Engineers Plan Open House Day

Many High School Students Are Expected To Attend To Inspect UK Engineering Plant

The second post-war College of Engineering open house will be held today at Anderson Hall from 1 to 4:30 p.m. and from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Approximately 9000 guests, many of whom will be high school students from throughout the state, are expected to attend and inspect the college's laboratories, workshops, and other facilities.

Engineering students, serving as guides, will escort visitors on planned tours of the Civil, Electrical, Mechanical, Mining, and Metallurgical Engineering Departments and the highway materials, aeronautical and coal research laboratories.

The Lexington Yellow Cab Company will have a post-war service receiving station set up at the Engineering College with a fleet of cabs to transport guests from Anderson Hall to the various departments, the Metallurgical Laboratory, the Coal Research Laboratory, and the Coal Research Laboratory. There will be no charge for the service.

A. B. Guthrie Awarded Pulitzer Fiction Prize

Winner Is Member Of English Faculty

A. B. Guthrie, director of a course in narrative writing at the University, received the Pulitzer award this week for his book, "The Way West."

"The Way West" is the first novel in a series of three to be awarded the prize. Guthrie came to Lexington in 1928 as a member of the English faculty. He was executive editor when he retired 21 years later to devote all of his time to fiction writing.

"The Way West" is the second book of a four-volume panel on the history of the West. It had been selected earlier by The New York Times' Orville Prescott as one of the best novels of 1949.

The Pulitzer Prizes, which carry a cash award of $50, have been awarded annually since 1917. Guthrie was the first author to win the prize awarded by the Friends of American Writers.

"The Way West" has been sold to Winchester Pictures, a production company for R.K.O.

Awards Given in High Schools Named For Two UK Pioneers

Two pioneers in journalistic education in Kentucky will be honored during the commencement season through presentation of service certificates to top-ranking Kentucky high school seniors, Dr. Nell Plummer, head of the Department of Journalism, announced last week.

The certificates, to be known as the Enoch Grehan Certificate of Newspaper Service and the Marguerite McLaughlin Certificate of Yearbook Service, will be issued by the journalism department in the name of the Kentucky High School Press Association, which maintains its state headquarters on the UK campus.

The awards will be given on the basis of the students' contributions to journalism in their schools.

The newspaper award honors the late Professor Grehan, who founded the Department of Journalism in 1914 and served as its head until his death in 1937. Under his direction, the department became one of the

Students Hold Judging Meet

The college judging contest, sponsored by the Judging Club, was held recently at the Stock Pavilion with Edith Martin, retiring president of the club, as superintendent.

Dr. Dwight M. South, professor of dairying, and other members of the faculty of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

In the senior division first prize went to Jim Martin; second, to Robert Norris; John Cooper, third; and Edith Martin, fourth.

The final five in the senior division were Edith Martin, Jim Martin, Robert Norris, John Cooper, and Edith Martin.

Winners in the junior division were William Hopper, Kenneth Franks, Dale Slab, Melvin Sparks, Bruce Cotton, Billy Ridgeway, Herbert Brown, Kenneth Kiser, Harold Davis, and Richard Lutes.

Those who won special prizes in their classes were in the senior division, Jim Martin, Robert Norris, and John Cooper; in the junior division winners were Kenneth Franks, William B. Wash, and General Edith Martin.

Also in each division, awards were made for the best reasons. The senior division contest resulted in a tie between Robert Norris and Cecil Brown. The junior division winners were William Hopper and Alan Dutton.

Eighteen Get State Awards

Recipients of the State Highway Department scholarship awards at the University College of Engineering were named early this week.

The awards, valued at $500 each, are presented to students through their first year of cooperative engineering education plan that calls for alternate periods of classroom instruction and personal interviews, the material can be reached on foot or by short automobile haul.

There are drawbacks, however, for at that altitude, and with mountains towering to over 12,000 feet on either side, climbing and other activity is materially hampered by the thin air. It takes about two weeks to get acclimated, Dr. McFarlan said.

Dr. McFarlan explained the necessity of extensive geological background in the following words:

"Picture a student of literature confined as far as original works are concerned to the study of Emerson, Shakespeare, Longfellow, and Poe. Such a student, if he is to understand the rest of the field to the field of literature, the University brings the rest of the field to the student by way of an extensive library."

"But you cannot bring the great earth structures, stratigraphy, volcanics, volcanics, physiographic phenomena, and mineral resources to the student. You take the student to it."

"We have some good geology here and we work it every Saturday, but it is only a small part of a very large field. The material that keeps our advanced laboratory busy the rest of the year."

"Three masters' these have been written this year from studies begun there last summer."

Camp Retreat Planned By 'Y'

The annual YMCA-YWCA spring planning retreat will be held this weekend at Camp Ontario, it was announced by Mrs. Margaret Carburn, director of the YWCA. Although the retreat is primarily for cabinet members, any member of the Y may attend.

The group will leave the Student Union Building at 1:30 p.m. Saturday and will return to Lexington Sunday afternoon. Those who plan to attend should sign up by 5 p.m. today in the YWCA office, Mrs. Durman said.

Geology Students Will Attend Field Camp In Colorado For Eight Weeks This Summer

By J. T. Vaughan

While most of us are sweating out the hot summer months in Kentucky, some 35 UK students and others will have eight weeks of frosty nights and mild days 9000 feet up in the Colorado Rockies at the Department of Geology's summer field camp.

The camp, located on Cement Creek in Gunnison National Forest, will be conducted by Drs. A. C. McFarlan, V. E. Nelson, and W. B. Brown, and is scheduled for June 11 to Aug. 9, the department has announced. Here young geologists begin to learn what it is all about.

The main party will leave Lexington Thursday morning, June 15, and the camp site will be in the Eight Students from other institutions, including the University of Notre Dame, Wisconsin, and Cincinnati, and Union College of New York, will attend the camp site and join the party at Lexington, Colorado, June 17.

In Third Year

Dr. McFarlan, who with Mrs. McFarlan and three students will make up an advance crew leaving June 11 to get the camp party set up before the main party arrives and to make arrangements for the summer work, furnished the following information about the camp site and the summer program.

This will mark the third consecutive year the Department has held a summer session in Colorado, a site also chosen by eleven other

Cheerleaders Are Selected

Four girls and two boys were elected UK cheerleaders by Suky in Alumni Gym before a group of students Thursday. Gene Stevens, retiring Suky president, has announced.

They are Jean Hardwick, Alpha Gamma Delta; Nancy Brown, Kappa Alpha Theta; Eleanor Cash, Alpha Delta Pi; Betty White, Kappa Alpha Theta; Dave Berr, Sigma Nu, and Bob Nicolas, Phi Sigma Kappa. Two more boys are to be elected next fall.

"The object in this spring election is to give the boys training in gymnastics, and for the group to be well organized for fall," Stevens said.

During Freshman Orientation week in September the cheerleaders will teach new girls to the freshmen.

UK Absence Rule In Need Of Uniformity

We have received no opinions concerning last week's letter from the editor of the University of Virginia's "Cavalier Daily" concerning student acceptance of the UK absence rule.

The rule, for the benefit of those who do not know exactly how it is stated, is as follows (taken from the new University catalog, just off the Kernel press):

"Absences shall be counted beginning with the first day of recitations. The instructor shall keep a record of absences for each student. When, in his opinion, the number of absences for any student becomes excessive or appears to be unjustified, he shall report such student to the dean concerned. A student may be dropped from a course for excessive absences by the Registrar upon recommendation of the dean and the instructor. When a student is so dropped, the instructor shall report the grade the student is making at the time he is dropped."

"Any student absent from class on the day immediately preceding or following a holiday shall have a penalty of one credit and one quality point added to his requirements for graduation."

"Absences due to officially authorized trips, such as those of athletic teams; musical, oratorical and dramatic organizations; and University classes, shall be considered as being excused absences. The faculty member in charge of an authorized trip shall give to each student concerned a statement to present to his teachers certifying that the absence is official."

"No report of absences shall be required for graduate students. Any undergraduate student whose standing on the work of the previous semester is 2.4 or better, upon application to the Registrar, shall be extended the same privilege relative to absences as graduate students."

Asking a few questions among students, we have found:

1. The system is a lenient one in spirit, but is abused too often.
2. Variations between different professors is often so marked as to make the rule seem ridiculous.
3. The provision for undergraduates with a standing of 2.4 or better to be exempt from absentee penalties simply is not observed by some professors.

There has been at least one case in which a student scheduled to take a comprehensive examination in his major course has been

At least one instructor has stated to his class that even a broken leg would not prevent absentee penalties. The irony of it was that a student in the class did suffer a broken leg and was failed in that subject (but in no others) because of the time missed. The student had a very high standing during four years here.

In several instances, instructors who are devout champions of the European system of instruction forget such philosophy insofar as cuts are concerned and penalize heavier than their fellows.

We believe that a more uniform, yet lenient, system could be worked out at the University. Until that time, students will necessarily learn the hard way whether or not they can miss a class now and then.

threatened with a penalty for cutting another class during that time.

University Should Back Kentucky Homecoming

The Commonwealth of Kentucky has much of which to be proud in the way of progressiveness. The gains made in the past 100 years have been just short of phenomenal. That is why 1950 was designated "Homecoming Year" throughout the state. That is the reason, too, that all University of Kentucky students should get behind this drive to bring back former residents to see our state's improvements. It seems as if quite a few areas around the state are doing their share of the work without the aid, thus far, of our students.

Barbourville put on a wonderful show last week, and enlisted the aid of many state dignitaries. The effort was well worth the while of the participants for they put over their theme very well. Other counties are refusing to take a back seat to these celebrations, however. Rockcastle County, for instance, is forming plans for their homecoming celebration in July and making an all-out effort to make this the best one of all. Other counties are building their annual fairs around the homecoming theme.

We who are usually the foremost backers of progressiveness in Kentucky should not slacken our efforts now. 1950 should be a banner year in Kentucky and especially at the University. — Bob Cox.

THE IDES OF MARCH
By Thornton Wilder
"The Ides of March," by Thornton Wilder, is a fictional account of the last days of the Roman republic. It is written in the form of letters to and from Julius Caesar and his various friends, relatives, and enemies. It may be called a fantasia on the persons and events of that period in history. Facts and dates are distorted and very often Wilder introduces a character at a certain date who was actually dead at that time according to history. These are the reasons I did not enjoy Thornton Wilder's novel. After reading a few of his earlier works such as "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" and "The Woman of Andros" I was greatly disappointed in this book. The letter form of writing made the general theme hard to follow and the division of the book into four parts, each separate and alien from the other, left me in a quandary of what his ultimate goal was

The Pulitzer Prize: Mr. Guthrie's Gift To UK

A. B. Guthrie's name has made the rounds of editorial pages since it was announced this week that he had received the coveted Pulitzer prize for fiction.

We had known that "The Way West" was a great novel. But, like Mr. Guthrie, we were surprised and delighted when it was chosen from thousands of others for the honor.

There is very little we can add to the more widely-read and expertly-written statements of the others. We know that Mr. Guthrie appreciates their plaudits. We know, too, that he is sincerely modest in accepting them.

He doesn't write for writing's sake, for money's sake or for art's sake. Yet he believes writing to be the greatest medium of communication, he doesn't frown on the money with an anti-materialistic sniff, and he hopes that his work, because it is genuine and heart-felt, is realistic art.

To him, praise is merely the acceptance and understanding of his work. The rush among students to register in his classes here and the long list which must be turned away, indicate strongly enough that they appreciate his work. Therefore praise is not necessary.

We can, however, consider our good fortune in having Kentucky's first Pulitzer prize winner at the University, and be grateful to whoever brought him here. Certainly no man here has been more influential than A. B. Guthrie, Jr., in improving the literary reputation of the University.

To be sure, the book's first section is expository and leads the reader up to the date September, 45 B.C. Part two begins earlier and concerns Caesar's inquiry into love, whereas part three goes back earlier still and concerns religion. The fourth part is the only interesting part of the book. It goes farther back than the others and deals with Caesar's inquiries as to the possibilities of his role in "destiny."

This technique of going backwards in history adds to the confusion brought on by the book's historical inaccuracies. Although the first part is expository, it deals with the later dates in history, a phenomena I cannot explain.

Wilder has even gone so far in his confusion of history as to include an event of the Second World War in his story. That event was the circulation of chain letters through out Italy attacking Mussolini. Wilder simply transferred the event to 45 B.C. and made Caesar the victim. This he readily acknowledges in his foreword.

"The Ides of March" has no plot, no story, a poor literary form, no message to convey. There is but little entertainment to be derived from it and my thinking it has no excuse for having been written. I can only believe that it was written for the sake of art or literary achievement but only for commercial gain.

It contains 246 pages and was published in 1949 by Harper and Brothers.

SLEEP TILL NOON
By Max Shulman
"Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!" "Four shots ripped into my groin, and I was off on the biggest adventure of my life..." This quotation, the opening paragraph of the book, is typical of Max Shulman's newest novel "Sleep Till Noon." It has absolutely nothing to do with the story. Shulman, as he explains on Page 116, just thought it would be a perfect beginning for a book if he ever wrote one!

"Sleep Till Noon" is a hilarious burlesque of the country club set and the immorality that often accom-

CONN-COX 'UNS

By Earl Conn and Bob Cox
The spring Kernaland meeting is now a thing of the past and every one seems to find themselves in a considerably changed financial condition. Richer or poorer as a result, everyone seemed to have enjoyed the racing immensely and now that the serious end of the business is over and done with we hope that you all can sit back and once more enjoy and/or gnash your teeth over our weekly efforts. So, for better or for worse, in sickness or in health, until death do us part, here is the cream of this week's crop:
Small boy: Dad, is Rotterdam a bad word?
Dad: Why, no, son. It's the name of a city.
Small boy: Well, sister ate all my candy and I hope I'll Rotterdam with out.

LXA: They aren't notes, sir. They're cards. We're playing bridge.
Professor: Oh, I beg your pardon.

Distribution Of Kentuckians Scheduled To Begin May 24

The 1950 Kentuckian is finished—much to the surprise of everyone concerned. Three hundred forty-eight pages representing life at UK have been carefully packed and shipped to Kingsport, Tenn., to be bound and covered.

The completely finished books will be returned in about three weeks, and distributed to the fore-mentioned students who ordered them. Graduating seniors will receive their books in presentation of their graduation fee receipt. Distribution will begin on Wednesday, May 24, in the Kentuckian office, room 515 in McCvey Hall.

Life at UK
The Kentuckian staff is vastly proud of the 1950 Kentuckian, and rightly so. The faithful members of the staff gave freely of their time and effort to make the 1950 book a true and complete picture of life at UK—and most of all, to bring the book out on time. On weekends and vacations, as well as week days and nights, the staff members were to be found tirelessly mounting pictures and writing copy.

The average student does not realize the necessity of meeting deadlines, keeping within the budget, and other financial details that faced the staff. As late as April 1, students approached the staff and belittledly demanded that their pictures be taken and included in the book. The harassed staff, a month late on the production schedule, had little sympathy for those tardy souls.

SGA Regan Setbacks
Setbacks were the accepted thing in this year's production of the Kentuckian. SGA began the cycle by cutting their aid to the Kentuckian to $500. This sum, which is supposed to pay for the pages of juniors and seniors, actually paid for about one-third of the pages in

Kentucky Rallies To Tie Georgia, 3-3

Newton, Adams Pitching Duel Features Thirteen Inning Tilt

By Bob Graham

The Kentucky Wildcats came through with a story-book finish in the 13th inning Wednesday to earn a save, fought 3-3 tie with the Georgia Bulldogs in a baseball game that had to be called after three hours and twenty-five minutes of battling.

For 12 innings, C. M. Newton of the Cats, and Ace Adams of the Bulldogs locked horns in a spell-binding pitchers' battle, with both men going in-and-out-at trouble and neither allowing a run.

Then in that explosive 13th frame Georgia counted three times after two were out on three walks, a hit batman, and a hard ground single by Billy Henderson. At this point Bob Hatcher hurried in to relieve the tiring Newton, and got Eason T. Grund out to check the rally.

Kentucky Comes Back

But Kentucky was not to be outdone. Don Pucci entered the frame with his third straight single, and Dear Moseley followed with another one-batter, his second hit of the marathon contest. On Moseley's hit, the Georgia leftfielder committed an error when he threw past third base. Fucci went to third and Moseley to second on the miscue.

At this point, Charley Kell came in to relieve Adams, and immediately uncocked a wild pitch that allowed Pucci to scamper home with the first Wildcat run. Moseley moved to third. Walt Hirsch walked, and then stole second as Babe Parrill went down on strikes.

Jack Cummins apparently struck out on a low pitch, but the umpire ruled that the ball hit the plate and was dead. On the next pitch, Cummins struck a grounder to second, and the Bulldogs second-batter fumbled the ball, allowing Moseley to come in with the second score.

Hirsch Ties It Up

Hirsch scored to third on the play and moved the tying run a minute later as Bob Hatcher hurried back to the pitcher, who threw him out at first. Kell thought he had snuffed Hirsch back to third, but the deceptive first baseman darted for home the moment the ball left Kell's hand on its way to first to get Hatcher.

Cummins moved to second on this play, and represented the winning run, but Capt. Johnny Stough, who had one of his worst days at the plate, hit a fly to the outfield for the fifth time in the game to end the contest.

Both teams missed scoring opportunities before the climactic 13th. Three times Kentucky had runners on base, but couldn't cash in as Newton bore down to nip their efforts in the bud. Once they had the bases loaded and he forced the ball back to hit back to him and he converted it into a double play. Again they filled the bases, and he struck out the batter to leave all the runners stranded.

Donnie Pucci led the Kentucky hitters at the plate with three singles. Donnie Moseley had two, and Billy Henderson and Hoby Jackson led the Georgians with 2 hits each.

Batteries: Adams, Kell (13) and Montford; Newton, Hatcher (13) and Cummins.

Beat Georgia Tech, 7-2

Kentucky won its seventh consecutive victory last Saturday afternoon by whipping Georgia Tech, 7-2, behind the four-hit pitching of Bob Hatcher.

The ace right-hander was in complete control throughout the game, and probably would have had a hitout had it not been for a fluke, inside-the-park home run and an error that allowed the Yellow Jackets to tally twice in the fourth inning.

Donnie Pucci and Donnie Moseley hit home runs on successive pitches in the Kentucky half of the fourth inning—the big bluffs of the game. Pucci and Jay Cummins had two hits each that accounted for five runs to pace the Wildcat attack.

Tie, Rained-Out Game May Not Be Replayed

The tie game played by Kentucky and Georgia will not be played off unless it is necessary in determining the champion of the Eastern Division of the SBC. The game with Georgia Tech that was rained out last Saturday will not be played either, unless a tie develops that would necessitate a play-off.

Kentucky met the Bulldogs of Georgia in the second game of the series yesterday on Legion field. At the present time, Georgia is leading the Division with 9 wins and 3 losses. Kentucky is in second place with a 5-2 record, and needs a win to move into first place.

If the Cats beat the Bulldogs Thursday, they would have a 25% percentage on their 6-2 mark, while the Georgians would drop to 60% on their 9-2 record.

It would take almost 300 Formans to equal the land of the continent-country of Australia, according to the National Geographic Society. However, the strategic Chinese island, with a population exceeding 7,000,000, currently has almost as many people as the big continent.

The Kentucky Wildcats shown above front the starting line that is putting up a strong bid to retain their Eastern Division Southeastern Conference Championship. To date, the Cats have a conference record of 5 wins, 2 losses, and a tie for a .514 percentage. Captain Johnny Stough is leading the hitters who have played all the games with a .302 average going into the Georgia games Wednesday and Thursday. Don Fucci and Ben Zaranka, two football players who joined the squad late, are both hitting over .400 for the games they have played.

SPORTS QUIZ

The winner of last week's Chesterfield Sports Quiz was Carl B. Acton, 424, Euclid Avenue, Lexington, who answered all 10 questions correctly for 100 percent.

Bob Butler and Ben Thraikill, of Box 1234, combined to score 97 points, missing only the distance for the Belmont Stakes. They say it's a mile and three-sixteenths. The Thoroughbred Record claims it is a mile and one-half.

However, because Butler and Thraikill missed a perfect score by such a small margin and the fact that their entry, along with Acton's was received first, we will award them a carton of Chesterfields also.

William Price, Box 3562, also narrowly missed a perfect score. His entry failed to list the year that Johnny Vander Meer pitched his two consecutive no-hit ball games (opinion 10).

James R. Stewart, Box 3661, had 50 percent, missing only on Pee Wee Reese's birthplace.

Answers

The answers for last week were: 1. Jimmie Foxx never won the Triple Crown in Horse Bowl in 1937. 2. The fastest in the world in the World Series in 1944, 3. Derby, mile and one-fourth. 4. Redwood, mile and one-half. 5. Frankford, mile and three-eighths. 6. Johnnie Vander Meer, 1954. 7. Philadelphia (Gabe) Baker. 8. UCLA at Los Angeles. 9. Barker, Wren, Texas. 10. Homeless were Cowley, Miller, Lavelle. 11. Babe Ruth. 12. 1918.

Rain Cuts Softball Play; Delts, Wish Win Relays

Rain and more rain held the intramural softball tournament at a virtual standstill this week, causing most teams in the two-elimination meet to remain idle. Since last Wednesday only five games have been played, four of these being between once-beaten teams.

The constant bad weather has especially affected play in the Intermediate division, which has advanced but a single team into the quarter-final round.

Lambda Chi, with a 2-0 record, is the lone fraternity outfit to date in this select circle. All other undefeated teams have played only one game.

The LXA squad has been a surprise team in the opening so far, displaying powerful, PIRA, 3-2, and steamrolling over, fourth-seeded Sigma Chi, 2-0, after gaining their initial win at the expense of ATO, 6-3.

Larsely is responsible for their showing in the alright pitching of little Leo Lingerfer, who turns in allowed only three hits in the 19th inning he has been on the rubber. In his last outing he stopped Sigma Chi without a single safe bow.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Phi Epsilon, first and second-seeded among the brotherhoods, won their opening acts and are awaiting a chance to play second-round opponents.

The tangle between Don Walz's Break Hall boys, defending University of Kentucky champs, and the Singers, basketball greats, will highlight action in the independent division when play gets underway in that division again.

In games last week, Tavern Boys beat the Good-ods, 4-1 to remain undefeated; Kinbend Hall eliminated the Allors, 6-3; Double Brothers knocked out the Arpys, 4-3; BSU ousted the Squirts, 3-1; and Law School ended the Podunks' season, 6-3.

Editors' Note: Managers of softball teams in the Independent division are requested to turn in their phone numbers to the Kernel Sports department, which will insure a detail in our accounts and allow us to check for accuracy.

Sports Review

— By Tom Diskin, Sports Editor —

Before bowing out as sports editor in June, there are some suggestions which we would like to pass along to various University organizations for future consideration and possible action.

We realize that every school, including UK, has its own particular advantages as well as its faults. But with a little trouble on the part of some, many student complaints which exist now could be stopped.

FIRST of all, we believe that each student here should have a reserved seat at the football games next fall on Stoll Field. Seniors should be assigned a certain section (on or near the 50-yard line); then the juniors and so on down to the freshmen. For those who want to bring non-University students with them to the game, a special section could be reserved. This problem needs considerable study, but the Student Government Association (S.G.A.), along with the Athletic Department, could develop a workable system. Now is the time to start thinking of the student seating for next fall.

SECOND, if the University and Student organizations fail to come up with a reserve-seating arrangement, some entertainment should be secured for the students at the football games who will be forced to go to the stadium hours before the kickoff to obtain good seats. High school bands could be invited to perform before the gridgers come out for the pre-game warmups. Even recorded music over the public address system would help out.

THIRD, the S.G.A., the Athletic Director, Sukey, the editor and sport-editor of the Kernel, the cheerleaders, and the band director should get together often during the football season to "synchronize" their operations and plans. During the past three years, there hasn't been too much co-ordination among these groups. Our pep rallies showed that very clearly.

FOURTH, the movies of the "away" football games should be shown to the students first—before anyone. These could be held in Memorial Hall with one of the football ball coaches present to narrate. There is enough interest in our football team now to warrant such a program and a good turnout would be had, providing the time and place is convenient to the majority.

FIFTH, have several of the best school cheers painted on large wooden boards, about 6 feet by 8 feet, for the cheerleaders to hold up in front of the stadium when they want. The University of Miami had this system and it worked very well. These signs could be used on Stoll Field and in the new Field House.

SIXTH, Bring back the mad scientist in our band and drop the semicircular numbers.

SEVENTH, Have the Dumb a High School Band return this next season for a performance. This snappy little color outfit really puts on a lively show.

EIGHTH, Make it a custom to send our University band on at least one good long trip each season. They work hard enough to deserve more than just a jaunt to Cincinnati during the football season.

NINE, One of the most important of all night lights should be obtained for the intramural field. This is a real need. There are more IM football and softball games could be played off. Now the games have to be squeezed in between 4 p.m. and darkness.

TEN, Better officiating is another definite need for the intramural sports. Students making no physical education could be required to officiate at the games, with school credit given for their efforts. A system should be developed, too, whereby a record of each game is made and kept. As things stand now, only the final score of the IM softball games is recorded, which makes it extremely difficult for The Kernel to give the games the proper coverage.

ELEVEN, A banquet could be held each spring for the spring sports, such as baseball, track, golf, tennis and fencing. These sports could stand a little more recognition.

Get Baby Wildcat
Twelve. Obtain a baby wildcat for a school mascot. Having a vicious, snarling wildcat as the present one isn't too good. Few students saw our mascot last season since it had to be kept caged up continuously. A young, little wildcat could be paraded on the football field and even in the Coliseum during the halftime intermissions and would become a real pet of the students.

SPORTS BOOK REVIEW

THE BOSTON BRAVES by Harold Kaese. Published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1948, New York City, $3.00.

Is and then in 1897 and 1898. It was during this period that fans claim Hugh Duffy ran into deep left field after a long drive, hauled it down with a leaping catch, and then threw home before hitting the ground to nail the man coming home from third base.

Then in 1914 the Braves produced their "miracle team." On July 4 of that year the Braves were in eighth place, 18 games behind the league-leading New York Giants. The team was terrible, so bad that the day after the holiday they were defeated by a soap-company team. However, they began to move. They won 42 out of their next 66 games including 18 shut-outs (Boston's pitchers getting only one before July 4).

The Braves came on to win the pennant and then accomplished the impossible (as if they hadn't already) by stopping the great Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series, four games to nothing.

Perhaps the most famous member of the ten men those early days was Al Spalding. He hurled all of the games in league play for the Boston club in 1871-72-73. His record in 1873 was 54 wins, four defeats, and three ties.

The National League was organized in 1876 and Spalding moved to Chicago where he won the first pennant. But Boston bounced back with the title in 1877 with Thomas Bond pitching all of the games—winning 31 and losing 17. Counting exhibition games he hurled about 120 games in 1877.

The book carries the Braves through their pennants in 1891-92 and then in 1897 and 1898.

It is presented the story of the oldest big league team of all—the Boston Braves who have been battling for pennants ever since 1871 when they were entered in the National Association of Professional Base Ball Players.

Told is the story of the Boston teams of 1872-75 which won four consecutive pennants and were considered so invincible that the league was dissolved. In 1875 the team lost but eight games in 79 outings and for their four year record had a total of 205 wins in 555 games—an unbelievable record.

Boston woke up to the possibilities of big time baseball when the traveling Cincinnati Red Stockings came to town. After the Cincinnati team disbanded, Boston with $15,000 working capital, organized its team using the ex-Cincinnati players as the nucleus.

And we'll close with a fashion note from Paris: Girls will be wearing the same thing in bras as they were last year.

Ernie: What do you think would go well with my new purple and green golf socks?
Hal: Hip boots.
