UK receives record amount in grants, contracts

Medical center reports largest increase in funding

By Ami Hald Williams
Contributing Writer

UK faculty and staff have a reputation that is paying off in millions.

More than $90 million, to be exact.

That was the total amount of money received in grants and contracts by the University during the 1992 fiscal year — a record figure.

The news is equally good for the first half of the 1993 fiscal year, which ran from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1992.

During that period, UK received $58.3 million in grants and contracts — a 17 percent increase over the same period in 1991, when the University received $49.7 million.

Lee Magid, vice president for research and graduate studies, said the increases demonstrate the dedication of faculty at the University.

"Our 17 percent increase in dollars received for the first six months of fiscal year 1993, on top of a significant increase in fiscal 1992, is a tribute to the quality and entrepreneurial spirit of UK's faculty," Magid said.

The funding comes from a variety of sources, including government agencies, foundations and industry, and it is used for a broad range of research, service and educational projects.

"The competition for external funds for research, public service and instructional projects is becoming ever more competitive at the federal and state level," she said.

Debbie Davis, assistant director of UK's Sponsored Projects Administration, said grants and contracts usually are obtained through a proposal process.

In this process, an institution like UK submits a proposal to a funding agency, which reviews and ranks the proposals.

"Essentially, they fund the best ones," Davis said.

Funding from grants and contracts to UK has risen from $52.6 million in the 1988 fiscal year to $90.2 million in 1992, she said.

Most comes from federal agencies.

Of UK's three sectors — the Lexington Campus, the Albert B. Chandler Medical Center and the Community College System — the medical center reported the largest increase in grant and contract funding.

For the first half of this fiscal year, the medical center received $21.4 million compared to the $15 million it received during the same period last fiscal year.

Jones says health care outranks universities

By Gregory A. Hall
Editor in Chief

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Kentucky's problems with health care must be solved before higher education will receive more funding, Gov. Brereton Jones said Friday.

Jones used a speech to the Kentucky Press Association to release details of the health-care reform package he soon will propose to the General Assembly for consideration in a special session in March.

"We're letting health care take money away from higher education," Jones said after the speech. "This is why every student on every campus ought to come to Frankfort" and lobby for the health-care reform package.

Jones said that if the health-care crisis isn't solved, higher education would be receiving cuts in the range of 10 to 20 percent.

"(Health care) will bankrupt our society," he said.

State universities have received two 5-percent budget cuts since fall 1991, and last week, the Jones administration ordered state agencies, including the universities, to withhold spending 2 percent of their budgets.

He said the "allotment deferral" plan is not a budget cut. Under the plan, agencies' state appropriations will be withheld and they cannot spend 2 percent of their budgets.

The governor said that universities could get the money if the state's economy picks up. "As I think it's going to," he said.

Jones had said a little more than a week ago that he wanted to exempt higher education from further cuts.

"There was no way, economically, to do it right now," he said.

Jones had a similar message in the fall when university students, fearing another budget cut, held a rally at the state Capitol.

"I will do everything in my power to see that we do not have to make further cuts in our education," he said then. "I do want you to understand, however, that I cannot make a firm commitment because none of us knows what the future will bring."

Awake lectures touch on metaphysics

By Ernest A. Jasmin
Staff Writer

Washington D.C.-based lecturer Eraka Rouzarondu dealt with history, metaphysics and subliminal manipulation during the first installment of the Awake lecture series on Africentricity this weekend.

Rouzarondu spoke to about 200 spectators Friday night in the Student Center about the roots of civilization in Africa.

She said Africentricity is "a perception of reality based upon an understanding of African culture and history." Rouzarondu referred to the works of noted thinkers like Cheikh Anta Diop, Herodotus and Louis Leakey and to the Bible. She said man has his archaeological and cultural roots in Africa.

Civilization had its "zenith" of development in ancient Egypt, which the indigenous inhabitants called Kemet, she said.

"Greek philosophy is a misnomer," Rouzarondu said.

She said the ancient Greeks learned much of what they knew about the world from the ancient Egyptian "Schools of Enlightenment."

The series continued Saturday morning when Rouzarondu spoke about metaphysical reality, which she said "is simply composed of things we can't physically manipulate."

"Metaphysical reality can't be known; it can only be understood," Rouzarondu said.

She said Eurocentric ideology misinforms us about metaphysical reality. "We have been conditioned to believe the metaphysical world is pagan," Rouzarondu said.

She said, just as human beings are composed of smaller parts, they are small components in a higher system.

"As human beings, we are a unity. ... an entity composed of multiplicity," Rouzarondu said.

"The problem is, in the Eurocentric concept of reality, man is considered the highest unity," she said. "We are dealing with a perception that causes us to go against (the natural order)."

She said ancient Egyptians used astrology and numerology as sciences to understand the workings of the higher order. They also used subliminal manipulation through stories and symbols, she said.

Ex-justice Thurgood Marshall dies at 84

Wire, staff reports

WASHINGTON — Retired Justice Thurgood Marshall, the first black to sit on the Supreme Court and a towering figure of the civil rights movement, died yesterday of heart failure. He was 84.

As a lawyer, Marshall successfully argued the landmark case in which the nation's highest court overturned racial segregation in the public schools.

In Kentucky, he represented Louisville high school teacher Lyman Johnson in a lawsuit that allowed Johnson to become the first black student to attend UK.

As a liberal justice in later years, Marshall was a powerful voice for the disadvantaged and one that turned increasingly to dissent as the court grew more conservative.

He had been in failing health since his retirement in 1991, and illness forced him to cancel plans last Wednesday to administer the oath of office to Vice President Al Gore. He died at 2 p.m. at Bethesda Naval Medical Center in suburban Maryland, said Toni House, Supreme Court spokeswoman.

President Clinton, whose own state of Arkansas figured prominently in the desegregation battles of the 1950s, led the praise for Marshall. He was a "giant in the quest for human rights and equal opportunity in the whole history of our country," the president said in a statement.

"Every American should be grateful for the contributions he made as an advocate and as a justice of the United States Supreme Court." Chief Justice William Rehnquist said Marshall would be remembered as much for his work before coming to the court as afterwards — "his untiring leadership in the legal battle to outlaw racial discrimination."

For decades as a young man, Marshall travelled the nation as the recognized champion of the poor and powerless. During his 23 years as legal director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and his tenure as the federal government's solicitor general, Marshall argued 32 cases before the Supreme Court. He won 29.

It was during that time with the NAACP that Marshall represented Johnson. Johnson had to go to federal court in 1949 to gain admission to The Graduate School.

"Thurgood Marshall was the

Kirwan II to become 'Wellness Hall'

By Ami Hald Williams
Contributing Writer

A healthy change will take place on campus for the 1993-94 academic year when Kirwan II residence hall transforms into a "Wellness Hall."

The housing complex will be designed to maximize the total health and well-being of its 172 residents, said Jim Ploskonka, assistant director of Residence Life.

Plans call for equipping the hall a fitness room that will include cardiovascular exercise equipment, like rowing and cycling machines. The hall also will offer aerobics classes taught by certified instructors, as well as lectures and special programming related to wellness.

Ploskonka said the idea for a Wellness Hall came after a survey conducted by Student Affairs department, in which 54 percent of students questioned were in favor of the concept.

"Students are a lot more concerned with health and physical appearance today," he said. "We want to give students what students want."

Ploskonka said there are six dimensions to a Wellness Hall: social, spiritual, emotional, intellectual, physical and vocational. He said all six aspects are important when a person is trying to maximize total health.

Residents of the Wellness Hall would interact with faculty and staff of different departments and

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Engineering awards honor alumni

The UK College of Engineering recently honored two graduates for contributions to their communities and professions.
 Ralph G. Anderson, 1950 graduate of the mechanical engineering program, became the 10th recipient of the Outstanding Alumnus of the Year award.
 Anderson is the founder and owner of Belcan Corp., the largest engineering firm in Ohio. Belcan employs more than 3,000 people and has 22 offices nationwide. A native of Mercer County, Ky., Anderson remains active with UK, including a position on the college's Alumni Association Board.
 Michael W. Cox Jr., a 1983 civil engineering graduate, was named the ninth recipient of the Young Engineer of the Year in Construction Management award.
 Cox, a Somerset, Ky., native, is a project manager in construction for Denham-Blythe Engineers and Constructors in Lexington.

Air Force ROTC adds scholarships nationwide

Air Force ROTC is adding $1.9 million in scholarship incentives nationwide this year, the corps top official has announced.
 Brig. Gen. Robin Tomow, commandant of Headquarters ROTC, said the announcement is "proof positive" that the Air Force continues to seek bright new officers despite recent budget cuts.
 "There is a perception out there that the Air Force isn't hiring these days, and that couldn't be further from the truth," Tomow said.
 "Our search for the right kind of people to carry the Air Force into the next century is continuing, and our goal is to keep them on board with quality retention programs such as this incentive scholarship."
 All sophomores may become eligible, and the scholarship is not restricted to certain academic majors. For more information, call UK's Air Force ROTC detachment at 257-7115.

Common colds may lead to more serious problems

Most of us won't go through the winter months without getting a cold or a sore throat. These upper respiratory infections last about a week and generally don't necessitate antibiotics or even a trip to the doctor's office.

Here is some information about URIs to keep in mind during the winter months.

The average adult suffers between one and two colds a year. College students, however — especially those living in residence halls — can expect to get four or more each year. Colds can be caused by any of more than 200 viruses. The main symptoms are

- Scratchy, sore throat
- Clear nasal drainage
- Sneezing/stuffy nose
- Aches/fatigue
- Dry cough, or cough with clear or white mucus.

Colds are not spread mainly through coughing or sneezing but from hand-to-hand contact, either direct or via an intermediate object, like a door knob or a coffee cup. Frequent hand-washing, therefore, is one of the best ways to prevent catching a cold.

Since there is no medicine available that directly attacks the cold virus, treatment mainly is aimed at symptom relief.

Here are the treatment dos and don'ts for dealing with the common cold. For best results:

- Don't treat your cold with an antibiotic. Unless you have a second-

FOR THE HEALTH OF IT

dary bacterial infection, like bronchitis, antibiotics will not help you and may even expose you unnecessarily to the potential side effects of these medicines, including severe allergic reactions.

•Don't smoke. Smoking will further irritate your respiratory tract and increase your risk of getting bronchitis or pneumonia.

•Drink lots of fluids. Liquids will soothe your throat and help loosen secretions, relieving nasal congestion. Avoid alcoholic beverages, however, because they cause dehydration.

•Get plenty of rest. Most cold sufferers should be able to continue most of their normal daily activity but may want to cut down on extracurricular activities.

•Inhale warm, moist air to soothe inflamed mucous membranes. To do this, take hot showers, use a humidifier, or put a pan of water on your bedroom radiator.

•Gargle with salt water to help your sore throat pain. Use one teaspoon of salt in a large glass of warm water every four hours.

•Do take aspirin, ibuprofen or acetaminophen (Tylenol) for fever or aches. The first two should be taken with food in your stomach, as they could upset it.

•Do ask your pharmacist or doctor for advice on over-the-counter products. A few common medications are pseudoephedrine (Sudafed) for congestion; antihistamines (Chlortrimeton, Actifed) for runny nose and sneezing; dextromethorphan (Benlyn DM, Delsym) for dry coughs; and cough syrups with an expectorant (Robitussin) for coughs with phlegm.

Colds may lead to more serious secondary bacterial infections, like bronchitis, sinusitis or pneumonia. They also may be at first mistaken for a more serious viral illness, like influenza.

When do you need to contact a physician? See your medical practitioner if your cold persists longer than seven to 10 days or if you have any of the following symptoms:

- Discolored mucus from nasal passages
- Fever greater than 100.5 degrees for more than two days
- White patches on the back of the throat
- Cough with production of discolored mucus
- Painful breathing, wheezing or difficulty breathing
- Painful swelling of the glands in the neck
- Pain or tenderness around the eyes
- Severe headache
- An extremely red throat
- Chronic, unusual fatigue.

The best prevention, in addition to hand-washing, is eating a balanced diet, getting regular sleep, exercising regularly and keeping your stress level down.

All of these are not easily done when you're a busy college student. But it is possible, and these are all good "habits" that will be helpful to you throughout your life.

Procedure for Recommending Revisions of Student Code

Pursuant to the Code of Student Conduct, Article VII, the Student Code Committee will accept and review recommendations from UK students, faculty and staff regarding proposed revisions of the Code. Such recommendations must be in writing, should be as explicit as possible, and be addressed to the Committee, c/o Office of Vice Chancellor for Student Affairs, Lexington Campus, 529 Patterson Office Tower, 00273. Recommendations should indicate the name of the proposing individual or organization, mailing address and telephone number. Recommended revisions should be submitted by February 9, 1993, and preferably earlier than that date. The Code is published as Part I (pages 1-29 of the document entitled "Student Rights and Responsibilities" dated August 16, 1990, Revision Part II—November 1991).

UK wins third straight road game, pummels USC

By Chris Tipton
Staff Writer

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Simply put, the UK Wildcats demolished South Carolina Saturday afternoon, 108-82.

The Cats used pinpoint passing, a balanced scoring attack and trademark pressure defense to dominate the Gamecocks. UK improved to 13-1, 4-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

UK's passing prowess was evident by its 27 assists against only 15 turnovers.

"Anytime you win 27 assists, you're going to have, no matter what team it is," said junior point guard Travis Ford, who had seven of those assists. "If we only had nine and they had 27, they probably would have won."

The Cats' unselfish style of play helped them shoot 53.5 percent from the field. Six players scored in double figures, led by Rodrick Rhodes and Rodney Dent with 17 each.

"Balance wins championships," UK coach Rick Pitino said. "We've been in the beginning, Jamal Mashburn and a little bit of Rodrick Rhodes. Now we have Travis (Ford) coming on, Dale (Brown), and Rodney Dent."

"What we've been striving for more than anything is balance, and in the last two games, we've executed our offense very well."

UK's defense caused 22 Gamecocks turnovers, 10 more than their 12.1 season average, and held the South Carolina to 36.4 percent shooting.

"It was very hard to bring the ball of this season (12,401 fans crammed into Frank McGuire Arena) only added to the team's confidence.

Jamie Watson, USC's leading scorer, had been quoted earlier in the week as saying: "Kentucky is beatable, and we know it. This team is very confident that we can win on Saturday."

But UK erupted on an early 18-2 run, which gave them a 22-7 lead at the 13-minute mark. The run included three-pointers by Ford, Rhodes and Brown, as well as several layups.

USC came back with three short spurts of its own that closed the gap to four, 39-44, but Tony Deik scored five points in the last minute to help UK to a 51-40 lead at the break.

Dent got the Cats going early in the second half as he scored nine quick points.

"We wanted to go to him the first few plays because we got on him before halftime for not blocking out and he got a little down," Pitino said. "We ran some plays for him, got him feeling good about himself, and he made some great plays."

"The thing I tried to do is play the best defense and help the team win," the junior college transfer said. "When the scoring is combined with rebounding and blocked shots, it boosts my confidence."

UK center Gimel Martinez also had a great second half, throwing in 14 points after scoring just two in the first half.

"Everyone's learning to play together as the season moves along, and they're making the extra pass," the 6-foot-8 junior said.

Wildcats teach younger brother South Carolina a tough lesson in SEC basketball on playground

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Growing up is hard. Just ask the South Carolina Gamecocks basketball team.

Saturday afternoon, they could have been compared to a 7-year-old kid who tries to tag along with his older brother and his friends when they go to the playground to play some basketball. The kid doesn't quite know why he wants to go, or even what to do when he gets there. All he knows is that he wants to be there.

The Gamecocks didn't quite know what to do once they made it to the playground. They lost to the visiting UK Wildcats, 108-82, and ended up being just another notch in the win column for the overpowering Cats.

Want more reasons? There are plenty to go around.

The full-court press of the Wildcats forced South Carolina to treat every trip up the floor like an adventure. For the Gamecocks, it was like trying to play keep-away with an octopus.

In only 17 minutes Saturday afternoon, Rodney Dent reestablished himself as a force inside. Dent finished in eight rebounds to lead the Wildcats and, in the process, found his shot. The 6-foot-10 junior went seven for three from the field and three for three from the line, to give him 17 points.

two weeks would be the most I would be out. But I was able to come back in less than that, and it is doing real well," Brassow said.

Back to the Gamecocks. Their growing pains continued with this loss, as they dropped to 7-8 overall and 3-3 in the Southeastern Conference.

Junior forward Jamie Watson said before the game that UK was "beatable, and we know it."

"Beatable, yes. Just not by South Carolina, UK took the Gamecocks, who are still in their SEC childhood, and taught them a lesson."

South Carolina, after beating Florida in Gainesville on Wednesday night, felt confident and tried to show up the Wildcats early in the first half. Several times early on, South Carolina was able to block shot attempts by the Wildcats.

Each time South Carolina blocked a shot, the fans grew louder, sensing a great game for their team.

"It is a scientific fact, however, that Gamecocks cannot fly, and once their early test flights were over, they returned to earth and found themselves trailing 27-7 at one point in the first half.

So much for blocked shots. Staff writer Lance Williams is a journalism freshman and Kentucky Kernel columnist.

up against their press," said USC junior guard Terry Bynum. "When the ball comes in, there's two or three guys running at you and that makes it real hard to see the floor." Depth played a big role as UK, once again, fouled often — 29 times to be precise.

"I don't think they ever get into foul trouble," USC coach Steve Newton said. "They're very aggressive, and they run people at you in waves without missing a beat."

Cats' Goodarz knocked off in SEC finals

By Scott Reynolds
Staff Writer

Chris Woodruff walked away with the Southeastern Conference Men's Indoor Tennis Tournament A-singles title yesterday at the Hillary J. Boone Tennis Center. Woodruff, the fifth seed from Tennessee, defeated UK's Mahyar Goodarz 6-2, 6-2.

While the singles title went to the Volunteers, Goodarz wasn't disappointed with his performance.

"I'm pretty pleased. I had a couple of good wins. I sort of got on a roll after a disappointing fall," Goodarz said.

"(Woodruff) just came out firing. He was on top of his game, and he dominated from the start," he said.

Woodruff said he was determined from the outset to win.

"I came up here with the mentality thinking I was going to win the tournament," Woodruff said.

Like Goodarz, Woodruff had been struggling and was looking to get back to his expected level of play.

"I struggled a bit in the fall, too. I was lacking confidence and mental toughness," he said. "This is a big momentum boost for me."

UK coach Dennis Emery was happy to see Goodarz do so well in the tournament.

"I think he was putting some undue pressure on himself (in the fall), so I'm really glad to see him beat out and play at a really good emotional level."

Woodruff turned out to be the UK killer. He defeated Michael Hopkins in the semifinals 6-0, 6-4 to prevent an all Wildcats finals match.

"Mike played real steady and real well for us all year. This is just another good tournament for him in a series of good tournaments," Emery said.

In A-doubles play, the title went to Alabama's Rick Witshen and Juan Carlos Bianchi. They defeated Tennessee's Chris Woodruff and Christopher Haggard 3-6, 4-4.

Both UK duos were eliminated by the eventual finalists. Ford Lankford and Jason Yeager were stopped in the fourth round by the Alabama team. Goodarz and Hopkins also were stopped in the fourth round by the Volunteer duo.

Orsini of Mississippi State captured the B-singles title by defeating fellow Bulldog Sylvain Guichard 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. Guichard had beaten UK's Tad Berkowitz in the semifinals 6-7 (9), 6-4, 6-3.

In earlier action by UK players, Bryan Sackmann was ousted in the second round by John Jones of Auburn, and Stephen Mather was defeated in the third round Stephanie Plot of Mississippi State.

In B-doubles action, the eighth-seeded tandem of Kristian Broems and Per Nilsson, also from Mississippi State, won the title by defeating Mark Palus and Jose Frontiera of South Carolina. The South Carolina duo ousted the UK tandem of Mather-Sackmann in the semifinals. Scott Treibly and Berkowitz were defeated in the third round by the eventual champions of the B-bracket.

Although the tournament was designed to crown the SEC's individual singles and doubles champion, the Wildcats were able to win the overall "mythical" championship.

"It's the first time we ever won this tournament. They have mythical team standings," Emery said. "But it is not like winning the SEC Outdoor team tournament. We had 26 points; Mississippi State had 24; and Georgia had 21."

"Our record was 4-1 against Georgia during the weekend, and they were number three in the country. So I don't feel like we had a good performance beating up on people who were not that good."

Before the tournament began, it seemed that MSU's Daniel Courcol was the player to beat. He was ranked No. 1 in the nation, and he represented half of the second-ranked doubles team.

But Courcol, who received a first round bye, was defeated in his first match by unseeded John McConnell of Arkansas. Things didn't get any better for the Paris native in doubles action. Courcol and Laurent Miquelard were defeated in their first match Friday night by UK's Ford Lankford and Jason Yeager.

"With the new format they're using, the pro set, anything can happen," Emery said. "That was definitely a big upset, but they had proven earlier that they were capable of doing that."

The UK coach is hoping the Cats can use this tournament experience throughout the rest of the spring.

"Being the first time we won (the tournament) should at least give us some confidence going into the dual match season that we can do well."

Alabama's Rich Witshen returns a shot yesterday. Witshen and partner Juan Carlos Bianchi became A-doubles champions.

Freshman superstar does it again as Gym Cats outshine Iowa State

Hansen breaks two records to lead UK to second victory

By Brian Bennett
Senior Staff Writer

UK gymnastics coach Leah Little described her freshman standout Jenny Hansen as "visibly, the most nervous" she'd ever seen her Friday night.

A week after setting two school records in front of her family and friends against Minnesota, Hansen was competing in her first home match before more than 700 fans at Memorial Coliseum.

But if Hansen looked shaky to Little, she looked nothing but solid to the remainder of the onlookers. The freshman took first place in the all-around competition and added two more records to her ever-growing resumé, all while leading the Gym Cats to a 190.6-187.2 victory over Iowa State.

Hansen got off to a fast start on the first event, the vault. After an opening 9.7, she soared above the mat and stuck the landing for a 9.9, tying the school record she set against Minnesota.

From there, she moved to uneven bars, an event she said has been "inconsistent" for her.

She was consistent enough to turn in a near flawless dismount and break yet another individual record with a 4.8 team score.

Her personal all-around record of 39 was in sight as she mounted the balance beam. But she fell in the beginning of her routine and finished with a 9.05.

"Maybe a little bit (of nerves)," she said of her fall.

She bounced back on her floor exercise, posting a 9.9 and another UK record.

Hansen finished with a 38.65 all-around to capture top individual honors easily.

She now owns every UK individual record except balance beam — after only her second collegiate meet.

Her quick start has not surprised Little.

"Many people felt she was one of the top recruits in the country, if not the top recruit."

So I really did expect it," Little said. "I didn't set out to really have a time frame, but I knew she would be one of the top 10 in the country, if not better than that."

The 190.6 score set a UK team record.

The Cats also reached a new high on uneven bars with a 48.5 team score.

"We thought, in the beginning, we'd have to be a 190 team to compete nationally," Little said. "We need to do even better to make it to the nationals."

UK outpointed Iowa State in every event except floor exercises, where the teams tied. The Cyclones dug a hole for themselves by struggling in the first two rotations, especially on vault.

"I turned around and watched a few vaults, and they weren't very good," Little said of the Cyclones' performance.

The Cyclones, who beat UK last year, managed to tie the three gymnasts in the top five all-around. Senior Kristin Moore paced them, with a 37.4 all-around.

Other highlights for UK included junior Michelle Ogden, who finished second on both floor and bars with a pair of 9.7s; junior Suzanne Gutierrez, who tied for first on beam and finished fourth on bars;

Friday's top finishers:

Bars:
Jenny Hansen (UK), 9.8;
Michelle Ogden (UK), 9.7;
Carrie Culp (UK), 9.65;
Suzanne Gutierrez (UK), 9.6;
Kelly Cooper (ISU), 9.55

Beam:
Gina Hatterick (UK), 9.65;
Tamae Freeman (UK), 9.65;
Gutierrez, 9.65;
Jenny Olsen (ISU), 9.55;
Nicole Peterson (ISU), 9.4

Vault:
Hansen, 9.9; Jennifer Van Outer (UK), 9.6; Cooper, 9.5; Freeman, 9.3; Tara Kahle (UK), 9.3

Floor Exercise:
Hansen, 9.9; Ogden, 9.7; Kahle, 9.65; Cooper, 9.65; Carrie Hupert (ISU), 9.65 and junior Tara Kahle, who came in fourth all-around.

But the brightest star was Hansen, who said Friday night's performance built a strong foundation.

"These are good starting scores," she said. "Hopefully, now we'll maintain a little bit now and not get ahead of ourselves."

Freshman gymnast Jenny Hansen set a record on the uneven bars on the way to winning the all-around Friday night.

Bills' have Super Bowl experience edge

By Dave Goldberg
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Super Bowl week starts out 37-2 in Buffalo's favor.

That's 37 Bills who have played in a Super Bowl against two Cowboys who have been there.

Call it the experience factor and it's been important before in deciding the Super Bowl winner. So why is Dallas favored by a touchdown?

Maybe because the Bills have been losers the two previous years and because the NFC team has won eight straight.

Buffalo's not buying it. "The first year, you're almost in awe over the whole situation," says Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly, who doesn't want to be stigmatized like John Elway and Fran Tarkenton, great quarterbacks who lost the big one.

"I remember in Tampa saying, 'This is an unbelievable feeling. You sort of get caught up in all the hoopla and all the fun. But I guess this year, we know exactly what it's going to take to win it. I think our concentration level's going to be a lot better.'"

History says Kelly's right. There have been 11 Super Bowls when one team entered with significantly more experience and that team has been the winner nine times.

That includes the New York Giants over the Bills in 1991; the 49ers over the Bengals in the Haley-Horton game; the Raiders over Philadelphia in 1981; Pittsburgh over the Rams in 1980; Dallas over Denver in 1978; Miami over Washington in 1973; Dallas over Miami in 1972; Baltimore over Dallas in 1971, and Green Bay over Kansas City in the second Super Bowl.

Buffalo features 37 Super vets, but the Cowboys, with only 2, are still a seven-point favorite

The only time the less experienced team won, it was four-time loser Minnesota that was the victim — to Pittsburgh in 1975 and to the Raiders in 1977.

And history is working in both directions — no team has lost three straight Super Bowls and no team has ever won after losing two. One way or the other, Buffalo will make history on Sunday.

In Tampa, the Bills were Super Bowl novices, going up against the Giants, who had 25 players from a team that had won four years earlier. The Giants, outmanned on offense, held the ball for 40 minutes and managed to win 20-19.

Last year, the Bills had experience, but so did Washington, winners in 1988. So it was a push and Washington did the pushing, winning 37-24 in a game that wasn't close.

But now the opponent is the NFL's youngest team, one on which only defensive end Charles Haley and safety Ray Horton have Super Bowl experience.

They played against each other in the 1989 game, Haley with San Francisco and Horton with Cincinnati.

It was Horton who was victimized by the game's deciding play, a 10-yard pass to John Taylor from Joe Montana with 30 seconds left that gave the 49ers a 20-16 victory.

Horton, at 32, is the oldest Cowboy and his 10 NFL seasons make him one of the three most experienced on a team with an average age of 26.

He's also counseling his teammates on what to expect this week.

"I was asked about 10 times what kind of tree I'd like to be," he says. "The other guys don't believe that, but it's true."

The Cowboys do have a few things going for them.

For one, there was last Thursday, when their locker room was inundated in true Super Bowl fashion and one questioner asked Troy Aikman if he was ready for stupid questions. "I guess that's a stupid question," the questioner acknowledged sheepishly.

Then there's Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson, who may be the "X" factor.

Johnson's big-game experience includes two national championship games at the University of Miami, winning one. And he has brought that to the Cowboys — they beat a far more experienced San Francisco team on the road last week.

"It's my job to see that we concentrate on the game," Johnson says. "I think we will."

Arkansas upsets cold-shooting Lady Kats

The Lady Kats basketball squad mustered only 14 points in the second half, allowing the Arkansas Lady Razorbacks to pull off a 45-43 upset at Barnhill Arena in Fayetteville, Ark., Saturday afternoon.

No. 25 UK (13-4 overall, 3-2 Southeastern Conference) shot 17 percent in the second half on the way to blowing a 29-17 halftime lead.

Arkansas (7-8, 2-3) was led by Blair Savage's eight points. UK point guard Sucky Reed was the only player for either team to score in double digits in the game. The Kats fell into fourth place in the 12-team SEC race behind Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Auburn.

Buckeyes rip Cool Cats twice

The UK hockey club dropped a pair of games to the visiting Ohio State Buckeyes this weekend. Friday night's game was played at the Alpine Ice Center in Covington, Ky.

The Buckeyes defeated the Cool Cats 8-4. Chris Boyd led UK with two goals. Nick Pelligren and Mike Wolf rounded out UK's scoring.

The Buckeyes once again were victorious Saturday in a game at the Lexington Ice Center, downing the Cool Cats 7-4. Jason Smithwick led UK with two goals, while Barry Holtzer and Paul Cerbona each added a goal.

The losses drop UK to 3-8 overall.

S. Alabama tops WKU 101-98 in OT

Associated Press

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — Marcus Cohen scored six of his 14 points in overtime to lead South Alabama to a 101-98 victory yesterday over Western Kentucky in a Sun Belt Conference game.

Cohen scored South Alabama's final six points of the extra period. His 19-foot jumper with 3:18 left put South Alabama up 97-93.

Neither team scored again until Darnell Mee hit one of two free throws for Western with 28 seconds left to pull the Hilltoppers within 97-94.

But Cohen then hit four free throws in the final 22 seconds to seal the win for South Alabama (9-6, 4-4).

Cohen's two free throws with 14 seconds left in regulation had given South Alabama a 90-87 lead. Mark Bell hit a 3-pointer for Western at the horn to send the game into overtime.

A big key in the game was free throws. South Alabama made 35 of 46 free throws to just 13 of 23 for Western.

Life, crimes of Loeb, Leopold dissected in courtroom drama

"Swoon"
Starring Craig Chester and Daniel Schlachet
Fine Line Features

By Bo List
Staff Critic

There was a time in U.S. history, particularly the 1920s and '30s when it was fashionable to keep "crime scrapbooks": collections of news clippings about famous criminals, crimes and trials.

Such scrapbooks have since been replaced by true crime novels and movies of the week. But, when scrapbooks were popular, there were few criminals cut and pasted more than Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, who are the subject matter of the film, "Swoon."

The two 18-year-old Jewish intellectuals are, arguably, the Ted Bundys or Jeffrey Dahmers of the day. No, they are not serial killers (They have but one victim.), nor do they in any way mutilate their victim. Instead, they practice an even more shocking activity: homosexuality.

Loeb and Loeb commit small crimes for fun, like throwing rocks through windows, then move up to setting buildings on fire. Perhaps they are bored when they decide to kill somebody or perhaps that is the next logical step in what is, to them, a sexual adventure. (Favors are exchanged for participation in the crimes.)

Regardless, they spend many weeks meticulously planning the event, which occurred in 1924.

Their crime, the killing of 14-year-old Bobby Franks, proves to be anything but perfect. "You've just had the treat of shaking hands with a murderer," Loeb boasts to a passerby shortly after the deed is done, an action that reflects the sloppiness with which the entire plot was executed.

After Leopold's apprehension, both men confess very different stories to the police, and Loeb (the much more scheming and devious of the two) even tries to lay the entire blame on Leopold. The trial that follows is a fiery storm of values and society standards. Their homosexuality takes center stage — and, in one of the film's more symbolic scenes, their sexual activity occurs in the courtroom itself.

Their sexuality not only rivals the crime in importance, it surpasses it. Both the prosecution and the defense use it as evidence. Their attorney, Clarence Darrow, pleads insanity for the killers, using their sexuality as proof.

"Swoon," directed by Tom Kalin, is a stylish visual feast. Shot in a mood-inspiring black and white, "Swoon" triumphs as both narrative and as an aesthetic work. Images and sounds populate the film and saturate it with a clear and smooth consistency.

Loepold, an amateur ornithologist, is surrounded by bird figures, from scenes that show him removing small birds from his pants to a recurring flapping sound that follows him in particularly decisive scenes.

Along with notable and often quirky surroundings and sets, several anachronisms appear throughout: a remote control, a touch-tone telephone and modern-day clothing.

Their presence, a device used similarly but obnoxiously in last year's "Edward II," serves here to blur the lines between then and now and ends up portraying the present and the past as not all that different in terms of attitude and social perspective.

Performers Craig Chester and Daniel Schlachet play well against the style and surroundings created by Kalin. They share coolly passionate and expressive eyes that grip the audience and take control of their scenes.

"Swoon's" richly poetic scenes are done a great justice by the hauntingly beautiful music given, which complement and enhance the gentle flow of the film's continuity.

"Swoon," is "unrated," and is showing at the Kentucky Theatre through Thursday.

Richards rolls into reggae on new album

Keith Richards
Main Offender
Virgin Records

By Chris Kidwell
Contributing Critic

If you are a fan of reggae, Motown or rock 'n' roll, the new Keith Richards' album may be the one for you.

I'm sure some of you read that first sentence. Reggae? Motown? What's that have to do with Keith Richards? Yes, it's all included on Richards' new album, Main Offender. While some may consider Richards' diversity a bit risky, he actually has succeeded in this courageous attempt.

Those of you who remember Richards' solo debut, Talk Is Cheap, probably remember the tightness and the talent of his band, the X-Pensive Winos. To no surprise, Richards has summoned this rock solid foursome again to show off its musical expertise.

With drummer/bassist Steve Jordan and bassist/drummer Charley Drayton blending heavy rhythms alongside keyboardist/guitarist Ivan Neville and guitarist Waddy Wachtel, the X-Pensive Winos create the ultimate sound for Richards' bad-boy attitude and musical genius.

On this collection there are the patented sounds of Richards' belting out his rock 'n' roll. From the first chords of the first track, "999," Richards and the Winos take a musical ride that goes full throttle to the end.

The first single from Main Offender is "Wicked As It Seems." This catchy tune has some killer riffs and a heavy beat that's enough to make anyone dance.

Along the same line as "999" and "Wicked As It Seems" are six other tracks that are equally as impressive and hypnotic. Three of these songs, "Eileen," "Yap Yap" and "Will But You Won't," are reminiscent of Richards' work with the Rolling Stones. It's easy to imagine Mick Jagger performing these gems.

However, the three songs that are most interesting, or at least most interesting, are "Words Of Wonder," "Hate It When You Leave" and "Demon." These tracks show a side of Richards that is surprising to hear. Equally surprising, though, was how good these tracks actually are.

"Words Of Wonder," Richards' rendition of reggae, is very convincing. While it may not be Bob Marley, it is a very complete attempt.

Many think of Richards as just a guitar player and not the singer that he truly is. For you deceived listeners, just give this track an open ear. The emotion and spirit of his vocals are pure brilliance.

"Hate It When You Leave" and "Demon" are just as impressive as "Words Of Wonder." At first listen, one thing came to mind — Motown. All of the ingredients are there; the smoky beat, the slow enchanting guitar and even the traditionally rich vocal harmonies.

Richards' rough, yet soulful, voice is as impressive as ever. All of this, plus the complete sense of diversity throughout this album, simply leaves me overwhelmed.

Those of you who have heard the adage, "A rolling stone gathers no moss," may be wondering about Richards. With the release of Main Offender, Richards has answered the critics who question his abilities at age 49.

As a solo act and with the Rolling Stones, Richards has proved his worth. Fortunately, it seems Richards may never stop rolling.

mastermind of winning the case," Johnson said last night in a telephone interview.

"I think we have lost a giant in the judicial process. He is the one person who stands out above all the rest as a champion of civil rights."

As a justice, he opposed the death penalty and was a forceful advocate of abortion rights, affirmative action, legal protections for criminal defendants.

Laurence Tribe, constitutional scholar and professor, Harvard Law School, called Marshall "the greatest lawyer in the 20th century."

Marshall was appointed to the court on June 13, 1967, by President Lyndon B. Johnson, climaxing a career as a civil rights lawyer, appeals court judge and U.S. solicitor general.

Among some of the more important decisions written by Marshall for the high court were those saying that shopping center owners' rights to restrict demonstrations were limited; that a teacher cannot be fired for speaking out truthfully on public issues; and that possessing obscene material within the privacy of one's own home cannot be made a crime.

Marshall was active in judicial matters until a few months ago. Last October, due to a viral infection, he canceled a trip to Baltimore to serve on a three-judge appellate panel hearing some 20 cases.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

offices that deal with the promotion of health and well-being.

These students also would agree to live a healthy lifestyle, which involves abstaining from the use of drugs and alcohol and participating in a consistent exercise and nutrition regimen.

UK senior Aimee Jones said the Wellness Hall "sounds like a good program. I like the idea of the faculty being involved."

She said, however, that the time commitment would be an obstacle for her.

"With my schedule, I would find it difficult to do everything," Jones said.

Bobby Livesay, a junior, said the hall is "something I'd like to get involved in," but he said he does not currently live on campus because the cost is prohibitive.

"If I could afford to do it, (Kirwan II) is where I'd like to stay," he said.

"The whole idea of health-consciousness interests me."

The development of a Wellness Hall is part of a 5-year effort by Residence Life and University Housing to make on-campus living options more attractive to students.

Currently, there are three residence halls on campus that have changed their programming to appeal to specific student groups. Boyd Hall is an academic honors hall; Jewell Hall offers a program tailored to cross-cultural understanding; and Kirwan III is for engineering majors.

Students interested in applying for the Wellness Hall should contact University Housing at 257-1866.

Politics of abortion changing

By Angela Jones
Senior Staff Writer

Abortion-rights advocates are beginning to change from a defensive to an offensive posture following President Clinton's decision Friday to lift executive orders on a number of abortion issues.

Chants of "Keep the U.S. Out of My Uterus" were discarded last week for "We Are the Face of Pro-Choice America" during marches across the country to recognize the 20th anniversary of Roe vs. Wade, the U.S. Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion.

Nancy Morgan, advocacy coordinator of the Kentucky Association of Planned Parenthood Affiliates in Lexington, said Clinton's administration already is signaling an end to the abortion restrictions of the Reagan-Bush era.

"The last 12 years has felt like the Dark Ages," Morgan said.

During his two terms as president, Reagan issued an executive order prohibiting federally funded health facilities from providing abortion counseling. Another order banned the French "morning after" abortion pill, RU-486, from being imported into the United States.

After less than a week in office, Clinton made good on some of his campaign promises concerning reproductive rights, including allowing research to be conducted on RU-486. He also rescinded the so-called "gag rule" on federally funded clinics.

Carol Dixon, co-director of UK's Nation Organization of Women, said Clinton's actions were "really a relief," but she added: "We can't stop now."

Anti-abortion advocates aren't stopping their battle, either.

The turnout at last weekend's anti-abortion rally at the Fayette County Courthouse was about three times greater than it was for the abortion-rights celebration.

"We're losing, but we haven't given up," said Jeff King, a UK political science senior and president of UK's Right to Life.

"Without the right to life, other rights don't exist. Clinton has made it harder for us, but we're not giving up on a baby's right to live."

Lexington Vice Mayor Teresa Isaac, an abortion-rights advocate, said women's reproductive freedom is far from guaranteed, despite Clinton's political leanings.

"We can't become complacent now that we have a pro-choice president," said Isaac, who spoke at an abortion-rights gathering Friday at the main branch of Lexington Public Library. "We need to pass the Freedom of Choice Act."

The Freedom of Choice Act, which would ensure federal legislative protection of reproductive rights, now is the focus for abortion-rights advocates in order to "regain the ground lost" during the anti-abortion Reagan and Bush administrations, said Morgan, who also spoke at the rally.
