

FRIDAY EDITION SEMI-WEEKLY KERNEL

Many Out-of-towners Journey to Lexington to Attend First of Concert Series

NOTED PIANIST IS ALSO ON PROGRAM

Attendance of Large Number of Students Is Noticeable

By BOBBY JOHNSON

The 1935-36 season of the Community Concert Association of central Kentucky opened last night with Nino Martini, noted young tenor of today, in recital with Miguel Sandoval, pianist.

We are fortunate in having heard Mr. Martini first hand, since he is one of the coming figures in motion pictures. He has already made one picture and says that he will make two more in the spring.

Mr. Sandoval, a native of Guatemala, South America, is a composer of some note. (The National Broadcasting Company recently gave an entire program of his works.) He was at his best in his own idiom, both as accompanist and soloist.

The recent interest in Spanish-American music is particularly felicitous to his continued success as interpreter of the interesting and colorful rhythmic and tonal genre of his people. His technique and feel for his instrument seems all that could be desired.

Mrs. I. D. Best, who welcomed one of the largest audiences ever gathered in central Kentucky, read a letter inviting members of the association to be guests at the Louisville concert.

Who in turn, were delighted to welcome about a hundred students and friends of music from Louisville. In fact the number of young persons in the audience was notable. It seems to point a trend toward real interest in the cultural arts among the people of this area, and really affords the future of music in America; the younger generation.

HOCKEY DENIES KILLING WOMAN

Schaeffer Willing to Waive Extradition in Case of Woman Killed in Louisville

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24.—(INS)—Seated on an iron cot in a detention cell here, early today, Walter Schaeffer, a 26-year-old boy, denied the charge of the killing of Mrs. Evelyn Silivinski, who was killed in Louisville, Ky., Sunday morning.

Schaeffer, however, signified his willingness to waive extradition and to go to Louisville to face a murder charge.

Schaeffer, who was taken into custody here last night at the request of Louisville authorities, is charged with running down Mrs. Silivinski with an automobile. The woman's battered body was found a short time after she had taken an automobile ride with the accused, Joecky Willie (Snooker) Saunders and Mrs. Agatha Mackinson. Saunders surrendered to the Louisville police and Schaeffer as the driver of the car.

The police claim that when Mrs. Silivinski got out of the car following an argument, Schaeffer ran her down, then later came back and again ran over the prostrate body of the woman, who was apparently dead.

SAUNDERS DENIES GUILT LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 24.—(INS)—Joecky Willie, 26-year-old, today stuck to his denial that he knew anything about the death of Mrs. Evelyn Silivinski, his 24-year-old dancing party companion.

He was free under $5,000 bond, provided later yesterday, and his preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 31.

Saunders, whose brilliant career was climaxed by his plotting of Omaha to a Kentucky Derby victory last spring, returned to Louisville alone and gave himself up to the officers.

The rider readily admitted that he was in the party that ended with the leaving of Mrs. Silivinski's battered body on a road and that he had no knowledge of the killing.

SATURDAY GAME WITH FRESHMEN IS CALLED OFF

Wynne Calls Off Fray in Order to Prevent Further Injuries to 'Cat Squad

NEVERS AND POTTER READY FOR ALABAMA

Mainstays of Cat Forward Wall Are Finally in Shape to Play

Because of injuries to several of his key men, the practice football game scheduled for tomorrow afternoon between the Kentucky Wildcats and Coach Bickett Pribble's freshman teams has been cancelled by head coach Chet Wynne.

When this year's schedule was formed the date of October 26, was purposely left open to allow the Wildcats a breathing spell between the Auburn and Alabama games. The numerous injuries that have hit the Big Blue camp since the Ohio State contest have necessitated the cancellation of the game.

Stan Nevers, 205 pound tackle, who was left behind when the team went to Auburn, was back in uniform Wednesday afternoon for the first time since the Georgia Tech game. His injured knee is healing rapidly and he is expected to be in perfect condition for the Alabama game to be played in Birmingham next week-end.

Sam Potter, the other injured Wildcat, was also at practice Wednesday. He is ready to go into battle with most any team. Potter was injured in the Ohio State game and this week is the first time he has been able to do any strenuous work.

The other members of the 'Cat squad who were on the hospital list are rapidly returning into condition and barring injuries in next week's practice sessions the entire squad should be in the pink of condition when they journey to Birmingham on November 2.

One of the most talked of subjects in the Big Blue camp this week has been the outstanding work of "Red" Hagan. This lad has been a substitute for the past several weeks. Creditable performance turned in by the carrot-topped Louisville boy has earned him a position of respect and he is expected to be in the position of first string end.

At last that good old fall weather has gotten here... The tang in the air is certainly exhilarating... Maybe by the Florida game tonight will be in style... The last two home games have been too hot to enjoy... Heard many complaints about the dance Wednesday night... First of all they did not like the orchestra... Here is how it happened... Many students kept asking why the All-Campus dance committee did not give Bill Jacobs a chance to play... All right... He had his chance last night... And look at the number of persons who are griping because his band does not come up to standard... What can you do with people like that... The second complaint comes in the form that there are too many outsiders allowed to come to these dances... This is true... And has always been a sore spot with the dance committee... Has any of you ideas on how they could be kept out... One plan that was suggested was to have everyone bring their student books... This would probably work all right for one or two times... But then some people would forget their books... Then what could be done... Another disadvantage of the student books would be the confusion they would cause at the doorway... People would be jammed on top of each other... Nevertheless, something has to be done to keep these All-Campus dances for university students only... See they are again starting work on the new... It takes about 500 miles of rubber off a tire every time a car is driven over the present mess... They stopped work on that last July...

Petitions for senior class officers have to be in the Dean of Men's office by noon Monday... Election will be held Thursday... Ballot boxes will be placed in the Administration building and the Engineering building... Voting hours will be from 9 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. Don't forget who you are supposed to vote for... Community concert series started Wednesday... First one was accorded a great success... See the Junior Leaguers put out the Lexington Herald yesterday morning... It seemed to be a very good edition... Wonder why they don't let the Kernel staff put out an issue... The dance two or three years ago... They are bound to know as much about it as the Leaguers... The Wildcat-Freshmen game has been called off... Don't forget the W. A. A. Intramural dance Saturday night... It promises to be a good one... Looked like some of the hats Graves-Cox had in their "old hat" contest were worn by some male students during Wednesday's rain... Understand there is some petty stealing going on in the university... An immediate stop ought to be put to this... How many are going on to the Alabama game... Don't you think a special train should be chartered... Think of the fun that could be had... No wonder Ohio State has a good football team... The State pays for the players... See Coach Adolph Rupp getting his boys into shape for their 1935-36 suicide schedule... Some people were disappointed because Ted Fio Rito left the Netherlands the other night... Maybe some other time... Jockey Saunders looks like he is in for a tough time... Have you seen the new paper that is being published in Louisville... The News Enquirer... It will probably last till after the election...

U. K. Law College Rates High Among Nation's Schools
A good many years ago an association was formed known as the Association of American Law Schools, in order to promote legal education. To become a member of the association, a law school must have certain standards with respect to faculty, library, appropriations for the library, and qualifications for entrance. As to qualifications for entrance, at least two years of pre-law study are required of members of the association. The University of Kentucky Law school has been a member of the association for the very beginning of the organization. It has a full-time staff of six members; also a librarian, four assistant librarians, and a secretary. Four years ago the Order of the Coif was established at the Kentucky Law school. It is an honorary fraternity to which a limited number of men, on graduation with high standings, are admitted. The Coif has been established as an institution in about thirty American law schools and membership in it is one of the outstanding honors that may fall to a student who completes his course. Another honor which may come to a larger group of students is that of being elected to membership on the staff of the Kentucky Law Journal. These men are permitted to write notes and the notes are published in the Law Journal. There are two legal professional fraternities in the law school, and men who make a respectable standing are likely to be invited to join one or the other of these fraternities. The constantly increasing esteem with which the University of Kentucky Law school is being regarded the country over is in large measure due to the fine quality of the students which are attending it. There is much advantage to Kentucky boys who desire to study law in making their preparation in their own state school.

UK Band Director Now Colonel, Suh!

The next time you drop in at the A. K. Center, you will see a stately gentleman with a well-groomed goatee nonchalantly sipping a mint julep, don't appear too surprised, because in all probability it will be none other than John Lewis, Jr., director of the U. K. band. The secret is this. Mr. Lewis has very recently been declared a Kentucky Colonel by Governor Laffoon, which gives Colonel Lewis the authority to sit back and comment on Kentucky's fast horses and pretty women.

'CAT HARRIERS WILL MEET VOLKS

Kentucky's newly-formed cross-country team will face the Wildcat tomorrow afternoon when the University of Tennessee at Knoxville. The meet is to be held between the halves of the Tennessee-Centre College football game. The Wildcat squad of four men left here this morning by automobile for Tennessee. Those men making the trip included Bill Ford, varsity mile star, John Spragens, varsity two miler, Cecil Hilliard, and Warren Steckmetz, both graduates of last season's frosh track team. Cameron Parks, a former University of Illinois athlete, who is now taking graduate work here, is coaching the Kentucky team. The meet will be held over a three-mile track, a cross-country course which runs through the campus of the University of Tennessee.

Italo Evacuation From Libyan Border Pleases English

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(INS)—Giving this Parliament only one more day of life, Britain today plunged into an election campaign for a rearmament mandate, as cold diplomatic analysts look the view that Mussolini's conciliatory gesture does not materially change the general situation. It Duce's agreement, as reported from Paris and Rome, to withdraw four regiments—10,000 men—from the Egyptian frontier, which Britain created a favorable impression with the public however, and the announcement overshadowed in the press the preparation for the general election of Nov. 1. But the newspapers did not fail to point out that Italy will still have at least two extra divisions in Libya. Also noticeable was the interesting disparity between the Paris and Rome announcements. The former said the Italian division would be removed from Libya, but Rome indicated that they would only be pulled back from the frontier. In either case, it was pointed out, it would be only a matter of a couple of days before they could all be shipped back again. Until further and more concrete information is available, therefore, it is believed that Britain will not for the time being decide to withdraw any portion of her Mediterranean reinforcements. Britain will keep all her ships there, it was understood, in spite of the clamor already raised by a section of the press for immediate removal of the giant battleships Hood and Renown. It was officially stated today that Britain has received no request for a postponement in application of sanctions under the League of Nations. Meanwhile, the status of peace efforts became more and more vague because of the intense secrecy surrounding diplomatic exchanges in Rome. Mussolini, through his spokesman, yesterday repudiated his offer to accept a peace plan "if one satisfactory to Italy were presented," but this did not clear up the status of suggestions already put forward by Premier Laval of France.

Enrollment Rates For U.K. During '35 Are Presented

One hundred and fourteen counties, thirty-six states, and five foreign countries are represented in the enrollment of the University for the first semester of the year 1935-36.

Second only to the peak year of 1933 when 2,258 students registered this year total exceeds that of last year by 11.3 per cent.

A study by counties, states, and countries of the enrollment chart prepared by the University Publicity Bureau shows an increase in number of representative areas and in enrollment from most districts. For instance, 65 of the 120 counties in the state showed an increase in number of students at the University while only 31 showed a decrease. Six counties—Allegheny, Butler, Clinton, Edmonson, Leslie and Metcalfe—are not represented in the student body.

Payroll statistics contributed by far the greatest number of enrollees with a total of 858, an increase of five over last year. To Bourbon county, Fayette county's northeast neighbor, goes the honor of having the largest increase in enrollment over last year with Pulaski county, four counties south of Fayette, running a close second. Bourbon county has added twenty-four to its last total ninety-three while three years' figure making its present total ninety-three while the Pulaski county increase of twenty-three makes its present total fifty-seven. Positions of the seven counties leading in increased enrollment is shown as follows:

County	Increase in Enrollment
Bourbon	24
Pulaski	23
Jessamine	23
Hickman	13
Jefferson	13
Owen	12
Shelby	12

County	Percentage of Increase
Owen	300
Warren	250
Knott	200
Low	175
Hickman	150
Grayson	150
Out-of-state enrollment shows an additional 97 over last year registered this year. The states leading in enrollment and the number of students enrolled from each are shown as follows:
State	Number Enrolled
New York	74
Ohio	47
Indiana	47
Illinois	37
New Jersey	28

By far the largest percentage increase, however, was produced by foreign country enrollments. This year's figure is five compared with one for last year, making a five hundred per cent increase. One student each has enrolled from Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Germany, and Porto Rico. Of this group, Cuba was the only one represented last year.

Sport Sketches

Eugene Bryant is a local boy who made good at a flank position on the Wildcats football team... That is, until a shoulder injury placed him on the bench... "Gene" plays against doctor's orders, as the least blow on his shoulder at a certain angle will probably end his football career forever... what more of feet, 2 inches in his stocking feet... You'd get what it takes, boy, and Wildcat supporters, hats off to a man who has to battle against such great odds... he is 21 years old... weighs 187 pounds... and stands 6 feet, 2 inches in his stocking feet... College of Education... Good standing... member of S. A. E. social fraternity... Senior Cabinet of the Y. M. C. A... Lances... holds the title for his weight in Intramural boxing and runner-up in wrestling... voted the best dressed man in school last year... and girls, especially freshmen, please to calm yourselves when "Gene" comes strolling down the street... if he only knew the hearts that are overtaken!... oh, well, can he help it... He said that "Gene" likes the flavor of those Georgia "peaches"... an excellent swimmer... Bryant's boy... plays golf... his bridge is his indoor game... his weakness, Chevrolets... and takes his own moving pictures. Back of all his accomplishments and natural gifts! "Gene" is a clean, level headed, and likeable young man.

Strollers Alumni Homecoming Will Have Large Attendance

By BOB MITCHELL
Secretary-Treasurer
Stroller Alumni Association

There is just one thought to leave with you all in connection with the approaching celebration of Stroller Alumni association, November 9, in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of "THE STROLLERS" at University of Kentucky October 25, 1910, and that statement is this: consumption of plans and making of arrangements go merrily on.

Another week's time and the writer seems to think that he will have a real worthwhile news story to "spring" in connection with guest speakers.

Your correspondent points out that a sudden arousal of interest has taken place and he said that it seems almost unthinkable that the celebration will "fall thru." He pointed out that the beauty of the whole thing is that he has had a slight degree of expression from "old timers" who actually date back to "way back when" and feels that that is a healthy sign.

Plans call for a breakfast at 11 o'clock and an informal supper meeting beginning at 6:30—both in the ball room of the historic old Phoenix hotel. That hotel, according to its printed advertising matter, dates back to 1797, just five years after Kentucky was admitted into the Union. "And," someone has added—in a jocular vein—"old State" students have been dancing their Junior prom there ever since.

Attendance has NOT been restricted to old Strollers, ALONE. As proof of this fact, a special section of tables will be arranged for Strollers who are yet in attendance at Mrs. J. S. King, Richmond, visited Ruth Clifton last week-end.

Marie Beebe has returned to her home for a few days after recovering from a short illness.

Miss Bernice Eubeke is to be a guest of Lycia Tucker at the Alpha Xi Delta house this week-end.

Daisy Cain spent the week-end in Bowling Green, where she attended the Kentucky Social Conference.

Alpha Xi Delta

Bill Gashoff, Leland Honaker, J. R. O'Connor, Mel Forden, Jack Graham, and Ed Seary spent the week-end at their homes in Louisville.

Doug Flowers and Coleman Allard spent last week-end at camp on Herrington lake.

Jack Dorsey was a dinner guest Sunday.

Jack Dorsey was called to his home in Washington, D. C., on account of the death of his father.

Delta Chi

Dinner guests last Sunday at the Delta Chi house were Doc Nichols, Lucy Ray, Pat Tressler, Louis Wright, Mary Jane Albritton, and Elizabeth Dickey.

Jack Gaylor spent the week-end in Ashland.

Murphy Combs spent the week-end at his home in Hazard.

"I smoke Camels, the mild cigarette. They don't get my mind or upset my nerves. I've smoked Camels for years, and I never tire of their smooth, rich taste!" And other tennis stars... Lester Stofen, George Lot, and Bruce Barnes... agree with Big Bill about smoking Camels. So turn to Camels. You'll like their mildness too!

● Famous athletes have found that Camels don't affect their wind. Camels are mild and gentle to the throat. Turn to Camels for steady smoking! GREAT GOD GOVERNMENT

Whether the economic, social, and political problems have become so complex and diverse that only the agency of government can find the proper solutions, we do not know. We do know that when we leave these ivy covered temples of theory, we will face a world of paradoxes.

These paradoxes abound in our national and international life. Looking through the kaleidoscope of national and world affairs, we find that individuals and groups are still adhering to the principle of "survival of the fittest and the rest be damned."

Industrialists pay starvation wages and expect their workers to buy back their goods at high prices. Bread lines form in New York and hogs are slaughtered in Iowa. Attorneys are paid millions to free their clients from relations applied by duly elected authorities. Nations attempt to produce goods which they cannot economically do and are prevented from buying, by abnormal conditions, the things they require of a foreign market.

Law and government attempts to bring order out of this chaos. But governmental reforms is contradictory, hodge podge, and the product of special interests pulling in opposite directions. Our future is mortgaged by politicians who are giving us no real value in return. Government has been reduced to a carcass exposed to the vultures. While one group takes what it wants to the detriment of the others, the others seek to mitigate or nullify the work of the former group.

If government must perform everything from the most menial of tasks to those formerly ascribed to Deity - then we might have a right to expect them to be done right. If it has become necessary for government to regulate our complex system in order to preserve freedom and justice - we have a right to demand that it be done by men of foresight and intelligence. We must of course, do our part.

HOUSEMOTHERS

An integral part of every smooth-functioning fraternity and sorority is the house mother. We find that housemothers are not required at many of the large universities throughout the country, and such was the case at the University of Kentucky until several years ago.

The University officials decided that each social organization which maintained a house, should provide itself with a housemother, although many of them already were using the plan. In the case of the fraternities, the house manager had planned the meals, bought the food and managed the house as a whole. However, a decided change for the better was noted when the management was placed in the hands of an able supervisor who was acquainted with the work as a result of many years' experience.

Now the housemother has grown to be an indispensable part of the university, and recognition should be given her. The Kentuckian will feature a page in the book this year, composed entirely of the housemothers on the campus. Another way in which appreciation of the services rendered by the housemothers could be shown, is the issuing of tickets to all athletic contests. These passes could be presented with the compliments of the University and the Athletic department, or could be purchased by the organizations themselves and given to the housemothers.

It seems that the University should not object to this plan of complimentary passes, but in the event they should, it would indeed be an affront to the housemothers and the organizations which they represent. The fraternity and sorority play a most important role in the life of the University, and there is no doubt concerning the role the housemother plays in the life of the organization.

Faculty members are given the privilege of buying season tickets to all athletic contests for a nominal sum, and therefore it seems only just that such a courtesy should be extended to the housemothers. The organizations will be glad to show their appreciation by purchasing such a ticket!

PETTY THIEVERY

"Honesty is the best policy." This adage has come down through the ages and despite the efforts of various eras replete with graft and corruption it still exists as a respected saying and stands as a principle by which those who would succeed still pattern their lives.

However, it would appear that various members of the student body are either not desirous of success, have no respect for this ancient adage or have not come in contact with its teachings. I refer to the widespread petty thievery which is taking place in various parts of the University at the present time. Probably such an extensive amount of vandalism has not occurred for many years past, certainly it was not so generally known if such did take place. Books are stolen, hats, coats, money of various denominations; nothing seems to escape the eye of these petty thieves.

Most of the thievery has taken place in three general localities, and although the authorities in charge at those various places have attempted to stop it by various means, their efforts have met with little success. Those places where the stealing has been most prevalent are the gymnasium locker rooms, the armory and the various dormitories. Only in one case, and there only by the imposition of the most rigorous discipline, has the thievery been stopped. Military students are required to stand inspection at the end of their class period and are not dismissed until the instructor has made sure that nothing is missing from the possession of any student. The necessity for the adoption of such a drastic measure is indeed deplorable.

To describe as disgusting, the general situation which exists, is to put it altogether too mildly. The fact that college students or even people of college age have no more respect for the possession of others than has been demonstrated is little short of revolting. It certainly forecasts a gloomy picture of future society, picturing an age in which the policing of everything would be absolutely necessary.

In presenting our criticism of the situation which exists The Kernel is attempting to accomplish a twofold purpose. Not only would we deplore existing conditions and prick the conscience, if possible, of those who are guilty, but we would constrain those honest students, and they are certainly in the majority, to be exceedingly careful that they do not present opportunities for those who cannot resist temptation. In this particular, the honest students are partly to blame. They should take better care of their possessions in order that those who are of weak moral fibre may not have to attempt to resist that temptation which they have shown themselves altogether incapable of resisting.

TODAY

With the setting sun, your hopes of yesterday died out. All right, that was yesterday. Things didn't materialize the way you dreamed they would. All right again. Now - the present hour - is Today. Yesterday bears no relation to it, except perhaps, the relation that a nightmare bears to the morning after. Forget all about yesterday . . . it is dead and buried in the cemetery of Time.

Today is alive. Are you? Well then, get busy! Fling from your shoulders the depressing weight of those hopes that haven't come true. Stand erect. Man, the world is yours! You have just as much claim on its good things - on the things you've longed for and prayed for and worked for - as the other fellow has.

This hour has been handed to you as a gift from the overflowing storehouse of Eternity. What are you doing with it? Answer that. Moping? Growling? Despairing? For shame? God has favored you with another chance to make good. He has given you Today. Prove your appreciation by making it a stepping stone to happier, worthier tomorrows! - Exchange.

Statistics recently published show that in the last five years enrollment in engineering and architectural courses in colleges throughout the country have dropped 25 to 35 per cent. Reason: many architects and engineers find it impossible to get jobs.

There is actually one girl student at Lindsay College, Lindsay, Ont., Can., whose ambition is to become "a good wife for some man." The others, a survey revealed, would like to become teachers, stenographers, nurses, dieticians, interior decorators or writers. Would-be teachers led the list.

Gatekeepers at Ohio State University have a novel method for deciding whether you're sober enough to enter the stadium. If you can wiggle your thumbs in unison you're o. k. Otherwise you can watch the game from a telegraph pole.

The man who does things that count is usually the fellow who does not stop to count them.

Because the cost of replacing broken dishes and damaged silverware at Grinnell amounted to $700 last year, college authorities have announced that student waiters must pay for what they break.

For the first time in its 99 years, co-eds at Alfred University have the privilege of smoking - in a special recreation room designed by the board of trustees.

Did it ever occur to you that the best method of climbing higher on life's ladder of success is to remain on the level?

Hoi Polloi

By BOB HESS

We are back again after our first major combat and as things mentioned under this heading. Wouldn't everything be fine if everyone in school was as good a sport as Mary LeBus, who proved that she really can take it. It so happened that our good friend, Labe Jackson, who had a little item published about him last Tuesday, was one of the fellows who can dish it out but can't take it.

If you narrow minded students would only get it through your thick skulls that all that is mentioned in this column is in fun, the whole business would be more enjoyable for everyone concerned.

We have the open beautiful roses for one beautiful Tridelt neophyte who signs her exam papers as Joyce Wright. So, Joyce, if you have a corsage pin, well pin the roses on your beautiful frame right here and now. This little Anchorage lass has campus luminaries turning heads in a hurry in order to make that well-known impression. Wonder if Joyce will be wearing myopia's pin by next spring. Ahh hahh!

Midge Wheeler is now out of circulation. Yep, she took unto herself a pin in the form of a SAE badge, which was presented by none other than Billy Spenser. We had been expecting this for some time and at last Billy came through. Congrats.

Jean Nagle received some flowers last Wednesday. No, this may not be so strange, but when the card said that the sender hoped that Jean would hurry and get well, that's a different story. Jean has been pulling the sick stall so that she will get flowers. So, don't bite, boys.

Our nomination for two hats to head the list of those at U. K. that have really gone college are Billy "Joe College" Hinkle and Sam "Harry High School" Powell. When you see fellows going to settle down?

Say, Miss Lloyd, you had better watch your step or your courtier, Bill Edmonds, will go astray. Bill pleaded with us on the whole afternoon to throw some roses to Dot Babitt. So, Missy, you had better try to keep Bill in line or one little big-eyed brunette will be jilted.

It McChleand and Cleary ever got a peep at Lucy "Bill" Maddox, he would be sure to want her to pose for one of his paintings. Bill is undoubtedly the best looking brunette we have ever seen, but she kinda keeps under cover and won't give the boys much of a break.

Who is this guy Stan that sends Helen Rich all of the telegrams she has been receiving lately? . . . Is there a school in this country that can beat this one for having sweet house mothers. Women like Mrs. Haggin, Mrs. Luxon, Mrs. Hagan, Mrs. Bowman, and Mrs. Loudon can't be beat. They manage to keep their "subjects" in place and at the same time are liked by all. Now that's real an accomplishment. The house mothers who's names do not appear here are just as fine as those mentioned, but we have not, as yet, come in contact with them. . . . Lucy Hoge doesn't know where the library is. . . . Ticky Schott's head diameter has increased a few inches due to the publicity that he received because of his discovery of the body in the recent Louisville murder. . . . "Buttercup" Ennis reports that Bill Holster and Charlie Maids had a bit of a scrap over the affection of one of the ladies in white. . . . Jack May and Jack Faunce continue to try to cut each others throat. . . . Bob Stevens, in spite of his romance with Ellen Coyte, does not like Lexington. Bob is the first fellow we have run into who doesn't like this fair city. . . . Kay Kennedy is terribly cynical. . . . What Tridelt has squandered the family fortune learning how to role her eyes? . . . Eck Brockbridge and Warfield Gratz nearly met their Waterloo when trying to break into the Pinoski's ballroom. . . . Liddley Finley is still worried. . . . Because Pat O'Rear cut campus capers at the Saturday night dance, her friends call her "High School". . . . Where did Nate Elliot get that shiner? . . . Who is courting Mary "Pink Lady" Marshall this year? . . . The dance tomorrow night ought to be a good one. . . . "Honey" Jeffries calls John Blackburn "Jug-bumps". Ask 'em the meaning of this ducky little name. . . . Wonder why some of our dear fellow students who brag about how they did through courses without studying or even havin a book don't spend some of the time on the books that they spend blowing off at the mouth. . . . Ed Williams, "I may act demure and innocent, but when I put the beam on 'em I really burn 'em up."

LITERARY

Conducted by DOROTHY WHALEN

The Flight The branches were hung with ropes of fog In a wine-dark forest-land. The world was pale and cold and still. The rain fell low on the wooded hill. And the dawning was at hand.

Our horses breathed white from the race of the night, And the tread of their hoofs was slow. But my pulse was fast and my hands were warm; What cared I then for the swell of the storm. When I was happy, so?

The forest was dim in the ghostly light; The road was strange and steep. You took my hand on the leather rein; Your laughter rang out like a scarlet bell. On the frosty white of the keep.

My foot in the stirrup, my heart in the sky In a wine-dark forest-land. The world was warm and gay and bright. The rain fell low like a silver light. And the morning was at hand. N. N.

The Needle's Eye The headlamps of an automobile turning the corner threw a transient light across the thin curtains at the window. Margaret sighed rose from her chair, shook aside the folds in the train of her skirt, and moved slowly to the window, where she stood looking down at the broad boulevard, with its long chain of lights and its evening stream of traffic. She could see the tall ornamental-iron fence which surrounded her home, and at the gateway, the vine-covered brick post which her father called the "Maysfield sentinels".

The smoke from her cigarette curled slowly up around her wrist, a moving white against the darkness of the room. Angrily, she ground out the white cylinder in the ash tray and pulled the cords which drew together the heavy brocade curtains at the sides of the two windows. A moment later, the lights in the room flared at a touch of the button under her hand.

Her book lay as she had left it when darkness had begun to fall - closed, on the glass-topped coffee table beside her chair. Near it sat her cup, the coffee in it long since cold. And in the middle of the table was a pewter tray of after-dinner mints. As she crossed the room, Margaret stooped to take one and put it in her mouth.

When she rose from the footstool she was drowned in the thick pile of the carpet, but the taffeta of her dress rustled slightly as she sat at her dressing-table, between the two amber-shaded lamps, and with her two elbows on the table, looked searchingly into her wide mirror. Dark hair, sweeping back from a high forehead, cast brown eyes, straight nose, curved mouth. As she looked, the brown eyes clouded, and a little frown arched her eyebrows.

She rose abruptly, and took up the book from the table. It was Canille. The leaves fluttered beneath her hand for a moment, and then she let the volume drop back upon the table. Her shoulders drooped, and she sank into the chair.

Her eyes were still closed when she straightened up at the door. "Yes; come in." The black face of the negro girl who appeared in the doorway was slight with interest.

"It's Mister John, Miss Maysfield. He says you'll see him." Margaret rose, a slender girl in a sweeping scarlet dress, against a background of neutral gray. Her eyes grew darker, larger. "Yes," she said, and went out into the hallway and down the broad flight of steps.

He was standing at the foot of the stairs, under the crystal chandelier, waiting for her. When he held out his hand to help her, Margaret knew that she loved him as she had never loved anyone, not even herself. But she smiled, and led the way into the adjoining room. "You know why I've come, Margaret?" She took a cigarette from a copper box, and lit it from the match that he struck. Her hand trembled slightly. "Yes, I know."

"She turned her back, and bent her head over a portfolio of etchings that lay on a writing-table. He came to her. "It isn't 'no', is it, Margaret?" "She moved away, and her hand struck a plate of candies. She took up a mint, and offered him one. He shook his head impatiently, and caught her fingers. "Margaret—please—tell me." Her eyes were quite clear when she looked up at him, and shook her head. "There's no use lying, Johnnie. You just can't give me what I want."

For several moments he did not understand, and then he did not believe. "Money, you mean?" he asked. "She had never heard the room so quiet. Almost she feared that he could hear the frantic beating of her heart. She spoke quickly. "Money, social position—everything. Everything I need. I can't live without it, now. It's too late. Don't you think I wish I could? But I've always been protected. . . . (Continued on Page Five)

Dutch Schultz, Two Aides Near Death From Wounds

Bursts of Fire Cut Down Six Gangsters in Different Parts of New York Same Night

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24 (INS)—His liver torn by a machine gun slug, Arthur "Dutch" Schultz, Fieganheimer, king of the New York underworld, was fighting for his life today in city hospital.

Lying stark and cold on a marble slab in the hospital morgue was Otto Berman, 46, Schultz's boldest and most trusted bodyguard. His body was riddled with bullets. His death was unknown to Schultz.

In two other rooms of the hospital, groaning in agony, lay two other Schultz henchmen—Bernard Rosenkrantz, 40, and Leo Frank, 46.

Across the Hudson river in Manhattan, Martin Krompler, 33, alleged chief lieutenant of Schultz's gambling syndicate, lay in the shadow of death with two bullets in his back. With him, in Polyclinic hospital, was Sam Gold, 37, Bronx promoter and bookmaker. All six were shot shortly before last midnight in one of the most incredibly ferocious outbreaks of gun warfare in the nation's history.

Schultz soon lapsed into unconsciousness and it was apparent his condition was grave. He was suffering internal bleeding, but after an emergency operation had been performed, Dr. Earl Snavely, medical director of the hospital, gave him a bare, fighting chance for his life. Provided peritonitis does not set in.

Dr. Snavely's latest report said: "Schultz is very low. He has lost a great deal of blood."

Berman died about five hours after he entered the hospital and long after Schultz had lost consciousness.

Two of those who had been in the chop house, including three women, were rounded up by police and held incommunicado for questioning. The women and some of the men had been upstairs dancing at the time and they knew nothing of the shooting.

The fallen gangsters had plenty of cash in their possession. Police found $325 in Schultz's bloodstained clothes. Rosenkrantz had $342, Frank $344, and Berman $37.

Schultz, the last of those fabulous underworld kings spawned by the prohibition era, was shot in the chest or prison, was shot down by two killers in the Palace Chop House, a restaurant in the heart of downtown Newark, after a furious battle.

The strange gunman, who riddled the restaurant with a machine-gun, escaped.

Newspapers were just being rushed to the Times Square area of New York when there was another murderous burst of fire in the White Light district. Krompler and Gold crumpled to the floor of a barbershop at 47th street and seventh avenue, critically wounded.

The wholesale shootings demobilized the Metropolitan area. Over the underworld grapevine spread the rumor that a powerful new gang, headed by an unknown master criminal, has set out to exterminate the entire New York racket, which has dominated the multi-million booze and gambling rackets of New York for a decade.

Night clubs emptied as underworld characters flew to cover and innocent patrons fled out of the way of possible new shootings.

A wide hunt for the Schultz assassins was launched immediately in Newark and throughout New Jersey.

New York police ordered a roundup of all persons known to have had any connection with Schultz. There were less than a dozen men sipping drinks in the Palace restaurant last night when the two strangers walked in.

A couple sat at one of the tables on the side of the room opposite the bar. Two or three others were idly playing a bagatelle machine near the door.

Jack Friedman, the bartender, was leisurely rubbing a damp cloth over the mahogany. He glanced up as the two strangers entered. Both were pale. One was slender; one heavily built. Straight down to the end of the bar they walked, carefully scanning the booth-lined dining room. Then they saw their quarry. Schultz, sitting with his back to the wall, was conversing with Berman. Next to him was Rosenkrantz. One of the men shouted to the bartender: "Duck!"

The horrified bartender saw the intruders tearing a couple of strange instruments from under their coats—a shotgun and a "Tommy" gun.

He ducked as the roar of firing began. Berman was wounded with the first burst of fire. Rosenkrantz whipped out a heavy automatic and began to return the fire. Schultz was hit in the abdomen and sat still.

The actual firing lasted less than a minute. The assassins wheeled sharply and walked swiftly, but not hurriedly, to the street, where they vanished in an automobile.

Rosenkrantz, though hit twice in the chest, once in the left side and once in the leg, pursued the executioners to the door, firing until his gun was empty.

He left a crimson trail as he staggered a few steps down the street and collapsed crasly over a street-cleaner's refuse can.

Frank was hit in the left side, stomach and wrist. He was said to be the least seriously wounded. Berman, found at the table with Schultz, his gun lying unused beside him, was riddled. Three shots hit him in the top of his head, one in his jaw, two in his lungs, and two in his stomach.

Schultz was still conscious, but pale and scared when acting police captain Timothy Rowe rushed into the charnel house. He recognized the famous public enemy, who had been hiding out in Jersey to avoid trials for dodging income taxes of some $100,000 at once.

"You're Dutch Schultz, aren't you?" he demanded.

"Yes, the gangster responded feebly."

"You're shot, aren't you?"

"Yes."

On the way to the hospital police quizzed the wounded man. Their lips were buttoned as far as the identity of their assailants was concerned. At one point Schultz gave tongue and cried:

"I've told you the truth. I was just sitting in a place and they came in alone. I'm getting weak."

When cameramen arrived he smiled, with a touch of his old viciousness:

"What's the matter with you guys? It's a pretty important question to you than my life?"

Rosenkrantz mustered a weak grin when questioned about the murderous gunmen. He croaked:

"Get me an ice cream cone."

At the Schultz table police found adding machine tape, indicating Schultz and his aides had been figuring up lottery receipts.

Police are baffled by too many, rather than too few leads in the mass shootings. A dozen motives have been advanced and a score of clues are being traced, any one of which might lead to the killers.

New York police quickly expressed the opinion the killing grew out of a war with a powerful new gang—as yet unknown—over the newest and most sinister racket of the underworld—usurious money lending.

Almost a dozen murders, some of them hideously brutal, have been traced to warfare among the "shylocks" in the last month.

The latest victim was "Pretty" Ambry, who had broken away from the Schultz mob to build up his 20-per-cent-a-week loan mob in Brooklyn. Ambry was found in a flaming automobile in Brooklyn, the night he was last seen. His skull had been smashed nine times by an axe before he was garrotted, sacked, sprinkled with gasoline and set aflame.

Less than a month before Ambry's brother, Joe, had been executed with his bodyguard in Brooklyn.

The New York police believe the Ambrys may have killed "Bo" Weinberg, one of Schultz's gun-toting executives, in the "Shylock" competition. Weinberg was kidnaped recently and has not been reported seen since Sept. 9.

STUDENT OPINION

To the Editors of The Kernel.

A senior leaving the University of his choice at graduation takes inventory of the year he has spent at the University recalling the bitter and the sweet as it came to him during his stay on the campus and exits witnessed on the field.

He hopes him to make any constructive criticism which he feels in conscience should be made. The student body of the University is the most universal and the most interesting of all the arts.

In short, give to the Glee clubs all the publicity, support, and encouragement to which they are entitled. Help them, as it were, by your cooperation to more adequately and beautifully express the love and interest of every student and instructor on the campus for music, the most universal and the most interesting of all the arts.

Margaret slowly mounted the stairs to her room, and closed the door behind her. She took up the book from the coffee table, and smiled ruefully.

"Courage," she said, aloud. "Courage? No. Now, he only hates me; married, he would despise me. Courage? No, it was the truth."

And she lay the book over the tray of mints.

From Enemy Camps

By MACK HUGHES

After the defeat suffered at the hands of Auburn last Saturday, the University of Kentucky Wildcats are getting a much earned rest this coming week-end when they have no game scheduled. Their coming opponents, however, all have games.

The Crimson Tide of the University of Alabama will try to prove that they are again rounding out into championship form by beating the Georgia Bulldogs. This is going to be a tough job for them as the Georgians are very strong contenders for the Southeastern conference flag this season. Even the Alabama coach, Frank Thomas, picks the Bulldogs to win.

The Georgia team is made up of big, seasoned boys who are fighting for a recognition which their university has not won for many, many years. The Alabama boys, on the other hand, are also big, though not so experienced, and they are out to prove that the humiliation that they suffered at the hands of Howard and Mississippi doesn't mean a thing and that again this year they have a real team.

This game will bear close watching as the Crimson Tide is the Wildcat's next foe and if they beat the Georgians the Big Blue boys had better watch their step and be prepared for the worst. The Tide has the reputations of being a strong finisher and the Kentucky team have met them late in the season for many years and haven't won a game since 1922.

The University of Florida grid-ers, who meet the Wildcats November 9, in the Homecoming tilt, take on the University of Maryland at Gainesville. The Floridians have a weak team this year and are hoped to lose this tussle, but who knows; this is a season of upsets.

Tulane University, after losing to Minnesota last week, takes on the University of the South at New Orleans. This is supposed to be only a mid-season "breather" and the Green Wave should win handsly.

The University of Tennessee may have picked Centre College from here in "Ole Kaintuck" as a "breather" but it's probable that the Colonels will put up the stiffest fight of the year so far. They have a reputation for their scrappiness and the Volunteers had better turn in a hard fought game or they may find themselves the victims of a good old 1935 upset team.

Auburn, Kentucky's conqueror of last week, will tackle the strong Duke Blue Devils in Durham and if they win that scrap they can truly say that Tennessee was lucky to beat them.

Georgia Tech, fresh from its 6-0 win over Duke, will tackle a still stronger team when they travel to Chapel Hill to meet the University of North Carolina. The Tar Heels should have some trouble but should win by several touchdowns; but Tech turned back Duke and may score another upset.

The Musketeers of Xavier will try to prove their merit when the Mississippi State team meets them this Saturday but are given only a small chance to come out victors. Mississippi State is a strong contender for the championship of the Southeastern Conference.

With the Wildcats idle this week-end and no other University team scheduled for a local appearance, it looks as if we will have to get out the notebook and bring forth a few items which deserve mention and have become side-tracked only because of the usual lack of space.

It may seem a little out of season to be discussing tennis, but devotees of that sport have been playing over on the University courts ever since school opened. They hope to get in a few more weeks of play but to us it appears to be a doubtful issue, now that the food season has apparently set in.

At any rate, members of the tennis team and Prof. H. H. Downing, varsity net coach, already are enthusiastic over prospects for the spring season. In fact, the outlook for the year is so bright for them that they are now engaged in arranging a schedule which, when completed, will be probably the hardest the Kentucky netters have ever undertaken.

Present plans call for a post-season swing through the mid-west, with the "Cat racket-wielders" facing on successive days, Indiana University, Purdue, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Michigan, University of Detroit and Ohio State. Of course, as yet, these matches are only tentative but will serve to give you an idea of the class of opposition the varsity tennis team expects to meet next season. Besides these above-mentioned units a representative group of Southeastern conference opponents will also be scheduled during the regular season.

From this position it looks as if Kentucky will be represented by the most competent net squad that has competed for the University in many years.

In addition to Co-Captains Elvis Stahr and Jimmy Moore, George Tulloch, the Randall brothers, Lawrence Jenkins and George Skinner, all of whom were available last season, the Kentuckians will be strengthened considerably with Bobby Evans, Warfield Donohue and Curtis Leach.

Evans, a member of last year's frosh squad, captured the city, as well as the Pisgah tennis title summer. He defeated Leach in the finals of the city tourney, in which Leach was defending champion. Warfield Donohue, former Falls City title holder, was unable to compete last year with the varsity.

So with a majority of the veterans returning, and these new-comers ready for action, it is little wonder that Coach Downing is attempting to arrange an ambitious schedule and looking forward to the campaign with pleasurable anticipation.

The newly organized varsity cross-country team will make its debut tomorrow afternoon when the locals oppose Tennessee at Knoxville. The event will be held between the halves of the Tennessee-Centre football game and should be an added attraction.

Track Coach Bernie Shively believes that the cross-country sport will be a great help to his distance runners and figures that the fall conditioning will develop the legs and wind of the milers and two-milers to such an extent that they will have little trouble in getting into shape when track season rolls around in the spring.

A complete schedule for the harders has not yet been worked out but it is probable that they will have five meets including the annual open meet at Louisville on Thanksgiving Day.

Some items that may have escaped you... Joe Huddleston, Elmore Simpson, "Bo" McMillan and "Hammerhead" McClurg have been known to the rest of the team as "bombers," since the Georgia Tech game, when Coach Wynne sent them in together to "save the battle"... Bob Hess, Kernel's Winchell, was the best little cheer leader ever developed at New Trier high school in Wilmette, Ill... Plenty of students on the campus are in favor of a varsity boxing team and likewise there is plenty of material handy... Coach Adolph Rupp feels very unhappy every time he looks at his nicely polished gym floor after a dance... Coach Adolph Rupp is using a new method of developing and polishing his material... He has Boxley, his 6-foot 3-inch sophomore center, skipping rope for fifteen minutes every day... Corland Bliss was indignant when we mentioned him as Harry... but the other basketball players evidently enjoyed it... and now call him Harry... Charles Stripling, the Wildcat equipment boss whom you know as "Brip," is an Auburn graduate and a very fine radio engineer... we've been informed... he says he didn't get a riding from his friends down at Montgomery after the 'Cat defeat... a story in yesterday's Herald says that Ralph Kercheval's punt of 91 yards made last Sunday against the Chicago Bears will probably be a new official record.

According to C. W. Hackensmith, director of Intramural activities, the entrance fees for athletic teams will be reduced if enough money is made from the annual Intramural W. A. A. dance tomorrow night. This should be an added inducement for those planning to attend and may be a good reason for attending for those fraternity men who did not figure to make the dance.

forfeit from the P.K.A.'s, eliminating the latter as it was their second forfeit. And in what is to be called an upset, the S.P.E.'s defeated the S.A.E.'s. The second division saw the A.G.R.'s get a forfeit from the A.T.O.'s and the Sig Chis win from the P.D.T.'s.

In the third division the S. N.'s took the Lambda Chi's while the Alpha Sig's defeated the D. Chi's. Boxing and wrestling come next on the program starting December 1, along with hand ball. Since the competition is becoming keener each year, all aspiring candidates are urged to prepare early for these tournaments as the dance tomorrow night be a success, so let's all be there and give ourselves a treat in Intramural money matters.

The latest report from Mr. Hackensmith is the possibility of a cut in the entrance fees of teams and individuals should the dance tomorrow night be a success, so let's all be there and give ourselves a treat in Intramural money matters.

Speaking before the Jewish war veterans of Westchester county here last night, Judge Mahoney reiterated that the international sports festival must be held in some other country. Mahoney challenged Brig. Gen. Charles Sherrill, who opposes his efforts to take the Olympics from Germany, to a public debate on the question.
