Estes picked to run SAB for 1990-91

When 1990 Student Activities Board President, Page Estes was congratulated by her sorority sister on her new position, Estes wasn't sure what she was talking about.

"I think I was definitely surprised," said Estes, a human studies junior. "I didn't know what position on the board that I got when she congratulated me."

Estes along with 19 other people were selected early Friday morning by the SAB Selections Committee to bring SAB into the '90s.

Experience was a key factor in selecting the president said Lucy Ogburn, chairman of the selections committee.

"We were looking for someone who is good in dealing with students as well as administration," Ogburn said. Estes "comes across as very confident and has a vision of where she wants to see SAB in five years."

Estes' two years of experience with SAB was one of the reasons why she was selected, said John Herbst, SAB adviser.

"Obviously she has exceptional qualities. She has a good experience base," Herbst said. "I think generally she was an outstanding candidate for the position in terms of both her interview and experience. I think she is a very fine young lady and an excellent leader."

If the students fee increase is approved, then bringing an alcohol-free campus pub to the Student Center in the next academic year is one of the goals Estes hopes to meet.

I hope to "get the entire campus to work together and to have events that can get the campus unified," she said.

Overall the quality of all the 1990 SAB members is high, Herbst said. "I'm very confident in next year's board. I think they selected an excellent caliber of people," he said.

Delegates elect James SOA head

Staff reports

Kennedy James was elected president of the 1990 Student Organization Assembly by about 50 delegates in SOA late last week.

James, an agriculture economics senior, will join Michelle Chandler, the 1990 vice president in leading SOA in the next academic year.

"I think you're in good hands for next year," said Pat Hart, who has served as SOA president for the past two and a half years. "I felt very good. I think they elected a very good slate of officers."

Monica Noe, who was elected a member at large said that she wants to help increase student involvement in SOA in the next academic year.

"I'd like to see more membership in SOA. It has a lot of opportunity, but I've noticed that a lot of people don't want to come to meetings," said Noe, a history sophomore. "I want to get the delegates to work better together."

As a member at large Noe said she will mainly voice the concerns of the other delegates to the board. Other members elected include: Joe Barnes, treasurer; Rob Lohman, secretary; Ervy Whitaker, SOA member at large.

Nintendo's hold on UK students powerful

There it is! The huge beating heart of the island of death in the island's rocky, cavernous center.

The MAN, equipped with a spraying, fireball shooting gun, fires rapidly, upon it. The pulsing of the heart quickens, as huge, crawling spiders burst out of their cocoons in kamikaze efforts to save the island from the intruder. The MAN desperately fires his gun on the spiders and the heart.

High and low he fires, leaping and ducking and killing giant spiders. So close now... Oh! a spider pounces him from above, sending him into the throes of death. He is dead, and the diabolical heart beats on.

Hey, big deal, the fellow sitting in front of the TV, with the controller has three men left. It's not the end of the world. But one can believe the video game junkie felt his heart give a little when that spider trounced on him.

Yes, you have just been transported to the world of Nintendo. A world where you can fight contra missions to save the world, command tank battles, outbox Mike Tyson and win six gold medals in the World Olympics.

Not bad, considering that a moment earlier you were worried about those upcoming finals or a nagging cold.

It isn't surprising, then, that Nintendo and other video games are sweeping UK and campus's everywhere like video bombs destroying a video countryside, or video guns, equipped with bleeping firing sounds, annihilating thousands of humanoid invaders.

"A lot of it (the pull of video games) is doing things you can't normally do — like realistically, junior Aaron Herskowitz said. "I really like simulations, like flying a plane or reliving historical battles."

It may be just that — an escape from the ordinary, the stressful, or from responsibility into the almost limitless possibilities of video land — that draws scores of otherwise normal people to sit in front of their TVs and scream at variations of computerized light and sound. Light and sound, mind you, that simulates real-life activities or fantasy in which the player has an impact, a source of control.

"Some video games look really real. I mean if you put a damn helmet on your head you'd feel like you were in the cockpit of a plane," Hersowitz said. "Intense graphics, man."

"It's man against machine," said psychology major Pete Kiernan, with an ironic edge. "It's really intense, especially when you beat a game for the 407th time. Sometimes I feel like reeking hell on the entire Nintendo world."

Kiernan was kidding, sort of. He admits he is drawn to the games, but he says they are basically a waste of time.

"It gives you a sense of accomplishment you need, but without any work having actually been done. Their main purpose is to help you avoid any activity that does have a purpose, that is, anything constructive."

Others, however, follow the "what you put in, you'll get out" philosophy of video games. "It all depends on what you want to put into it," sophomore Nintendo owner Kevin Mangus said. "You can find the key to the Universe or just a way to waste time."

Here Mangus touches on part of the controversy surrounding video games. It is a controversy raging about whether or not video games have any practical utility.

Certainly, video games have worked themselves into the fabric of American culture. As an offshoot of the computer age, they provide new forms of entertainment, and perhaps escape, for most of all of us who have grown up in the eighties. Kids love them (as do college students), but are

U.S. leaders warn USSR of blockade

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate leaders in both parties warned Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev on Sunday that carrying out his threatened economic blockade against Lithuania could derail opening trade relations between the United States and Moscow.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said retaliation by Moscow to Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence would jeopardize a trade agreement President Bush and Gorbachev hoped to sign at a summit in June.

The Bush administration, meanwhile, was taking what Secretary of State James A. Baker III described as "a wait and see" attitude as the Kremlin-imposed deadline for Lithuania to rescind its declaration of independence passed last night.

Mitchell, who on Saturday condemned Gorbachev's ultimatum as "precisely the wrong approach," said Sunday he was waiting for Bush to do the same. But, in an interview on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," he also supported the administration's reluctance to issue specific counter threats.

"We ought not to be announcing in advance what we're going to do when we don't know for sure that they are going to do," he said. "He has made a threat. He has not yet carried it out. We don't know what they're going to do."

However, Mitchell said "a wide range" of possible reactions could include canceling the summit.

2 DEAD, 2 WOUNDED: Fayette County coroners wheeled out the victims of Friday's murder-suicide in a Lexington house. Michael E. Purcell, 38, killed himself and his wife, Mary Jean Purcell, 33, in a 17-hour standoff with police.

Tax deadline nearing for late filers

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — You won't be through with taxes for the year even if you beat the midnight-to-night deadline for filing your federal return. The average American will have to work through May 5 to satisfy the tax collectors.

If that prediction by the Tax Foundation proves accurate, it will be the latest "Tax Freedom Day" on record and two days later than 1989. Tax Freedom Day is the foundation's estimate of how long it would take an average person to pay his or her state, federal and local taxes if all income went for taxes until they were all paid for the year 1990.

For the millions of couples and individuals still struggling with 1989 returns, the IRS announced that its toll-free telephone service would remain open late tonight to answer questions.

The Postal Service said most post offices in cities with at least 30,000 population planned to station clerks at curbside to receive returns.

Neither the IRS nor the Postal Service estimated how many returns were likely to be filed tonight. However, the IRS said it expects to receive about 23 million this week — or one of every five that will be filed this year.

When all the returns are counted later this year, they are expected to total 111 million, an increase of about 1 million from 1989.

About four of every five returns are qualifying for refunds, slightly above last year's figure.

'Handicapper's nightmare' is Mr. Frisky's dream Derby

Greg HALL
Managing Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Land Rush's trainer D. Wayne Lukas has dubbed this year's Kentucky Derby "a handicapper's nightmare."

But this Derby looks fairly easy on paper. (The Derby is not run on paper, but anyway.) Despite Lukas' colt took second place in Saturday's Blue Grass Stakes his colt is not in the forefront.

From the West comes undefeated Mr. Frisky. And from the East once-defeated Summer Squall.

Summer Squall trainer Neil Howard said that the Run for the Roses is not a two-horse race, but others have not made a significant claim for the winner's circle.

And so this Derby appears to be another chapter in racing's Civil War which will again be renewed on the first Saturday in May at Churchill Downs.

The boundaries are not drawn by the Mason-Dixon line but part East and West. This Derby battle may be referred to in the Summer Squall camp by the old refrain of Milwaukee Braves' fans who, under Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain had pitched, "prayed for rain."

While neither trainer nor jockey would say that rain is their Easter wish for May 5, it seems as though they would not be complaining if Derby goers needed umbrellas.

Trainer Neil Howard said that weather would not beat fabulous trainers like Lukas and Mr. Frisky Trainer Laz Barrera.

But then Howard said he was not pulling against his horse either.

Meanwhile from the dry, old West comes an immigrant colt, Mr. Frisky, the winner of the Santa Anita Derby, came from humble beginnings in Puerto Rico to the States to achieve the American dream, otherwise known as the 116th Kentucky Derby.

Barrera, who himself has already tasted the dream with Bold Forbes in 1976 and again with Affirmed in 1978, who's colt is undefeated in 16 starts en route to Louisville.

While many do not believe that Mr. Frisky's non-continental credentials are substantial, Summer Squall is questioned because all of his successes have come on the mud.

The Jim Beam Stakes and the Blue Grass Stakes both saw the skies explode over the tracks for Summer Squall.

The colt's last race on a fast track was in the March 17th Swale Stakes where he finished second to Housse-buider (who is out of the Derby because of an injury). Before that his last race was a win last August in the Hopeful at Saratoga.

So, from the East comes the horse that some are already using as a measuring stick for Kentucky Derby hopefuls.

From the quotes of one owner, one would think that Summer Squall is already wearing the garland of roses and gearing up for the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Race Course.

Trainer of Derby contender Unbridled Carl Nafziger said, "... you can't knock a horse for only getting beat three and three quarter lengths by Summer Squall."

But in recent year's the East coast has offered big-name measuring sticks — like Easy Goer — that have failed to measure up to much after the Derby.

The West has dominated the proceedings at the last battles of Louisville. The last four Derby winners have all concentrated their efforts in the West.

Only Alyshea in 1987 tried to be America's Horse by racing both at Santa Anita and at Keeneland.

In 1986 and 1989, trainer Charlie Whittingham took the eventual Derby winner from Santa Anita to Churchill Downs.

Ferdinand and Sunday Silence's success were separated by another Western warrior, Lukas' 1988 champion filly Winning Colors to win the Derby.

It is appropriate that rains showed up for Summer Squall on Saturday in the Blue Grass at Keeneland. It seems his breeders knew something about this colt's affinities when trying to name it.

Bat Cats split twin-bill, win Ole Miss series

By BRIAN JENT
Managing Editor

In a day which pitchers saw limited action, UK's Rodney Henderson and Ole Miss's Kenny Carlyle went the distance for the win as the Cats and the Rebels split a double-header yesterday at Shively Field.

Henderson, who picked up the win in the Cats 10-2 victory over the University of Mississippi in the first game, gave UK something that it had been looking for since the Southeastern Conference regular season began — their first Southeastern Conference series win.

UK captured the first game of the series Saturday by outting the Rebels with a bottom of the ninth inning home run by second baseman Darin Rieman.

"It was one of those days when you have to win," the UK freshman pitcher said. "I thought we had the right attitude today. It was a must win situation."

However, Mississippi's Kenny Carlyle prevented the Cats from sweeping the Rebels as he went the seven inning distance to record a 9-2 win in the second game yesterday.

"It felt really good today," Carlyle said. "It was better than my previous outings."

The series win raised the Bat Cats record to 21-13, 5-10 in the SEC, while dropping the Rebels, 17-19, 6-9 in the SEC.

"We won the series," UK coach Keith Madison said. "We almost came out of a team hitting slump ... I felt that started (Saturday) and in the first game, it carried over."

The Bat Cats roughed three Ole Miss pitchers up for 10 runs on 14 hits in the first game.

Ole Miss starter and loser Dickie Dixon (4-2) only lasted 2 1/3 innings. He gave up four runs on seven hits.

However, his reliever senior Freddie Joseph couldn't do much better. He allowed six runs including a sixth inning Vince Castaldo three-run shot run to insure the Cats 10-2 victory.

Meanwhile, UK's Henderson (4-2) was shutting down the Rebel offense. He only surrendered two runs on six hits. He retired the last 10 consecutive batters he faced.

"Early, my curve ball was the only thing really helping. I settled down toward the end of the game and did real well," Henderson said. "I give a lot of the credit to Keith Conrad. He did an excellent job behind the plate ... I really felt comfortable throwing to him."

In the second game, the Bat Cats were the ones forced to go their bullpen early.

Freshman starter Scott Smith (3-2) was chased from the rubber early in the fourth inning after giving up two runs.

"We started Scotty Smith, and we pulled him early

Pitino says Cats may open season in Maui Classic

By BARRY REEVES
Sports Editor

Even though the UKIT is probably dead, UK basketball coach Rick Pitino said that his squad will still participate in a tournament next season.

Pitino said the Cats will probably open the 1990-91 season in Hawaii playing in the Maui Classic.

"We are working ... and it does look good that we will open the next season in Maui," Pitino said at a news conference Friday afternoon. "... We are having to juggle some dates around and if we do that, then we will open in Maui."

Since the Cats are not expected to be able to take part in the Southeastern Conference Tournament next season, the Wildcat coach thinks the Maui Classic could be a nice substitute.

"To play in Maui would be great because it doesn't look right now that we are going to compete in the SEC," Pitino said. "We are doing this all for Reggie Hanson," he said with a big smile and a hint of sarcasm. "All for Reggie Hanson."

Just as UK Athletics Director C.M. Newton said last week, Pitino said UK had no alternative but to kill the UKIT for the "foreseeable future."

"We weren't able to attract a good field because Arizona State cancelled out," Pitino said. "... In everybody's mind, it was agreed that was the best alternative to make the schedule more attractive."

"... Really, the only ones who want to come into the UKIT now are the ones who need guarantees to support their program."

Even though the UKIT has been cancelled, the UK coach said it could be resurrected in "six or seven years as a tip-off tournament — almost like the NIT."

In other news concerning the Cats: "UK still plans to play the smaller in-state Division I schools — Western Kentucky, Eastern Kentucky, Morehead State and Murray State."

Pitino said tentative agreements have been worked out with Eastern and Western to play the Cats in the 1990-91 season. He said the UK-EKU game will be at Rupp Arena, while the UK-WKU game is scheduled to take place at Freedom Hall in Louisville.

Pitino said that UK "will still play the in-state schools on a regular basis" even though the UKIT has been cancelled. The in-state schools were scheduled to rotate in the UKIT, with ECU playing in 1990.

"Pitino said that sophomore point guard Sean Woods will be redshirted next season if his grades do not improve. And the UK coach said he matter-of-factly threw out the challenge to his sophomore point guard."

"There is a question mark about whether Sean Woods will be

Squall takes Blue Grass with 1 3/4 length victory

By GREGORY A. HALL
Staff Writer

As the field rounded the final turn in Saturday's Blue Grass Stakes, the once-confident owners of Kentucky Derby hopeful Summer Squall were "terrified" as Land Rush briefly moved by the favorite.

Summer Squall, who came from behind to run away with the Jim Beam Stakes two weeks ago at Turfway Park, encountered stiff competition from Land Rush and Iskandar Elkbar on the far turn.

As the colts neared the stretch, Land Rush edged by the favorite on the outside before Summer Squall quickly regained the lead and went on to a one and three quarter length victory.

At the turn for home, Dogwood Stable, Inc., President Cot Campbell hoped jockey Pat Day was conserving for the wire.

"I hoped that's what was taking place today around the turn and indeed it was," Campbell said.

Day said that he did not mean to scare people, but he was never worried. "(Land Rush) did get a little in front of us but it was never of any consequence or concern of mine," said Day, winning his second Blue Grass. "I think it's necessary to keep some horse for that last dash to the wire and hopefully he'll be in front at that point."

Day did have Summer Squall in front at that point, but not without pushing the colt, which he said was lackadaisical at times.

"It was a very aggressive hand ride from the eighth pole to the wire," Day said. "He was not at the bottom of the barrel going into the wire."

Running Summer Squall in three races in five weeks with three more until the Derby has led many to question whether Summer Squall has the stamina.

"We've asked a lot more of this horse than you'd normally like to — that's no secret," Howard said. "I wouldn't trade this horse for all the tea in China."

Lady Kats fall 9-0 to No. 5 Bulldogs

Not many people could see a positive side in UK's 9-0 loss to Southeastern Conference leader Georgia yesterday at the Downing Outdoor Tennis Complex yesterday. But UK Lady Tennis Coach John Dinneen thinks differently.

"Very pleased," he said when asked how he felt the Lady Kats performed in three home matches this weekend.

On Friday the Kats began on the right foot as they rolled over Vanderbilt University 9-0, without dropping a set. The winning continued against an 8-11 Wake Forest, a match that Dinneen approached with some apprehen-

While the 13th-ranked UK Tennis Cats have slumped badly — losing seven of their last eight matches — including a 5-3 loss to the 3rd ranked University of Georgia yesterday, they still have a chance to salvage their season with three remaining matches.

"We just can't buy a match right now," said Andy Potter, the No. 2 seed on the team. "But we've got to keep plugging and make the NCAA's."

Once again the Cats were near the top, but couldn't quite conquer a higher ranked SEC opponent. "Momentum was the key," said UK coach Dennis Emery. "I think we played four first-set tie break-

Zorn's 'Naked City' strips away popular image of jazz

By MICK JEFFRIES
Contributing Critic

New York Saxophonist John Zorn is walking in the footsteps of giants: Legendary sax-man Ornette Coleman, film composer Ennio Morricone, even British secret service agent 007, James Bond. But Zorn is not following their footsteps. He is walking in them. And around them. And all over them. But they probably don't mind. Heck, they probably love it.

Zorn's latest project, Naked City, juxtaposes Coleman-style "harmonics" with Sean Connery-era James Bond intrigue played out on the dusty plains of some long-lost Sergio Leone spaghetti western. The Manhattan-based musician has spent the last 10 years breathing new life into the archetypal jazz instrument and, by extension, into the whole of modern jazz itself. And if it hasn't been a peaceful passage, it must be because Zorn wouldn't have it any other way.

Zorn and his oscillating collection of rabid improvisers have spent most of the last decade crafting a new style of jazz. Born out of a contemporary urban landscape, this jazz fits the picture, tumbling down like a sonic avalanche, a furious sensory assault, the mask of chaos veiling a deeper order.

Naked City is a muscular jazz excursion, ranging from smoky to smoking, mostly the latter. Boasting the creme of Manhattan's burgeoning fringe-jazz scene, this is a band of bruisers.

Along for the ride with Zorn are Bill Frisell and Fred Frith, both pre-eminent experimental guitarists, Wayne Horvitz on keyboards, and Joey Baron, certainly one of the loudest, most frenetic jazz drummers in recent memory.

Zorn makes no bones about citing influences either. After a stint with avant-rockers the Golden Palominos, he landed himself squarely in the critical eye in 1986 with The Big Gundown, a collection of Zorn-sized renditions of Ennio Morricone film scores. Morricone, a cult hero for scoring such vintage westerns as "The Good, the Bad and the Ugly" and "A Fistful of Dollars", was impressed enough by Zorn's project to contribute to the liner notes.

Last year, Zorn and friends, under the moniker Spy vs. Spy, paid homage to Coleman with an album of ear-bleeding, white-noise thrallings of his compositions. Many of the 17 tracks were thunderous, zooming aural assaults, often clocking in at under two minutes each.

As Naked City, the ensemble howls through 55 minutes of some of the most cliff-hanging, careening, deconstructionist jazz ever recorded.

Despite Naked City's zeal for pinning the listener to the wall with frequent and ferocious noise blasts, this is a band that can turn on a dime, zig-zagging between lounge jazz, country & western, dub-reggae, and any other style worth a poke.

With Zorn at the helm, Naked City keeps the meter bolted on tight. The beat goes where it's told instantly or gets shattered into a million smoldering pieces—something that happens quite a bit actually.

Among the fare, the listener finds savage jazz/hardcore convulsions (rarely in excess of a minute in length) and more film score tributes including a Morricone piece from Sergio Leone's "Once Upon a Time in America" and Henry Mancini's "A Shot in the Dark", from the Pink Panther cartoons.

Possibly the most sumptuous treat of the set, though, is Naked City's run-down on John Barry's galloping "Theme to James Bond". Deftly, the City sets it up then atomizes it, for later re-assimilation, full tilt.

Naked City is not for the weak-of-heart or sluggish-of-tempo. But why break down walls with a hammer when you can use a wrecking ball?

they at all constructive? Are they in any way beneficial to human development?

Mangus says he believes they are.

"They help hand-eye coordination, and some are good for logic — you have to use strategy. So, yes, they help hand-eye coordination and help you gain problem-solving ability," Mangus, a philosophy major, said.

Mangus is backed up by scientific research. Patricia Greenfield, a professor of developmental psychology at the University of California, recently published an article in Harvard's "Education Letter" urging schools to implement video games in their curriculum.

"The video screen ... is helping children develop a new kind of literacy — visual literacy — that they will need to thrive in a technological world," she said in the article.

Greenfield, who pointed out that in 1988, 14 million Nintendo game sets were sold, cited several studies that argued the constructive use of video games. The studies suggested that video screens stimulate young students to learn more than they do with books and to use their imagination. Certain games, says Greenfield, depend on the player using logic, or "mental mapping," to successfully participate in them.

"... We live in a multimedia world, and schools need to learn how to use each medium to its best educational advantage," Greenfield concludes.

But, in the educational sense, video games often are seen as wasteful and non-productive. Students, especially during finals, often find fighting in wars and playing video sports much more, uh, stimulating than studying history or statistics. And they sometimes have to pay for it.

"Friday night before finals I'll organize everything in preparation for the week, and then I'll sit down and play," Herskowitz said. "And then I'll get pissed off at not having any schoolwork done and hit the books."

"It's got, like, an addictive quality," psychology major Pete Kiernan said. "I don't know why, but I do definitely crave it at times."

As for practical utility, Kiernan finds video games lacking in the point of being ridiculous.

"They give me unlimited experience in contra adventures, and, sure, I feel confident I could fly a plane if such a situation were to present itself," Kiernan, a sophomore, said jokingly.

sion. "I had been worried about this match all year," he said. "Because it came at a big time for us and there was the chance that we'd overlook them. But we came out tough and held on."

From there the Kats' modest three-match win streak ran into the fifth-ranked Lady Bulldog team that was just too much for them. The loss left the Kats at 12-6 and 4-2 in the Southeastern Conference, while Georgia's record stands at 17-2 and 7-0 atop the SEC.

Georgia's Sharon McCarthy defeated UK's No. 1 seed Melissa Nelson 6-4, 7-5 to open the match. The No. 2 and 3 spots went easier for Georgia as UK's Susan Klingenberg was beaten by Stacy Schefflin 6-4, 6-2 and Lady Kat Antoinette Grech lost to Caryn Moss 6-3, 6-2.

UK almost pulled a match out at No. 4 as senior Lene Holm Larsen lost her final home match to Jill Waldman 7-5, 7-6. McCarthy's twin sister, Shawn, played at No. 5 singles and beat Helen Fabiszewicz 6-3, 6-2.

UK's Mindy Severt captured UK's only set of the day before falling 5-7, 6-1, 6-2 to Maria Szagard.

But No. 2 singles player Susan Klingenberg thinks the match was closer than people will think when they see the score.

"Everybody was into our single today," Klingenberg said. "We very easily could have broken through and won some of those matches. It just happened that we lost them."

But she thought the difference in the earlier two matches wasn't just that UK had more fire power. "I think we were a better team," she said. "But we out-competed them too. We got on top of them in the match and didn't let them get back into it."

That competitiveness is something that Dinneen thinks has been a trademark of his team all season.

"We've had to out-compete everybody because we lost our four top players from last year," he said. "We still have a shot at nationals (NCAA's) and not many people thought we would."

The Kats have been hampered this year by a lack of personnel. The team has only six players and everyone has been forced to play in every match. All of the Lady Kats' losses this season have come against Top 15 competition.

UK's remaining four matches are on the road, one at Indiana University today and the other three at SEC opponents' courts. That SEC line-up includes the University of Tennessee, University of Alabama and Auburn University.

Their goal is simple. "If we win three of the four matches we're in," Dinneen said, "we don't have to worry about how anyone else does. We control our own destiny."

Second Choice: Stormy Weather. Answer-Buzz. Try again. Third Choice: Storm Cloud. And again, the answer-Sorry. That name is taken.

Finally they succeeded with Summer Squall.

Rain can be an effective toll in wartime if you manage to use it to your favor.

If the Ohio River is on the rise

Derby Week and showers loom overhead, Summer Squall might come away with a victory for the East.

And recent happenings dictate that a winning road to the Derby runs not through Florida, New York or Kentucky, but from California.

Barring a 20-horse field that would turn the strategic Derby into a crap shoot, look for Mr. Frisky to repeat his Santa Anita Derby performance in Derby 116 over Summer Squall.

because it was a seven inning game, and I wanted to prevent from what did happen. I didn't want the game to get out of hand," Madison said. "Larry came in and got a double play ball ... However, he got his fastball up and that really hurt us."

Larry Luehbbers, who came on to relieve Smith, gave up six runs on seven hits including a three run dinger to freshman Chris Snopce. "He threw me a split-finger fast ball," Snopce said. "It was great."

Meanwhile, the Cats only mustered two runs off Carlyle. One came in the fourth inning as Castaldo, who had four hits and five RBIs for the day, doubled with two outs. He scored on Rick Norton's single to center field.

In the sixth inning, the Bat Cats scored their final run as Riemann singled in center fielder Anthony Morrow from second base.

Madison, whose team began the week at the bottom of the SEC, was pleased with his team's performance.

"If we play the rest of the season the way we played this week, we will be in the playoff hunt," he said.

NOTES: During the seventh inning of yesterday's baseball game, Castaldo had to be removed after taking a hard, bad-hop single on the chin. Castaldo had to have nine stitches and is questionable whether he will play in Tuesday's game against Morehead State University.

"The Southeastern Conference baseball series between the University of Florida and the University of Alabama has been suspended and will not be played this season, according to SEC Commissioner Roy Kramer. The games will not count in either's team overall record.

Florida elected not to travel to Tuscaloosa, Ala. for the series scheduled for March 17-18 due to extenuating circumstances surrounding the condition of sophomore pitcher Steve Georgiadis. Georgiadis developed complications following routine shoulder surgery March 15 and died March 17.

The SEC regular-season championship and six-league tournament participants are determined by each team's winning percentage in league play.

"I think it is unfortunate for the league this year in that it can affect virtually every team in the league this year on the outcome," Madison said. "I don't think that we should make the situation bigger than the incident that created the situation."

"It is a horrible thing to happen. I just really think that they should have made the games up. ... I would be the same for both teams."

"But it is out of my control and I can only control my team. We can only control what we do."

playing for the University of Kentucky next year," Pitino said. "He'll certainly be here ... but there are certain players on our basketball team I want to overachieve academically as well as athletically. He's not underachieving, but he's not overachieving."

He said Woods had a 2.0 grade-point average last semester, but has not met Pitino's personal standards.

"Sean tells me he's working as hard as he's ever worked in the classroom, and I told him, that's the problem," Pitino said. "Your standards aren't lofty enough."

"I don't redshirt any players for physical reasons, but I will redshirt them for academic reasons."

"Pitino said he was disappointed that the NCAA Rules Committee did not move the three-point line back. He said the 19-9 arc has altered the philosophy of the game."

"College basketball is turning into what professional basketball was seven or eight years ago—it's exciting, but ...," Pitino said. "I think we have mediocre shooters shooting it and the scores are way too high."

"It's almost like Magic (Johnson's) summer league with some of the scores."

"I think if we get the line back where the philosophies are once again attack the goal ... then I think it will be the strategy of time, place and situation to when you take that three," he added. "... But we are certainly still going to take it 25 to 30 times a game even if they move it back to the NBA level—that's our philosophy."

"Pitino said he was actually glad to see Leonard Hamilton get the top job at Miami University because star recruit Gimel Martinez had not signed with the Cats."

"I was extremely happy to see Leonard get that job," he said. "... One thing about Leonard is that he's working for Miami but there's still a part of Leonard Hamilton that bleeds blue."

"I knew he would put in the call, but I knew he wasn't going to really push (Martinez) hard."

"Pitino said everyone at UK is excited about the work of Host Communications and everybody to get the (Wildcat football and basketball) games" on WHAS-AM radio, a 50,000-watt clear-channel station.

"Pitino also announced that graduate assistant Billy Donovan will be elevated to a full-time position, but Pitino said he will also hire another assistant coach."

One name the UK coach said is a possibility is Bill Burke, a former Pitino assistant at Boston University.

ers in singles and Georgia won three of them."

Georgia's momentum started at No. 1 as Al Parker, one of the best singles players in the country, squeaked by UK's John Yancey 7-6, 7-5. Georgia's Patricho Arnold beat UK's No. 2 Andy Potter 6-4, 6-2. UK then broke through at No. 3 singles as junior Ian Skidmore, UK's most experienced player, beat Mike Morrison 7-5, 6-0.

The Bulldogs were up 4-2 in singles and clinched the match with a win at No. 3 doubles as Arnold and Morrison teamed up to beat two of UK's freshmen, Jon Venson and Phil Whitesell 6-4, 7-5.

In that clinching match Venson thought UK's erratic serve was the difference.

"We served up and down," Venson said of his team's performance at the Downing Outdoor Complex. "At times our serve was better than theirs and at certain times it was worse. I think they broke Phil four times on the serve. They were just much more consistent today."

UK's No. 1 doubles team of Yancey and Skidmore defeated Georgia's Parker and Murphy Jensen 6-4, 6-4. While the win did not effect the overall outcome of the match, it was a big win as Georgia's No. 1 doubles team was ranked eighth in the country.

The final three matches for the Cats have them taking on South Carolina at home and then Auburn University and the University of Mississippi Rebels on the road.

"If we play the way we can, we can win all three of the matches,"

Venson said. "But if we play like we've been playing then we could lose all three of them. When we play as well as we can we're top five, when we play this way we're barely top 20."

Coupled with Friday's 5-2 loss to the University of Florida, the Cats' record now stands at 13-11 and 1-6 in the Southeastern Conference.

That's a long way from the beginning. Early in the season, the Cats were ranked in the top 10. Not many people would have predicted UK to be so tough after losing three seasoned veterans from last year's team.

But the Cats main pitfalls in the recent slump have been a lack of experience in the strongest tennis conference in the country.

"We're a younger team without a lot of experience," Venson said. "We've got four freshmen, three sophomores and a junior. It's just been a tough year and the SEC is a tough conference. I think that eight of the teams have been in the top twenty this year. A month ago we were in the top ten and perhaps had an outside shot at the NCAA's."

While the team doesn't have a stand-out player, Skidmore feels that his team works hard to compensate for lacking a superstar.

"This year we're just a lot younger," Skidmore said. "We don't really have a lot of top people, but we do have a lot of hard workers."

Although the SEC is a tough conference Potter, has enjoyed playing in the conferences and thinks it makes the Cats better.

"The competition is great," Potter said. "If you can't beat these teams then there's no purpose in going to the NCAA's. The competition makes you better."

surface was muddy and Summer Squall faced it equally as well. The colt has never faced a fast track around two turns before.

"I'm not too sure of how much a fast track moves him up," said Summer Squall trainer Neil Howard. "This horse doesn't have to take his track with him. To be perfectly honest with you I think he's better on a (fast) track."

After two successful prep races in the mud, other parties are hoping that Churchill Downs is bright and dry on the first Saturday in May.

"I did not feel like he (Land Rush) would like this race track, and his action was a little higher than usual coming down the backstretch," said Land Rush trainer D. Wayne Lukas. "Let's hope we get a fast track for the Derby."

Land Rush, under the handling of rider Angel Cordero, Jr., had a head's lead at the half-mile pole and strongly finished second, adding to trainer D. Wayne Lukas' stable of Derby talent.

"I just wanted this to be a step forward," said Lukas, who also trains Derby hopefuls Hail Atlantis and Real Cash. "I like our position very well. I think he has got a lot of room for improvement."

Unbridled, the second choice in the betting, trailed the first half mile before coming on through the stretch for a third place finish.

"Absolutely tickled with the race," said Unbridled trainer Carl Nafziger, who scratched stablemate Top Snob for the race earlier in the day. "This moves him forward and all systems are go. I thought Craig (Perret) rode him just right and you can't knock a horse for only getting beat three and three quarter lengths by Summer Squall. He ran a super race on a track he liked, and a track our horse probably didn't like."

Finishing fourth in the race was Shot Gun Scott and the leader at the break from the gate, Iskandar Elakbar, finished last. Also scratched from the field was Slew of Angels.

Summer Squall is by Storm Bird and out of Weekend Surprise who was sired by Triple Crown champion Secretariat. Summer Squall's time of 1:48 and 3/5 seconds was only one and 1/5 seconds off the Stakes record by Round Table in 1957.

And as surely as his grandsire led the stretch drive in the Derby, Summer Squall's camp envisions similar glory in Louisville.

"After we won the Jim Beam and Mr. Campbell and I thought this might be serious," Howard said.

"I'm elated, relieved and we'll start worrying about the next town tomorrow," Campbell said.

The race was worth $284,625, of which $185,006 goes to Summer Squall's owners. The Derby is May 5.

UK organizations need good leaders not lame ducks

As spring semesters draw to a close, most student organizations select new leaders for the next academic year. The Student Government Association, Student Activities Board, Student Organizations Assembly, the Student Development Council, the Interfraternity and Panhellenic councils and the Kentucky Kernel have either elected or chosen their leaders for the 1990-91 academic year. Today, the managers of WRFL-FM and the Kentuckian will be selected.

Choosing new leaders in the spring creates a few lame ducks around campus, but it also gives next year's students a chance to prepare for their terms as leaders.

Being chosen an organization's leader is something to be proud of. But it is not something to take lightly, either.

As one candidate for the Student Activities Board said last week, it's easy for some students simply to sit back and relax once they have been chosen for a leadership position to put on their resume.

Being the leader of an organization is a tremendous responsibility. In addition to being responsible to your own constituents, there is the challenge of working with other student groups to make the campus more unified.

As the leader of an organization, it is easy to ignore the rest of the campus and be concerned with only your organization. But in order for the Lexington Campus to feel more like a community, it is important that the leaders of all organizations work with one another and engage in active dialogue about ways to improve the University's quality of life and bring the many diverse groups together.

While special-interest organizations, like IFC and Panhellenic, may not have a direct impact on non-greek residence hall students, the organization's actions can have an indirect impact on the campus as a whole. Those groups, then, should strive to become more integrated with campus life by working with other organizations.

It also is important that the new leaders not forget to whom they are responsible. A common complaint about many student organizations is that those organizations are too inward-looking and that they neglect the average student's concerns.

Therefore, as student leaders assume their respective offices during the next couple of months, it is important that students remain high on each organization's agenda. And it is equally important that students remind organizations about their responsibilities and duties.

A lot of exciting things are happening at UK, and if student leaders work well with one another the possibilities for greater things can be limitless.

Kernel Topic: Pockets

The kangaroo has one. The pelican does too. Nature saw to it that certain animals were created with attached carrying cases. Humanity was slightly less fortunate in this regard and forced us to rely on invention to mimic this wonder.

Though pouches and sacks existed well before they "became one with the tunic," in the name of the pocket, they were not quite as convenient. Even today, folks know the hassle of leaving behind one's backpack or purse. A pocket, which is used for smaller things, keeps essentials on your person, is a bit harder to misplace from oneself.

Created out of necessity to carry one's things, pockets are surprisingly overlooked. They are noticed, like most things, only when they are missing.

Just watch a pocketless person try to find a place for dangling limbs: hands held across the chest, hands held behind the back, in front, resting on hips, blah, blah, blah.

Preceding the glorious invention of the pocket was the mid-13th century fitchet, a vertical slit in a tunic which enabled a hand to pass through it to a purse or keys hung from one's girdle.

Nifty bit of trivia I know. In the 16th century what we today call a pocket, a type of cloth sack sewn to one's outfit, was attached to men's garb.

In the 13th century when new sorts of carrying cases were being tested, there came into fashion huge pouch-like sleeves, called "the Devil's receptacle," since they were handy for folks with "sticky fingers."

Times really do not change. Some folks take advantage of the invention and put more than their own belongings in their pockets. Just the other day, I watched some fellow fill his oversized pockets with candy. Good grief, talk about "tally."

I am not particularly fond of large pockets.

One summer I was wearing a pair of shorts with these well-endowed pockets and because my essentials - money and driver's license - were prone to falling out of the pockets, I gave those things to a friend to hold for me.

Unfortunately, when that friend left, I forgot to collect them. As luck would have it, I was pulled over for my lack of driving skill and had to convince the cop that I existed. (To make matters worse, the police station could not find record of my permit. Swell.)

Luckily, the cop figured that "Monzingo" is not a name someone pulls from the air, and he let me go.

So much for that pockets story.

Yes, I am rather fond of the invention of attached carrying cases. And, should my little essay not have swayed you to the same opinion, think about it again when you try to put your hands into pocketless garb.

Catherine Monzingo is a history sophomore and a Kernel columnist.

Kernel Checklist

A weekly service of the Viewpoint Page to keep its readers abreast of the hot items of the universe.

✓ A New Beginning? 1990 General Assembly. Frankfort, Ky., is a lot quieter now than it had been for the last 90 days, as the General Assembly adjourned Friday. While the controversy over cock-fighting was one of this session's highlights, the 1990 General Assembly will be remembered in history books as the time when education in Kentucky was turned on its head. It's hard to find many people who are skeptical about the education package, but Kentucky has a history of placing personal interests above re-educating the state's children and changing that attitude is going to take much more than money. Local school districts must become imbued with a sense of commitment to education. Stranger things have happened.

✓ Dirty Pictures. Mapplethorpe Exhibit. The Cincinnati Contemporary Arts Center got some free publicity last week when the opening of Robert Mapplethorpe's exhibit was closed down and then reopened because of seven controversial pictures. As protesters stood outside the museum trying to close down the exhibit, the freedom they enjoyed to picket was protected by the same constitution that allowed Mapplethorpe to express himself in his art.

✓ Stand Up And Cheer. UK Cheerleaders. The UK cheerleaders finished second in the nation last week at the National Championships for the second consecutive year. Although most of their energy is devoted to cheering for other people, it is nice to see the cheerleaders get some credit for their own talent and school spirit.

Drinking to impairment is a large risk

Dear Counselor,

Some of my friends get drunk several times a week and party all the time. I drink only on weekends and seldom really get blasted. I know my friends are at high risk for alcohol-related problems, however I feel that an occasional binge doesn't pose any real risk. Am I right? The Weekend Binger

Dear Binger,

I am glad you understand that regularly drinking to impairment (impairment is defined as any slowing of the mental and physical functions beyond the initial relaxation effect of alcohol) increases your risk for alcohol-related problems. Furthermore, I can understand your hope that the risk for alcohol-related problems can be totally avoided by drinking to impairment less often.

It seems drinking to impairment is so accepted and encouraged by our society that a lot of students do not associate any risk with it at all. As a result of this lack of perceived risk, the belief that "it can't happen to me" is widespread. On campus, one may regularly encounter students who firmly believe they can drink in whatever quantity and frequency they choose, and not be at risk for any problems. Thus, in light of society's attitudes about drinking, I can understand your desire for some "No Risk" form of drinking to impairment to exist.

To answer your question, it would be helpful to look at the findings of some available research.

What is risky about drinking to impairment?

✓ Drinking to impairment regularly or occasionally can increase your tolerance to alcohol. Tolerance is a measure of how your body has adapted to alcohol. Increased tolerance allows you to drink larger amounts of alcohol without becoming impaired. High tolerance is always a sign of increased risk for alcoholism.

✓ You are at increased risk for impairment-related problems.

✓ Driving-while-impaired is the leading cause of death for young adults between 16-25 years of age. ✓ The age group between 16-25 years represents over 30 percent of all driving while impaired convictions in Kentucky.

✓ A recent Towson State University survey of undergraduates at colleges across the country found a link between crimes such as sexual assault, vandalism, armed robbery, and theft and alcohol/drug use. About 36 percent of the students who reported they had committed crimes revealed they had been using alcohol at the time. In addition, 46 percent of the students who reported being victims of crime revealed they had been using alcohol or other drugs before the crime was committed.

✓ Drinking an average of three or more drinks per day is associated with poor grades among college students.

✓ Drinking to impairment is associated with decreased abstract thinking abilities.

✓ Drinking large amounts of alcohol infrequently is more physically harmful than drinking small amounts of alcohol (one to two drinks) daily.

✓ Signs of liver damage have been documented in non-alcoholics even after short periods of drinking.

✓ Alcohol and other drug use is associated with high risk sexual behavior.

✓ Drinking to impairment is associated with decreased use of automobile safety belts. ✓ Individuals with a family history of alcoholism have increased biological risk for alcoholism, and face greater risks from drinking to impairment.

✓ Alcohol has a more impairing effect on women than on men. Women also have higher risks for alcohol-related health problems than men.

✓ At present, research has not defined any safe level of alcohol consumption during pregnancy.

This is a short list from a long list of risks associated with alcohol use and drinking to impairment. The available evidence does not appear to support your hope that the risks for developing alcohol problems can be avoided by drinking to impairment less often. On the contrary, the research indicates that drinking to impairment on any occasion poses many significant risks. A "No Risk" form of alcohol impairment does not exist.

Many of us fail to recognize that alcohol is a powerful sedative-hypnotic drug. It is very similar in chemical make-up to another powerful sedative-hypnotic — valium. I have heard many physicians call valium alcohol in pill form and vice versa. I think most people accept that valium is a potent drug, and that valium use, whatever the frequency, has high risks associated with it. I feel that most people do not believe that they can drive a car after taking valium, or take valium in any amount and/or frequency they choose and not be at risk for developing a problem. It seems ironic that our attitudes about alcohol are so different.

If you would like more information about how to assess your risk factors for developing alcohol and other drug problems and, more importantly, learn how to prevent such problems, contact Todd Warnick, Certified Chemical Dependency Counselor at the Counseling and Testing Center.

Students who wish to address these issues can come by the UK Counseling and Testing Center, 301 Frazee Hall, or call, 257-8701. If you have a problem you would like addressed, write to the Counselor's Corner, 301 Frazee Hall, UK, Lexington, Ky., 40506-0031.

Significance of government's education bill undeniable

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Notes and quotes as the 1990 General Assembly fades into history.

Even though the ceremony surrounding the signing of House Bill 940 may have been blown somewhat out of proportion, the significance of the legislation to rebuild Kentucky schools was undeniable.

Superintendents from around the state were invited to the Farnham Dudgeon Civic Center, attendance was required for members of Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's cabinet and hundreds of school children were summoned to fill out the crowd.

Wilkinson and members of the Task Force on Education Reform took center stage for the roles they had in passing the complex and politically sensitive legislation.

Others who attended tried to bask in some of the reflected glory—even if they may not quite have deserved it.

Seated in the front row of the permanent seats at the civic center was Rep. Tony Curtsinger, a freshman Republican representative from Lexington. Curtsinger, like most of his GOP colleagues, voted against HB940.

Curtsinger found no inconsistency in voting against the bill and horking in on the publicity for its signing.

Curtsinger insisted he did not vote against the bill, only against the $1.3 billion tax increase. It appeared to make little difference to him that the two items were the same thing.

Republicans in the legislature often take just such a broad view of things. Most of them, for example, find nothing contradictory about voting against taxes and voting for the budget bill to spend as much money as the state can find.

It is an age-old formula for reelection. It is also misleading, deceptive, hypocritical and deceitful.

There was a deeper meaning in the signing ceremony for some who attended.

Seven-year-old Britney Cinnamon was there with her second grade classmates from Saffell Street School in Lawrenceburg.

And what was Britney doing at the Farnham Dudgeon Civic Center?

"Watching the governor sign this piece of paper."

What piece of paper?

"The bill."

And what is a bill?

"It's a thing that you give gas stations instead of cash."

The General Assembly spends lots of time, and especially lots of money, worrying about economic development. There is, after all, nothing like the political windfall of a few more jobs in the home district.

In Frankfort, the legislature has become an employment center all on its own.

A few hundred temporary employees are hired for the four-and-a-half month session and another 500 or so lobbyists crowd into the halls, searching for a legislative ear to bend. All of those interested parties want to keep track of the inner workings of the legislature. Now they have a new source for that information. Sort of.

It is called Kentucky Roll Call and bills itself as, "The weekly insiders newsletter on Kentucky government, politics and business."

Suffice to say the Roll Call did not have an auspicious debut.

later, a revised version was issued that had the correct spelling of the governor's name.

But even that one had some problems. It referred to Senate President Pro Tem John "Eck" Rose as a Montgomery County resident, which may come as something of a surprise to his Clark County neighbors.

In later issues, Wilkinson's name was spelled correctly, but gubernatorial names still proved to be a problem. The April 6 edition refers to Martha Lane Collins instead of Martha Layne Collins.

UK Celebrates Thirty Fifth Annual Greek Week

Greeks Show Talent at Chi Omega "Sing"

Stephanie Trosper/Holly Singleton
Alpha Delta Pi

The 17th annual Chi Omega Greek Sing was again a great success with 28 fraternities and sororities participating. The event was held in Memorial Coliseum on March 22 with 1,600 people attending. The amount of hard work and time put forth by the Greek community was seen in the overall quality of the production. According to the chairman of Greek Sing, Lisa Bramble: "It's a lot of work, but it's all worth it in the end," because $2,000 was raised for the Children's Miracle Network.

Alpha Gamma Delta won the sorority division with their rendition of 60s songs in their act "Woodstock". Members dressed in 60s attire and sang songs such as "Feelin' Groovy", "Age of Aquarius", and "Let the Sun Shine". The Alpha Gams began practicing before Spring Break and practiced every night before Greek Sing. A member of Alpha Gamma Delta, Janelle Ogden, said, "I was really happy because we all worked so hard to get it together. Everyone put out their best effort to make it to all of the practices."

Phi Kappa Tau, overall winner of the Greek Sing for the fifth year in a row, also spent numerous hours preparing their act. Members of Phi Kappa Tau, Jim Neal and Chris Eddy, choreographed the two dances performed in their act. The dancers practiced for three weeks and the band for a month.

Interim President Meets the Greeks

Charles Wethington is familiar with college life around the state of Kentucky. He has attended both a small private college, Brescia, and a larger public institution, Eastern Kentucky University, where he received his B.A. in English and History. After serving in the Air Force, Wethington came to UK where he received his M.A. and his doctoral degree in Educational Psychology.

Although he is familiar with the University, serving as Chancellor of its community college system from 1982 until 1989, UK's interim president is still learning about the UK Greek system.

Neither Wethington nor his wife, Judy, were involved in Greek organizations while in college. However, their daughter, Lisa, was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta while at UK, and their son Kennan was president of Sigma Chi at the University of Richmond at Virginia.

"My emotional interest is positive," Wethington said. "I see Greek organizations as being helpful, but I need to get better acquainted with those at UK before rating them from one to 10."

In an effort to get better acquainted, Wethington attended ceremonies during Greek Week. On Wednesday, April 4, he attended the Apple Polishing Party at the Faculty Club, meeting and conversing with Greek leaders from many chapters, he also provided the opening remarks at the Greek Banquet on April

SGA Hunger Cleanup Helps the Homeless

Saturday, April 7, volunteers across the country participated in the National Hunger Cleanup. The Hunger Cleanup is a philanthropic event run by the National Students Campaign Against Hunger and Homelessness.

At UK, over 140 students participated by working from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in Community Kitchen, God's Pantry, or the Horizon Center, by visiting Homestead Nursing Home, or cleaning Woodland Park.

Rob Lohman, a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, coordinated UK's Hunger Cleanup. Lohman learned about the Cleanup at a leadership conference in Washington D.C. last October.

According to Lohman, Students Campaign Against Hunger and Homelessness is still accepting donations and will continue to do so until the end of the semester. Fifty percent of all donations will be given to organizations in Lexington such as Community Kitchen, God's Pantry, and the Horizon Center. The remaining half will go to the National Students Campaign Against Hunger and Homelessness.

Lohman said that most of the participants were members of the Greek community and he hopes "Greek participation is even greater next year." Donating money and participating by stocking shelves, bagging cornmeal, or any other type of work "increases one's value of self-worth," Lohman said.

The Students Campaign Against Hunger and will have many events like the Hunger Cleanup throughout the year.

Death of Pisacano Saddens Community

Kym Vorhees
Alpha Xi Delta

The death of Dr. Nicholas J. Pisacano on Sunday, March 11, touched a special place in the hearts of UK students, faculty, and alumni alike.

The university lost an irreplaceable asset, and the UK Greek community lost a valuable and cherished friend.

Pisacano served as the faculty advisor for Delta Delta Delta sorority the past 25 years. He supplied assistance, advice, and counseling when the chapter needed it, according to Lucy Cox, Tri Delta chapter advisor.

"He cared so much about the girls in the Tri Delt chapter. He was like a surrogate dad," said Cox.

According to Cox, Pisacano went out of his way to show an interest in the students. He would often write letters of recommendation to graduate schools for girls in the chapter.

Pisacano was a graduate of Western Maryland College where he was an Alpha Tau Omega, and Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia.

In 1962, he left his native Philadelphia to join the UK faculty.

Pisacano was appointed to the Board of Trustees in 1987 by former Gov. Martha Layne Collins, and served as chairman of the university's hospital board, and as a member of the UK Athletics Association Board of Directors. He also served other positions during his 28 years at UK.

Many students will remember Pisacano as the instructor of "Introduction to Human Biology and Health," a course he taught from the time he arrived at UK until his death. He taught the course the last 11 years without pay. "He had a special magic with students," said Cox. "His death has left a big void." Pisacano died of a heart attack at his home. He was 65.

Heated SGA Election Brings Excitement to Campus

Tonya McComas
Delta Gamma

As Student Government Association election time drew near, UK's campus once again became submerged in colorful flyers.

During the two election days, March 28 and 29, eager candidates took advantage of the between-class rushes of students, encouraging students to vote by handing out flyers endorsing a specific person or ticket.

But the list of candidates can prove confusing, along with their campaign platforms.

Some of this confusion was relieved during the debate on Monday, March 19, which was sponsored by the Greek Political Action Committee. At the debate, involving SGA presidential and vice-presidential candidates, the student body was invited to familiarize itself with the candidates; students even received the opportunity to ask questions.

The SGA senate race was a different matter. Candidates were given space in the campus newspaper, the Kentucky Kernel, to outline their platforms and make their faces known to students by individual photographs.

Due to a close presidential election, election results weren't tallied until early morning on March 30.

Incumbent Sean Lohman at first appeared to defeat Dale Baldwin by more than 100 votes for the SGA Presidency, but after the Lexington Community College votes were included Lohman defeated Baldwin by a mere 27 votes, making the race one of the closest in SGA history.

Sarah Coursey defeated Chris Woolums by more than 400 votes in a tight race for vice-president.

Those receiving the vote for senator-at-large were: Beasley, Blackman, Boyd, Bullock, Coleman, Davenport, Goodwin, McCollough, Mussler, Payne, Pride, Putman, Rasnik, Smiley, and Updike.

After the results of the SGA presidential election were finalized April brought more controversy as Lohman and Baldwin accused each other of violating various election rules.

Nevertheless, the SGA Election Board ruled that Sean Lohman would remain the victor, saying that the alleged violations had no effect on the election's outcome.

GPAC endorsement recipients Sean Lohman, back for his second term as SGA president, and Sarah Coursey, serving her first term as vice-president, are in the Student Government Association cockpit along with their slogan, "Students First."

Although SGA elections were marked by fewer candidates than previous years, along with lower vote turnout, they still proved to bring an element of excitement to the campus.

Sigma Kappa in the Game at University of Kentucky

Kelly Kirby
Sigma Kappa

Reprinted from the Sigma Kappa National Magazine, The Triangle

UK students were talking about it, getting excited about it, even cheering about it; and this time it wasn't UK basketball, it was Sigma Kappa.

Kelly Kirby and Stacy Paxson, chapter consultants, arrived on campus September 10 to begin public relations week. It was the first quarter in the all-important game for Sigma Kappa at the University of Kentucky! We quickly assumed the lead by papering the campus with posters, table tents, and "Go Sigma Kappa" buttons. Greeks and non-Greeks flooded Sigma Kappa's information table asking for buttons and information on the upcoming events. The excitement was mounting, and on September 17, 1989 over 250 women crowded into the Student Center Ballroom for the information party. When the buzzer sounded on September 22 Sigma Kappa had 90 pledges.

The second quarter started rapidly with the Panhellenic Walk-a-Thon the day after pledging. The colony didn't stop moving the entire semester. They participated at every Greek activity sponsored on campus. They also engaged in many sisterhood events, such as a sisterhood retreat where they set goals for the colony and wrote songs and skits. The Bluegrass Alum Group hosted the Founder's Day banquet and the pledges sold lollipops on campus. A high scoring event, Heart Sister party, occurred right before half-time.

Kelly Kirby, chapter consultant, explained their strategy during half-time. "These women had set a blistering pace with campus activities and study hours, so I wanted to slow them down long enough to reward their efforts and have fun with each other. It really paid off because they are learning more about each other and our sisterhood is growing."

The third quarter flew by for the team, with Inspiration Week upon them. With all the energy and excitement on the court, the initiation team was busy on the sideline preparing for the formal initiation.

Lead by Anne Dale, the team consisted of: Sheila Barnes, Judy O' Daniel, Sandy Anderson, Grace Miller, Gwen Cecil, and Kelly Kirby.

The day they prepared for was finally a reality on February 10, 1990 when 66 women became initiates of the Theta Pi chapter of Sigma Kappa.

Many individuals attended the banquet at the Radisson Plaza Hotel. For the initiates, parents and friends were present. Distinguished guests included The Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs, Dr. James Kuder, Susan West the Dean of Sororities, and Diana Goetz President of Panhellenic. Dr. Kuder encouraged the women to always remember the vows they had taken and to continue the success they had already displayed at UK. Renee Davis is president of the Theta Pi chapter. Theta Pi is the youngest sorority at UK and the youngest chapter in Sigma Kappa.

For the dedicated Sigma Kappa Advisory Board and for the Sigma Kappa national sorority Theta Pi was the birth of a long awaited dream.

TKE "Doesn't Forget," Works to Improve Conditions in Eastern Kentucky

Julie Knippenberg
Sigma Kappa

Fraternities and sororities host many worthwhile events, raising large amounts of money for numerous philanthropies. The Lip Sync co-sponsored by Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity is one such event.

Money that was raised through the event was given to the Christian Appalachian Project.

Several members of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity were from Eastern Kentucky and were familiar with the charity, however they would soon learn more about the region and the philanthropy they were supporting.

John Lewis, president of Tau Kappa Epsilon, was returning to campus from a trip to Louisville when he stopped at a rest area. He noticed a booklet entitled, "God Can Move Mountains," which described Eastern Kentucky.

Soon after reading the booklet, Lewis viewed a CBS special entitled

"The Land that Time Forgot," a documentary produced by the television show 48 Hours, describing the poor conditions in Muddy Gut, Kentucky.

The combination of these two pieces about Eastern Kentucky inspired Lewis, and Ryan Ramsey, TKE's social service chairman, to begin looking for ways that Tau Kappa Epsilon could help the region.

The two contacted Daryl Combs and Rose Price with the Christian Appalachian Project and volunteered the services of the fraternity in Muddy Gut. Soon they were on their way to Eastern Kentucky.

They were joined by volunteers from Ohio and Georgia; together they began cleaning up rural roads cluttered with garbage.

The group also planted grass seed and rebuilt a stone retainer wall. The wall was instrumental in preventing further erosion to a hillside which served as support for many homes.

Lewis felt Eastern Kentucky was portrayed in an unfair manner in the 48

Hour documentary, "It was presented in a demeaning tone, rather than one that was thought-provoking and helpful. Several of our members are from Eastern Kentucky and they certainly don't live like the individuals portrayed in the documentary."

Tau Kappa Epsilon plans to use the money from the Lip Sync contest each fall to continue the efforts began in Eastern Kentucky. "Time doesn't forget, people forget," Lewis explained.

Tau Kappa Epsilon extends an open invitation to anyone interested in joining the clean-up effort next fall. "When you get a chance to make a difference you feel pretty good," commented Ramsey.

Tau Kappa Epsilon proved that fraternities at UK can make a difference; they went the extra mile.

Pledges Compete in Spring Version of Fratman's Classic

Carla Wilson

Chi Omega

On March 23, the bleachers at Shively Field were filled with fraternity members cheering for their pledge classes, as they participated in the 14th annual Delta Zeta Fratman's Classic.

Delta Zeta sorority hosted events such as the relay race, 100-yard dash, obstacle course, wheel barrel race, and the featured tug-of-war.

Delta Zeta officially began the festivities on March 21 with a scavenger hunt; pledges from spring and fall pledge classes teamed up to search for 27 items on and off campus.

Although it was a tight race, Phi Kappa Psi's pledges emerged victorious.

Prior to the track-and-field events at Shively Field a spirit competition was held. Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler and Dean Ron Lee and Dean Susan West judged Pi Kappa Alpha as the fraternity with the most creative cheer and spirit.

The two members of Delta Zeta in charge of the event said that the purpose of the Fratman's Classic was not only to bring pledge classes from different fraternities together to compete, but to raise money for Delta Zeta's many philanthropies.

Each year the money earned through the event goes to the Gallaudet University for Speech and Hearing in Washington D.C., as well as the Lexington School for Speech and Hearing, and the Kentucky School for the Deaf in Danville, Kentucky.

The philanthropies are funded by the sale of T-shirts and by Delta Zeta's Mr. Fratman contest.

Each individual fraternity selects a pledge representative for the contest. The representative has his picture taken and placed on a jar in which donations are collected by fraternity members. This year, Phi Kappa Psi's Chris Porter received the most donations and was named Mr. Fratman.

UK's chapter of Delta Zeta began hosting the Fratman's Classic 14 years ago, and it has continued to thrive throughout the years.

The project has been so successful that Delta Zeta chapters across the state host a Fratman's Classic every year to raise money for their individual philanthropies, due to the success of the event at UK.

As the sun began to set and the dust had settled, three fraternity pledge classes walked away with overall awards; Pi Kappa Alpha was first, Kappa Alpha Psi placed second, and Kappa Alpha finished in third place.

Delta Zeta thanks all the fraternity pledge classes that participated, and looks forward to the next Fratman's Classic.

Greek Man and Greek Woman of 1990

Breck Thomas
Alpha Omicron Pi

The highest honor an individual Greek can receive is given annually at Greek Banquet.

Greek Man and Woman of the Year are chosen by the presidents of all fraternities and sororities. This year Kurt Hamon of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity and Ellen Duncan of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority were selected by their peers to receive this prestigious honor.

Ellen Duncan, Alpha Omicron Pi

Duncan is currently serving on GASC as the screening chairperson. She also served as chairperson of Greek Week.

During her junior year, she was the secretary for GASC. Duncan has also been a rush counselor.

In her sorority, she was First Vice-President/Pledge Trainer. As Philanthropy Chairperson, Duncan organized Casino Night during Alcohol Awareness Week and the Twister Tournament to help benefit the March of Dimes. She has also served as activities chairperson and elections chairperson for Alpha Omicron Pi. "It is more flattering than anything to think that my peers feel that I'm deserving of such an award, this means more than receiving the award itself," said Duncan.

She is happy to have taken part in the Greek system and believes she has benefited a great deal from being a leader in the system. Duncan said she learned how to work well with others to attain goals that would help the Greek community as a whole.

Duncan also believes the award was a high point during her senior year. But she is even happier that Greek Week was a success, winning the award was an added bonus. She hoped that the Greek system and her chapter benefited from her leadership.

"I want to thank all the people on GASC, I could not have done it without them," Duncan said.

Kurt Hamon, Phi Kappa Tau

Hamon is currently the chairman of the Greek Activities Steering Committee. He was elected president of his fraternity as a sophomore during which time he helped them through the rough times of their probation. While president, Hamon was selected to be one of three undergraduate national counselors for Phi Kappa Tau. He also serves on the Executive Director's National Advisory Board for his fraternity.

As President, Hamon was a member of the Interfraternity Council and helped to shape the Greek community's alcohol policy. He served on the IFCs Judicial Board as well as the Expansion Committee. Hamon also has been chosen by Sen. Mitch McConnell to serve as the Greek liaison for the senator's re-election.

"Winning was a great honor. I could not have done it without the support of my fraternity and GASC," Hamon said. Hamon believes the award is undoubtedly the climax of his senior year. He is a little sad about leaving, however. Worrying about the success of the newly elected GASC members is already on Hamon's mind. He wishes the new members good luck and hopes they have a great year.

Hamon felt very honored to have been nominated by so many chapters. He became close to many chapters and is thankful to have gotten the chance to help those he could.

"I want to thank everyone I've worked with over the years and thank those chapters who nominated me," Hamon said.

As for the futures of the two winners, they are extremely bright.

The Greek Man of the Year will be attending graduate school at Florida State University next year. He plans to study international affairs and will be interning at the House of Representatives in Florida.

The Greek Woman of the Year will move to Washington D.C. this summer. She plans to attend graduate school in the spring and study public administration.

Mattresses Sighted Rolling Around K-Lot Clay Edwards Alpha Tau Omega

On Friday, April 6, to wind up Greek Week at UK, Phi Kappa Tau fraternity held the Mattress Marathon, it's philanthropic event.

Each fraternity is paired with a sorority and makes a bed, with Phi Kappa Tau supplying the wheels.

The Mattress Marathon consists of three events; the 100 yard dash, the 100 yard slalom, and the marathon - a 1/2 mile course.

In the 100 yard dash a fraternity and sorority member ride in the bed while three fraternity members and three sorority members push the bed 100 yards.

During the slalom, four cones are placed 20 yards apart. Beds start on the right side of the cones and alternate in and out of the cones down the course. A member from each fraternity and sorority ride in the bed while two members from each fraternity and sorority push the bed through the course.

The marathon is a grueling 1/2 mile course. During the men's marathon five fraternity members push the bed half of the course and a second five member team finishes the course. The individual Greek Week 1990 got off to a tasty start with "Twinkie Time" in sorority circle on Monday, April 2. But the next day was a different story.

Tuesday, April 3 was the day of the second annual Phi Kappa Psi Chariot Race. There were no desserts waiting in Clifton Circle for the participating Greeks.

Instead, a mud pit was provided with the help of the Lexington Fire Department which, through the use of high pressure water hoses, created a treacherous obstacle course for the chariot racers.

The obstacle course consisted of pylons and 2x4 pieces of wood placed strategically in order to hinder the speed of the chariots.

Fraternities and sororities were paired and also competed separately in pulling the cumbersome chariots through the pit at top speed.

Each fraternity builds its own chariot and Phi Kappa Psi gives an award to the fraternity with the most outstanding chariot. This year's award went to Sigma Pi fraternity.

Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority and Sigma Nu fraternity were the overall paired winners. They also won individually.

- Kappa Kappa Gamma was first in the sorority division.

- Sigma Nu was first in the fraternity division.

A "Penny Wars" contest was also held to raise money for their philanthropy, the Kentucky State Boys Ranch, which is a home to many orphans.

The object of the contest is for each sorority to collect as many pennies as possible. Each sorority selects a candidate to be "Miss Olympia," and the candidate collecting the most pennies wins.

Shannon Smiley of Alpha Gamma Delta was crowned 1990 "Miss Olympia."

Russ Hoskins was in charge of the chariot race for Phi Kappa Psi. He said that although it took a great deal of team work to put the event together, he felt it was worth the effort. "We make several visits a year and really spend time with the kids," he said. "After spending time with them we get to know them and we want to help."

Fraternities and Sororities Hit the Water at Delta Gamma Anchor Splash

The first event of Greek Week, Delta Gamma Anchor Splash, took place Sunday, April 1 at the Lancaster Aquatic Center.

Anchor Splash is a national event held by Delta Gamma. This year marked the 19th annual Anchor Splash for the University of Kentucky.

"Delta Gamma was very pleased to host the event at the aquatic center. We feel the new facilities will enable us to expand Anchor Splash in the future," said Kari Goetzelman, co-ordinator of the event.

The event raised more than six hundred dollars for the Kentucky Federation of the Blind and the Delta Gamma Foundation.

Anchor Splash consisted of four activities:

- 200 medley relay
- synchronized swimming
- 100 yard sweatshirt relay
- 100 yard ping-pong relay

Each event mixed members of fraternities and sororities.

The 200 medley relay consisted of 50 yard segments of freestyle, backstroke, butterfly, and breaststroke.

Synchronized swimming consisted of groups of fraternity and sorority members joined together to perform a synchronized dance act while in the pool.

The 100 yard sweatshirt relay consisted of a four member team which switched sweatshirts after each lap completed.

The 100 yard ping-pong relay featured fraternity and sorority members holding spoons in their mouths with ping-pong balls on them. Each participant completed 25 yards.

The winners of Anchor Splash were:

- Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity
- Phi Kappa Tau and Zeta Tau Alpha were second place.
- Sigma Pi and Alpha Omicron Pi were third place.

ATO Frisbee Golf "Spins Off" to a Great Start in '90

Jimmy Gray
Sigma Alpha Epsilon

Recently at Seaton field sororities and fraternities competed against each other in a golf tournament. The only difference between this and most golf tournaments was that instead of a ball and clubs, participants used a frisbee.

The first ever ATO frisbee golf tournament was Tuesday, April 6 at three o'clock. Many fraternities and sororities participated. Poles were set up at certain distances from each other and participants threw frisbee trying to hit them. The distances on the 9-hole course varied. The holes ranged from par 3 to par 5.

The fraternities that placed were:

- Kappa Alpha in first place.
- Pi Kappa Alpha in second place.

place.

- Farmhouse in third place.

The sororities that placed were:

- Delta Gamma in first place.
- Alpha Delta Pi in second place.
- Kappa Delta in third place.

ATO activities chairman Tim Graves said, "We felt like frisbee golf was a success, but we would like to hold the event later in the spring when the weather is more cooperative."

Greeks Give Lexington New Color with ΣΝ/ΚΑΘ Adopt-A-House

Jimmy Gray
Sigma Alpha Epsilon

There are many needy families in the city of Lexington. Recently the Sigma Nu/Kappa Alpha Theta Adopt-A-House helped make these families' lives a little easier. Using the Greek system as volunteers, the Adopt-a-House program painted more than five houses this Sunday.

The state picked out the houses in Lexington that they thought needed painting, and paid for all the paint. Donations from banks as well as UK sororities and fraternities helped pay for the brushes and rollers. Each sorority and fraternity paid $25 for the equipment.

There was a turnout of around 500 volunteers. Every Greek organization was represented.

"It makes you feel great to be able to help people who are down on their luck," said January Price, the service chairman for Kappa Alpha Theta. "I was very impressed with the turnout from the Greek community."

The entire Kappa Alpha Theta chapter showed up to help make the project a success. The operation was televised on Channel 36 in Lexington.

GREEK SING

The president of Phi Kappa Tau, John Marchand, said that it was especially important to the Phi Taus that they win Greek Sing this year.

"We're trying to carry on a tradition that was started by David Owens four years ago."

Owens, a former member of Phi Tau, sang in Greek Sing for the fraternity the past four years. He was the first member to really take Greek Sing seriously and the Phi Taus knew that his leadership would be missed. Marchand said, "We wanted to prove that we could do it without Dave... we wanted to win it for him."

The Greek Sing's Master of Ceremonies, Paul Miles from WRFL, encouraged enthusiasm for Phi Tau's "Inxcessive Obsession" by reminding the crowd that Phi Tau had won Greek Sing for four years in a row. The act included two songs. The Phi Taus performed a fun dance while Mitchell Frisby sang "I'll Say Anything You Want Me To". The second part of the routine had a more serious tone as dancers dressed in black with white gloves.

Performances by second-place winners, Kappa Alpha and Kappa Kappa Gamma, were also crowd pleasers. Christy Smith, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, liked Kappa Alpha's act and thought it was "... definitely the best. It was so funny and it was really different and original."

Kappa Alpha's act definitely fit their theme song which was "Strange." Members of Kappa Alpha dressed in attire such as bath robes, cowboy hats, boxer shorts, and even had a big bird come on the stage. Such originality was also seen in the act of Kappa Kappa Gamma. They performed "Song of the S.E.C." in which they sang different songs that described each school in the Southeastern Conference. They ended their act with "My Old Kentucky Home" which the crowd really enjoyed.

The originality seen in these acts counted for 25 percent in the point distribution. Other criteria was carrying out the theme - 10 percent, enthusiasm in performance - 15 percent, group vocal quality - 30 percent, and overall music production - 20 percent. The judges were: Rock Oliver, UK strength coordinator; Sue Johnson and Todd Tyler of Southland Christian Church Music Program; James Donnelly, business professor; and Ron Smith, theater graduate student.

Pi Kappa Alpha pledge Michael Carroll said that the Pikes were happy to have won third place in the fraternity division "... because it helped to put us ahead in total Greek points while at the same time helping a good cause" Pi Beta Phi placed third in the sorority division.

Although Greek Sing is a stiff competition, it is all done in fun. Shawna Horn, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, expressed her thoughts by saying, "It's neat that event though we are all in competition with each other, we still pull together to achieve one goal."

Overall, Chi Omega Greek Sing was a lot of fun and entertainment for everyone. Susan Mohan, a member of Chi Omega, said, "We were very pleased with the turnout and are glad it was such a great success, as well as a good time for everyone who participated."

7th.

Wethington said Greeks do play a role in his plans for UK's future, "Greeks can help pull the UK community together by working with the faculty, staff and the entire student body for the good of the university." He agreed that the Greeks have strived toward this goal with the presidents of the Student Government Association and the Student Activities Board both being members of fraternities at UK.

In discussing his short term plans for the University, Wethington mentioned a possible faculty salary increase. "UK needs to attract and retain the best quality of staff for the institution in order to provide a service to the state of Kentucky. Also, there are excellent faculty and staff inside the administration who truly deserve a higher salary."

As far as long term development for UK is concerned, Wethington places "great faith" in UK's "Strategic Plan," which outlines the University's goals over the next years. He said that although there are plans underway that involve review of land use and development, this does not necessarily mean the demolishing of fraternity or sorority houses.

He emphasized that UK should support its Greek system, but Greeks must make those in administrative positions aware of their needs.

Furthermore, Wethington stated firmly that he would seek the opinions of the students.

"I assure you that students will have the opportunity for input concerning issues affecting them."

Although he believes the SGA president, Sean Lohman, a representative on the Board of Trustees, is the logical choice when gauging student opinions, Wethington said he must consider a variety of voices from student organizations and members of the student body.

The interim president also discussed the search for UK's next President. Wethington stated, "We are completely committed to a national search; we've announced the position in many national publications but we are still very early in the process of selecting a new president." Wethington said that Foster Ockerman, chairman of the BOT, announced at the April 3 meeting that the search committee had received 38 nominations and nine applications for the position. Ockerman said he expected the process to move ahead in May. Wethington believes that UK will be able to reach a decision and find a new president midway through the fall semester of 1990.

Wethington also elaborated on his role as a minority recruiter. "I must constantly affirm and reaffirm my commitment to make UK free of prejudice, to provide an environment that students, faculty and staff enjoy living and working in."

He wants to reaffirm UK's commitment to equal opportunity by enhancing awareness. "I want to set the tone and expectations from the President's office so that the faculty can do everything within their power to make all students feel comfortable. We want to treat students as individuals." The Greeks too, he said, must embrace diversity while continuing to push for an institution that is synonymous with academic excellence.

Letter to the Editor:

On the Greek Experience
 Scott Damron
 Sigma Chi

What do you think of the Greek system, and how would you define it?

Would you say that being Greek has allowed you to develop your alcohol-consuming ability or competency in social skills?

If this is all you've learned, you are missing the entire point of the Greek experience.

Being Greek means that you are part of a very special association which numbers in the millions and has been an integral part of college life for over 100 years.

Nationally, Greeks raise millions of dollars for deserving philanthropies. They dedicate millions of hours toward community and campus service, but most importantly, they offer an excellent vehicle to develop true friendships which are based on substance and accomplishment.

Greek members span the globe. They are in tremendous leadership positions and possess the ability to make things happen.

After dealing with the general Greek question, I direct your attention to something closer to home. Is it worth defending on the desks on the library study carrels or do you feel we have reached our potential? Do you often say, "I wish UK's Greek system would be more like such-and-such school's?" If so, get off your tush and make it happen.

Tell people what the experience means to you. Make your grades. Stand out in the classroom. And wear your letters with pride. Accomplishment is obtained each time you bring credit to the system.

Forget all of the slogans you memorize for your sorority or fraternity. What does being a Greek really mean to you?

Are the members in your chapter brothers and sisters on the composite or in reality? In 10 years, would you invite them to your house for dinner?

If not, I encourage you to make a "gut check" and see where you need to dedicate more time and effort. While classes and grades will one day fade, our friendships will endure.

I often look at elderly people and have the notion that they have always been old. I bet some of them had the same thoughts of elderly people when they were my age.

Take care of your business now and develop those friendships which will last a lifetime. Do something you can be proud of when you look yourself in the mirror tomorrow morning for the rest of your life.

ΦΣΚ Gears Up For Ultimate Frisbee

Bobby Meyer
 Tau Kappa Epsilon

The fifth annual Phi Sigma Kappa Ultimate Frisbee Contest was held March 27 to 29. Fourteen sororities participated in Clifton Circle and at Haggin Field while 18 fraternities participated at Commonwealth Field.

Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity sponsored the event in order to raise money for the Ronald McDonald House and The American Cancer Society. Although many of the sponsoring businesses backed out prior to the event, the Phi Sigs still managed to raise a few hundred dollars.

The winners of the event were as follows: first place went to Pi Kappa Alpha and Kappa Delta for the third year in a row, Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity placed runner-up, second place was taken by Sigma Pi and Kappa Kappa Gamma, and Alpha Delta Pi placed third.

"Even though we lost a few of our sponsors at the last minute, everything seemed to go smoothly," said Chris Woolums, chairperson of the Phi Sigma Kappa Ultimate Frisbee contest. Since 1986, when the event started, the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity has raised $8,000 total.

"The University of Kentucky Ultimate Frisbee Association mentioned that they would like to compete against the winners," said Woolums. Galen Linville assisted Woolums in preparing the event.

An ultimate frisbee team is made up of 6 to 12 players with no more than 7 players on the field at one time. The equipment used is a Wham-O 165-G frisbee disc.

There is a lot of freedom on the field, although there is no contact allowed. The playing field can consist of a grass surface, asphalt, sand or snow. The size of the playing field is 60 yards long and 40 yard wide. The game lasts for 40 minutes (20 minute halves). The players proceed down the field trying to score against the opposing team. Ultimate frisbee is very similar to football.

Ultimate Frisbee seems to be a sport filled with interest by college students. "Even though intramural sports took away from a larger crowd participating, we still had a good amount of participants," said Woolums.

Little Kentucky Derby 1990 "A Week of Excitement"

The Student Activities Board at the University of Kentucky would like to welcome you to the 34th annual Little Kentucky Derby. After months of preparation the Student Activities Board and the Little Kentucky Derby committee have finalized the details for this fabulous week long spring festival. The focus of the committee's efforts is to raise money for scholarships, while providing a variety of events and activities for the U.K. and Lexington communities. Patterned loosely after the Kentucky Derby Festival in Louisville, the Little Kentucky Derby events include 'Run for the Rose', 'Run for the Rodents', the Hot Air Balloon Rally and the Ping Pong Drop from 17 stories high.

There will also be free live music for everyone. On Thursday, April 19, Let's Active with special guest Big Wheel will perform in the Student Center Ballroom. The excitement will continue on Friday April 20, with a nostalgia concert featuring Otis Day and the Knights, from National Lampoon's Animal House fame, at E.S. Goodbarn field, beginning at 8:00 p.m.. Both concerts are free and open to the public.

A Taste of Lexington, Kite Flights, the Carnival, the Dating Game and a 5K Race are among the other activities scheduled. The week culminates on Saturday with the Hare and Hound Hot Air Balloon Race at 5:30 and the annual Bank One Blue-White Spring Football Game at 6:30.

This supplement should provide you with all the useful information that you need. If you have any questions, feel free to call the Student Activities office at 257-8867, or stop by rm. 203 in the old Student Center.

$2500 to be given in Scholarships

The Student Activities Board and GMAC will be presenting three $500 scholarships

GMAC will also be awarding a $1000 scholarship on Saturday. You can sign up to win from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on April 16 - 20, at the Student Center, and April 21 at E.S. Goodbarn Field. The scholarship winner will be drawn on Saturday April 21 at approximately 5:00 p.m., just prior to the Hare and Hound hot air balloon race.

There will be a special display of the new 1990 General Motors Line of automobiles. The Student Activities Board and GMAC would like to thank the following participating GM dealers:

The Thoroughbreds of the Skies Take Flight Over Lexington

The Little Kentucky Derby Hot Air Balloon Rally is often called a "thoroughbred race in the sky", featuring a Balloon Luminary on Friday night, Key Grab on Saturday morning, and the Hare and Hound on Saturday evening.

On Friday night from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. there will be a Balloon Luminary (tethered balloon rides). You can ascend up into the evening air, and overlook south campus. To a balloon pilot, this is called a luminary, because the balloons light up in the sky. Come ride or watch the balloons, and enjoy the live sounds of "Otis Day and the Knights."

The Key Grab pilots will assemble, at 7 a.m. on Saturday April 21, in the large field near the water tower south of Commonwealth Stadium. Here, pilots will be given a "briefing" on current weather conditions, given maps, and shown the location of a pole. On top of this 20 foot pole is a set of keys. Pilots and crew will drive away from the pole to a distance of 2 - 3 miles. From the location that the balloonist chooses, he will inflate his balloon, and attempt to navigate his craft towards the pole. The pilot who can fly over the pole and grab the keys will win $5000.

The Hare and Hound event is probably the most familiar event at rallies. It is a true test of a pilot's navigation and observation skills. To an observer, this event is the most grandious. All 19 balloons will inflate at the same time and create an everlasting picture of beauty in the minds of spectators. The first balloon, referred to as the Hare takes off in an effort to elude the other balloons, called the hounds. After 5 to 15 minutes, the Hound balloons are allowed to attempt to chase the Hare balloon. After the Hare balloon lands, the Judge lays a large "X" out in the field in which the Hare balloon lands. The Hounds attempt to throw a bag of bluegrass seed as near to the center of the "X" as possible. The pilots compete for cash prizes.

Join the fun Saturday April 21 from 5:30 to 8:30 at E.S. Goodbarn Field.

Otis My Man!

YOU MET HIM IN "ANIMAL HOUSE", NOW SEE HIM LIVE !

In his own way, Otis Day was an over-Knight success.

In 1978, Actor Dewayne Jessie assumed the role of Otis Day in the film Animal House. After appearing in Hunter S. Thompson's Where the Buffalo Roam, Car Wash, D.C. Cab, Thank God Its Friday, The Star Chamber, and Hill Street Blues, this was the next logical step for Jessie.

"I had done a few films for Universal prior to Animal House and on a Friday they called me in the office to show me the script. I started not to take it, but over the weekend I decided to do it and that's when Otis Day was born. The studio gave the name, but it took years to get the rights to the name and all legalities. We wanted to tour right after the film came out, but we couldn't."

Universal also selected the Otis Day signature covers, including "Shamalama Ding Dong," "Twist and Shout," and "Shout." In concert, Jessie expands the repertoire to include newer material, such as "The Heart of Rock and Roll" by Huey Lewis and the News and "Rock this Town" by the Stray Cats.

"You have to pay attention to the originals," says the 30-year old Jessie.

"It's like trying to be a house without a foundation. We did a video in New York with the Isley Brothers, who, of course, did "Shout." We paid homage to the Isley's in that video because a lot of people did that song first. You have to do that. How can you expect not to do that a still be cool?"

But Jessie refuses to educate his audience about the roots of soul music. "If you try to teach people, that's when they reject you. You just gotta let it come. A teacher once told me, 'I can't teach you anything; all I can do is bring out what you already have.' I let that happen. I try to bring out the beast in 'em."

On the set of Animal House, Jessie did find time to teach John Belushi a few things about soul dancing.

"He didn't know how to 'Gator. Now the real way to do the 'Gator is to get on your stomach and kick your legs up and down. I tried to show him, but camera angles made it impossible for him to do it on his stomach. So Belushi came up with this fabulous idea to do it on his back. He turned it around to work for the movie."

Otis Day's recent tour of college campuses and clubs have been receiving great responses. So great was the response in Houston that the show at Fitzgerald's (which over-sold) had to be cancelled. With only a 325 seating capacity, 700 enthusiastic fans showed up requiring the Fire Department to come in and close the club down. The club still wanted the group to play -- but to an empty house, leaving the doors and windows open for the 1,000 plus people that by now had accumulated in the street. However, for fear of a riot breaking out, the group chose not to play.

The band that is Otis Day's Knights features Jessie's niece, Miss Amelia Jessie, and his nephew Greg "The Whip" Hamley, on background vocals.

A drummer, keyboardist, bassist and guitarist fill out the band.

"I love working with my family. We can argue, cuss each other out, and we still love each other and can work together."

If you're thirsty for a toga party with just a splash of 'Gatorin, check out Otis, my man.

The Otis Day and the Knight's concert will be free to all student's and will be playing at E.S. Goodbarn field on Friday night of L.K.D from 8:00 to 10:00.

Here's a run-down of other activities brought to you by L.K.D.

From Kicks to Kites

Saturday is definitely going to be a spring day that everyone will enjoy. All of these activities are running from 12 p.m. to 4 p.m. There will be four special exhibitions, including:

- U.K. Ultimate Frisbee Club
- U.K. Volleyball Club
- Hacky-Sack Enthusiasts
- Phillip Gall's Professional Kite Flyers

Bring a baseball, bring a friend, just enjoy the sun and doing what you like to do.

A Taste of Lexington

Starting at 11 a.m. is "A Taste of Lexington" food fair. As you spend the day in the sun, there will be food and drinks available from many of Lexington's fabulous restaurants.

The Dating Game

Spring fever will be relieved by the U.K. Dating Game. Tonight at 8:00 p.m. at Memorial Hall watch students display their charm and wit while trying to get a date. It will definitely be a real scream. The emcee for this event will be the zany Professor Troland from the astronomy department. Door prizes given away to spectators include: autographed basketballs from Coach Pitino and footballs from Coach Curry. Come out and enjoy the excitement.

Run for the Rose

This year's Run for the Rose is sure to be, the best one yet in LKD's history. Will Blanding Tower win this year? At E.S. Good Barn, the fun will begin, and SAB hopes that the best team will win. Visit E.S. Good Barn field on Saturday April 21 at 12 noon.

Run for the Rodents

Come on out and join the rat race on Friday, April 20 at the student center patio. This year's Run for the Rodents will feature cute little mice frantically racing through a specially designed obstacle course. Don't miss out on all of the fun, and may the best mouse win!

Let's Active

As the producer of early R.E.M. albums, Mitch Easter's own band is definitely not one you will want to miss. After four albums, Let's Active, has matured into a band that is sure to entertain even if you are not familiar with their music. However, if you are an Active fan, then the band will play you all their best. From their latest hit album, Every Dog Has His Day, the band will play all of their biggest hits. S.A.B. has made Let's Active free to everyone. Now, how can you pass this one up? Let's Active will play Tuesday Night of L.K.D. at the Student Center Ballroom. Admission is FREE.

Up, Up, and Away!!!

Many of the events associated with the Little Kentucky Derby are associated with hot air balloons. Humans have dreamed of flight for centuries, even with the tales of Icarus in ancient Greek mythology. Over two centuries ago the world of hot air ballooning began. If you think about it, that was over 100 years before the Wright brothers thought of manned flight.

The first flight of a hot air balloon was made on the 4th of June, 1783, in Annonay, France. The balloon, which was made of paper and cloth, measured an envelope size of 800 cubic meters and was heated by building a fire which created smoke to fill the balloon.

Technology has taken its course. This year's event has two balloons which are quite unique.

For about a year now ECAM Publications (Editorial Chronique of America) has been promoting its book titles in a very unparalleled way, with a ten-story tall hot air balloon in the shape of a book!! International publisher Jacque Legrand came up with the idea after watching a balloon festival in France. So, with the help of veteran pilot Jim Schiller, the two devised the Flying Book hot air balloon tours. Three balloons, all book shaped were created by Thunder and Colt Balloon Company in England. One tours England, one France, and the other North America. The American balloon team travels the U.S. promoting two best selling books from ECAM Publications, Chronicle of the 20th Century and Chronicle of America, both of which have appeared on the New York Times best seller list.

One of the largest balloons ever created, the Early Times hot air balloon (an exact replica of the Early Times Bottle) will join other balloons at this year's Little Kentucky Derby. Piloted by Kentucky's Captain Mike Kirk, the Early Times balloon combines majestic beauty with high technology. Captain Kirk said, "The size of the Early Times balloon can make flying very challenging at times, though it's overall size and power offer many advantages." If filled with Early Times, the balloon would contain the equivalent of more than 2.5 million liters of the smooth tasting Kentucky whiskey. It's an intoxicating sight!
