PRESIDENTIAL QUEST TO BEGIN

Marlatt, Morin Case Screening Enters New Round Committee Next Step

By RICHARD WILSON, Managing Editor

Did two University faculty members step beyond the bounds of academic responsibility or violate federal or state laws by distributing anti-armorant handbills at six local churches recently?

These questions confronted the University Board of Trustees as it met for its regular meeting Tuesday.

Petitions submitted by 15 local citizens requested the board dismiss Dr. Abby Marlatt, head of the School of Home Economics, and Edward A. Morin, an English instructor. The petitions stated it was the signers' belief that both Miss Marlatt and Morin had violated the Universal Military Act in urging that citizens refrain from registering for the draft.

The handbills were distributed Aug. 5 by Dr. Marlatt, Morin, and Robert Halfhill, Lexington, a student. In the leaflets, persons opposed to the arms race were also urged to refuse to pay federal income taxes or to work in defense plants.

A committee appointed at an earlier meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees reported yesterday that it had found no cause for punitive action to be taken in the case. By a 4-2 vote, the committee submitted a report stating that Marlatt and Morin did not violate UK governing regulations and recommending that "it would be unwise for any charges to be filed with the Board of Trustees."

After lengthy debate on the committee's decision, the board filed, but did not fully agree with the recommendation. One member voiced the opinion that irreparable damage would be done the University unless some action were brought against Miss Marlatt and Morin.

Another member said that "Much comment upon the incident has been voiced around the state. Robert Hillenmeyer, chairman of the investigating committee said, "No university professor should operate under the cloak of academic freedom to destroy a form of government which guarantees that freedom."

Sam Ezelle, Louisville, also a member of the committee, said, "The situation should be given a great deal of study before any action is taken." He added that freedom of speech was part of the question involved. As treasurer of the Kentucky AFL-CIO, he said, he had "been denied the freedom of speech within the common-

Dr. Seay Named New Ag Head

The appointment of Dr. William A. Seay as dean of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics was approved by the Board of Trustees Tuesday.

At the board meeting, Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president, said the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, perhaps more than any other segment of the University, reaches into every area of the state.

"Therefore, we need a man who will devote full time all his efforts, to build an agriculture college that knows where it is going on behalf of its state's agriculture," Dr. Dickey said.

As dean, Dr. Seay will also serve as Director of the Experiment Station and Director of the Extension Service.

Seay, a native Kentuckian, was a graduate assistant at the University in 1946 and 1947. He completed his graduate studies at the University of Wisconsin where he received his Ph.D.

Seay returned to Kentucky in 1953. He has served in various capacities in the agriculture college. He was named acting dean of the college in 1961.

The University Faculty Council will submit to the faculty tomorrow plans for selecting four members of a committee to help find a replacement for Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the University.

Dr. Dickey said he would be leaving UK in June with a "great deal of sadness" just before he announced his resignation to the Board of Trustees Tuesday. He has been president since June, 1956.

The screening committee will consist of Dr. Ralph Angelucci and three other members of the Board of Trustees which Gov. Bert T. Combs will appoint plus four faculty members who may be chosen through the procedure which the U.F.C. will suggest at tomorrow's meeting.

In a statement, the U.F.C. said it wishes to express its appreciation for the administration of President Frank Dickey. The King Library Installs Book Control System

An exit control system has been installed in the Margaret I. King Library to check all out-going books.

Dr. Lawrence S. Thompson, Director of Libraries, said due to the open shelf system, the exit control is a small price to pay for the privilege of direct access to the quarter of a million volumes in the general library.

The exit will be at the west door of the library. This will be the only entrance and exit. The reserved book room will have a separate internal entrance outside of the checking point when the building is completed. Dr. Thompson said.

The door-checkers will permit only the following material to leave the building:

1. Library books with a date-slip showing a date subsequent to the date on which the book is taken from the building;
2. Library books not containing a date-slip but with a slip signed by a responsible library employee stating that it may leave the building;
3. Personally owned materials.

The door-checkers will request that everything be inspected and that brief cases be opened for inspection.

When the building is completed, a number of free lockers will be available just outside the checking point, and a book return slot will be installed in the window of the reserved book room facing the porch.

During the school term, the library will be open at 7:45 a.m. but readers may not go beyond the door-checker's desk until 8 a.m. These hours will be 8 and 8:15 a.m. during holidays and vacations.

The rear entrance ramp is available only to handicapped persons and for deliveries. Handicapped persons using the rear entrance will be expected to check with the mail clerk, who will be the acting door-checker at that point.

continued increase in quality and prestige of the University reflects his able and untiring services."

Dr. Dickey will become executive director of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in Atlanta. The position is a new one created at a recent meeting of the association.

Dr. Albert J. Geiger, general secretary of the association, said by phone from Atlanta yesterday Dr. Dickey had been working with the association for the "past 10 or 12 years."

"Dr. Dickey is a fine person, and we're looking forward to having him as of July."

The association offered the position to Dr. Dickey last July. He accepted it about two weeks ago.

"The only reason I'm leaving the University is the unusual challenge which the position with the Southern Association holds. I'll have a direct role in the accreditation of schools as the first executive director of the agency."

The president explained that the association accredits schools in 11 southeastern states, including 384 colleges and universities and nearly 2,500 public and private secondary schools.

"The purpose is for the strength and improving of schools in the region," he said.

Dr. Dickey emphasized there were no political reasons involved in his decision to resign. He said he felt his resigning would have no significance as a political issue in the 1963 gubernatorial race.

As a family man, Dr. Dickey said, he is looking forward to a fuller family life. "An individual's time as president of a university leaves little time for normal family life."

"My family will be leaving with mixed emotions, but I think they will be pleased to resume a more normal, private life."

Frank, Jr., 19, is a sophomore at UK and will continue here when his family moves to Atlanta.

IFC Reveals New Rush System

The fraternity rush system this year has been drastically reconstructed to facilitate rushees finding the fraternity of their choice. Bill Cooper, president of Interfraternity Council, said.

The new aspects in this year's program include a bid system. With this invocation upperclassmen, second semester freshmen and transfer students will sign a preference card on which they will list in order of preference the fraternities which they are willing to pledge.

The fraternities will also submit bids with the names of the eligible rushees the fraternity is willing to pledge.

The Interfraternity Council will determine which men pledge which fraternities by coordinating the two sets of cards according to the preferences of the rushees and fraternities.

Bid Day is scheduled for Sept. 30 when there will be a formal announcement of, which men are pledged to which fraternities.

Another aspect of the program is a cut in the length of time for rushing. Formal rushing will now be limited to one week instead of the previous two.

Bill Cooper, president of IFC, said, "We are, trying to put a little more color in this, make it more exciting and meaningful."

He answered the objection that the time cut would force a student to act too quickly about which fraternity to join.

"I don't think so, because the sophomores will probably have been rushed already for two semesters, maybe one, and the transfers will have the week of

UK Students To Work For State University Professors Named Researchers

Four University civil engineering students will work with the state conservation department in developing Kentucky's small lakes, dams, and spillways.

The four trainees will assist state engineers under a new cooperative arrangement between the University's College of Engineering and the Division of Flood Control and Water Usage in Frankfort.

The only trainee who has been selected is James Adams of Graves County. He began work last week. Applications for the three other positions, which are open to sophomores and up with 2.0 standings, are being taken at the College of Engineering.

The program consists of 15 projects over the state. It is designed to give the students practical application of field and drafting principles taught in college.

Two of the trainees will work full-time on jobs. The others will work part-time during school and will alternate their activities each semester.

Student Directory

Students who did not list their Lexington phone numbers on their Student Directory Card are requested to fill out a supplementary card no later than 4 p.m. today at the Public Relations Department, Room 205 in the Administration Building. No changes will be made in Student Directory listings after this time.

Two UK professors have been named to head the University's two teaching and research teams in Indonesia.

Dr. Howard W. Beers will head the UK team at the University of Indonesia at Bogor while Dr. Vincent E. Nelson will head a smaller position at the Institute of Technology in Bandung.

The UK teams are working at the Indonesian institutions under a contract with the State Department's Agency for International Development.

Dr. William H. Jansen, coordinator of the University's Indonesian programs, who announced the Nelson and Beers appointments said in the number of personnel involved the UK contingent with A.I.D. is third largest among the 200 colleges and universities cooperating in the U.S. government's program of assistance to underdeveloped nations.

Dr. Beers, a sociologist who joined the University faculty in 1939, has been on leave of absence for three years while serving in Indonesia as community development associate for the Council on Economic and Cultural Affairs. In his new position at Bogor, he succeeds Dr. Theodore Schwab, now of Valparaiso University.

Dr. Nelson, a geologist, except for part-time duty in the government's strategic minerals program, has been a member of the UK faculty since 1938. He has been a member of the University's contract team at Bandung for the past year.

Indonesian Group To Occupy Old Health Service Building

The University Health Service has moved its quarters and left behind an empty building. Empty, but not for long, because Dr. William H. Jansen has moved the national headquarters of the U.S. Agency for International Development's Indonesian Services into a suite of offices on the second floor.

Dr. Jansen said the offices were vacant for some time, but he said the building was not to be abandoned. He explained the offices were so well equipped for a hospital and he knew of no other state plans to tear down the building or to use it for any other purpose. "The U.S.A.I.D. is a department working under the state department and the Indonesian branch has its headquarters located here where 60 of the 175 Indonesian students studying in the United States are attending classes," he said. "The building is a fine example of modern architecture and it is a shame to see it go to waste."

The Triangle Welcome Mat

Triangle fraternity has acquired a new rug for its staircase through the generosity of Mrs. Verleen Webb, LaCenter. Mrs. Webb, shown at the top of the stairs, agreed to have the rug for her son, Glyn, shown at the foot of the stairs. The rug pictures the state flowers of all 50 states and the fraternity's crest.

Triangles Given State Flower Rug

Want to know what the state flower is for the rest of the state? Triangles of all 50 states are on the rug. Mrs. Webb made the rug for the Triangle fraternity's crest. The rug was made at the school last summer at the suggestion of her son, Glyn, a Junior in Arts and Sciences. Mrs. Verleen Webb of LaCenter made 16 individual state rugs and three larger landing rugs. Each of the 16 small rugs have a state flower hooped in it and the rest of the state flowers are combined into two of the larger rugs.

Our Future

The future of this institution is resting on the shoulders of the University Board of Trustees. It is the responsibility of this group to select a capable man to take over the reins of this growing university.

Dr. Frank G. Dickey, upon his appointment five years ago as president, brought this institution up through the ranks until today it is considered one of the more outstanding universities in the nation.

The task of choosing his successor will be difficult. But we feel the Board recognizes the outstanding leadership given the school by President Dickey and will strive to find a man who possesses this same stature and character.

We sincerely hope that the Board of Trustees, which represents the entire state of Kentucky, will put aside any political or personal feelings they may have toward the selection of a new president. They should bear in mind that their decision will build or destroy this university, and with it the dreams of not only President Dickey, but the entire student body and the citizens of our great commonwealth.

We regret the President's decision to leave the University, but we know he has given careful consideration to this decision and we respect his judgment.

We wish you unequalled success, Dr. Dickey, knowing that you will give to your new position the same outstanding leadership you have given this university.

Something To Think About

What am I doing here? This is a question which not only incoming freshmen and transfer students should be concerned with, but upperclassmen as well.

Many students today claim society has forced them into attending college. "It is just the thing to do and besides all my friends are going, so I might as well tag along." This is the feeling a large majority of students express today.

Some of you have been pressured by your family into furthering your education. In many instances parents hold the philosophy that while they were unable to attend college their children are going, whether they want to or not. Still other parents realize the lasting rewards which they received from their college education and they want their offspring to take full advantage of the facilities offered to today's college student.

How many women students are here with the major objective of obtaining their sms, degree and for no other reason? College is just a place to go and look for that right man.

"Man what a swinger." This is another term used in our universities and colleges today. What kind of person is labeled with this distinguishing title? Playboy, grilling major, party girl, and anyone else who shares more interest in planning weekend blasts than they do in preparing their weekly class assignments.

We will also be the first to admit that there are students attending the University with the sincere desire to obtain the best possible education available to them.

But no matter in which of the above categories you place yourself, stop and consider for a minute your responsibility to yourself, your family, your community, and your university. After weighing all the facts you should then be able to answer the question, "What am I doing here?"

Orientation Stresses Academics University Services Plan To Aid Students

The freshman orientation program this year has tried to present the academic side of college life to new students. Fred Strache, director of orientation, said.

Orientation for incoming freshmen began in the summer when 1,470 students completed the registration process. These students were given the College Qualification Tests, assigned an academic adviser, and were completely enrolled in the University.

Approximately 1,000 freshmen and transfer students who did not participate in summer orientation were given the CQT tests, tuberculosis tests, and met with their advisers for pre-registration Saturday morning. They were also given a tour of the campus.

Saturday's program was designed to catch those students up to the point of those who had registered in the summer except they still had to go through registration, Strache said.

The Welcome Week program began for both groups Sunday afternoon with the president's convocation and a reception for parents and new students.

Strache said there were no movies or dances scheduled as part of the activities. "I personally feel that orientation is designed to present the facts necessary to be a student at the University."

Monday's activities included a math bypass test and a president's convocation. The math test, if passed by those who took it, would exempt them from algebra and trigonometry.

Strache said he was "quite pleased with the crowd" at the president's convocation. There were approximately 2,000 students there, he said.

Strache commented he felt the official "welcome" given by Dr. Frank G. Dickey, president of the University, was very good since it was kept at an academic level.

At this convocation the president asked that each student repeat a pledge to be good college student.

"For most people this is effective. Most of the students were impressed with this," Strache said.

Organizations and Activities Night was Tuesday in the Student Union Ballroom. Here the campus organizations such as Interfraternity Council, Phi Kappa Phi, Intramurals, church groups, and special interest groups set up booths to help acquaint freshmen with their organizations and give them an opportunity to sign up for membership.

For the most part, the honoraries were excluded this year, Strache said, since a student can't sign up for them until he has done something on campus. The skills that had been part of previous years programs were also omitted.

New programs added to the Welcome Week schedule this year were:

1. "Out Before a Student," a program which Dr. George Roger, Counseling and Testing Services, feels will assist freshmen in being better students.

2. A test of student attitude the results of which will be used for study aid for assisting the students.

3. A student leaders' meeting where the leaders of various campus organizations such as Student Congress, the Royal, the Honoraries, and the Greek organizations, were given an opportunity to explain their functions.

Strache said the student leadership meeting and the Organizations and Activities Night combined several ideas which are available to the student.

In addition to these there were the regular Welcome Week activities, the dean of men and the dean of women's meetings in which the non-athletic facilities available to the students such as dining, job applications, and health services were discussed, and the religious activities held to inform new students of the various churches and religious groups on and near the campus.

The Welcome Week program will attract those with an interfaith breakfast to be held at 8 a.m. Sunday in Denovan Hall Cafeteria.

Students who registered during the summer were required to pay their fees by Aug. 28. Those who did not were required to register and pay their fees according to the alphabetical schedule followed by upperclassmen.

University Services Plan To Aid Students

Three University Services located in the Administration Building, Counseling, Testing, and Placement, are prepared to aid both new and returning students.

The Counseling Service provides aid in three areas: vocational, academic, and personal. Personal counselors are provided by the Counseling Service Administration.

The service will assist freshmen and local students in credit courses twice yearly to improve standing, and transfer students who have been readmitted. The Placement Service, which has been in operation since 1957, has been expanded to include the placement of students in the summer and January sessions. Other students wishing to take the temporary do-it-yourself placement test may do so by visiting in a the Counseling Service.

Eight classes are scheduled for the fall semester, with the first to begin in October. They are to be scheduled at times when the

Dress Up Clothes Are Campus Ball Game Fad

New that everyone is registered and settled, the big question in most girls' minds is what will I wear to the football game Saturday.

Playboy's Fall Is Ivy Tinted

Playboy says that campus styles for men this fall have been subtly shifted by the dominance of the classic Ivy silhouette.

Then, September, these things new blue will be setting the un-generated color tone in suits and slacks, with the resurgence of the three-piece suit, a feature in the thirties, being the big news in campus campus look.

The overall look will again be centered around poplin, and unbuttoned shirts, and slacks and sportswear in the blue and white.

days. For most freshmen this is a little more difficult to answer than it is for the rest of the female population hereabouts.

Since you're more than likely never been to a ballgame at UK before, the byword for games is dress up. Heels and a simple basic dress are the order of the day. The suit in dark cotton or lightweight wool will make its appearance also Saturday.

If you wear a dress, and its the slightest bit cool before you leave for the game, be sure to take a sweater because the stadium is well known for its cold breezes.

For the males, in the crowd the look will be very neat. The reason for this manner of dress is that there are usually some type of formal gatherings among the groups.

Gov. Combs appointed a three-man committee to further investigate the case. Superintendent of Public Instruction Wendell Butler, Frankfort, was appointed as committee chairman. Also appointed were Dr. Robert Bushart, Fulton, and Dr. Aubrey Brown, Lexington.

The committee will recommend whether or not the charges constitute cause for a formal hearing. If so, the entire board could be called for a special meeting.

bus tours as well as the week of parties and dinners. We are trying to do in one week what we have always done in two, but I think that will be ample time."

Cooper gave three reasons for the organization of the rush system:
1. To alleviate the great expense ($1,500, according to last year's figures) to fraternities during rush.
2. To provide both the fraternity men and the rushers with an extra week for study and beginning the semester.
3. To impregnate the system with more color, excitement and drama.

than has been existent previously. Under the new system all freshmen who have signed up for rush will tour the fraternities for four days beginning tonight at 5:30. After the final reception on Sunday no new freshmen will be permitted in a fraternity house for nine weeks.

On Oct. 1, freshmen will mail post cards to the office of the dean of men on which they will list the five fraternities which interest them most. Informal rush will begin Nov. 26, and the freshmen will again be allowed to visit the various fraternity houses.

Commenting on the fraternity system and the position of rushers in general, Cooper said he believed there was no such thing as the stereotyped man who speaks a good fraternity brother.

"There are nineteen fraternities on the campus, and there is probably one for everybody. I don't think anybody would fit into all fraternities, or all fraternities are for all men. However, I do think there is a place for almost every man in the fraternity system."

SAE'S ROBBED IN SUMMER

Burglars spent the summer in the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house and walked off with $790 worth of goods.

Butch Pierson, SAE chaplain, said a $250 stereo record player was stolen from the housemother's room, two table lamps valued at $20 apiece, $100 worth of food, and clothes totaling approximately $350 were also stolen.

Pierson said: "There was no destruction to the property of the house itself. However, it cost the SAE's $300 to have the house cleaned because burglars lived here off and on throughout the summer." The fraternity surmised the work had been picked because no windows were broken and the door had not been damaged.

Police were left without clues to the identity of the burglars because of too many SAE fingerprints around the house.

State Law Forces Car Registration

A recently passed state law requires the compulsory registration of all student automobiles.

The law, previously a University regulation is to be placed into effect at all state supported colleges and universities.

The ruling will be the same as in past years and the enforcement will be as strict or even more so, according to Kenneth E. Harper, acting dean of men. He said there are no changes in student automobile registration excepting the fee for student parking permits has been increased to $10.

Dean Harper said the rules permit only seniors, juniors or sophomores with a 2.0 standing or above to register their automobiles. No student on academic probation or freshmen will be granted permission to register their cars. He noted exceptions would be made in necessary cases, but these exceptions would be made only by the Dean's Office.

Harper explained that sophomores living in town desiring registration permission for their cars should have a letter from their parents giving them written permission to have a car at UK. He said the letter would be read and permission granted according to individual circumstances.

Harper said disciplinary action would be taken against those students breaking the registration rules and explained the action would be determined by himself and the Student Congress Judiciary Board.

The acting dean said fines would be imposed on those people who receive parking tickets. Fines will be $5 for the first ticket, $10 for the second ticket, $25 for the third ticket and possible suspension after four or more tickets.

He said tickets would be given for parking in the wrong area or for parking in an area without a permit. Students will be given the following area permits:

Area B, on Boone Alley; area R, on Rose Street; area C, behind Memorial Coliseum; area S, on Scott Street, across from the education buildings; area H, in front of and behind Haggin Hall, and area 14, at the Medical Center to be used by medical students.

Trustees Set Up Law Institute

The University Board of Trustees has authorized the establishment of the UK Law Institute.

The long-range goal of the institute will be its development into a "ministry of justice" to survey the laws and its practice and make appropriate suggestions for improvement.

The institute, first proposed by the UK College of Law in 1954, was authorized in July, 1962.

In recent years there has been a steady demand on the college by the bar and governmental agencies for assistance in various projects.

The proposed institute would act as a local counterpart within the College of Law to cooperate with these groups.

Dr. Paul Oberst, UK professor of law, will head the institute in addition to his regular duties. Law students will eventually be hired for part time work during the regular session and on a full time basis during the summer to aid in research projects.

President Frank G. Dickey said the agency will be "a typical research institute, a part of the more advanced and prestigious American law schools."

"It will deal specifically with legal service and research problems, which may involve psychology, medicine, and so forth. It will enable the College of Law to render more effective services to the State, and any other institution that might wish to have legal research accomplished."

The organizational plan accepted by the board outlines the following objectives:

1. To promote increased participation by the College of Law in continuing legal education for the bar.

2. To promote and oversee research, drafting and codifying projects for government agencies, foundations, and other public groups.

3. To act as a coordinating body for interdisciplinary research between the College of Law and other established UK research groups.

One of the aims of the new organization will be to attract research funds, to be administered through the Kentucky Research Foundation, and to establish a method for working on group research projects.

The initial projects of the institute are still in the planning stage.

Dr. Kuiper To Tour Europe

Professor John Kuiper, head of the Department of Philosophy, will be absent this fall on a semester's sabbatical leave to tour Europe.

Professor and Mrs. Kuiper, will visit the universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh.

In October, the Kuipers will go to the University of Paris and universities in Switzerland and Italy. Beginning Nov. 1, they will spend approximately three months in Greece.

Professor Kuiper said, "The purpose of the trip is to provide an opportunity to sense directly the philosophical atmosphere of Europe."

Dr. Jesse DeBoer will be acting head of the philosophy department during Professor Kuiper's absence.

The five who failed to meet the 2.4 all-student average are Phi Chi Alpha, Kappa Sigma, Sigma Chi, Sigma Nu, Alpha Gamma Rho, Phi Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Tau, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and Phi Delta Theta.

The all fraternity average was also a 2.4.

Farmhouse and Tau Kappa Epsilon had the highest chapter average. Each averaged 2.6. Phi Gamma Delta, Delta Tau Delta, and Kappa Alpha all had a chapter average of 2.5.

There are nine fraternities with an average of 2.4. They are Lambda

Students Comment On Smooth Running Registration

The morning session of registration is great, but the afternoon session is horrible.

This was the general reaction of most University students early Tuesday morning as they hastened to complete scheduling of classes.

Outside the Coliseum the line grew long as the 9 o'clock group waited entrance, inside the atmosphere stirred with the movement of busy people.

Dr. C. F. Elton, dean of admissions and registrar, said, "I feel unless they need freshman classes."

Jack Gunn, education major assisting with registration, commented, "This is my third year working with registration and this year's seems to be running pretty smooth. The way classes are so rapidly filling still leaves much to be desired in the system."

Ann Arnold, a speech and dramatic arts major working with the dean of arts and sciences during registration, said, "The one thing that really bugs is when students fail to completely fill out all of their cards. Not only does it waste our time but theirs also."

At the constantly changing class schedule board, students were seen frantically searching for classes and changing schedules.

About 8:45 a.m., 46 of the 50 sections of freshman English composition were closed. When asked if the amount many freshmen would not get their classes, Jack Ragsdale, graduate assistant, replied, "No new sections will be opened later when all these have been filled."

The English department has allowed for large classes with 40 to 50 students in a class. Students will have lecture as a group and recitation in smaller groups, Ragsdale added.

Rain, Rain, Go Away

in without dropping something I'll be lucky." When asked if she had seen much of the campus, Bonnie Groves said, "No—of all things, I've forgotten my umbrella." However, the janitor at Keeneland Hall explained the situation this way, "In the many years I've worked for the University it's rained every year on the day when the girls come back."

TIPS ON TOGS By "LINK"

HOW WAS REGISTRATION? — Fun?—This first column of the season is more or less an introduction, and a rolling out of the "Red Carpet" of welcome for you new inmates—pardon (I mean students). Through this medium I will endeavor to keep you abreast (or ahead) of the latest and most popular campus styles and etc. Any time you visit "Maxson's" and desire me to help you, I will be pleased to do so. Just say "I want to see Link" or you will find me in the "Kentuckian Shop" (our college nest on the second floor). Have a coke and browse to your heart's content. You are always welcome (whether you buy or just visit and shoot the breeze).

HAVE met some real swinging people who are newcomers on campus and enjoyed the meetings. And another great kick is to greet the "ole timers," people that have become friends as well as customers of mine—to me—a friendly hello or hand clasp is worth more than just selling an article (I like that too)—so it looks like a real blasty season. Hope I will have the pleasure of meeting YOU!

TIP—Want a very versatile sport coat? OK, try one of the new camel hair blazers (blazers are bigger than ever in fashion and popularity). These have natural shoulders, Three buttoned with laped seams and center hook vent—can be worn with slacks of deep brown, black, shades of olive and navy blue. Tie should match slacks.

NEVER under estimate the importance of good looking and comfortable sweaters for campus and goofing-off wear. No sweater is out of style this year, vee necks, crew necks, deep collars, boat necks, button-ups, slip-over's and coat styles are all in vogue.

NEXT WEEK I will introduce my campus representatives for this season. I have representatives at U. of K., Transylvania, Georgetown, Eastern, and Asbury.

ANY ONE wishing to write me a question on correct apparel for any occasion, just address it to me care of the store and I assure you I will answer, pronto.

BEST OF LUCK to Coach Bradshaw, and the whole team!

HOPE you will read this mess next week. Will try to make it more entertaining and more informative. But the first one of each season is the toughest to write. Bear with me.

See you for now

Wildcats May See Lesson In Bible Story Of Goliath

Kentucky Opens Tough Schedule Saturday Armed With Nation's Top Passing Combo

By DAVE HAWPE
 Kernel Staff Sports Editor
And David put his hand on his hip and took Goliath's stone, and slung it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sank into his forehead, and he fell upon his face to the earth.
1 Samuel, 17:49

Happily, Coach Chaffie Bradshaw is a religious man. Were it not so, the Biblical tale of David's slaying Goliath would have little meaning to this year's edition of the Kentucky Wildcats. But Coach, Charles is devoutly religious and likely will bear in mind that David clobbered the giant with a slingshot and a prayer.

Long on split and short on numbers, the Wildcats face a veteran squad from Florida State University in the K-Day opener this Saturday at 8:00 p.m. on Stoll Field. Thirty-one games will form the blue to inaugurate a 10-game schedule that must rank among the toughest in the country.

Fielding one of the nation's strongest pass combinations, quarterback Jerry Woolum to All-American candidate and Tom Duggan, Kentucky's Wildcat will face the toughest squad in Florida State's history. Kentucky will face a veteran team (13 juniors and 12 seniors) which embarrassed the Citadel last weekend, 49-17.

Coach Bradshaw's basic problem is difficult to define, because he has several that would merit consideration as top priority worries. Depth is obviously not a Wildcat's strongpoint, with the tremendously high rate of dropouts hitting hardest in the line. Twelve of 18 graduating letter-writers were centers, guards, or tackles. Development of a running game is essential in the Bradshaw system. Ideally a team runs 70 percent of the time and passes thirty percent, says the coach. However, the balance may be tipped slightly in favor of the passing game this year, due to the presence of an exceptional passer and the "finest pass-catching aid since Don Hutson," all-time great from Alabama.

End is Kentucky's strongest position, manned by Hutchinson, All-SEC candidate Dave Gash, and big, bruising Dan Riveiro. Hutch has been accorded all the superlatives available by every coach who has seen him play. Making "un-Godly" catches, eluding pass-defenders when there seems no escape, he recovers from shattering snags to gallop down the field ahead of everything.

Gash has played in the shadow of Hutchinson for three years, sometimes seeming the better of the two, always forcing Tom to display the better part of his talents. Gash makes Kentucky's pass attack a double threat by giving Woolum an alternate target.

The quarterback spot also is loaded with talent. Woolum, the nation's number one passer, might be broke his leg against the FSU squad next year, is also capable of keeping the defense honest, with his running talents. Backing up Woolum will be Bill Jenkins, a sophomore spark-plug, and Elmer Jackson, junior standout, both of whom have shown the ability to do the job in practice.

A front line strong at the tackle position but weak at guard will be anchored by 6-8, 220-pound Raphael Turner, a junior tackle. Turner is an All-SEC candidate this season, and Coach Bradshaw looks for All-American recognition by the '68 campaign.

At the other tackle senior Junior Hawthorn, a 6-1, 220-pounder, will be carrying the load. A veteran of the '61 campaign when he backed up 33:16 minutes of playing time in nine starts, Hawthorn, quarterback tackle, the strongest interior line position.

Center spot has been bolstered by the transfer of "Terrible Tom" Simpson to the middle from his usual defensive end position. Simpson is one of the keenest competitors anywhere, and carries a lot of weight to back up his desire. At 6-1, 194 pounds, Simpson will make things difficult for opposing backs coming through the line.

Weakest line position is at guard, where a lack of experience will be keenly felt. Jim "Red" Hill, the 5-11, 195-pound senior, and Jim Foley, a big, 6-0, 205 sophomore will man the fort.

In the backfield Coach Bradshaw has a potentially fine crew; however, he feels it will have to be developed. Starting at the half-back spots will be sensational junior Darrell Cox, leading punt-return artist in the SEC last year. An explosive runner, Cox will be working hard to keep his starting position over Phil Pickett, a sophomore who has been coming fast in practice.

At the other half will be Gary Steward, a senior who led the Cats in ground-gaining last year. Experience is Steward's forte. Gary being one of two Wildcats who started all 10 games last year.

Fullback is a tossup between Coach Bradshaw's spring practice find, junior Perky Bryant, and junior veteran Edward Dunbar. Both are slated for action as Bradshaw juggles his team, try.

"The Friendly Place Where Students Meet"

South Line Across From Good Samaritan Hospital

CAT-a-log

By Bill Martin

For one of the few times in my five years on this campus, the sports pages were of secondary interest when school opened here Monday. A story run on the front page of the Lexington afternoon paper carried a headline which read:

Dickey Statement Set On Resignation Talk

Underneath, beside and around the headline were scattered pictures and stories of the University's fall registration. By Tuesday afternoon the word was out that the University would lose its leader, Dr. Frank G. Dickey, the fifth man to hold the post and youngest to become president of the University, turbed in his resignation. It is effective July 1, 1963. He will take a position as executive director of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

He summed up his feelings and emotions in a simple, yet understandable statement. Dickey told the board Tuesday morning "the decision to take this action has not been an easy one."

Gov. Bert T. Combs, ex officio chairman of the Board of Trustees, said in behalf of the group, "We have received this information with exceeding regret." Combs added that Dickey's leaving would leave a great void, but that the board could take comfort in the fact that he will be available for the remainder of the school year.

A University president, like most other college administrators, deals only indirectly with the students and their problems. There is only one time that Dickey had a direct hand in student affairs. At that time, the man who will go out as a champion when he leaves here in July, went down as the loser with the students and Gov. A. B. Chandler.

It was the weekend of Nov. 20, 1959, Kentucky was playing host Tennessee in the Wildcat's Homecoming game.

Dickey and football coach Blanton Collier kicked off the big weekend by leading the students and football team in a pep rally at Memorial Coliseum. To make a long story short, Dickey and the University Faculty ruled that there would be no student holiday to go with the Kentucky victory. This ruling came after the game was won and students had rioted to take a day-off.

"We want a holiday," shouted the rioting students.

Dr. Dickey told the hissing group of students he expected them not to act like a group of rabble rousers, but like mature individuals.

"We want Chandler," came the reply.

In 1958, following the victory over Tennessee, Gov. Chandler proclaimed the time a state holiday. Under the executive order, students took off for all corners of the United States.

The Faculty vetoed dismissing classes the Wednesday of '58 before Thanksgiving, but did not stand in the way of the governor's holiday proclamation. In November, 1959 the faculty and Dr. Dickey said classes would be conducted.

After a second demonstration on Nov. 25, in which about 500 students took part the president made this statement:

"As has been stated previously, professors will be in their classes Wednesday, but attendance by students is a personal choice. My suggestion, and I emphasize it is a suggestion only, would be that no roll checks be made on classes Wednesday."

The classes were held. The students went home early, few, if any class rolls were checked.

Dr. Dickey, our president, had been overtaken. The students with help from the governor, had won a decision.

30 Wildcats 'Ready'

ing to find the winning combination. Reports from the Tallahassee wigwam have it that the Seminoles should field a "stronger team this year than the '61 squad, which finished 4-5-1 overall, and posted a 1-2-1 record against SEC foes. A total of 24 returning lettermen are due for more battle under Chief Bill Peterson, with only 12 monogram-winners missing from last year's roll.

Experience and depth are present at every position with at least three all-star prospects. Quarterback Eddie Feely, guard Gene McDowell, and tackle Mike Blazovch are rated among the South's top gridmen.

The presence of Feely, the top passer, and second-best FSU ground-gainer a year ago, and a whole host of talented youngsters makes quarterback the strongest position for the Floridians.

With seniors McDowell and John Letourie leading the way, guard will have more experienced hands available than any other position. Juniors Jerry Briner, Fred Henry, and Cline Robinson are due to provide capable reserve aid and bring the letterman total to five at this spot. Promising soph Jack Shisholer and Steve Slay also are slated for much guard action.

Blazovch is expected to carry the bulk of the load along with Jim Sims, Tom Steger, and Bill Tyrone Ken Thompson, a '61 red-shirt, and Avery Sumner, a full-back-linebacker on last year's unbeaten freshman team, who has made the switch from tackle with amazing ease, are the top newcomers at the tackle position. The two leading flankers of '61, Jim Daniel and Fred Grimes, are gone, but four lettermen, especially potent on defense, return. Daniel was the leading pass-receiver last year and Grimes a top-notch defensive specialist. Only John McConaughay ranks as a real receiving threat (11 catches for 102 yards in '61). However, Butch Gunter, Y. C. McNease, and John Watehite are rated knock-em, sock-em defenders.

Center stacks up as the weakest of the FSU line positions as only two lettermen return—senior Bruce Darsey and junior Bill Dally. The Seminoles had trouble here last year when now-graduated Larry Hood was the number one man. Sophomore Jack Edwards looks to be the best of the pivot-post newcomers.
