And 6,000 fans, the majority of whom had expected Clemson to do the cake-walking, left the stadium amazed. Aye, astonished and astorving in the realization that Kentucky—at last—has an honest-to-goodness football team. The victory was the Wildcats' fifth of the season.

It took Kentucky just one minute and one play to fling Clemson from its vaunted place at the top of the nation's undefeated and highest scoring machines. It took just one play with Shipwreck Kelly, the rambling stoker from Ashland, carrying the ball to put Clemson behind, 6 to 0. On that first play, Kelly, who has run through all opposition alike, stepped around right end, with Richards, Spicer and that brilliant Shively-coached line blocking for him, and tin-canned 47 yards for Kentucky's first score. Clemson was dumfounded. The crowd was paralyzed—at first. Then, while a tremendous cheer roared the stadium, a thousand and one balloons were released by the U. K. Pep Club and rose to the heavens to shout Kentucky's challenge to the world. It was a dramatic moment on Stoll field. And Clemson was whipped right there. It was beaten, the white flag was hoisted.

Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer: Six thousand persons at Lexington, Ky., saw things they never expected to see on a football field. Using second and third string players a large part of the time, the Wildcats of Kentucky crushed and humiliated Clemson in the prize upset of the Dixie season so far, 44 to 6.

"Shipwreck" Kelly, with two runs for touchdowns, led his mates in a free for all scoring exhibition, while the Kentucky line was stopping the strapping Clemson backs cold.

Frank Hoover in The Lexington Herald: In the final analysis, however, it is the good blocking and tackling football team which wins football games, and that Kentucky blocks and tackles with about as much perfection as any team can block with is a settled fact.

Kentucky's plays, timed to the

Before considering new alterations in the Southern Conference standing, will someone please tell the class what was the matter with Clemson yesterday?

"Shipwreck" Kelly is as good an answer as any other. Kelly only scored two touchdowns. He didn't go in late and bring his team from behind to victory. But he can be considered in the same class with Albie Booth without diminishing Booth's brilliant reputation.

You can't beat a team that refuses to be beaten and Kentucky wouldn't and couldn't be touched Saturday. Even the second team members were keyed to such a pitch that they and the third stringers held Clemson's vaunted offense in check and scored 20 points while the Tigers were tallying a single touchdown.

The boys complimented Clemson for their wonderful sportsmanship in the face of such a crushing defeat and now they are headed for Alabama.

Gerald Griffin, The Courier-Journal: Complete demoralization of the supposedly powerful Clemson Tigers here yesterday by the undefeated Kentucky Wildcats demonstrated that a new football star is arising over the Southern gridiron horizon and gives warning to the old leaders of football in the South that they have a wicked threat to contend with in the big Blue Thunder from Kentucky.

H. L. Sanders, United Press Writer: "Coat" McMillian, star passer and back on Clemson's fine team, said after the game "I have played football for three years and never have I seen such a wonderful blocking and tackling football team as that is."

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX BY ROOKS

BALLYHOOD FROM DANVILLE
Sinclair Lewis drew a vivid picture of Danville, Kentucky, when he wrote "Main Street." If you have ever attended a football game between two country high school athletes and listened to the insinuating bawling of the rooters on one side to the rooters on the other, you will recognize the spirit that prompted Vernon Richardson, owner and editor of the Kentucky Advocate, at Danville, to write his "small town" editorial on the break in Kentucky-Centre football. We can sincerely appreciate the sentimental interests of Kentucky and Centre alumni in the annual fracas between the two teams, but we cannot appreciate Danville's interest in the financial side of the question as was evidenced in a telegram from the Danville Chamber of Commerce to the Lexington Board of Commerce, saying that cancelling the game would work against the best interests of a "business standpoint." We have a sneaking suspicion that Danville is afraid that the lack of a Kentucky-Centre football game will detract from public interest in Centre College, and eventually, in the village of Danville.

Centre College and Transylvania will meet on Stoll Field a week from tomorrow in the golden jubilee football game of Kentucky and the Southland. It may be the Colonels' last chance to play a game on this field for another 50 years, and in order that Centre may return to Danville with the feeling that the University of Kentucky is always courteous to its visitors, I move that we do not yell too loud when Transy wins. Incidentally, your student ticket books will not get you past the gate keeper.

KENTUCKY'S RIGHT
Perched on the top of national football standings is Mgr. Graeme and his Kentucky Wildcats—believe it or not. The following compilations are the cold hard facts and figures compiled by hours of toil in the smaller hours of the morning and representing nothing in the "dope bucket" line. Of course, Kentucky's standing was gained by defeating a comparatively weak list of teams, and cannot, therefore, be fairly compared to those of Pittsburg, Notre Dame, and Cornell. But, be it as it may, Kentucky heads the national football standings on a basis of games won, lost, and tied, and points scored by and against each team. Here it is:

Team	W. L. T.	Pct.	Pts.	O.P.	Pct.	AVG.
Kentucky	5 0 0	1.000	184	12	.942	15.33
Tennessee	6 0 0	1.000	184	12	.942	15.33
Utah	4 0 0	1.000	137	13	.913	10.54
Pittsburg	6 0 0	1.000	202	22	.897	9.18
Notre Dame	5 0 0	1.000	80	13	.860	6.30
Cornell	5 0 0	1.000	147	25	.854	5.87
Minnesota	5 0 0	1.000	27	37	.850	7.27
Tulane	6 0 0	1.000	188	45	.806	4.18
Purdue	5 0 0	1.000	121	37	.765	3.27

It doesn't mean so much, but it's so doggone good to look at, that I couldn't resist wishing it on the world. This list includes all the undefeated, untied, major teams in the United States.
When Kelly crossed Clemson's goal line to start the biggest upset in Dixie football this year, a myriad of multi-colored balloons, released as a herald of victory, floated southward toward Lexington and Danville with the sons of Alabama. The Crimson Tide has been curbed by Tennessee and Vanderbilt, the latter a distinct upset, and will be nursing all kinds of injured spirits when they meet the Cats tomorrow.

And as long as every one else is taking a crack at the cheer leaders (the best the University has ever had) we add our greetings. Why didn't Kentucky give a yell of some kind for the Clemson player, who was taken from the field apparently seriously injured.

THERE THEY GO!

WATCH CLEMSON!—And we did. And what we can't figure out is, that after gambling up and down the banks of Twelve Mile Creek in South Carolina, the Tigers neglected learning how to swim. Kentucky splattered the championship soup all over the Southern Conference by knocking the props from under the loutish Clemson Engine, and caused a new warning to sound southward to the Gulf of Mexico: WATCH KENTUCKY!

University of Kentucky dope fiends, prognosticators, fraternity coaches, et cetera, will have a glorious day tomorrow. At Norfolk, Va., V. M. I. and Clemson will cast evil looks, themselves, at each other, while the entire V. M. I. corps of students look on. And to further enliven the day for demon dopsters Tennessee and Carson-Newman will play ball at Knoxville. From the outcome of these contests we can figure (exactly) how much the Wildcats will beat V. M. I. and Tennessee.

THE COLONEL COMMENTS

It's Kelly this and Kelly that! And why shouldn't it be that way? More power to Kentucky's great sophomore star. May we all continue to realize that he rivals the flashy Booth and others of All-American calibre. If "Shipwreck" can just splash through the Crimson Tide tomorrow while many of the country's best gridiron critics look on, he is sure to make All-Southern. Then for a march through the Cadets and then the Volunteers.

But while you're singing Kelly's praises, don't forget the rest of the team, halled everywhere as a blocking and tackling team without a peer.

If Kentucky performs Saturday as she did against Clemson, then it's just too bad for the Tide. . . . 'Bama will be left out as completely as the third verse of a church hymn.

KENTUCKY ELSEWHERE—Joe Clifton, Navy fullback, hails from Paducah. . . . Ernie Laisy, a Louisville product, is one of the backfield trumps at Wisconsin. . . . While another Falls City boy, Jack Elder, is Rockne's big noise at Notre Dame. . . . St. Xavier in Cincinnati has O'Bryan, McDevitt, and Baer, all of Louisville, on the first team. . . . Lexington bids to foreign fame with Simrail at Michigan, and Sandifer at W. and L. . . . The mountains send Fry Disney, Middleboro, to the Tennessee lineup.

Just another laugh. . . . College Humor predictions contain the following: Kentucky 6, Alabama 27. Who flung that liver?

Tulane has found a solution. Afflicted with a squeaky cheering section, The Greenies distributed the freshmen in small groups among the upperclassmen and the frosh enthusiasts, believe it or not, elicited some hearty yells from the sophisticated smart-set.

STUDENT PRESS MEMBERS MEET

Professor Grehan Addresses Organization; Tells of Early History, Growth of the Association

The Press Association of the University, an organization sponsored by the department of journalism and cooperating with the University publicity bureau in spreading student news to various parts of the state, held its regular weekly meeting Monday afternoon in McVey hall, James Dorman presided.

Professor Grehan, head of the department of journalism, addressed the organization and acquainted the members with the early history and development of the association. It was organized in 1922 by members of the sophomore class and established its first headquarters in the Natural Science building, where the journalism department was located at that time. Upon the organization of a publicity bureau on the campus last year the association became affiliated with the bureau and moved with the journalism department to McVey hall. The organization is now engaged in correcting news articles about students. After the correction of these articles, they will be turned over to the publicity bureau for dissemination to Kentucky newspapers. Since its foundation, the Press Association has handled approximately 12,000 similar articles.

The members of the association are appointed each spring for the succeeding year. Appointments are made by the department of journalism. Officers and members of the organization for this year are: James Dorman, president; Frank Davidson, secretary; Elizabeth Billiter, Margaret Tracy, Louis McDonald, Virginia McAlister, Earl King, Senft, Tillie Ferguson, and Maude Van Buskirk.

Michigan Student Is "Caught" in Raid

Harold McKee, student at the University of Michigan, was confined in jail recently in default of $2,500 bail, following his examination on a charge of possession of liquor. McKee was arrested in a raid at Fletcher hall, a men's dormitory, which resulted in the discovery of two cases of liquor.

Senior Committees Named By Benson

Major senior class committees were announced by J. C. Benson, president, at a meeting of the senior class Tuesday afternoon in McVey hall. At that time complete organization of the class was completed.

The committees include: Invitation, Jack Gilham, chairman; J. M. Howard, Maud van Buskirk, Carlos Jago, Elizabeth Billiter; senior ball, Harry Calloway, chairman; Laurence Shropshire, John Gess, Elythe Lateral, Catherine Davis; ring, Leonard Weakley, chairman; Robt. Lewis, Betsy Bennett, Kathleen Fitch, and Lolla Combs.

Mr. Benson announced a meeting of the senior class for Tuesday afternoon, November 12, at 3 o'clock, at which time all seniors are urged to attend. Plans for further senior activities will be discussed at this meeting.

BLANTON'S WILL GIVE WATCHES IN CONTEST

A contest which should be of interest to all U. K. students is now in progress at the House of Blanton, Lexington jewelers, who are offering beautiful wrist watches to the boy and girl declared winners. It's quite simple, so don't miss this chance to get a gorgeous Xmas gift that you'll cherish a lifetime.

Here are the rules: Go to Blanton's, give them your name and address and get that lucky number. If the clock dial stops on it, you win. If not, then you at least have had the opportunity to view Blanton's display of jewelry.

Harry: "Does Jack know how to neck?"
Helen: "Does he? Why, my dear, I almost thought once that he was lynching me."—Illinois Siren.

Engineering Grad Receives Promotion

News has been received by the College of Engineering that R. L. Jones, who was graduated from the University in 1913, has been made chief engineer of the Carrier Engineering Corporation, of Newark, N. J. Mr. Jones has been in the employment of the company for years and has made rapid advancement with the concern.

Immediately after graduation, Mr. Jones accepted a position with the Buffalo Forge Company in the engineering department, where he remained until January, 1916. He then became an employee of the Carrier Engineering Corporation.

The wife of Mr. Jones was formerly Miss Mary Brown, of Sharpsburg, Ky., and a student at the University. Her mother, Mrs. Lydia Brown, has been the dietitian at Boyd and Patterson halls for the past 12 years.

Wildcats Are Due In Alabama Today

win. This year things are changed—the worm has turned etc. etc.

Although we are beginning to believe (?) that the great Clemson threat was just a highly-louped false alarm, and certainly no test of the real ability of the 'Cats, it served to prove to the nation in general, and the Southern Conference in particular, that henceforth the Kentucky gridlers will be nobody's doormat.

The game Saturday at Montgomery will have the eyes of the entire southern football world focused on it as the real test of Kentucky's strength. It is the big barrier in the Wildcats' championship path. Tennessee, at present a conference leader, was able to defeat the Tide-men by the narrow margin of 6 points, with two Alabama stars, Hicks and Holm, seeing the game from the sidelines with injuries. Saturday, both Hicks and Holm will be back in the game in excellent condition. Reports emanating from the Wade camp at Tuscaloosa are to the effect that Alabama will take the field against Kentucky with the strongest lineup they have had this season. All of their cripples, a handicap in their only losses to Tennessee and Vanderbilt, are back in the lineup and rarin' to go.

Kentucky, however, will not be so fortunate when the starting lineup is selected. Captain Covington suffered an injury to the groin muscles in the Centre game and is still on the ailing list and Jack Phipps, who sustained a broken finger in practice before the Clemson game last week, will probably have to see the game from the sidelines. Tom Phipps, the old war horse, is the only one of the cripples that has a good chance to break into the game. His injury has been well-nursed during the scrimmage sessions this week, and, if given an opportunity, the "War Horse" can be depended upon to do his share—and then some.

Coach Gamage has been drilling hard all week against the freshman team armed with Alabama plays, which the varsity men were plenty adept at stopping. The 'Cats held their last scrimmage before the game, on Stoll field, Thursday, shortly before they boarded the train for Montgomery. The boys went about this last scrimmage in a business-like way that bodes no good for the "Tide."

In the event that neither of the Phipps brothers is able to start at fullback, Toth, whose work in the Clemson game was one of the bright spots of the afternoon, will probably get the call. However, Coach Gamage seems to have found an ace-in-the-hole in the person of Wilder, 190-pound fullback, with the grooming and attention the big Corbin, Kentucky, boy has been getting this week. Mr. Gamage may show Mr. Wade a thing or two at his own game—that of hard hitting, line plunging football.

Twenty-nine men, coaches Gamage and Shively, Manager Wilson, and Trainer Mann boarded the special Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock, bound for the "sunny south"—the much longed-for place of the Mammy song-yodelers. A pep meeting was held by the students previous to the team's departure and a large crowd assembled at the station to see them off.

The Wildcats stopped over in Louisville long enough Thursday night to have dinner and be the guests of Lee's theatre where they were introduced from the stage, receiving a tremendous ovation. The squad will arrive in Montgomery, scene of the game this morning and will hold a light workout this afternoon in the Municipal Bowl.

Those of the squad selected to make the trip were: Yates, Andrews, Baughman, Cavana, Bronston, ends; Kipping, Wright, McElroy, Thompson, Peter Drury, tackles; Forquer, Johnson, Rose, John Drury, Gentile, guards; Collier, Williams, centers; Walters, anywhere; Captain Covington, Kelly, Spicer, Richards, Toth, fullbacks; Phipps, Ford, Myers, Urbanak, Wilder, backs.
