They Have Earned Their "L" For Loyalty

In the November issue of the ALUMNUS we announced the inauguration of the fourth annual giving program through which alumni are privileged to participate in contributions to the Loyalty Fund.

In this issue we are announcing the establishment of the fourth annual Loyalty Fund scholarship, in the amount of $2,800, which provides an all-expense fund for four years to a deserving freshman.

It is IMPERATIVE that the giving program holds up to the standards of the past four years so that we may have adequate funds to finance these scholarships. It is the hope of the Loyalty Fund committee that alumni contributions this year will be so generous that we may establish two such scholarships in 1952-'53.

NEW CHIEF JUSTICE

(Editor's note: James S. Cammack, LL.B. '24, M.A. '29, and Ph.D., '37, took office recently as Chief Justice of the Kentucky Court of Appeals. The University is very proud of this distinguished alumnus, and we quote below an editorial from the Lexington Herald, commenting on Judge Cammack's career.)

The new chief justice of the state of Kentucky, James W. Cammack, is 48 years old, which is comparatively young for a chief justice. However, Chief Justice Cammack is not only a man of distinction, but he is one of a good deal of experience and background in public affairs. His distinguished father, the late Jame W. Cammack, was a former attorney general of Kentucky.

Justice Cammack was in 1930 director of research for the Kentucky Department of Education. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky, where he received his law degree, and he also received master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees at the University of Chicago.

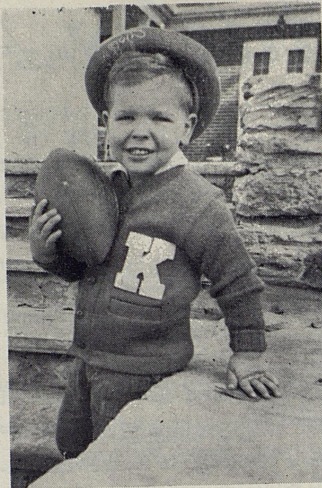

In addition to his educational and legal attainments Justice Cammack is a farmer, having farms in both Owen and Franklin counties. Engaging actively in farming is certainly a good avocation for a jurist and will add to his common-sense approach of the many problems which come before the court.

Justice Cammack is highly respected and in entering service on Kentucky's appellate court did so, as of course all members do, at a sacrifice. He willingly has undertaken this service as a public career and no doubt will make a splendid record as chief justice.

SCORE 13 TO SEVEN— ALUMNI IN HEAVEN

(With proper apologies to

Oh, the sun shines ever brightest in Kentucky; and the Wildcat hearts are lightest in Kentucky. For the Sooner streak is ended in a manner that was splendid and our winning ways are mended, in Kentucky. Even moonlight falls the softest, in Kentucky, and the cheers ring out the ofttest in Kentucky. For the sugar tastes the sweetest where YOWARSKY is the fleetest and PARRILLI is the neatest, in Kentucky. CLARK and JAMERSON and FUCCI, of Kentucky, carve a gridiron upset juicy, for Kentucky. BRYANT beams on his eleven, for the score's 13 to 7 and alumni are in heaven, in Kentucky.

What's Wrong With Us?

(Editor's note: In the November issue of the KENTUCKY ALUMNUS we announced that succeeding issues would carry a column of constructive criticism from alumni, faculty and friends. The following letter is the only comment we have received so far and is an interesting and informative as well as helpful letter. Let's have more like this one!)

Dec. 8, 1930

Dear Miss King:

In the Nov. issue of the Kentucky Alumnus there is an editorial "What's Wrong With Us?" I'd like to say that in my opinion the best time to get memberships and stir up interest is right at the time of graduation. "Get 'em young!" Then ask them to write in once a year, tell what they are doing and where they live.

Once I received a list of the Class of '23 and was awfully pleased but it wasn't a complete list and there were classmates I would have liked to know about. Of course I know about Sarah Blanding, and Happy Chandler (good old basketball days) but few of us are that well known.

My son, Erik, will graduate from high school next May and it would make me so happy for him to attend my Alma Mater. I have two other sons, eight and 20, and a little 'girl, 12. It's a busy life, but one we love.

If my suggestions help you any I shall be so glad. The last time I was in Lexington I dropped in on Maple Moores and caught up on a lot of news. Many of the familiar faces were gone but I did get a glimpse of Prentiss Gillis.

You have my best wishes for a successful year ahead.

Sincerely yours,
Dorothy Potter Munson
Class of '23

Ky Gridders End Best Season In Sugar Bowl

by

Stan Portmann—Sports Publicity Office

In a hotel room down in Knoxville, Tennessee there were two very tense gentlemen waiting for a third to complete a telephone call. Present were U.K. Athletic Director Bernie A. Shively, Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, successful young coach of the Kentucky Wildcats, and the gentleman on the phone was Mr. Charles Zatarain, president of the Sugar Bowl.

Zatarain's closing words were something like this, "Well you have made a good choice because the best team did not win down here today," (Referring to Kentucky's 7-0 loss to the Tennessee Vols.)

The other two gentlemen will go on record for a mighty relieved feeling when they heard those words.

To top off an unparalleled 10-1 season and the S.E.C. Championship, the University of Kentucky gridders had received a bid to the nation's number 1 bowl — the SUGAR BOWL.

The story of this rise from the stepping stone of the SEC to the "Champs" and the right to play the mythical "National Champions" from down Oklahoma way in the New Year's Day classic begins back on September 16 when the Wildcat gridders worked out their opening season kinks on the Eagles of North Texas State College with a 25-0 victory. Sadly, there was but one occurrence in that game to dampen the enthusiasm of the Wildcat rooters — ace quarterback and key man in the Kentucky attack, Vito "Babe" Parilli, received a serious groin injury. It was doubtful as to whether or not the "Babe" would be able to perform against the tough L.S.U. squad scheduled the following week.

That next week fans were relieved to see Parilli out on the playing field wearing a special protective harness and pitching game-winning passes from a short punt formation tactfully employed by Coach Bryant to give him more protection while passing. The Kentucky line showed what kind of stuff they were made of by giving the injured Parilli what was probably the best protection ever given any passer. Kentucky whipped the "Bayou boys" soundly by a 14-0 score.

The following week the fans watched the Wildcats hand the revenge minded Mississippi Rebels a sound 27-0 defeat in one of the roughest games ever played on Stoll Field. The 'Cats proved they could dish it out with the best.

In their fourth straight home game the "Boys in Blue" found little trouble in winning victory number four over a game, but out-classed University of Dayton. The score: 40-0.

On October 14 the 'Cats faced another of their arch rivals, this time it was their Yankee neighbors from across the river—the University of Cincinnati Bearcats. While soundly licking the Bearcats behind the reliable arm of All-American "Babe" Parilli by a score of 41-7, the Wildcats became scored on for the first time in the season. Oddly enough the halftime total found the Kentuckians trailing 7-0. They came back in the second half with roaring spirit and piled up 41 points, including two touchdowns in less than two minutes, to put the game on ice and prove that they were a come-back team as well as "easy" winners.

On October 21 the boys packed their traveling suits and went north to hand the Wildcats of Villanova a 34-7 licking. The 'Cats had now climbed to the number five spot in the nation's rating and the country was beginning to sit up and take notice. Parilli's passing and total offense, Leskovar's rushing, Fucci's punting, and the team's record for offensive and defensive totals were all keeping Kentucky's name at the top of the N.C.A.A. weekly release of official statistics. Kentucky's "steamroller" was gaining momentum.

The 'Cats hardly had time to unpack their traveling suits before hitting the road for a "big one" with the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech. Kentucky rooters got an early shock when the Jackets grabbed a quick 7 points and then tightened their defenses to bottle the Kentucky attack. It was in the second quarter when solid All-American tackle, Bob Gain, tore a hole in the Tech line, blocked a punt, and set up the game tying score. After that the Wildcat's had little trouble setting the Jackets down 28-14.

On November 4, amid all the color and thrills of Homecoming celebration, the "Blue Boys" gave the "Old Guard" a pretty good show by downing the Florida 'Gators, 40-6 in a freak snow storm. Kentucky's national rating had climbed up to number four.

Back on the road the 'Cats traveled south to Starksville, Mississippi to take on the Maroons of Mississippi State College, a team that knocked off Kentucky's arch rival, Tennessee, by a score of 7-0 early in the season. The starters built up a sizeable lead and then left it to the reserves to put on the finishing polish for a 48-21 victory.

The following week Coach Bryant used everybody but the student manager, the water boy, and the trainer trying to hold the score down while the 'Cats trounced the North Dakota Sioux, 83-0. Kentucky's sensational All-American quarterback, Babe Parilli, took little less than 30 minutes actual playing time to set a new national record of 23 touchdown passes in one season.

Despite freezing temperatures and icy roads thousands of loyal Kentuckians started a mass migration towards a city called Knoxville located in a state called Tennessee. The occasion that prompted the Kentucky rooters to brave the weapons of "Ole Man Winter" was the annual affair between the Tennessee Volunteers and the 'Cats. It looked like our year!

It took frigid weather and some very confused officiating to enable the Vols to score the lone touchdown of the game and tumble the 'Cats from the ranks of the unbeaten. Kentucky got moving early in the game with a series of tackle-eligible plays that had the Vol defense bumping into each other until the referees declared that the "Blue Boys" were putting an ineligible receiver downfield. After viewing the movies of that game one wonders if the officials were as "cold" as the boys on the field.

So now that we have had a peek at the performances of the 1950 edition of the Wildcats let's total the points: Kentucky for the first time in its career became the Champs of the SEC. It played second-fiddle to no one while recording a seasons greetings of 10 wins against its one loss. It received and accepted the invitation to what has become the nation's first bowl — the Sugar. It can also boast two All-Americans, Vito Parilli and Bob Gain, and placement of about half its starting squads on the All-SEC teams.

Ky. Has Two 1950 All-Americans

by

Stan Portmann—Sports Publicity Office

On every team there are certain men who by virtue of their skills and the position which they play are favored by the fans and the press and radio. As great as these few may be they must have the support of every other man on the field before they can shine. It takes hard play and teamwork to make stars . . . such a team is the 1950 edition of the KENTUCKY WILDCATS.

Although the "Big Blue" of Kentucky can boast two All-Americans this year and a whole host of players who made the All-S.E.C. team, their coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, insists that it be known as a "Teams team."

To cite a specific example of what is meant by calling the 'Cats a "Teams team" let's go back to the second game of the season. Kentucky found itself facing a rough and determined enemy in the personage of Louisiana State University. Its key man for the T attack was on the injured list and a doubtful starter. When it was learned that this "star" was able to play only with a special protective harness the boys decided it would be time to give extra help to their injured teammate.

The result is history. Never before has a passer received such protection. As a result he pitched his team to an impressive 14-0 victory.

The passer went on to make virtually every All-American team in the country. That boy of course, was Vito "Babe" Parilli. That team, thank our lucky stars, was Kentucky!

Take the following week when the revenge-minded Mississippi Rebels came to town. Early in that game Kentucky lost another of its great stars, All-American tackle Bob Gain, due to injury. There was nothing to do but to play harder to make up for the loss. They did. Kentucky won that one 27-0.

How about that very cold day down

Great Coaches Produce Champs At Kentucky

By Ken Kuhn, Sports Publicity Editor

One of the greatest eras in University of Kentucky athletic history! That's the way happy alumni and loyal sports fans throughout the country will remember the 1950-51 season.

Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant, who in 1946 amazingly predicted that Kentucky gridmen would "arrive" in national football prominence by 1951, guided his men to their most successful season in terms of importance of the school's history — climaxing a record, marred only by an upset, one-touchdown loss to Tennessee, by decisively crushing Oklahoma (the nation's number one team of 1950) in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans.

Coach Adolph Rupp, who forms the other half of the greatest coaching combination in modern athletic annals, by mid-season had brought an inexperienced band of Kentucky cagers to the top-ranking spot in the Associated Press national poll only to lose a needlessly heartbreaking overtime decision to St. Louis U. by one point (43-42) in the Sugar Bowl tournament. However, other teams were finding the road to an undefeated season rocky and were dropping key contests that held out hope to The Baron's Wildcat cagers for a return to their customary number one slot by national tournament time.

Experts over the country repeatedly scoffed at the attempts of courageous U.K. President H. L. Donovan and Athletic Director Bernie Shively to emphasize both football and basketball. Disregarding this "put-your-eggs-all-in-one-basket" advice, University of Kentucky officials proved to the sports world in 1950-51 that major football and major basketball can exist side by side on the same college campus by a simple formula—just get yourself top-notch calibre coaches like Baron Rupp and Bear Bryant, give them full and equal support, and pledge them and the team loyalty in hard times as well as in victory.

Kentucky's support of football, which only five years ago was floundering in the doldrums of the Southeastern Conference cellar, led this season to a surprisingly successful 10-1 record for the regular season. The 'Cats attained the highest ranking ever accorded a Kentucky grid squad by advancing to the number three spot in the AP poll just before the freezing Tennessee week-end.

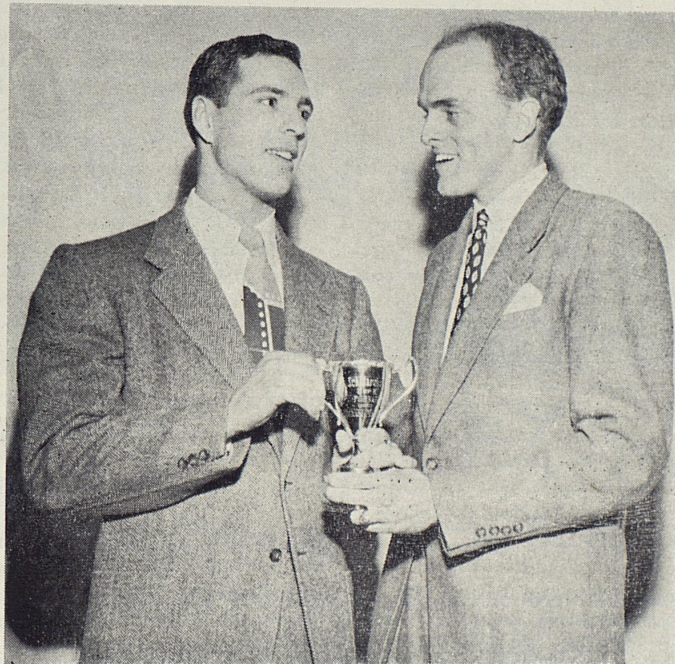

Any national prestige lost on the near-zero turf of Shields-Watkins Stadium in Knoxville was re-couped on the bright and warm greensward of the Sugar Bowl to which the Wildcats were invited for the first time by a selection committee that chalked off the Vols upset as a meaningless mistake. As if to justify the invitation and faith in their ability, the Kentucky Wildcats amazed the football world on New Year's Day by soundly trouncing the number-one ranking Oklahoma Sooners and ending the longest victory string in modern collegiate grid circles at 31 games.

Impartial observers ranked the Kentucky play as a team-coach victory achieved only by some of the smartest and best football ever seen in the International City extravaganza. Individual stars were numerous as the Kentuckians played their hearts out —

Dick Martin Gets Huey Scholarship Award For '50

Sam Huey, Jr., '49, former team manager and loyal Wildcat supporter, presented the first annual scholarship trophy which he has initiated, to the team member making the highest scholastic standing for three years. Recipient was Dick Martin, senior halfback, who has an over-all campus standing of two plus.

in Knoxville, Tennessee when the Wildcats fought their hearts out in below freezing weather only to lose to the "weather man," a bushel of bad breaks, and to some rather confused officials. What a game the Team played that day.

Don't get the idea that Kentuckians and the team itself aren't proud of their All-Americans. They are. Look what they accomplished.

Vito "Babe" Parilli set enough records this year to keep the recorders working for some time to come. Among the more outstanding are: establishment of a new national mark for the most touchdown passes thrown in one season (23), a new Southeastern Conference record for yards gained passing in one game (338) and one season (1627), and the SEC record for touchdowns accounted for (28).

To add to that are the thousands of statements from coaches and the press and radio praising the abilities of our "Babe". For example, take this tribute by Zipp Newman, veteran sports editor of the Birmingham News:

"Dixie Howell was great. Harry Gilmer was a wizard. Billy Spears was wonderful, but this Babe Parilli faking around with a football is the eighth wonder of the world . . . (He) could take an elephant out on the field and told it was a football and hide it."

The annual John B. Outland Trophy awarded by the Football Writers Association of America is given to the guard or tackle judged by the nation's grid experts as the best in college ranks. Bob Gain picked it up in New York a few nights ago. In addition "Big Bob" was placed on the following All-Americans this year: Associated Press, Look Magazine, United Press, International News Service, the All-America Board of Football, Football Digest, Gridiron Record, New York Daily News, NEA Service, Paramount Newsreel, News of the Day, Fox Movie-tone News, Pitts Smith Forecasts, Red Grange's All-America, and others. Add to these honors earned in the 1949 season and Bob has a well feathered hat. Kentucky's Gain has been the opponents' loss.

It is always a shame that time and space limitations prevent the recognition of each of the boys that gave a lot more than just their abilities to this great team.

Proof of their performance? It is in their record of 10 wins against one loss The SEC Championship. That great New Year's Day Classic The Sugar Bowl which saw the Wildcats snarl their defiance to the mythical "National Champs," the Oklahoma Sooners.

What a TEAM! A "Team's Team!" The 1950 University of Kentucky WILDCATS.

Walt Yowarsky, an unsung tackle switched to defensive end who won the outstanding player trophy; Wilbur "Shorty" Jamerson, the diminutive co-captain who should have a medal for inspired play that produced both Kentucky touchdowns; Babe Parilli, the All-American boy and All-American quarterback who called one of the smartest games in Sugar Bowl history and whose deadly accurate passes destroyed the Sooners; Bob Gain, an All-American tackle who refused to give up; and many more plus the "twelfth man" Coach Paul Bryant, who proved himself a defensive genius.

The score of the game seemed incidental. It was 13 to 7. It could have been higher and quite possibly could have been a wider margin, in the opinion of many, if Kentucky had not chosen to "play it safe" after getting two quick TD's. The outcome more than satisfied Kentucky alumni and fans dreaming of the day the Wildcats could take a legitimate claim to national championship grid honors.

With football a fond memory, attention focused in earnest on the fortunes of Baron Rupp's high-flying cagers. Prior to their double date in

The Sugar Bowl with the Kentucky football squad, the hardwood Wildcat, blasted all national title aspirations of West Texas State (73-43), Purdue (70-52), Xavier (67-56), Florida (83-57), Kansas (68-39), and St. John's (43-37) for a perfect 6-0 record. The New Orleans tournament proved a slight nightmare for the defending Sugar Bowl cage champs as Ed Hickey's St. Louis Billikens eked out a 43-42 overtime decision after the Wildcats blew a 10-point lead and had been unable to control the ball in the final 18 seconds.

Sideline experts suggested that the Wildcats still were a potent crew capable of providing trouble for the best cage aggregation on any given night as they knocked off Syracuse 69-59 in the consolation game and later soundly defeated Auburn 79-35 and DePaul 66-55. Tournament time was just around the corner and many predicted that Adolph Rupp's "pore little boys" would again have to be seriously reckoned with.

Rain Doesn't Dampen Grads Big Homecoming

"Let it rain, let it snow," sang thousands of Kentucky alumni who came back to the campus on November 4 to see their Wildcats take the measure of the Florida Gators and to remain through a full day of events which culminated with the homecoming dance that night at the Lafayette hotel.

Probably the biggest crowd of alumni in homecoming history returned to the campus on November 4, toured the new Memorial Coliseum that morning, lunched together, buffet style, at a gathering at noon in the Bluegrass Room of the Student Union, saw a very fine Kentucky team whip Florida that afternoon, attended the President and Mrs. Donovan's open house following the game, and remained to rejoice at the homecoming dance that night.

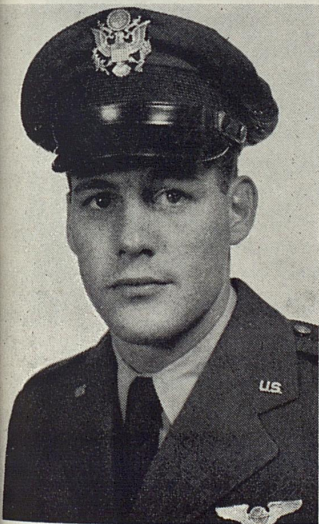

Fraternity house and hall decorations, although a little damp, added to the color of the homecoming celebration and predicted the outcome of the game in true style.

The groups above came early and stayed late on homecoming day, to enjoy the various festivities planned for alumni. Alumni Gymnasium Record Is Perpetuated

Bronze Tablet Is Erected By Alums

Old Alumni Gymnasium, scene of 1922 University of Kentucky basketball victories during the past 26 years, enjoyed one last, shining hour on Saturday afternoon December 9, when the University of Kentucky Alumni Association held fitting ceremonies contingent upon the unveiling of a large bronze tablet on the front of the building, commemorating the records of Kentucky teams which have played there.

That evening the world-famous Wildcats, under the tutelage of Coach Adolph F. Rupp, officially dedicated the new $4,000,000 Memorial Coliseum with a victory over Purdue University, the Alumni Gym's final moment in the sun came at four p.m. that afternoon when the impressive tablet was unveiled.

Presiding at the unveiling ceremonies was Judge William H. Townsend, '12, of Lexington, distinguished attorney and Lincoln authority and chairman of the Alumni Association's gym tablet committee. Judge Townsend reviewed the history of the 26-year-old building, and introduced Coach Adolph Rupp who spoke feelingly of the teams which had played in the old building, and of the records established there. Coach Rupp said that Alumni Gym, standing across from the new Memorial Coliseum, would always present a challenge to the future.

Donovan, Coach Rupp, Judge E. R. Denney, president of the Alumni Association, and Judge W. H. Townsend, of Lexington, chairman of the alumni gym tablet committee.

Great Coach, Net Teams Inspired UK's Coliseum

By Bill Hudson

(Editor's note: The following story is part of the report on the coliseum's dedication to sports, written for the Herald-Leader by Bill Hudson of the Associated Press.)

On December 9 Kentucky dedicated its mammoth fieldhouse that was "inspired by a great basketball coach and a succession of great basketball teams . . . and conceived by superior educational leadership."

Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, University vice president, applied the description to the elaborate $4,000,000 Memorial Coliseum at its dedication as a sports arena. The coliseum was opened earlier as a war memorial and later as a concert hall.

The auditorium, with its 12,000 permanent seats and facilities for another 2,500 persons via temporary stands and standing room, provides the largest collegiate basketball playhouse in Dixie.

Dr. Chamberlain delivered the dedication speech at the halftime of the Kentucky-Purdue basketball game.

Vernon, Ky., president of the Alumni Association presented the tablet formally to the University, and A. F. "Herky" Rupp, Jr., son of the famous coach, unveiled the tablet, which was accepted by Dr. H. L. Donovan '14, president of the University. The president praised the Alumni Association for its thoughtfulness in erecting the tablet and said it would be preserved "as long as there is a University of Kentucky." Louis McGinnis, '31, of Lexington, All-Southern forward on the first team Rupp coached at Kentucky, gave the invocation at the opening of the program.

Designed by C. D. Kenard, College of Engineering craftsman, the tablet is approximately four by five feet.

The arena was opened for basketball a week before when Kentucky trimmed West Texas, 73-43.

Dr. Chamberlain said the coliseum "reflects the vision and generosity of the people of Kentucky and their representatives in government and it speaks the reverence in which they hold their honored dead.

" . . . as we dedicate this great building . . . may we have in mind our obligation to match its grandeur and excellence by our high purpose and conduct . . . "

The coliseum was planned more than 10 years ago but construction was delayed until after the war. The vast arena covers more than two acres and houses athletic facilities and offices of the athletic department.

In his dedicatory speech, the vice president said in part:

"May this building be the home of true sportsmanship, and the source of men of exalted minds, of vigorous bodies and of great character.

"May those who compete here and those who lend them support have not only the will to win but as well the capacity to accept defeat;

"May we sustain here that reputation for courtesy and hospitality that traditionally is ours;

"May we be magnanimous in victory and courageous in defeat.

"And may we not forget in the midst of our greatest victories and our greatest enthusiasms those who are honored here; those who in their youth died that man might be free, that justice might prevail, and that respect for the human personality may not perish. Let the service of this building to the living be so exemplary that it may in a measure, at least, compensate for the sacrifices of those dead."

UK Loses Three Football Coaches

When a football team enjoys the success that the University of Kentucky Wildcats made this season they can always expect to lose some of the men who shared in the glory. Such is the case of Assistant Coaches Frank Moseley, George Chapman, and Dick Holway. All of these men have gone to V.P.I. where Moseley has taken over as head coach and athletic director.

Moseley served as backfield coach on Paul Bryant's staff. Chapman was an end coach and Holway, who was captain of the '49 Orange Bowl squad, was line coach of the freshman squad.

Head Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant said that he expected it and was philosophical about the situation. "It's hurting me," he said, "but I am glad for them. I recommended them. I would recommend every man who has worked for me. I hope all of them go to bigger and better positions. That's what we are in this business for. I have lost three and I may lose some more. Now it's my job to find replacements."

Guy A. Huguelet, '14, president of Southeastern Greyhound Lines and chairman of the executive committee of the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees has been elected president of Keeneland Association, the second man in more than 15 years to head that organization.

Newly elected to the board of directors of the unit which owns the Keeneland race track property, chosen for a three-year term to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Fred W. Rankin, Huguelet was named as president for a one-year term at the board's annual meeting.

He succeeds Hal Price Headley, prime moving force in the founding of Keeneland as a nonprofit track, who had been president of Keeneland Association since it was organized April 17, 1935. The track began operation as a racing plant in the fall of 1936.

Col. Chester D. Silvers, '29, former of Lexington, judge advocate of the U.S. Eighth Army, has been awarded the Air Medal for completing 10 combat flights in Korea.

Coach Paul Bryant Signs Twelve-Year Contract

An unprecedented 12-year coaching contract was signed Jan. 10 between Head Football Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant and the University of Kentucky Athletic Association.

Athletic Director B. A. Shively, who announced completion of the long-term agreement, said the new contract in effect supplements Bryant's former 10-year pact with the University, which has five years to run. The new contract is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1951, and extends through December, 1962.

Other details and terms of the contract signed in the offices of U.K. President H. L. Donovan this afternoon were not disclosed.

The negotiation of the new long term agreement, believed unequalled by any other school in the country, served to squelch rumors prevalent for several weeks that Coach Bryant would leave Kentucky in favor of a coaching position with various other collegiate or professional teams. He reportedly had been sought by Texas, Minnesota, the Washington Redskins, and Southern California among others and some reports persisted despite Bryant's definite assurance that he planned to remain at U.K.

The new contract was drawn up as a reward to Coach Bryant for his "amazingly successful direction of Kentucky football to national prominence and for guiding University grid teams to the best record in terms of importance that they have ever enjoyed," Shively said. "Coach Bryant has done a great job in the short while that he has been here at Kentucky and I am very happy to know that he is going to be with us for several more years to come."

Coach Bryant said simply that he was "very happy at the display of confidence shown in my work here at the University and I will try to serve to the best of my ability."

The extension of the contract between Coach Bryant and the University was the second such "vote of confidence" given the former Alabama star end since he took over coaching duties at Kentucky in 1946.

Bryant's "tenure of office" was first extended on November 27, 1946, following his successful reversal of U.K. football fortunes from a downward trend. At this time, the original five-year pact given the coach when he reported in January, 1946, was replaced by a then-unique 10-year agreement which extended Bryant's term of employment through the 1955 season.

In five seasons at the helm of the Kentucky football machine, the former Crimson Tide flankman has successfully lifted the victory-famished Wildcats out of the doldrums of the Southeast-

Appointment of Jim Owens, a rangy former all-America end at the University of Oklahoma, as an assistant football coach at the University of Ken-

Owens was in town to complete negotiations with Bryant and his appointment as one of several new aids to be chosen by the latter is effectively immediately.

which went undefeated through 10 games and helped the Sooners triumph over Louisiana State by 35-0 on Jan. 2, 1950, for the school's second straight triumph in the Sugar Bowl classic.

Owens, who is married, is a product of Oklahoma City. He has completed his undergraduate work at Oklahoma State and during the current school year has been enrolled at the school there. "He has a fine personality and comes to the job prepared," Bryant said. "He is a veteran of World War II and served in the Navy." Owens played football as a freshman

New Orleans Alums Greet Bowl Fans

Bernard Freedman

A New Year's Eve open house was sponsored by the New Orleans Alumni Club of the University of Kentucky, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 31, from 1:30 to four p.m. at the St. Charles Hotel, as a get-together for Kentucky alumni and friends in New Orleans for the Sugar Bowl game.

Bernard Freedman, president of the alumni group in New Orleans and a 1940 graduate of the University also designated the St. Charles hotel as official headquarters for the Kentuckians, and set up registration headquarters there on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1 until game time.

Aside from the open house get-together, no other official alumni party was planned, because of the already over-crowded calendar of Sugar Bowl events.

UK Coliseum Dedicated For Human Understanding

Ceremonies dedicating the University of Kentucky's $4,000,000 Memorial Coliseum as one of the country's foremost concert and lecture halls were held Oct. 25, preceding a concert by Tenor James Melton, the first such program to be held in the new building.

Miss Priscilla Hancher, Louisville, a senior arts-and-sciences student, read the prepared dedicatory statement written by Dr. Frank L. McVey, U. of K. president emeritus.

"This structure embodies three noble purposes," Dr. McVey's statement began. "An impressive ceremony in June dedicated it as a memorial to the Kentucky dead of World War II. Tonight are gathered thousands from town and countryside to initiate a new adventure in community endeavor. It is a great night, one to be remembered.

"Thus twice our hearts have responded and they will again for the third time when the coliseum will be dedicated to games of skill.

Five hundred years before the Christian era, a runner carried the news of victory to Athens.

"In our day the Olympic Games were established, and as the victor in the race enters the great stadium he bears a torch symbolizing not only light but also wisdom and beauty.

"Throughout the centuries man has found new forms in art, in music, and in speech that have reached a perfection which inspires, uplifts and ennobles those with eyes to see and ears to hear.

"We are the beneficiaries of these gifted souls, our inheritance is a great one. It is for us to understand and appreciate the precious gifts from the past. And there are those who, like the marathon victor of old, bear the torch in these modern days . . .

"Seeking a universal medium of communion and inspiration, humanity has found it in music. 'Such compulsion doth in music lie' that through it man is lifted out of his selfish environment. Within these walls we shall hear the earnest words of the great men and women of our day. Let us 'follow where wisdom leads.'

"With profound gratitude and with a full sense of obligation, we the people of the commonwealth and of the University of Kentucky, do dedicate this Memorial Coliseum to the cause of human understanding."

Dr. A. E. Bigge, head of the University's department of German, was named chairman of Kentucky's 13-member Fullbright scholarship committee by Gov. Earle C. Clements last November. Under the Fullbright plan, American students receive scholarships to colleges or universities in Europe.

R. T. Taylor, of Bagdad, Ky., has presented a gift of 169 books to the University of Kentucky library. The books comprise both fiction and non-fiction.

SEC Gridiron Champions Honored At Banquet

Alums Give Annual Party For Team

The University of Kentucky's Sugar Bowl-bound gridders and SEC champions were honored by the Alumni Association at its annual football banquet Wednesday night, December 13 at six o'clock in the Bluegrass room of the Student Union, with approximately 550 team members, coaches, alumni and rooters present to give the team due praise and a big send-off for the Sugar Bowl.

A number of distinguished guests were present at the speakers table and each said a few words of praise for Kentucky's first Southeastern Conference championship football team and its coaching staff. Charles Zatarain, of New Orleans, La., president of the New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association (Sugar Bowl) was the principal speaker. Others who spoke briefly were: Governor Lawrence Wetherby; President H. L. Donovan, Robert H. Hillenmeyer, representing the alumni, and Coach Bryant.

A feature of the banquet was the floor show, presented by several team members who "brought down the house" with musical numbers, jokes and imitations. Those taking part in the floor show were Dom Fucci, master of ceremonies; Allen Hamilton, raconteur; John Netoskie, accordion player; Al Bruno, who sang in the Al Jolson style; Doug Moseley who sang a la Hank Williams; and Bill Leskovar, team tenor.

During the program Sam Huey, Jr., '49, of Lexington, initiated the annual presentation of a scholarship trophy to the graduating senior who makes the best three-year scholastic average. This, the inaugural trophy, was presented to Dick Martin, defensive halfback, who had an over-all average of "B."

Beautifully engraved gold watches were presented to the 18 graduating seniors on the squad by B. A. Shively, athletic director and treasurer of the

"Miss Margie" Chosen For Service To UK

Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, assistant professor of journalism at the University of Kentucky, is the winner of the University's Alma Magna Mater 1950 service award.

Selection of the veteran newspaper-woman and teacher was announced Nov. 4 at a ceremony preceding the Kentucky-Florida football game on Stoll Field. Bruce Ferguson of Covington, president of Alma Magna Mater, campus organization made up of children and grandchildren of former UK students, made the announcement and presented an engraved silver bowl to Miss McLaughlin on behalf of the student group.

The award is made annually to a UK alumnus for outstanding service to the school.

Known as "Miss Margie" by two generations of University students, this year's winner was one of the first woman teachers of journalism in the United States and one of the first woman reporters to work for a daily newspaper in Kentucky.

She was graduated from UK in 1903 and has been a member of the school's Alumni Association continuously for 47 years. During that period she has twice — during World Wars I and II — served as the association's executive secretary; served 20 years, from 1920 to 1940, as president of the Lexington Alumnae Club; and 30 years, from 1920 to the present, as a member of the association's executive committee.

Miss Margie joined the news staff of The Lexington Herald in 1912 as a general assignment reporter and during the next two years covered, in her own words, "everything from pink teas to assassinations."

When the UK Department of Journalism was established in 1914 by the late Prof. Enoch Grehan, Miss Margie gave up the newspaper job to become an instructor at her alma mater. During World War I she returned to The Herald on a part-time basis as farm page editor.

Miss Margie

In 1921, Miss McLaughlin was promoted to her present rank, assistant professor, and that same year helped establish the University's student pep organization, SuKy. Her co-founders in the latter project were Prof. Grehan, S. A. Boles and Miss Frances Jewell, who later became the wife of former UK President F. L. McVey.

During World War II, Miss Margie further endeared herself to hundreds of former University students then in service by inaugurating a plan for sending them a special edition of the student newspaper, The Kernel. Thousands of copies of this paper were mailed to Kentucky men and women in every theater of war.

In recognition of her 36 years with the Department of Journalism, Miss Margie was honored last spring through issuance of the Marguerite McLaughlin Certificate of Yearbook Service which now is presented annually to outstanding high school seniors.

E. N. Fergus, of the University's College of Agriculture, has been named chairman of the Agronomic Application Division of the American Society of Agronomy.

Herndon Evans New UK Alumni Trustee

Herndon J. Evans, '21, Pineville newspaper editor, was named an alumnus member of the University's Board of Trustees by Gov. Earle C. Clements last Nov. 22. His term on the board expires Dec. 31, 1953.

Mr. Evans served as Governor Clements' publicity chairman last fall in his successful race for the United States Senate. He replaces Thomas H. Cutler, '03, of Frankfort, whose term on the board had expired.

Governor Clements picked Mr. Evans from a list of three eligibles.

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS ACCEPTED BY UK

Two scholarship funds totaling $700 and two other gifts to be used by specific University departments were accepted by the Board of Trustees at its quarterly meeting in December.

The scholarships were as follows: one for $400 from the National Association of Thoroughbred Breeders for use in providing a scholarship in agriculture for a member of the Future Farmers of America and the other for $300 from the Union Light, Heat and Power Co., of Covington for continuing a scholarship fund that annually grants aid to a UK freshman who was graduated from a Kenton, Campbell, Boone or Grant county high school.

Another feature was the presentation of gifts to the coaches and team by Fred Baumann, of Lexington, president of the Lexington Salesmen's Club. Gifts to the coaches were leather wallets, and engraved pearl-handled knives to team members and the freshman squad.

Sixth Founders Day Planned

Michigan State President, Speaker

The University of Kentucky's sixth annual Founders Day, celebrating the date on which the old A&M College of Kentucky was established by the State Legislature, will again be on February 22, the day on which the Commonwealth's legislative branch of government accepted the Federal Land Grant in 1865.

President John A. Hannah of Michigan State College will be the speaker at the convocation which will be held at 9:50 a.m. that morning in Memorial Coliseum. His subject will be "The Spirit of the Land-Grant College."

Program for the day's events will include the convocation, at which University President H. L. Donovan will preside, music by the University chorus and orchestra and the address by President Hannah.

Col. Eugene B. Elder, '15, formerly of Paris, has been promoted to brigadier general and is attached to the U.S. Army Signal Corps Procurement Department in Washington, D.C. His son, Eugene V. Elder, is now a junior at the University.

C. T. Roszell, '48, of Lexington, a practicing attorney there for two years, has become an associate member of the Lexington law firm of McDonald and McDonald. The firm's offices are located in the Security Trust building.

Mrs. Anne Scott Dickens, B.A. '42, M.A. '49, of Lexington, has been transferred from the U. S. Veterans Administration hospital to the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital as librarian to fill a vacancy there.

She has been at the V.A. hospital library as chief for five and one-half years.

John F. Day Gets $5,000 Travel Grant

John F. Day

John F. Day, Jr., '35, of Flemingsburg, Ky., and Washington, D. C., Washington correspondent for the Louisville Courier-Journal, has been granted a $5,000 fellowship by the Reid Foundation for a year's travel and study in western Europe.

One of five newspapermen chosen for the 1951 Reid Foundation fellowship established by the late Ogden Reid, editor of the New York Herald Tribune, Mr. Day with his wife, the former Bettie Bosworth, '37, of Lexington, was scheduled to leave this country the first week in January for Paris. They planned to stay there for awhile and then to go to Germany, meanwhile traveling over as much of western Europe as possible. He will write for the Courier Journal while there.

John F. "Sunny" Day has been on the staff of the Courier Journal Washington Bureau since 1948. While a student at the University he was editor of the Kentucky Kernel and an honor graduate in 1935.

He tried business shortly after he

Shropshire, Townsend, Palmore, Nominated

James S. Shropshire and William H. Townsend, both of Lexington, and H. D. Palmore, Frankfort, have been nominated as candidates for the post of alumni member of the University of Kentucky board of trustees.

They were nominated by U.K. alumni in balloting conducted by mail among members of the University Alumni Association. Their names have been submitted to Gov. Lawrence Wetherby, who will fill the post by executive appointment.

Palmore is a board member whose term expired Dec. 31.

U. OF K. GETS RARE 15TH. CENTURY BOOK

A book, printed in Venice in 1497 by Aldus Manutius, has found its way to the University of Kentucky library.

The rare specimen, known as an incunabulum, is a handsomely printed inch-thick, 8 by 12 inch book. Considering its age, it is remarkably well preserved. The volume was looked upon with veneration in its day, principally because it contained a treatise "On the Egyptian Mysteries" by a Fourth Century Syrian philosopher, Iamblichus.

The Manutius book was obtained by the University in a trade with the library of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

was graduated but soon abandoned that to take a job as a reporter on the Lexington Leader. He left there to become a reporter for the Associated Press at Huntington, W. Va., and while there wrote a book in 1941 "Bloody Ground," an account of feuds in eastern Kentucky.

He worked during the war with the Office of War Information then joined the Cleveland Press. For three years before joining the Courier Journal news department he was managing editor of the Dayton Daily News.

Alumna Recalled To Active Navy Duty

Lt. (j.g.) Clara Margret Fort, of Frankfort, the first girl to graduate from the University with a major in physical education and a Wave attached to the Lexington Naval Reserve unit, is the first Navy girl from the Lexington area to be recalled to active duty.

Lieutenant Fort enlisted in the Navy in 1943 and trained at Hunter College, Bronx, N.Y. She trained recruits at the Norfolk Navy Yard, worked as MMA in charge of Waves barracks and taught swimming while at Norfolk.

She was commissioned an ensign Oct. 24, 1944, and was transferred to the U. S. Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi, Tex., where she was assigned as assistant welfare officer in charge of the recreation center for enlisted personnel and manager of the ship service canteen. She was promoted to lieutenant, junior grade, March 15, 1946 and released to inactive duty in February 1947.

Lieutenant Fort has been assistant training officer and classification officer of the Lexington Naval Reserve since September 14, 1950.

Mines Building Planned At UK

Construction of a new State Department of Mines and Minerals building on the University of Kentucky campus will begin soon, Dean T. V. Terrell of the College of Engineering has announced.

A three-story structure and the first section of a proposed three-unit mineral-industries building, the new unit will also house the Kentucky Geological Survey.

Both the mines and minerals department and the geological survey have occupied temporary quarters on the campus since a fire in 1948 destroyed Norwood Hall.

Cost of the first section will be $241,000, Dean Terrell said. The additional units could be built for about $540,000, he said.

UK Dedicates New Service Building

Formal dedication of the University's new three-quarter-million dollar service building was held Friday, Dec. 8, in the third-floor library of the three-story brick building on South Limestone Street, facing the main campus.

UK President H. L. Donovan, speaking at the formal ceremony, said: "Probably no other institution in America has a better home for its service division."

The building replaces the old, make-shift building on the same location, which was destroyed by fire in February 1946, and is the division's first permanent home since its establishment as a one-man department in 1892.

In another ceremony immediately after the dedication, 89 employees of the University Department of Business Management and Control were recognized for long periods of service and for outstanding safety records.

Dr. Donovan said that the department had been "a long-time orphan," and praised UK employees for the "manner in which they have carried out their work under the trying circumstances of past years."

Other speakers on the program were Comptroller Frank D. Peterson and Dr. Lawrence Thompson, director of University libraries. Mr. Peterson said that the University had completed more than $9,000,000 worth of new buildings in the last ten years.

E. B. Farris, '28, is chief engineer of the division of Maintenance and Operations at the University.

The additional units would house the University's department of mining engineering, the department of geology and other divisions whose work is allied to the state's mineral industries.

The structure will be built just west of the University's Highway Research Laboratory on Graham avenue.

Marshall Barnes Heads Ky. Bankers

Marshall Barnes, '24, of Owensboro and Beaver Dam, Ky., vice president of the Owensboro National Bank and president of the Beaver Dam Depository Bank, has been named president of the Kentucky Bankers Association.

Former member of the University's Board of Trustees and member of the executive committee of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association, Mr. Barnes is also president of the Davies County Alumni Club of the University and is a life member of the Alumni Association.

A graduate of the University's School of Law, Mr. Barnes has practiced law and banking since his graduation in 1924, and served in the Kentucky House of Representatives during the 1932-'33 Legislative sessions.

4 UK Engineers Win Recognition In Design Contest

With more top-ranking entries than any other school, the University of Kentucky's Engineering College won high recognition for four students in a national architectural design contest.

Competing with students from such leading architectural schools as Notre Dame, the University of Illinois, Oklahoma A. and M. and Western Reserve University, one U.K. engineer captured second prize and three others received honorable mention.

B. F. Romanowitz, a senior, son of Dr. H. A. Romanowitz, U. K. professor of electrical engineering, was runner-up in the contest, sponsored by the Beaux-Arts Institute of Design, New York.

Honorable mention went to Miss Anne C. Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Clark of Richmond; Paul F. Rassiner, of Louisville, and Edward Trebolo, son of Mrs. Agnes Trebolo, Lexington.

The prize-winning contestants are students of Profs. William A. Gray and Ernst V. Johnson.

UK Man, Assistant To Sect'y Of Commerce

C. H. Osthagen

C. H. Osthagen, '30, formerly of North Bergen, N. J., who has been serving as deputy for personnel management to the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force, has been named Administrative assistant to Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer.

Mr. Osthagen holds the B.S.M.E. degree from the University of Kentucky, and has done post graduate work at Columbia and George Washington Law School. He was licensed in New Jersey as industrial engineer in 1931 and received his professional engineering license in 1938.

After several years as an industrial engineer with the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, Cities Service, and in private engineering practice, Mr. Osthagen entered Government service with the National Recovery Administration in 1933. He served as assistant deputy administrator for Public Utilities and later as executive assistant in the Administrator's Office in NRA until 1936. Mr. Osthagen was with the Federal Works Agency from 1936 to 1948, with the exception of military duty from 1942 to 1946, his Federal Works Agency

4th Scholarship Established Loyalty Fund Sets Up Another Grant

The executive committee of the University of Kentucky Alumni Association has authorized the Kentucky Research Foundation to set up a fourth annual four-year, $2,800 all-expense scholarship for a deserving freshman, to go into effect with the opening of the 1951 fall school term.

Made possible by the annual giving program of alumni under contributions to the University of Kentucky Loyalty Fund, this fourth scholarship commits the Loyalty fund to an expenditure of $11,200 for the four scholarships.

Nominations for this fourth annual scholarship are now being accepted, and the deadline for nominations is March 1. Any paid-up alumnus or active alumni club in Kentucky or the United States is eligible to nominate a student for this scholarship, which guarantees the freshman receiving it $700 a year for four years, provided he maintains an over-all campus standing of two in his subjects.

To be eligible for this scholarship the student must be nominated by an alumnus in good standing or by an organized club, and must have high scholastic ability and must be outstanding in character, personality and extra-curricular activities. He also must demonstrate a clear need for financial assistance. He must meet all the requirements for admission to the University and the particular college in which he wishes to enroll.

posts including assistant director of project control and director of administrative operations for WPA, and director of personnel management.

Mr. Osthagen went on active military duty as a captain in November 1942 and was promoted to the rank of colonel in August 1945. He returned to inactive status as a colonel in the Air Force Reserve in April 1946. He served in Air Force headquarters for this period in several assignments in organizational planning and personnel, including the post of executive to the Assistant Chief of Air Staff, Personnel. He received the Legion of Merit and the Army Commendation Ribbon with two clusters.

Alumni of the University who contribute to this annual giving program should be very proud of these scholarships, as they are the largest individual scholarships available at the University, and to date have made it possible for three young people with great scholastic ability to attend the University, who might otherwise have been unable to do so.

The annual giving program for 1950-'51 is now under way, and will not close until May 31 so it is still possible to participate and to assist these worthy young people in their programs of education.

Mr. Osthagen returned to the Air Force as a civilian in August 1948 as deputy for personnel management to the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Eugene Zuckert in all matters except those in which the secretary's personal action is required by statute. He also served as an alternate to the Assistant Secretary in the Office of the Secretary of Defense Personnel Policy Board, monitored the Air Force operation of the President's Equality of Treatment Program and the President's Loyalty Program, and was the fair employment officer for the Department of the Air Force.

W. S. Ward Named English Dept. Head

Dr. William S. Ward has been named head of the University's department of English, succeeding Dr. Herman E. Spivey, who recently was named dean of the Graduate School.

A native of Cynthiana, Dr. Ward received his undergraduate training at Georgetown College, and in 1929 began his teaching career at Georgetown High School. He received the master of arts degree from Harvard in 1930 and the doctor of philosophy degree from Duke University in 1943.

Dr. Ward was first appointed to the University faculty in 1930 as an instructor in English. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1943, and to his present rank, associate professor, in 1946. During 1944-45 he served as director of men's residence halls.

A specialist on English literature of the Romantic period, Dr. Ward is the author of several published articles on Shelley, Byron, Wordsworth and others. He is a member of the American Association of University Professors, and Modern Language Association of America, and of Omicron Delta Kappa, collegiate leadership society.

ASCE HONORS DEAN TERRELL

Dean D. V. Terrell, '10, of the University of Kentucky College of Engineering, has been elected vice president of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Balloting for the vice president's post and other national offices was conducted by mail among the society's 30,000 members.

Dean Terrell has been a member of the U.K. faculty since 1912. For more than 20 years he has been a research consultant for the Kentucky Department of Highways and currently is serving as director of research for the department.

His two-year term as vice president began in January.

T. A. Duncan, '25 Gets Promotion

Thomas A. Duncan, '25, formerly of LaGrange, Ky., and now of Baltimore, Md., was elected a vice president of the Commercial Credit Company early in January.

Mr. Duncan has served in various positions with the company for the past twenty years. He was operations manager for the company's southern territory for several years, and in 1940 organized Commercial Credit's direct-loan operations, which since has become a major division.

For the past two years Mr. Duncan has served as manager of the sales and operations of the company's time sales financing division in the southwest and south central states. In his new position he will serve as general operating assistant to the president of the company.

Dr. Marshall B. Guthrie, of Philadelphia and Phoenixville, Pa., formerly of Lexington, has been accredited as a specialist by the American Board of Dermatology and Syphilology. Dr. Guthrie passed the examinations given by the board in Detroit and will be certified as a diplomat of the American board in July, 1951.

A graduate in chemistry from the University of Kentucky, Dr. Guthrie received his M.D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. He served in China during World War II and in Japan with the occupation forces. He holds the rank of major in the Army Medical Corps and is stationed at Valley Forge General Hospital, Phoenixville, Pa.

NEWSPAPER GROUP ELECTS PORTMANN

Victor R. Portmann, professor of journalism at the University of Kentucky, was elected president of the Newspaper Managers Association Inc., international organization of secretaries and directors of national, regional and state press associations, at a meeting in Chicago in November.

Portmann, secretary of the Kentucky Press Association, will serve as an ex-officio member of the executive boards of the National Editorial Association and the Newspapers Advertising Service.

Dr. Lysle W. Croft, '26, director of the University's personnel office, is the new president of the Southern College Personnel Association. The group includes college and university representatives from 13 southern and southeastern states.

E. B. Penrod, professor of mechanical engineering at the University of Kentucky, was elected president of the Kentucky Academy of Science last October.

"Distinguished Professor" Title Goes To Dr. Morris Scherago

Dr. Morris Scherago

Dr. Morris Scherago, head of the University of Kentucky's Department of Bacteriology, has been named "Distinguished Professor of the Year" of the College of Arts and Sciences by his fellow faculty members.

Dr. Gifford Blyton, chairman of the election committee, said about 130 faculty members—those holding the rank of assistant professor or higher—were eligible for the award.

Dr. Scherago, a member of the faculty since 1919 and head of the Bacteriology Department since 1922, will be given a period free of teaching duties to conduct a research project of his own choosing and to prepare the annual Arts and Sciences lecture to be delivered next spring.

The U.K. bacteriologist was born in Romania and received his higher education at Cornell University where he received the bachelor's degree in 1917 and his doctorate two years later.

He is widely known among the nation's scientists for his 30 years of research work at the University.

Dr. Scherago announced last spring that he and a graduate assistant, Mrs.

Margo Hasson, had produced an antiserum which gives promise of being effective in the treatment of hay fever and other allergic conditions. Experimental work on the discovery still is in progress.

Scientific organizations in which Dr. Scherago holds membership include Sigma Xi research society, Kentucky Academy of Science, Southern Association for Advancement of Science, Society of American Bacteriologists, American Society of Clinical Pathologists, Southern Association of Science and Industry, and the American Public Health Association.

He is a former president of the Kentucky branch of the Society of American Bacteriologists and the Kentucky Academy of Science. He is a member of the American Association of University Professors.

The seventh winner of the "distinguished professor" award is listed in "American Men of Science," "Who's Who in America" and "Whos Who in American Education."

Scherago Report Indicates Progress

(Editor's note: In keeping with the announcement of Dr. Morris Scherago's election by his colleagues as "Distinguished Professor of the Year" we are presenting a resume of his report to the University president including its progress since he took over the department of bacteriology in 1919, and recently published in the Ky. Kernel.)

In a historical report of the Department of Bacteriology, Dr. Morris Scherago, "Distinguished Professor of the University," outlines the progress taken in his department since 1919.

"Thirty-one years ago, the department was located in the north section of the first floor of Neville Hall. The quarters consisted of a "large" laboratory with a capacity of 16 students at a time and a total capacity of 48 students; one small "research" laboratory which had to be used also for teaching advanced courses, and an office which also served as a departmental library.

"In 1925-26 the department was moved to the sub-basement of Kastle

Hall. The new quarters consisted of a large laboratory and a smaller one which was used as an office and as a research laboratory for the instructor and graduate students, and an office and library.

"Within two years the department had outgrown these quarters and began pleading for more room. It succeeded in gaining possession of a small animal room, the "air-compressor" room, which was turned into a stock room, and the old stock room of the chemistry department which was converted into three offices and a preparation laboratory.

"In 1931 the department inaugurated the special course in medical technology designed to train young men and women for work in hospital laboratories, and in public health laboratories. In 1943 the University received recognition by the Board of Registry of the American Society of Clinical Pathologists and the Council of Education of the American Medical Association as an approach school for the training of medical technologists. The University senate also approved that year the granting of the degree of B.S. in Medical Technology to students completing the special course.

"As a result of the establishment of the medical technology course, and the increase in graduate enrollment, the registration in the department reached such proportions that the quarters in the sub-basement of Kastle Hall became entirely inadequate. The construction of the new Biological Science Building was fortunately undertaken in the nick of time and the department was moved to its present spacious quarters in this building in the spring of 1939.

"The graduate enrollment continued to grow, and for the past ten years we have been among the top four departments in graduate enrollment. In 1946 the faculty authorized the department to offer work leading to the Ph.D. degree."

The University of Kentucky came fourth in the contest for the champion intercollegiate and 4-H judging team held at Waterloo, Iowa last October in connection with the National Dairy Cattle Congress.
