HORLACHER TO HEAD 7 FACULTY MEMBERS

University senate members Tuesday gave the CRSG a vote of confidence, and President McVey appointed a committee of seven faculty members to consider the proposed student government constitution.

At the meeting, petitions, bearing more than 1,000 student signatures and advocacy adoption of the CRSG measures, were presented. Chairman Sid Buckley spoke briefly in support of the constitution which his committee had formulated.

At Tuesday's meeting a resolution was adopted by the senate and forwarded to CRSG Chairman Buckley. The resolution read:

The senate is glad to receive this petition and the accompanying constitution and wishes to express to the students its appreciation, good wishes, and congratulations on their foresight in preparing this document.

Representation In Student Government

Elsewhere in today's paper is a story of the positive action taken by the University Senate in regard to the new form of student government. If any of the students who "sat in" on the first part of the meeting were prepared for a Senat' yawn and shelve-it motion, they were disappointed. The interest and spontaneity of response to the plea for a better form of student government was everything that could be asked, and the KERNEL would like to take this opportunity to thank the faculty members for their active concern about student welfare.

Representation In The Legislature

As announced in last issue, the KERNEL plans to discuss from time to time different phases of the proposed student government constitution. Immediately following the mass meeting, a statement affixed with more than 50 signatures was received from the law college men. The statement asks for three representatives from this college rather than one as stipulated in the present constitution. Reasons given are that the Law group is a body definitely interested in affairs of government, and that whereas the senior class is allowed one representative on the legislature for every 80 students, the law college gets only one representative out of 125 students. It is also emphasized that men in that college are older and many have college degrees.

Another communication, which borders on the same subject, suggests that the system of proportional representation by colleges be used. The writer stresses the fact that under the present system of having only classes represented, it will be possible for one or two powerful colleges to control the election. Although that is a valid criticism in that it is a possibility, it doesn't seem very probable because the stringent requirements for candidates will necessarily narrow the field and make it difficult for any one or two colleges to have enough candidates running in the general election to make a general "haul."

On the other hand, the legislature must be kept small in number for greatest efficiency. The present number, including president and two vice-presidents, totals 21. Under the representation by colleges system, arts and sciences would rate 10, agriculture-4, engineering-3, commerce-4, education-1, and law-1. Adding the three officers, that would make a legislature of 25. Also, there would be a chance that almost all of those elected would be seniors. That would kill one of the purposes of this government, namely, to keep it alive continually by training lower-classmen for the following year.

Arts and sciences might be divided into classes but it wouldn't be very feasible for the other colleges. There might be some sort of a happy compromise effected by including some provision for a member-at-large from each college, but that would necessitate additional elections and a large leg...

It is superfluous to say that both the class and college representation systems have evils, but with the information at hand, it seems that the better of the two is the present one, class representation. But the KERNEL would suggest these changes: two representatives from the Law school, if the number of juniors is low, and some stipulation requiring that of those elected, each college be represented by at least one student.

Looks Like This . . .

By Allenby Winer

Among many patriots imbued with the determination of saving democracy from Nazism, there is a startling aversion to Hitler, von Ribbentrop, and other high officials with entree to the German capital. There also exists a marked anti-German feeling, in some places more evident than the anti-Hitler attitude.

These attitudes are to be expected. The democracies are pretty much agreed in hating Hitler and his constituents. The democracies have made their opinions known to Der Fuehrer. From ninety-nine mouths in one hundred come damning phrases about Hitler.

Big Surprise Are we aiming at the wrong target? When and if democratic powers fight Germany on the battlefield, and on the assumption the democracies "win," there will be a startling surprise to anybody left living in the U. S. A. Hitler and his constituents will have been shot in a prison courtyard or beheaded on a French guillotine or perhaps shipped to someplace like Guam to spend the rest of their days. But that's expected with "history" and dogma as a surprise. Will there be freedom of speech and religion? That is entirely conjectural, but we can hope for the best.

What of the fundamental tenets of Nazism after the war? Will they have been uprooted completely? More than likely the answer is no. Germans will still adhere to Nazism as closely as possible, not because they like it but because as today they will be nothing else for them.

Democracies will recover after the war that they had adjusted their rights at the wrong target. Hitler, his constituents, his army are but flesh and blood. They can be shot, stabbed, interned. But no army in the world can crush a political philosophy, beyond it or gas it. The philosophy might be killed slightly, but never killed.

Explanation Nazism? No, the German people don't like it especially well, many of them hate it, but it is new. Nazism is a desperate attempt to establish a non-economic society beyond capitalism and socialism and in which rank, function, and satisfactions are based, not on economic forces, but on some non-economic principles.

When and if the democracies do line up to actively stem Germany's threat (better, Hitler's threat), they will be exchanging death blows with a people who are on the battlefield against their convictions, but who must fight. They must fight under a system in which they have not there will be progress in a more humane direction. Nazism will fall in importance because people in Germany won't receive it as a substitute for the real thing--a new idea that Nazism can't give.

The KD's are telling weird tales about their Dot Bond again. It seems the Bond, who habitually courts only Caden Meers and other ATO's, got a date with some Dot. The "union" dates didn't like the idea, so they proceeded to picket the house and wouldn't let it! Dotie come out! Finally, after an attempted flight down the fire escape had failed through, she succeeded in outwitting the boys and had the date after all.

CLEARING HOUSE

In answer to W. L.'s query concerning the possibility of including tests for syphilis in the freshman physical examination, Dr. Chambers states that he is still trying to arrange this, but that he can't be sure. The man who analyzed the tests during the active part of our campaign is no longer on the campus, and there is no one to take his place. However, it may be possible to give the Kline test which could be analyzed here and which would eliminate all except suspicious cases. That would probably cut the numbers down to where it would be possible to send the tests of those suspicious cases to Frankfurt to be analyzed by the Wassermann method.

Best wishes to Pershing Rifles in the meet at Dayton... Don't forget the student government meeting this afternoon if you are interested in making suggestions... and so to press at 10 o'clock.

TRACK, FIELD MEET SURVIVORS WILL COMPETE IN 'MURAL FINALS'

Survivors from four days of stiff eliminations will meet in the finals of the annual Intramural track and field meet at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow on the Stoll Field cinders. The meet will be run in connection with the Kentucky-Cincinnati rivalry show. Qualifying rounds opened Monday with representatives from 14 fraternities as well as independent participants taking part. Champions in four field events, the shot-put, discus, high and broad jump and one track test, the 440 yard relay, have already been crowned.

Top honors in the discus went to Independent Brown, with a toss of 84 feet, 6 inches; Rogers, Sigma Chi, heaped 20 feet 1 inch to take first in the broad jump; Independent O'Neil cleared 5 feet 3 inches to take the high jump while a heave of 36 feet 7 inches gave Johnson, SAE, the shotput first.

By covering the route in 48 seconds, the SAE 440 yard relay team took first place as the independent team took second. Phi Kappa Tau third and Delta Tau Delta, fourth. The qualifiers in the 100 yard dash included Snyder, SAE; Combs, Delta Tau Delta; Rogers, Sigma Chi; Paynter, SAE; Cottrell, Phi Kappa Tau and Fischer, ATO, last year's champion for the century. The 220 yard dash will be contested between four SAE entries, Snyder, McConnell, Paynter and Roberts, one Independent, Dye and Horn, Delta Tau Delta.

Meanwhile, 12 entries for the fencing tournament will square off this afternoon in the gymnasium. The entire tourney will be played off today and entries may still be made before 3 p. m. when the sword play is due to start.

Calling 'Em Wild

By JOE CREASON

If you like the unexpected and sudden, yet weren't hanging around Pompeii at the time Vesuvius became unmanly, then by all means make it around to Stoll field for the finals of the intramural track meet tomorrow afternoon.

Like Vesuvius, the fraternity Greeks will be panting and puffing with the top ready to blow off at the slightest provocation. Really, watching a gang of trophy-thirsty frat men compete is like pulling things from a peddler's pack—you never know what'll come next. Things may start as calm as the society columns of a newspaper yet conclude in a miniature riot. Usually before the annual meet is over, not only the contestants but also the officials are ready for a straight jacket and padded cell.

At the same time Coach Joe Rupert's varsity track team will face its last test of the year against the University of Cincinnati and Coach Frank Moseley's Wildcat baseball crew will attempt to snap from their reverse-English winning streak at the embarrassment of the Vanderbilt Commodores.

Developed Fast
Last time out, the cinder team tied the Tennessee Vols tighter than a case of ketchup by a 58½-58½ score. At the start of the season the Cats didn't seem to be going anywhere except to the end of their schedule. Developing a winning team from the material on hand seemed as impossible as trying to turn a triple somersault over six elephants.

The first meet was dropped but the next week found Coach Rupert and his left arm, Jack Crain, as busy as a couple of one-fingered clarinet players in mending and putting fire into the wobbly places. Their transfusion was a success and the next two meets were taken by top heavy scores. Came then the Tennessee meet which brings our narrative to date. Now on the eve of the final stand of the year, the team is as ready as a primed cannon.

BLUE CINDERMEN WILL ENTERTAIN GINCY SATURDAY

In its final scheduled start of the season, the Kentucky track team, with a record of two wins, one loss and one tie, will entertain the University of Cincinnati Bearcats at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow on Stoll field.

After tomorrow's meet only the annual Southeastern Conference cinder-carnival in Birmingham, Ala., May 20, will stand between the Cats and the end of the year's trail.

Although little is known concerning the power of the Bearcats, Coach Joe Rupert's Blues are expected to win. Kentucky opened the season by dropping a narrow verdict to Vanderbilt but romped to easy wins in the next two starts before being despatched by Tennessee last Saturday morning. A dead-heat in the 200 yard, low hurdles after each coach had scored seven fims knocked the score at 58½-58½.

BLUES AND VOLS TEE OFF TODAY

Winner in the last three matches, the Kentucky golf team will tee off against the Tennessee Volunteers over the 18 hole route this afternoon in Knoxville.

Wednesday the Wildcat divot-diggers stroked to their second win of the season over the University of Louisville, defending state intercollegiate champions, by a 9½-8½ margin. In an earlier meeting the Cats won by a 10-8 score. The victory placed Kentucky in the favored role in the state tourney starting next Friday over Louisville's Seneca course.

Low scores for the afternoon were carded by the rival captains, Bill Adams of Kentucky and Julian James of Louisville, each with 76. The match was not decided until the final green when Adams sank a long putt to gain an edge over Stanley McGee.

The win ran Kentucky's record for the year to four wins and but one loss, that to the University of Cincinnati. The Cats will have a chance at revenge over Cincinnati when they again meet the Bearcats next Monday in the Queen City. Tuesday afternoon the Cats will make their second Cincinnati appearance when they square off against Xavier.

OPENING ROUND WILL BEGIN TODAY

Kentucky's baseball Wildcats, who have finished comfortable seconds their last three times out, will face the powerful Vanderbilt Commodores this afternoon on the Stoll Field diamond in the first bout of a two game series.

Today's game will start at 3 p. m. while the Saturday meet will begin about 3:30 p. m. Student admission, as usual, will be the activity book.

It was Vanderbilt that trapped the Cats in their first two starts of the season in Nashville by scores of 10-3 and 7-6. At present the Commodores are perched in second place in the Southeastern Conference standings. Cy Perkins, who trimmed the Cats before, is expected to open on the mound for Vandy with Ray Agee behind the bat.

Coach Frank Moseley will probably start George Tognocchi on the mound with the hope that his ace right hander will react to a Commodore uniform like John Paul Jones. Eddie Fritz will complete the battery. Saturday's tussel will see Link Ellington or Carl Staker opening for Kentucky.

In their last start the Cats made a serious threat to break the losing spurt but errors and spotty hitting in the pinches gave the University of Cincinnati an 8-6 win. Randal Phillips led the hitters with three doubles in as many trips to the plate.
