David Farrell, Editor Ext.88611

16 June - Admin. Council meeting - Cancelled. (The Administrative Council meetings have been cancelled for the summer. A special meeting will be called should the need arise.)

ABOUT THE LIBRARIES

Staff Collection:

A collection of the more important library journals and some newsletters has been established for staff use in the 2nd floor hall of King North.

All items in the Staff Collection that were formerly routed to individuals on the staff will no longer be routed. They will be shelved immediately in the Staff Collection.

CSR will be responsible for shelving and weeding the material in the collection.

A "do it yourself" circulation system has been set up for the collection. Procedures for circulation are posted beside the collection itself. In order for this collection to serve the purpose for which it is intended, it is important that the circulation procedures be followed.

Travellers: Charles Atcher to Cleveland 13-19 June for a workshop of the College and University Archives oral history program. Russell Powell and Ginny Dunn to Knoxville 14-18 June for the 84th Annual Society for Engineering Education meeting. Susan Csaky will address that meeting of 15 June.

From the Suggestion Box:

"Give a big raise to your staff members for being so helpful. They even offer help when they see someone looking bewildered. (signed) T.M., Journalism department." No fooling.

MINI-REVIEW

READERS ADVISORY SERVICE. ed. by Leonard Cohan. New York: Science Associates/International, Inc. 1974-

The Reference Department of M.I. King Library has recently begun receiving a very useful new serial entitled the Readers Advisory Service. The RAS is a compilation of topical subject bibliographies which have been prepared by subject specialists from various libraries, scholarly and professional societies, and information centers across the U.S. and Canada. The subject coverage is very broad--including current topical and academic interests in the humanities, sciences, technologies and social sciences. The comprehensiveness and depth of coverage also varies greatly from one bibliography to another. One can find a bibliography on Streaking: A Hushed and Revealing Bibliography and another on the study and teaching of classical civilization.

Science Associates/International, Inc. is assigning a royalty on each subscription sold to all participating libraries whose publications are used. Thus each subscriber is free to reproduce any RAS bibliography in any quantity desired. RAS is now being published monthly with each new issue of the service including a cumulative index to all previous RAS entries. The Reference Department would be happy to have anyone interested in the RAS come by to look at it.

Some of the bibliographies should be very useful to liaisons as checklists for library holdings in their subject disciplines. The Reference Department would be willing to make copies of appropriate bibliographies for the branch librarians if they want to advise the department of a subject profile to follow.

MANAGEMENT COMMON SENSE CORNER

A piece from June 1976 - BITS & PIECES -

"The difference between the right word," wrote Mark Twain, "and almost the right word is the difference between lightning and the lightning bug."

One evening, the English poet Keats was sitting in his room with his friend Leigh Hunt. Hunt was reading and Keats, sitting at a nearby table, was writing a poem. At one point, Keats looked up, and said, "Hunt, what do you think of this? 'A beautiful thing is an unending joy.'"

"Good," said Hunt, "but not quite perfect."

There was silence for a while, then Keats looked up again. "How about this? 'A thing of beauty is an unending joy.'"

"Better," said his friend, "but still not quite right."

Keats once again bent over the table, his pen making quiet scratching noises on the paper. Finally, he spoke again, "Now, what do you think of this? 'A thing of beauty is a joy forever.'"

Hunt looked admiringly at his friend. "That," he said, "will live as long as the English language is spoken."
