FACULTY BASKETEERS

Skeptical students, at times, inclined to doubt the usefulness of certain professors, or even of professors in general, must bow, at last, in grateful tribute. In its brilliant success of Tuesday evening, the faculty of the University of Kentucky proved conclusively that in the last analysis it has the best interests of the student body at heart.

When the need arose for the immediate reinforcement of the Student Loan fund, various solutions presented themselves. Donations were manifestly out of the question, in view of the financial situation of students in general. To require the students' contribution of time and effort in an organized attempt to gain funds also would have been difficult and most likely unsuccessful.

It remained for the faculty to redeem the situation. They rose to the occasion and accomplished thereby a two-fold result: the addition to the Student Loan fund of some $432 and the providing for the student body with an evening of hilarious entertainment. So complete was the success of the undertaking in every way, that we are led to suggest that it become an annual event. However that may be, in this case, at least, the students are indebted to the faculty for their friendly and helpful action on an outstanding student problem.

HELL WEEK

Soon, Greek letter organizations of the University of Kentucky will launch into that period of feverish and furtive activity known as Hell week. The social orders, although cognizant of university disapprobation of the major initiation practices—road work and hazing—continue their violation and most likely will for some time to come, unless the university or the national fraternity officers employ more forceful measures than they have up to the present time.

The savage does not easily lay aside his club. It is his insignia, his mark of superiority, his rank of manhood. It distinguishes him from the users of the sling; it emphasizes his pride in his clan. Just so is the college man with his paddle. He cherishes it and idealizing the symbol from the lone viewpoint of his tribal-like isolation cannot appreciate nor understand the effect it has on the attitude of the outside world.

As the overemphasis of Hell week by fraternity men throughout the country has brought upon their organizations much of the censure with which this particular note of college life is regarded, many of the national Greek letter fraternities have expressed favor of its abolishment. From time to time varieties is supposed to have disappeared, like the same desk, into the obscurities of the dim past. With him has, supposedly, gone his fellows who delighted in choosing the most quiet and orderly classroom for their hilarious pranks and celebrations.

They have been not dead, but sleeping. For witness of this and revival one has only to keep one's eyes open in the university library. The little boy has grown up and come to college, and now, to give voice to his destructive tendencies, he strikes matches on the smooth white walls of the library hall-way or grinds his lighted cigarette into the expensive linoleum on the floor.

VOCATIONAL GUIDANCE FOR WOMEN

Sarah G. Blanding dean of women, assisted by her staff and by faculty and town women outstanding in various professional fields, is inaugurating, this semester, a plan of vocational guidance for women students of the university. At the first semester registration period co-eds were given blank forms on which to indicate their vocational interests; this month interviews are being arranged between women students and advisers selected on a basis of the co-eds' interests. Although the guidance program is its experimental stages, records will be kept of its successes and its failures and there will come a time when it will be highly valuable both to incoming and to matriculating students.

Individual placement has long been a problem to college officials throughout the country. It is for this reason that we have entrance testing. Last month the Association of Kentucky Colleges and Universities recommended and approved a standardization of such testing. Under an extension of this plan individual placement would finally revert to the secondary schools where it belongs.

The individual placement plan is a good one, but it does not go far enough. It is too generalized. This is especially so with reference to women students. Educational facilities in the past have been more adapted to the occupations of men than of women. The courses of study and preparation for men students have been outlined and are fairly stable. It is comparatively recent that women have broadened and extended their paths of endeavor. Co-eds having only a vague and generalized idea of that work for which they are best fitted lose the present opportunity for

BE YOUR AGE

The little boy who delighted in decorating his wooden desk with carved designs and initials of all varieties is supposed to have disappeared, like the same desk, into the obscurities of the dim past. With him has, supposedly, gone his fellows who delighted in choosing the most quiet and orderly classroom for their hilarious pranks and celebrations.

They have been not dead, but sleeping. For witness of this and revival one has only to keep one's eyes open in the university library. The little boy has grown up and come to college, and now, to give voice to his destructive tendencies, he strikes matches on the smooth white walls of the library hall-way or grinds his lighted cigarette into the expensive linoleum on the floor.

His fellows assembling in library seminar rooms, regale the studying student body with shouts and hoos and bright remarks as they traverse the hall on their way to and from class.

Last year the university spent some $500,000 to erect on the campus for the benefit of the student body the finest and most modern library that circumstances rendered possible. That students are abusing not only the physical features of the building but its rules as well, especially those in regard to smoking in the halls and vestibules, is a sad commentary on their respect and gratitude for the facilities provided.

Downing Preps Seven Men For Difficult Net Season

Candidates Workout Daily on Indoor Courts in Gym Annex

By JOHN ST. JOHN

Under the watchful eyes of Coach H. H. Downing, seven aspiring varsity tennis players have been working the kinks and cramps out of their muscles on the new indoor court in the gym annex in preparation for a hard season of matches. The seven men, two of whom were members of last year's team, are expected to develop into the strongest squad the university has ever had. Although there is a lack of individual stars, four men are expected by Coach Downing to provide Kentucky with more strength in the first four team positions than ever before. These four are Captain Bruce Farquhar and Roger Klein, members of last year's varsity, and Don Braden and Howard Wilson, members of the 1931 reserve team. The fifth position will undoubtedly be filled by either James Bishop, varsity manager two years ago, K. Parke Smith or Turner Howard, freshman player of last year. This is the first time in the his-

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By Ralph E. Johnson

Wednesday night a band of twenty persons embarked for the Pinnacle City, Atlanta, Georgia, for the annual Southern Conference basketball tournament. These they will be watched carefully by the crowds that expect them to come through with a championship, but here in Lexington we care, or at least no one seemed interested enough to venture out to their departure.

Only ten of the twenty departing are players, but the other ten are quite important agents in winning games. One of the men, the Nation's finest basketball coach, Adolph Rupp, will play the hardest ball. Two more will send the red hot news back to this city. Another duet will see that the team is fed and watered; an old timer, Trainer Mann, will keep them in playing shape. "Daddy" Boles and his young son will be there cheering and attending meetings. And don't forget assistant coach Miller.

Just before the train pulled out Ellis Johnson said, "If we are able to play as we did a month ago, nothing can stop us."

His running mate, Charlie Worthington, was not so sure. "I'm pessimistic."

Some one suggested that the opposing centers might throw some sand in DeMoisey's "Free Wheeling", but he rejoined that he still had "Frosting Power." And in case it is worrying any of you fans, his ankle will be in shape for the games.

Sale was all smiles as he anticipated the southern vacation. He was never one to be worried over a game of basketball. He never looked better in his life and it is a safe bet that no team will hold him to four points as Vandy did when he was down with the flu.

user, old-timers in this thing, did quite opposite things. Little wondered about the station by himself just reminiscence of last year. But no one knew where Kleiser was. Just as the train pulled out he appeared from a parked car. It appears that this player will remember home while away.

Davis and Hughes, the other players making the trip, had things to go and Au Revivis to say.

VANDY CAPTURES 32-31 VICTORY FROM KENTUCKY

Loss Places Southern Conference-Leading Wildcats in Tie with Maryland Old Liners

HUGGINS SCORES 15

A much-trodden Vanderbilt university basketball team rose to unexpected heights last Saturday night to knock the Kentucky Wildcats into a tie with Maryland for first place in the final standing of the Southern Conference and to spoil the Big Blue team's best bid for an undefeated season in the last 20 years, by administering a close 32 to 31 defeat.

It was an inspired team that took the floor against Coach Adolph Rupp's slick Conference-leading squad. It was inspiring ball that they played to beat a team that had not lost on its own floor in two years. The Kentucky team was extremely handicapped by the illness of Forest "Aggie" Sale and John De Moisey, who, although they were able to play for a few minutes in each half, were so far out of condition that their play except for one occasion was of little help.

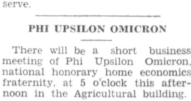

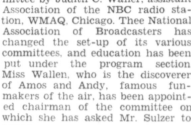

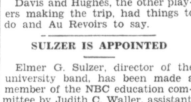

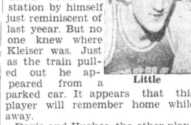

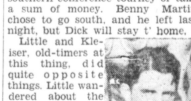

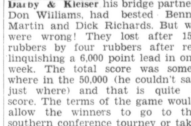

With just six minutes to play before the end of the game, and the Bills with a lead of one point De Moisey was sent in for Sale. Two "twist" shots by this lanky sophomore and a free throw put Kentucky out into a lead of 29 to 25; a lead which the "Cats" might have been able to hold had it not been for Huggins, Vanderbilt forward. This opponent, who alone countered 15 points of his team's points, followed the example of De Moisey and tossed in two of the nearest one-handed shots of the game. A free-throw by Graham gave Vanderbilt a lead of one point. With but a minute to play, De Moisey again put the "Cats" out in front by a "twist" and it seemed that the game was won. The Kentucky guards began to stall but Huggins broke it up and passed to March.

Some 4,000 frenzied fans who had been kept constantly on their feet by the brilliant play of the teams, suddenly became hushed. March was poised in the middle of the floor preparing to shoot. As he left his hands and rang through the basket with hardly a waver of the cords, the Wildcat followers came to the conclusion that only a miracle could give their team an undefeated season. With only 12 seconds left to play Sale was again sent in but it was too late for the Kentucky star to change the final scores.

Although they caught the Kentucky team in bad physical condition, nothing can detract from the brilliance of the Vanderbilt victory. It was the second time of the season that they had knocked the Conference leader from their position. Alabama, two weeks ago, was also the victim of the inspired play of the Southerners.

Huggins, the Vanderbilt flash, was undoubtedly the outstanding player for both teams. He weaved in and out around Kentucky's possible All-American guard, Ellis Johnson and displayed some of the most spectacular scoring ever seen on the Wildcat floor. After the game was over, it was five minutes before the exhausted forward could get control of himself enough to leave the floor.

The Circus Is Coming by Craddock

By JOHNNIE CRADDOCK
Folks, you can't miss seeing the all-campus amateur circus. It's a wow-abow-wow. It will make your heart pound so hard that it will shake the ink out of your fountain pen; your breath will come in short pants, and your blood pressure will run up to $1.39. If you fail to see it you will be certain, between the ages of 16 and 84, to have trouble with your teeth.

The Y. W. C. A. has in store the biggest aggregation of wild animals since the last Pan-Hellenic dance. All sororities and fraternities on the campus are well represented in this group. There will be side-shows, ring acts, and acrobatic stunts by a famous blind paralytic. There will be bands—plenty of them: the men's band, women's band, cigar bands, rubber bands—all kinds of bands. Of course, Jesse Fitzmore will be there with his famous clown band. Jesse alone can play 900 popular tunes on his bass drum.

At 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Colonel Dick Redd will straddle his nag and lead the nine mile parade down main street. All students should cut class the day following the circus in order to recuperate from the dazzling effects of the glorious spectacle. If you want to have a good time, follow the old saw dust trail to the men's gymnasium at 7:30 o'clock, Thursday night, March 3, and see the most spectacular events since Jonah swallowed the whale. It will be worth the admission price to see Eddie, the Siberian grasshopper, devour a bale of hay at one squating. Let's go!

GAMAGE, GREHAN, BOLES GO SOUTH

To decide on commissioner for Southern Conference at Meeting to be Held in Atlanta, Feb. 26 and 27

To decide on the desirability of having a commissioner of the Southern Conference will be the main thing to be discussed and acted upon at the specially called meeting of the Southern Conference in Atlanta today and tomorrow.

Kentucky's representatives at the meeting will be: S. A. Boles, Prof. Enoch Grehan, and Coach Harry Gamage.

The idea of having a commissioner is to attempt to equalize the standards for athletic competition for all of the schools in the Southern Conference. Among other duties of this commissioner, he will see that all practice periods are uniform, and that the same eligibility rules are adhered to in all the schools which are members of the Conference. A committee was appointed at the December meeting of the Conference to investigate the need for such a commissioner and be ready to report on what they found at the next meeting.

Coach Gamage also has duties on a committee of which he is a member by virtue of his office, president of the coaches' association of the conference. This work will consist of working out ratings of teams for each of the next season's football games for a new system of selecting officials. The various games will be rated each week end and for the most important games, first choice of officials will be granted to the coaches of the two competing teams, the next important, the second choice, and so on.

Other members of this committee are: Prof. A. H. Armstrong, secretary of the Conference; and President Hutchins of the organization of officials in the Conference.

Tid-bits of College Life

Alice Jane Howes and Bob Montgomery, aspirants for the Lovelorn Cup, continue to hold number one position on the Kadee divan much to the chagrin of Myrtle McCoy and Ellis Johnson. . . . Has been reported that the Mighty Shipwreck is painting his car a passionate red and is the "John Gilbert" of the Guinool. . . . Seems evident that Thredell Coy Nelson continues to keep her charming personality restricted to various members of the Khay lodge. . . . I would suggest that Julia Oakes and Ken Nicholson would be more considerate of John Ross and cut their automobile rides shorter.

Faculty, Coaches Continue To Squabble After Game

Sweet Charity Benefits As Profs Insist They Won The Game

By SUNNY DAY

Although the "Battle of the Ages" was supposed to have been over Tuesday night after the colossal contest staged in the Euclid Ave. gymnasium between the faculty and coaches, this battle seems to be still raging, for both sides claim victory.

Even though the score board at the end of the game showed 20 to 16 in favor of the coaches, the faculty still claim victory—and more than a moral victory at that. They say that the new rules passed by the Kentucky Fish and Game Commission just before the contest specified that "one shell would count four points" instead of two. Accordingly the faculty won 24 to 20. However, this doesn't agree in any sense with the feelings of the coaches. They say that they won and can do it again; so this may lead to a new battle.

R. D. McIntyre decisively defeated Henri Beaumont in the peanut-selling contest by the enormous margin of one-hundred and six cents ($1.06). The McIntyre club sold $23.09 worth of peanuts, and the Beaumont team sold peanuts to the extent of $22.03. In all, 500 pounds of peanuts were sold with a total profit of $32.82.

Sixteen hundred people, men, women, children, etc., paid their two bits to see the event. This served to bolster the defunct Student Loan fund to the extent of $432.25. Manager Paul K. Walp played every member of the "Marching Wrecking Crew, and Auxiliaries, and the continued substitutions served to muddle the coaches. The "Dodds and Butterflies" (personnel of the Auxiliary) staged a preliminary exhibition of some sort. We don't know whether to call it a basketball game or a spring gambol. The uniforms and actions certainly reminded us of a spring frolic. Either the Butterflies or the Dodds won 8 to 0. We never did know which was which, but they didn't either, so why worry?

The officiating at this event, accomplished by Miss "Marie" McLaughlin, Mrs. "Baldy" Gilb, and Miss Rebecca Averill, was extremely expeditious, as well as slightly expectoratory. Miss "Marie" had an unparalleled ability to hit the rafter of the gym on the toss-up at center. Dean Blanding and Miss Averill showed remarkable ability in staying out of the way of the contestants, but that was about all. The principal game was a cross between basketball, football, and soccer.

There was loud and hilarious cheering when the coaches, headed by their 120 piece band, marched upon the floor. Where Shively and "Skipper" Mann found their red and green underwear is still a subject of discussion. The combination of football and basketball formations exhibited by these worthies before the game was put to good use during the contest.

The faculty band, small in comparison with the mammoth musical organization sponsored by the coaches, showed to great advantage in playing "On, On U. K." They made every body stand up less than a dozen times. The crowd had decided that that was all they could play, when they suddenly burst forth into "The Old Gray Mare Ain't What She Used To Be." We believe that this was a very appropriate number. The formations at the half were uncanny, to say the least. M. Applebaum showed that he is a close rival of Elizabeth Jones for the band sponsorship. His beauty (or her beauty) was indescribable. Prof. L. L. Darsie made an excellent majordomo, and made a big hit when he presented the "Garbage" frolic to Miss "Marie" for giving the most A's to flunking athletes. The photographer who rushed madly about with a 2" by 4" camera should have some excellent pictures, to say the least.

Wildcats, Tulane Will Clash Today

(Continued from Page One) first round of play they will meet either North Carolina or Tennessee. As Kentucky twice has defeated Tennessee they do not fear them; neither do they expect to meet them, for North Carolina first took the measure of Maryland and it is North Carolina Kentucky must watch.

The Kentucky delegates to the tournament include: Ellis Johnson, "Azzie" Sale, "Frenchie" DeMossy, Charlie Worthington, "Dutch" Kreuter, Darrell Darby, Little, Davis, Kesser and Huesch. Coach Rupp, Trainer Mann, "Daddy" Boles and son, Stanley, Neville Dunn, Brownlee Leach, Len Meyer, "Red" Reynolds, and "Chuck" Maxson.

Rupp To Speak

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 25.—Coach Adolph Rupp, here with the Kentucky basketball team, will speak over Station WSB, Friday night at 6:30 o'clock central standard time. Morgan Blake, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal which operates WSB, will interview Coach Rupp on the Southern Conference outlook.

Council Votes To Discontinue Baseball Team

The Athletic council, last week, decided that Kentucky would not participate in intercollegiate baseball this year.

One of the main reasons given for the discontinuance of baseball this year was that most of the other colleges and universities which Kentucky plays, have announced that they will not have teams this spring and this would have made it exceedingly difficult to get a full schedule with the usual number of games. After the decision by the council not to have baseball, several of the schools Kentucky generally plays, were notified so that they might make out their schedules without including the university.

ALUMNUS IS PROMOTED

O. K. Barnes, an alumnus of the university and former member of The Kernel staff, has taken up his duties as re-write man at the Louisville branch of the Associated Press. Barnes, who until recently was on the reporting staff of The Lexington Herald, is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

Nuts!

To a few uninitiated spectators of the "Battle of the Ages" (Faculty vs. Coaches basketball game, benefit Student Loan fund, Tuesday night) the difference between the selling methods of the two teams competing for the honor of the peanut-selling championship of Kentucky were not quite clear. Here they are in a nutshell:

- Psychology 1. Preliminary awakening of the campus to the hidden virtues of Beaumont's peanuts. 2. Dignified advertising at the game by means of specially designed posters (courtesy of The Kernel). 3. Simple, efficient working outfit for salesman (courtesy Commons). 4. No sales talk. No make-up? (Ed.), No S. A. (Oh yes? Ed.), No nothing (Right! Ed.). 5. Three assistants (the star-saleslady wasting her talents selling tickets). 6. Results: $22.09.

Conclusions to be drawn from this illuminating exhibit:

- 1. You can't always tell. 2. Look out for "pure" salesmen. 3. Look out for "pure" psychologists. 4. Look out anyway.

—Compiled by a disinterested psychological observer. (Thank you, Dr. Beaumont—Ed.)
