WHAT TO SEE

1976

A GREAT AND GROWING UNIVERSITY

Found in 1865 under the provisions of the Morrill Land-Grant Act, the University of Kentucky began with a modest enrollment of about 200 and a staff of 11.

For the first 40 years enrollment remained small and the liberal arts studies attracted more students than the offerings in engineering and agriculture.

By the turn of the century, the University was becoming one of the most important institutions in the Commonwealth. The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station, focal point of the University's continuing commitment to agricultural research, began in the late 1880s. Between 1900 and 1920, several reorganizations laid down the basic outline of the schools and colleges which exist to this day.

UK took its present name in 1916 and at the same time assumed the responsibility of being the state's principal institution for teaching, research and service.

From its modest beginnings more than a century ago the University in modern times has grown at a rapid rate with enrollment more than doubling in the past 10 years.

ENROLLMENT

There are more than 20,000 students on the Lexington campus and 17,000 students in the 13 community colleges across the state operated by the University of Kentucky.

Kentucky residents represent 85 percent of the enrollment on the Lexington campus. There also are some 500 students from about 50 different foreign countries each year on campus.

THE CAMPUS

The central campus, near downtown Lexington, comprises about 625 acres of land on which there are more than 200 buildings and other structures, walks, malls, gardens, playing fields, recreation space and parking.

The University also has 6,750 acres in agricultural research farms and 4-H Club centers in various parts of the state and 14,495 acres in its Robinson Forest in Eastern Kentucky.

BUDGET

The University operates on a current budget of $186,809,300, about half from state appropriations and the remainder from student fees, federal and county appropriations, endowments, gifts, and grants and miscellaneous sources.

FACULTY AND STAFF

The University employs about 8,800 people, including faculty and staff, on the Lexington campus and in the community college system. There are about 1,600 faculty on the Lexington campus and 500 in the community colleges.

The gross monthly payroll on the Lexington campus alone is about $8 million.

17 ACADEMIC COLLEGES

The University of Kentucky has a Graduate School and 17 academic colleges, including:

Arts and Sciences . . . Agriculture . . . Engineering . . . Business and Economics . . . Education . . . Home Economics . . . Library Sciences . . Social Professions . . Architecture . . . Communications . . Fine Arts . Law . . . Medicine . . Dentistry . . Nursing . . . Allied Health Professions . . . Pharmacy.

COMMUNITY COLLEGES

The University of Kentucky has 13 community colleges scattered across the state as Ashland Henderson . . . Cumberland (Southeast) . . Elizabethtown...Prestonsburg...Hopkinsville . . . Somerset . . . Louisville (Jefferson) . . . Paducah Hazard . . . Maysville . . . Madisonville ... and Lexington (Lexington Technical Institute).

The Community Colleges offer students the opportunity of taking the first two years of their undergraduate work at home or working toward an associate degree in a two-year technical-vocational program to qualify them for job opportunities. The colleges also sponsor numerous continuing education and adult education programs to meet the educational needs of their communities.

Current enrollment in the community colleges is about 17,000, and the colleges granted a total of 1,746 degrees in the 1975-76 school year. Enrollment in the community colleges has more than tripled in the past 10 years.

Tuition for residents of Kentucky at the community colleges is $195 per semester.

MEDICAL CENTER

The Albert B. Chandler Medical Center, through its wide range of programs in educa tion, patient care and research, is committed to meeting the health needs of Kentuckians.

There are five colleges in the Medical Center - Medicine, Dentistry, Nursing, Pharmacy and Allied Health - with more than 1,900 students enrolled.

The University Hospital serves some 16,000 patients annually and accommodates more than 35,000 emergency room visits. Outpatient visits total more than 231,000 annually.

DR. OTIS A SINGLETARY

Dr. Otis Singletary was named the eighth president of the University in 1969. A history scholar, and a nationally recognized university administrator, he came to UK from Texas where he served as Executive Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs of the University of Texas System. Under his leadership UK has made tremendous progress in improving the quality of the educational programs of the University and its 13 Community Colleges and Medical Center.

ADMISSION TO THE UNIVERSITY

Kentucky residents normally are admitted as beginning freshmen if they graduate from an accredited high school and submit the results of the American College Test (ACT). However, there are selective admission requirements for freshmen entering the Colleges of Architecture and Allied Health. Non-residents of the state whose records indicate a reasonable probability of academic success at the University also are admitted.

Deadlines for applying for admission to the University are: Fall term - June 1; Spring semester – Oct. 15; Summer school – April 1.

Information for students on admission to the University may be obtained from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday in Room 203 of the Administration Annex, or by writing (Registrar, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506) or telephoning (257-1606).

Tuition for full-time (12 hours or more of classwork per semester) undergraduate students who are residents of Kentucky is $240 per semester; for graduate school, $265; Law, $240; Medicine and Dentistry $910 per year.

Non-resident tuition for full-time undergraduate students is $605 per semester; graduate school $630; Law, $605; and Medicine and Dentistry $1,805 per year.

RESIDENCE HALLS

The University has 18 undergraduate residence halls which can accommodate 4,735 students on campus. In addition, the 22 fraternities and 15 sororities house another 1,432 students. Apartment buildings on campus can accommodate 506 single graduate students. There are also 386 units for married students
