They Have Earned Their "L" For Loyalty

The list published below comprises the voluntary contributors to the Alumni Loyalty Fund since the publication of the August ALUMNUS.

It is indicative of the interest and enthusiasm manifested by Kentucky Alumni in the promotion of a fund which is educating four young students at the present time, and which, we hope, will be the means of educating many more in the future.

Do not wait until you are formally solicited. SEND IN YOUR CONTRIBUTION NOW!

Kentucky Press Association

To the Citizens of Kentucky:

During the next session, the General Assembly will make a decision of far-reaching consequence to the University of Kentucky. Its action on the budget for the 1952-54 biennium will materially affect the entire future of the institution. It will answer the question which Kentuckians must ask themselves today:

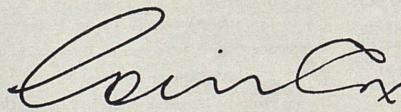

"What kind of a University do we want in Kentucky?"

The budget for the next two years as prepared by the Board of Trustees, the President, and the Deans of the Colleges is for $5,401,536 for each year of the biennium. This sum does not include any money for buildings.

For the past four years the University has received from the Veterans Administration for tuition for the G.I.'s in attendance, an average of $1,325,709 per year. The veterans have about exhausted their entitlements and this program is nearly terminated. The estimated amount the University will receive from this source for each year of the next biennium is not more than $250,000. This loss of money will have disastrous consequences for the University's future unless the State steps in and assumes its responsibility for the loss in Federal funds.

You, as a citizen of Kentucky, can understand what will happen to the University if these Federal funds which have been used largely for professors' salaries are not forthcoming. You should know why this increase is sought, why it is essential to the future of the University that it be granted.

To give you that information is the purpose of this brochure. We request that you give it your careful consideration, that the right decision for the University, for Kentucky, and for the people will be reached. To this end, the Alumni Association is distributing this bulletin to interested citizens of the State.

Louis Cox, President

University of Kentucky Alumni Association

(The above letter from the President of the Alumni Association introduces the published budget request of the University of Kentucky to the 1952 Legislature. This message is of vital importance to all alumni and to the citizens of Kentucky. It is your responsibility to acquaint yourselves with the budget request and to discuss it with your neighbors and friends so that the entire citizenship may have knowledge of the value of the University to the Commonwealth and of its immediate, urgent needs.)

Journalism School Dedication November 2

Long-Time Dream Comes True at UK

By Dr. Niel Plummer, '28, Director,
School of Journalism

It's a dream! A perfectly wonderful, beautiful and inspiring dream! It was worth working—and waiting for!

This was the concensus of Kentucky's journalism graduates throughout the world as the new $425,000 Journalism Building reached its dedication date, November 2. Their pride was especially justifiable in that all students who have worked in student publications since 1914, the year journalism was established as an instructional department on the campus, had before them the dream that some day their combined efforts would yield a home for journalism and student publications. Retrospection is a happy experience.

A second-hand linotype, purchased on credit in 1924, was the first unit in the modern $200,000 Kernel press which is now in full operation in the new building. The earnings of the press will pay off the debt remaining against the building.

A small instructional department, founded in 1914 with Prof. Enoch Grehan and Miss Marguerite McLaughlin as its faculty, has grown to a fully accredited School of Journalism, one of the larger schools holding membership in the Association of Accredited Schools and Departments of Journalism. The Board of Trustees raised the Department to the School status in some of this year.

The Kentucky Press Association maintains its central office in the School of Journalism, as does the Kentucky High School Press Association; national associations in the field of communications are frequently in session on the campus; advertising and other services are performed daily for the working press, and in the current year the School is directing a reorientation program for nine German journalists who have been sent to the University by the State Department.

How have the Journalism students now on the campus accepted all the advantages which are now theirs through the labor of so many, for so long? Perhaps it was the editor of The Kernel speaking for all when he wrote in the edition of September 21, 1951, "We are charged with publishing a paper worthy of the new building and of the equally new School of Journalism. We have accepted this responsibility with serious misgivings, for the past staffs have produced Kernels difficult even to equal, much less excel . . . This year's staff will attempt to produce a paper worthy of the University."

In outlining to the current student body some of the conveniences of the new building, the editor turned his memory to the paper's quarters in McVey Hall. "The completion of the new Journalism Building has released the members of the Kernel staff from the murky, steaming, dripping 'dungeon' in the sub-basement of McVey Hall," he wrote. "No longer need the editorial staff dodge dripping grease from the presses upstairs . . ." Earlier editors, had the new building come in their time, would have noted the inconveniences of the newsroom once located in the basement of the Old Science Building (Miller Hall), and still earlier editors would have recounted experiences in the Administration Building. But all editors, past and present, would unite in the high purpose — "to publish a paper worthy of the University."

President Herman Lee Donovan pointedly recognized the success which has attended the efforts of the unnumbered students who have worked in student publications when he recommended to the Board of Trustees the erection of the Journalism building.

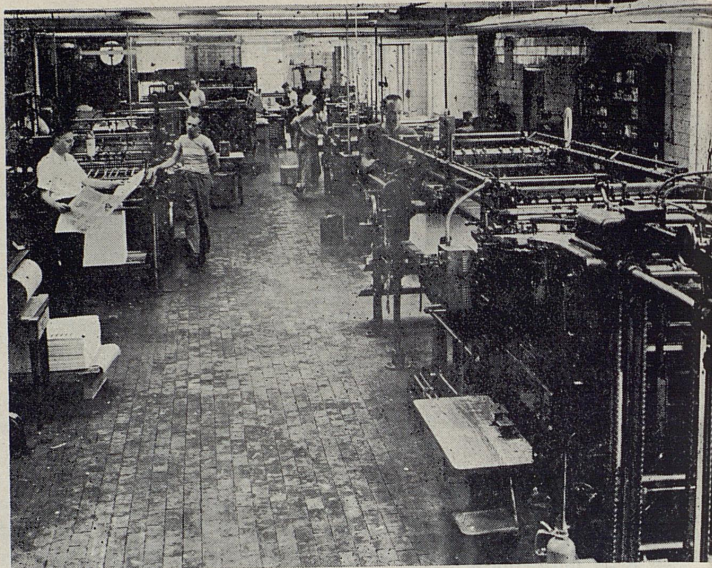

"This is a success story which is of particular interest to Kentuckians because the entire personnel and the locale involved are centered on the campus of the University. It is a story very likely without parallel on any campus in this country—or elsewhere," he declared. Continuing, he said:

"The story is that of the building of the printing facilities of the University during the last twenty-five years under the direction of the Department of Journalism. On June 30, 1949 the report of the comptroller revealed that the assets of this project had reached $145,786.38 — and every dollar of this sum had been earned to that date without the investment of a penny of the University's funds.

"But beyond the citing of total assets there are other phases of the story which should be pointed out.

"In the building of these printing facilities, now known as The Kernel Press, there have been created laboratories for the teaching of journalism without which the Department of Journalism would find it difficult to maintain its place among the 38 accredited schools of journalism in the United States. Such accreditation, however, has been held for the last 18 years.

"Hundreds of young men and young women have learned the basic principles of successful publishing here and have gone on to responsible positions in Kentucky and elsewhere throughout the nation.

"Student publication activities, built around the printing facilities, serve as models for others both in Kentucky and outside the Commonwealth. It is not just by chance that the Kentucky high school and the intercollegiate press organizations, as well as the Kentucky Press Association, maintain their headquarters at the University of Kentucky.

"In the printing plant scores of young men and young women have found employment by which they have earned all or part of their expenses, enabling them to continue their studies at the University.

"Here, too, has been kept alive the journalistic tradition of printing a student newspaper which is now past its fifty-fifth year on the campus.

"And today the printing plant is rapidly gathering momentum to undertake the fast and economical production of all the printing services required by the University. From this expanded activity is expected to come the funds necessary to underwrite the bonds for the erection of a new building to house the plant, student publications and the Department of Journalism. Further the printing facilities and the personnel are now ready to aid the University substantially in its effort to move forward in the publication of scholarly books.

"The building of a printing plant for the University was first envisioned just 25 years ago by the late Enoch Grehan, head of the Department of Journalism from 1914 until his death in 1937. In the years prior to 1924, Professor Grehan and his students struggled to publish the student newspaper, The Kernel, through the services of commercial printers. High costs actually threatened the continued publication of the newspaper. So it was that Professor Grehan proposed that the student newspaper purchase a typesetting machine on a deferred payment plan, letting earnings of the newspaper pay off the debt.

"It is not surprising that there was considerable doubt on the campus concerning the practicality of the proposal since the debt was to be $2,000, and campus experience with student publications in the past gave little cause for optimism. As a matter of fact, minutes of the faculty dating from the days of President Patterson indicate financial troubles with student publications, and notations are to be found requiring that a student editor post bonds to cover all possible losses to subscribers and printers.

"But Professor Grehan believed in his proposal and he offered to guarantee the payment of the cost of the typesetting machine. He placed his signature on a note for the $2,000 debt. This was the beginning of the project which had assets of more than $45,000 at the beginning of the present fiscal year. In 1925 a small two-page press was purchased, further increasing the indebtedness, but augmenting the earning power of the newspaper. Then, slowly, piece by piece, year by year, the plant was expanded. After a while the plant was able to handle small printing orders for students. This work added to the income derived from the sales of advertising. Personnel, too, was slowly recruited.

"During one period of the growth of the printing plant Mr. James Shropshire, a graduate of the University, served as Director of Student Publications and was of great help to Professor Grehan and to the present head of the Department of Journalism.

"Mr. W. D. Grote, manager of the printing plant for the last 10 years, is another of the University's graduates who has given effectively to building the plant, especially during the difficult war years.

"Not until the Board of Trustees created the Department of Business Management and Control under Mr. Frank D. Peterson did the finances of the printing plant and of student publications become a direct responsibility of the University. The transition was made easily. The operations moved into a new era of service and of profit.

"In 1948 the Legislature enacted a statute under which the University might use the printing facilities on the campus for servicing materials which hitherto had been required by law to be processed by the State Printer. It soon became evident that printing services could be obtained on the campus much faster than at Frankfort, and that by a modest expansion of plant and personnel practically the entire printing needs of the University could be met without delay.

"Accordingly, last spring the President asked Mr. Peterson and others associated in the printing activities to

'Chuck' Colvin, '30, Heads Ethyl Plant

Charles E. "Chuck" Colvin, Jr., '30, of Baton Rouge, La., formerly of Knoxville, Tenn., is manager of purchasing for the Ethyl Plant in Baton Rouge.

Chuck began his career as field representative in the Chicago division, and in 1938 was transferred to New York as assistant to the vice president in charge of manufacturing, a position he held until he moved to Baton Rouge in June 1947 as manager of production planning. In December 1947 he took over his present position.

Active in many organizations while at the University, Chuck has continued his activity in many social, civic, professional and church groups in Baton Rouge. He is chairman of the Buyer-Seller Relations Committee of the Rotary Club; chairman of the parking and traffic committee of the Chamber of Commerce; member of the executive board of the Istrouma Area Council of Boy Scouts; chairman of the Young People's Committee of the First Presbyterian church Deacon's Council of Education and a member of the Armed Forces Chemical Association and the Purchasing Agents Association of New Orleans.

He does considerable writing for professional magazines and is called on frequently for talks to various organizations.

ENGLISH PROFESSOR WINS FELLOWSHIP

Dr. Lawrence E. Bowling, a native of Olive Hill, Ky., and visiting lecturer in the University's department of English last year, has been awarded a fellowship and travel grant by the American Council of Learned Societies for the current school year. He will study the problem of good and evil in Shakespeare's plays.

Dr. Bowling holds the A.B. degree from Morehead State College, the master's degree from Vanderbilt University and the Ph.D. from Iowa State University.

ALLEN WOOD GETS DIPLOMATIC POST

Allen West Wood, 24, of Lexington, former University of Kentucky student, has been appointed a diplomatic courier with the State Department.

As a diplomatic courier, he will carry secret and confidential messages of the State Department to embassies, consulates, and foreign officials throughout the world.

He is a lieutenant in the Naval Reserve.

University Men Get Ford Fellowships

Three University of Kentucky professors and a Centre College professor who holds the master's degree from the University, have been named recipients of one-year graduate study fellowships by the Ford Foundation through its Fund for Advancement of Education.

The University professors are: Clifford Amyx, assistant professor of art; Dr. Carl B. Cone, assistant professor of history and Dr. Hollis S. Summers, assistant professor of English. The Centre man is Walter R. Gattis, Jr., M.A. '48, professor of political science there.

The fellowships are granted to undergraduate teachers for the purpose of improving their capacities and competence.

Under terms of the award, each is to be allowed one year's expense-paid study at the institution of his choice. Prof. Amyx will study at the University of California, Dr. Cone at Yale and Dr. Summer at several schools offering advanced courses in creative writing.

In addition to the study awards, the Fund for Advancement of Education will pay each professor's salary for the period covered by the fellowship.

Mrs. Elmer R. Wallace (Christine Wilson, '47) formerly of Texas and home economics teacher in the Carrollton High School for the past seven years, has been elected president of the Kentucky Association of Home Economics Teachers.

Betty Brewer Takes Massachusetts Post

Miss Betty Brewer, '44, of Lexington, former city juvenile officer, left Lexington last June to become church school director of the Church of Our Saviour, in Brookline, Mass. She previously resigned her position as director of religious education at Christ Episcopal Church in Lexington.

Before going to Brookline Miss Brewer took a two-weeks course at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. During the past two years Miss Brewer has worked at Christ Church on the character education program known as the Ligon plan. A similar project will be inaugurated at the Brookline church this fall.

Miss Brewer is the daughter of Col. B. E. Brewer, '08, and Mrs. Brewer, and holds the A.B. degree from Ohio State and the M.A. degree from the University of Kentucky.

plan to meet all printing needs of the University. They recommended the expansion of the printing plant over the area in McVey Hall then used for Journalism instruction, the purchase of approximately $60,000 of new equipment, the transferring of the Department of Journalism to quarters elsewhere on the campus until such time as printing and journalism could be assembled in one building, and the recruiting of new personnel to man the enlarged plant.

"These recommendations have now been carried out . . ."

And so, upon the recommendation of the President, approved by the Board of Trustees, the new journalism building was begun. The cornerstone was laid on Sept. 19, 1950. The Kernel Press was moved to the ground level floor during June 1951 and finally, the School of Journalism, the Kernel editorial staff, and the Kentuckian staff moved into quarters on the other two floors in August and September 1951.

UK Alumnus Executive Of Pan-American World Airways

Russell B. Adams, of Silver Spring, Md., a native of Wheeling, W.Va., and former University of Kentucky student, has been named vice president of Pan American World Airways. The election was effective August 1.

Mr. Adams entered government service with the Post Office Department when he left the University in 1927. In 1939 he transferred to the Civil Aeronautics Board where he was director of the Economic Bureau and later a member of the board until his term expired last year. He is presently special assistant to the Secretary of State.

His headquarters will be in Washington where he will represent Pan American in its business with the Executive Departments, including the company's mounting responsibilities to the special agencies established as a result of the nation's emergency. His duties also include representation in various international aviation organizations with which the company is connected.

Troy L. Perkins, '25 With Dept. Of State

Troy L. Perkins, '25, formerly of Hindman, Ky., now deputy director of political affairs in the U.S. State Department's Office of Chinese Affairs, was the subject of a feature story printed last spring in the Louisville Courier Journal and authored by Ed Edstrom of that paper's Washington bureau.

While a student at the University, Troy Perkins wrote a weekly column for the Kentucky Kernel, wrote and acted in the Romany Theater, the Guignol's predecessor, and did a three-act comedy about teen-agers which got Broadway consideration but was never produced.

Probably his most famous undergraduate contribution to the University was writing the words for Prof.

His first diplomatic post was clerk in the American consulate at Ensenada, Mexico, and eventually he was accepted for the Foreign Service School at Washington. His first post after graduation from there was Tientsin, China. From there he went to Peiping, Mukden, Kunming, Nanking and Hanoi. When Pearl Harbor came he was at Kunming, the only American consul left in China. He left Kunming in the fall of 1942 and came to Washington to work in the Far Eastern division of the State Department.

From January 1945 to July 1946 he was consul at Victoria, B.C. and then served as consul in Nanking and Hanoi, before returning to Washington in July 1948.

City Pays Tribute To Dr. H. L. Donovan

Dr. Herman Lee Donovan '14, president of the University of Kentucky since July 1, 1941, was presented with a television set by the Lexington Chamber of Commerce last July, in recognition of his ten years of service to the University, the city and the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

The University president accepted it "as a symbol of your appreciation of what has happened at the University and not because of my activities."

When you give me this television set I feel you are giving it to the faculty and they can come over and see what's going on whenever they wish, President Donovan told a group of University trustees, Chamber directors and members of the trade board's special recognition committee.

"I think we have had a great team since I have been here," the president said, referring specifically to the faculty, staff and board of trustees, some of the latter coming as far as 200 miles to attend the ceremony. "The board has supported me generously, giving advice and cooperation," he added.

In addition to the gift for Dr. Donovan the group presented a silver punch bowl to Mrs. Donovan, and numerous civic groups and alumni clubs throughout the state and nation wrote letters of appreciation to the University president.

COL. C. T. RAZOR '25, PROMOTED IN RANK

Lt. Col. Charles T. Razor, '25, head of the department of physics and the department of electrical engineering at The Citadel, the military college of South Carolina at Charleston, has been promoted to the college rank of colonel.

Colonel Razor joined The Citadel faculty in 1926 as an assistant professor of physics.

He received his B.S. degree from the University of Kentucky and the degrees of Master of Science in Electrical Engineering from the University of Michigan.

Kentucky General Named Chief Of U.S. Signal Corps Division

Brig. Gen. Eugene V. Elder, formerly of Richmond and Paris, Ky., is chief of the Procurement and Distribution Division of the Army Signal Corps.

General Elder is not a native Kentuckian, but moved to the Commonwealth with his family as a youngster. Settling in Richmond, they moved to Paris seven years later where General Elder received his elementary and high school education. He attended the University of Kentucky and was a student in the department of mining engineering when World War I started. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in the regular Army in 1920 and has been on active duty ever since. He was raised to the rank of brigadier general last February.

German Newsmen To Study Year At UK

The University of Kentucky is one of three American universities selected by the State Department to operate a reorientation program for German newspapermen during the current academic year.

Under the State Department plan, 28 of West Germany's leading newsmen were brought to the U.S. in the late summer to begin study at three American universities. Nine of the group have been assigned to UK and Dr. Niel Plummer, director of the University's School of Journalism is coordinator of the project at the University.

Dr. Plummer said the nine-month program to be operated at the University will include classroom instruction in courses closely allied to the individual student's primary field of interest, weekly seminars to be conducted by UK professors and visiting lecturers, and field trips to metropolitan, small city, and community newspaper plants. He said the group will visit Kentucky radio and television stations.

General Elder is responsible for the choice of location of the Avon Signal Depot, outside of Lexington, and the officer's fondness for the big installation isn't hard to understand.

The Kentucky General's principal duties, under his new assignment are to supervise Signal Corps depots and to secure supplies for them. The Avon reservation is one of four in the nation. The others are at Sacramento, Calif., Decatur, Ill., and Baltimore, Md.

General Elder's son, Eugene V. Elder, Jr., is a senior in the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of Kentucky this year. Their home address is Washington, D. C.

NEW ORLEANS CLUB PRESIDENT RESIGNS

Charles A. Cropper, '47, president of the New Orleans, La. Alumni Club has resigned, effective in September, to accept the position of traveling auditor with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co., which position will take him to southern Georgia.

Dr. Leslie M. Smith, '28, a member of the staff of the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in New Orleans has been elected to succeed Mr. Cropper as president of the New Orleans club.

The plan for reorienting leading German newsmen is part of the State Department's program for educating the German population in democratic processes. Many men now occupying key positions on German newspapers, Dr. Plummer pointed out, began their careers during the Hitler regime and so have little conception of a truly free press.

It is the aim of the State Department to reorient considerable numbers of these journalists so that they in turn may help reorient millions of German newspaper readers, Dr. Plummer said.

Summer Grads Hear New U. Of L. Head

Dr. Philip G. Davidson, new president of the University of Louisville, addressed 413 summer school graduates of the University last August, the group representing the third largest summer class in the history of the University of Kentucky.

The Louisville president told the graduating seniors that America's power rests on:

1. A higher level of learning in education.
 2. Free systems of communication which allow individuals to voice their wishes and demands.
 3. The individual's right to approve or disapprove matters affecting him.
- "This country's system of democracy has given Americans more power than your ancestors ever dreamed of," President Davidson told the group.

President H. L. Donovan conferred 11 doctorate, 182 masters and 220 bachelor degrees, urged the graduates to help interpret the University's needs to the public and said that the University faced a deficit of approximately $1,000,000 a year for the next two years because of the loss of Federal funds.

The Rev. Frank A. Rose, president-elect of Transylvania College gave the invocation and benediction.

Sixteen of the 413 students were graduated with honors and two of the graduates, Flonnia Carol Chambers and Donald Ivey, both of Lexington, received a double accolade—graduation "with high distinction" and departmental honors in social work and music respectively.

Arthur T. Munyan, '30, former assistant state geologist for Kentucky, received a Ph.D. degree from the University of Cincinnati last June. He already held the master's degree from that institution.

Mr. Munyan has been appointed associate professor of geology at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., for the current year.

F. Leland Howard, '30, formerly of Hodgenville, Ky., is assistant director of the United States Mint, and as such was the subject of a feature story by Ed Edstrom in the September 5, issue of the Louisville Courier Journal.

Mr. Howard, according to Mr. Edstrom, is frequently called by foreign governments for suggestions on their coin-production problems. Recently, he spent three weeks in Peru which is reorganizing its mint.

Mr. Howard worked his way through the University of Kentucky as a "reader" for professors, correcting papers and helping to conduct examinations. In the summers he sold school rings to high school students. Following his graduation he accepted a position teaching accounting at the University of Virginia where he stayed until he obtained a master's degree in economics.

In the summer of 1934 he took a temporary job as an auditor in the Bureau of the Mint. He now holds the top civilian job in the Mint.

Mr. Howard lives in Arlington, Va., with his wife, the former Edith Sisk of Lexington, and their three daughters—Anne, 18; Nancy, 13 and Betsy 10.

New UK Dep't. Set Up For Air Science

A separate department of air science and tactics has been established at the University of Kentucky for the purpose of training Air Force ROTC students.

Set up by action of the University's Board of Trustees last July, the course was previously operated as a part of the school's department of military science and tactics. It will now have full departmental status within the College of Arts and Sciences.

Enrollment in the University's Air Force unit for the year ending in June totaled approximately 750 cadets. Of the 87 seniors commissioned this year, 67 are on active duty as Air Force lieutenants.

Harrison Receives Ethyl Corporation 15-Year Award Pin

Benjamin D. Harrison, '31, of Baton Rouge, La., formerly of Louisville, manager of industrial engineering at the Ethyl Corp. plant in Baton Rouge since 1945, rounded out 15 years of service to his company last summer and was presented with a service plaque and diamond service pin.

Mr. Harrison began his service with the company as field representative in Montana and Wyoming in 1936. He progressed from field representative in the west to the same position in Indiana and Michigan in 1937 and 1938 before being named special assistant to the vice president, in charge of manufacturing, at New York in 1940.

From 1942 to 1945 he served in the Army Air Force, rising from lieutenant to the rank of major. Upon his release he was made manager of industrial engineering at Baton Rouge.

Detroit Alumni Honor UK Head

J. R. Perkins, '37, president of the Detroit Alumni Club of the University, made a pilgrimage to the campus last summer to present a plaque to President H. L. Donovan, '14, emblematic of his tenth anniversary as head of the institution. The plaque read: "To Herman L. Donovan in appreciation of 10 years of devoted service to the University, its alumni and the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Presented by the Detroit Alumni, July, 1951."

Police Work Course Inaugurated At UK

Professional training for Kentuckians interested in law-enforcement work is the goal of a new course of study started this fall at the University of Kentucky. A four-year course leading to the bachelor of arts degree with a major in police administration has been added to the curriculum.

In announcing the new course, Dr. H. L. Donovan, University president said the aim of the program is to provide a steady supply of graduates qualified for employment with local, state or federal law-enforcement agencies.

"It is our particular hope," said UK's president, "that this program may be instrumental in raising the level of police work throughout Kentucky, and that its graduates, by example, will create public awareness of the need for professional training of all persons entering police work."

Instructor for the newly added courses—police administration, police and the public, police science laboratory and traffic regulation—will be Capt. O. H. Cornwell, head of the Kentucky state police Bureau of Personnel and Training. He is a one-time Xenia, Ohio police chief and former superintendent of the Ohio State Bureau of Criminal Identification.

His services were offered by State Police Commissioner Guthrie Crowe, an enthusiastic supporter of the police-administration course and the one who suggested the establishment of such a program at the University. The new curriculum meets all requirements for a liberal-arts education.

B. F. Simpson, M.A. '49, of Willisburg, Ky., has been elected superintendent of the Fremont schools at Goldsboro, N. C. He began his duties July 1.

He has been principal at Summerfield High School (N.C.) for the past three years and has had eighteen years of administrative and teaching experience and served in the U.S. Army from 1942 to 1946.

Louisville Alums Teach In England

Two alumnae of the University of Kentucky have exchanged places with two British teachers for the 1951-'52 school year. They are: Elsie Rowell, of Theodore Ahrens Trade School and Alla Deane Huddle, DuPont Manual High School.

These two young women sailed last July for England with about 100 other American teachers.

Miss Rowell, social studies teacher at Ahrens is teaching American history in the High School for Girls at Worthing, Sussex on the southern coast near Brighton. Mrs. Huddle, music teacher in the junior high division at Manual, is teaching music and mathematics in the Wellington Secondary School for Girls at Altrincham, Cheshire, near Manchester.

Miss Rowell is a graduate of Randolph Macon Woman's College and the University of Kentucky. Mrs. Huddle, a native of Georgetown, is a graduate of Georgetown College and the University and did graduate work at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. She taught formerly at Olmstead in Logan county, at Sonora and at Columbia, Ky.

UK VICE PRESIDENT HONORED BY INDIANA

Dr. Leo M. Chamberlain, vice president of the University of Kentucky was honored by his alma mater last July when the University of Indiana conferred upon him the honorary Doctor of Laws degree at a special ceremony in observance of the 100th anniversary of the school.

Dr. Chamberlain came to the University of Kentucky in 1929 as an assistant professor of education. He has served as director of the Bureau of School Service, registrar, dean of the University and since 1946 has been UK's vice president.

Dr. Donald L. Weisman, of Detroit, Mich., formerly a member of the art department staff at Wayne University there, has been named head of the University's department of art succeeding Prof. Edward W. Rannels who has been head of the department since 1929.

Professor Rannels asked for relief from administrative duties to devote more time to teaching, according to President H. L. Donovan.

Dr. Weisman, a native of Wisconsin, is a graduate of Wisconsin State College, University of Wisconsin, and Ohio State University. He received his doctor-of-philosophy degree from the Ohio school.

The new university department head has exhibited at the Chicago and Milwaukee Art Institutes, New York's Rockefeller Center, Fogg Museum of Art at Harvard, Mexico's Villa Monte Carlo, and numerous galleries throughout the Midwest. In addition, he has taught art in two Wisconsin high schools, Illinois State Normal University, North Texas State College and Wayne.

During World War II, Dr. Weisman served as a communications instructor with the Air Forces Technical Training Command and as a Navy lieutenant in the Asiatic-Pacific area.

Dr. Weisman, his wife, and their 5-months-old daughter arrived here recently. Mrs. Weisman is an author and a former college faculty member. She has taught at Smith and Wellesley Colleges and at Ohio State University, and formerly was a member of the staff of the Library of Congress.

Sidney A. Forsythe, '42, assistant professor of sociology at Alabama College and a native Lexingtonian, has been awarded a General Education Board fellowship in social science and is studying at the Harvard Graduate School this fall.

The third son of Judge and Mrs. W. S. Spragens of Lebanon, Ky., the 34-year-old Kentuckian has been assistant to the president of Stanford University for the past five years.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky, Mr. Spragens also has studied at Syracuse University and held a Federal post in Washington before going to Stanford.

The Ford fund, endowed with $7,000,000, is a branch of the Ford Foundation, established to spend $492,000,000 for the public welfare.

The education fund's head is Dr. Clarence H. Faust, former dean of the faculty of humanities and sciences at Leland Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif. Purpose of the fund is to experiment in educational methods, study education goals, and assist the nation's school systems during the mobilization period. It will work among schools and colleges.

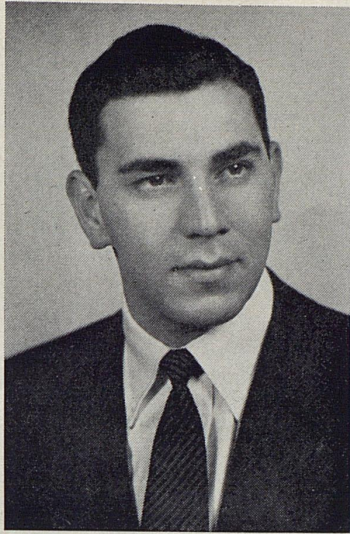

GEOGRAPHER NAMED NEW UK REGISTRAR

Dr. Richard L. Tuthill, professor of geography at the University of Kentucky, has been named registrar for the institution, succeeding Dr. Lee Sprowles, who has resigned to accept a position as professor of educational administration at the University of Georgia.

Dr. Tuthill is a native of Suffern, N. Y. and has been on the University staff since 1946. He holds a B.A. degree from Bates College, M.A. from Columbia and the doctor of education degree from Teachers College, Columbia.

Dr. Sprowles came to the University as research assistant in 1946.

Clayton Cruise, Jr., '49, of Lexington, received a recognition pin last June for outstanding service to the Lexington Exchange Club.

Humzey Yessin, '50 Georgetown Coach

Humzey Yessin, '50, of Lexington, former Harlan High School basketball player and student manager of Kentucky's "Fabulous Five" of Olympic fame, has been named head basketball and baseball coach at Georgetown College.

Yessin, 23 and single, will teach physical education in addition to his coaching. He was a member of the Harlan High School team which won the state championship in 1945 and came to Kentucky with Wallace Jones from Harlan. He played baseball at UK while an undergraduate.

Georgetown College has two former UK athletes as coaches, Leo Yarutis, '48, is the head football coach.

Yessin has been officiating high school and college basketball games for several years.

Astor Hogg, '24, of Harlan county, formerly of Whitley county, was appointed circuit judge of the 26th Judicial District by Gov. Lawrence Wetherby last April. At the same time the Governor appointed J. Ray Rice, a former UK student, as Harlan county judge.

UK Extension Man Goes To Delaware

Gordon Clay Godbey, '41, assistant in the department of University Extension since 1946, has accepted a position as associate director of University Extension and assistant professor in the School of Education at the University of Delaware.

Mr. Godbey was an education fellow at Harvard University last year.

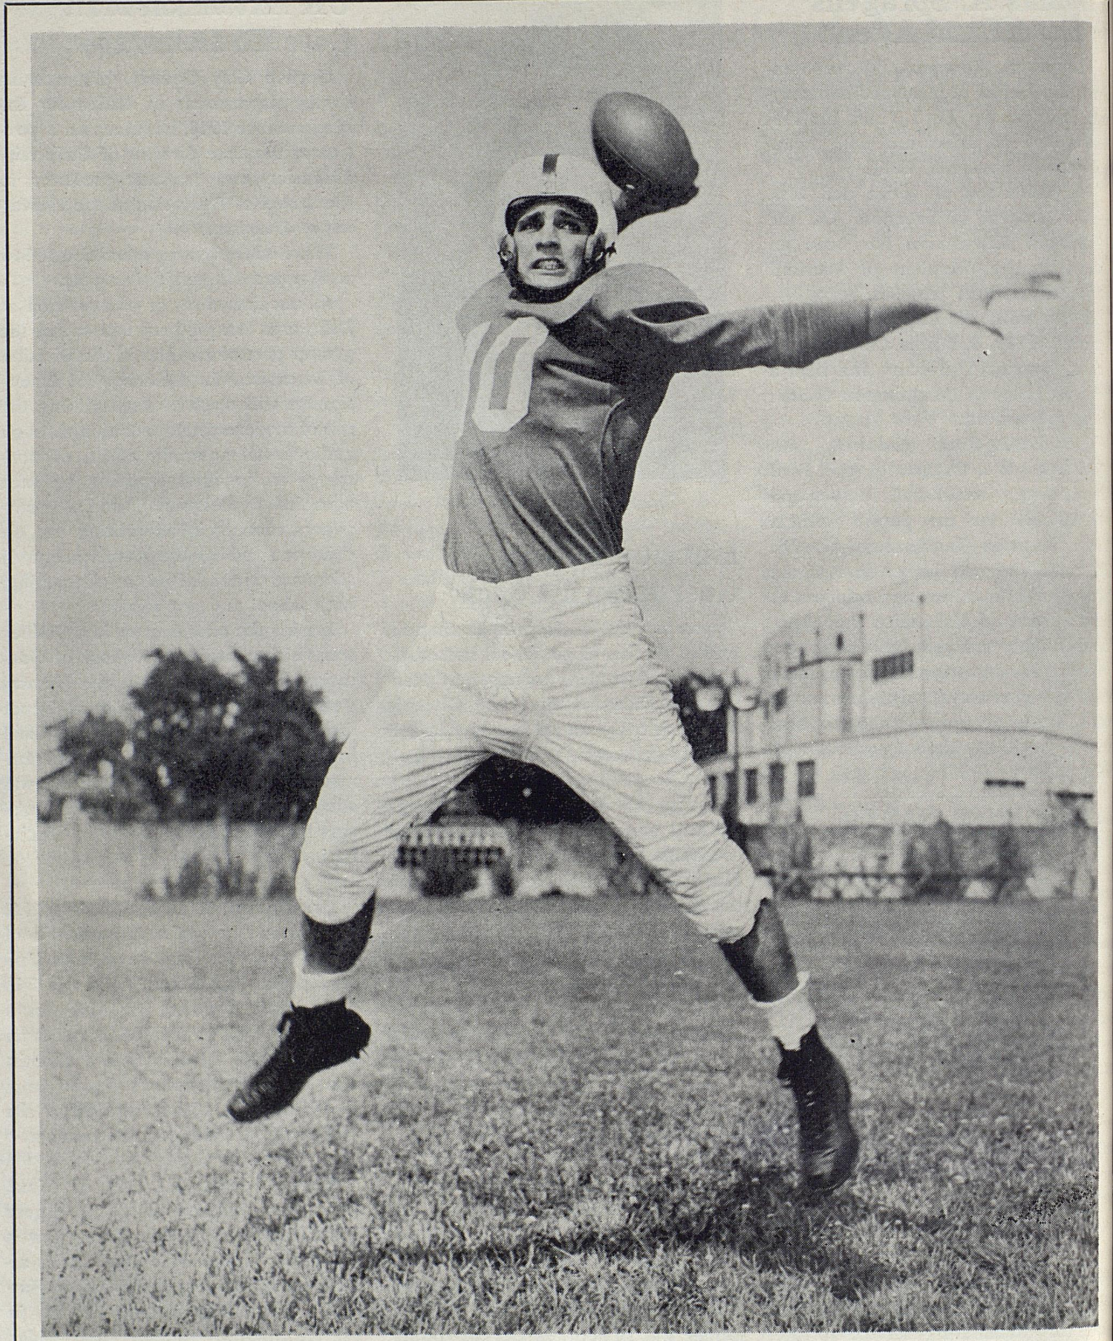

As associate director of extension at Delaware, Mr. Godbey will spend the greater part of his time in the Division of Extension. In the School of Education he will teach courses treating the rise of modern communication through audio-visual materials; effects of non-school audio-visual teaching by such agencies as television, radio, newspapers, commercial advertising, etc., on children, and in the development of adequate criteria of means of teaching, both school and non-school.

During the past summer Mr. Godbey was visiting professor, School of Education, University of Maine. He was stationed at the Avon Signal Depot during the war, as head, audio-visual branch, Training Aids Division. Immediately following the war he was educational consultant and sales manager of the D. T. Davis Co., in Cincinnati.

Dr. Marion B. Naff, B.S. '41, M.S. '46, became an assistant professor of chemistry at Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, Ohio this fall. An organic chemist, Dr. Naff was a first lieutenant in the U.S. Army from 1942 to 1946. Mrs. Naff is a chemist also, and has a master's degree from the University. They studied at the University of Michigan last summer.

Don't Sell Your 1951 Wildcats Short

It's A Young Team With Lots of Fight

by Ken Kuhn, Sports Publicity Editor

"No excuses!"

Those two words echoed constantly around the area of Stoll Field in early October and University of Kentucky football fans and alumni found surprising solace in them.

Ordinarily, under the circumstances, three consecutive grid defeats for the Sugar Bowl and SEC champion Wildcats, there might be some pretty-well-thought-out excuses being bandied around by those in the know. But Coach Paul Bryant, his assistants, and the players were offering no excuses. They were skipping the defeatism and looking to the future when something gain might be done about a losing situation.

It was this somewhat surprising attitude that caused U.K. alums to reflect on the heartbreaking losses to Texas, Ole Miss and Georgia Tech a little differently. Many, who had expressed a few gripes after the loss to an unheralded Mississippi team, took heart in the sensible attitude of "the best coaching staff in the country." They reasoned that the current season was not from a flop just because of three losses — only the second time in six years under Bryant that a Kentucky team had dropped three straight — and became firm believers that some fine football might be forthcoming in the next year or two.

Those with long memories recalled those seasons back in 1945 and in 1948 and remembered the great accomplishments of Kentucky football teams that rose up from those defeats.

Confronted with a losing team upon his arrival on the Kentucky scene in 1946, Coach Bryant turned defeat into a magnificent victory and in the short span of five seasons brought the Wildcats into national prominence as conquerors of the nation's number one team (the Oklahoma Sooners) in the Sugar Bowl. Bryant had taken only one season to turn a losing season into a winning one after he took over in 1946. The Bryant Year I record of seven victories against three defeats represented the Wildcats' most successful campaign since 1912.

During the next year (1947), he piloted Kentucky to a similarly-successful season (seven wins against three losses) for the regular campaign and then added a triumph over Villanova in the Great Lakes Bowl inaugural at Cleveland — Kentucky's first bowl appearance.

The 1948 season bore a remarkable resemblance to the 1951 situation — both campaigns had to be conducted without the services of a large number of experienced players. In 1948, nine first string lettermen were missing as the Cats posted a respectable 5-3-2 record. The 1951 situation, material-wise, was even worse as Bryant was forced to face a giant-killer schedule with the most inexperienced, weakest-in-reserves team fielded since his entry on the Kentucky scene. A total of 19 lettermen were missing, thirteen of them offensive or defensive starters in the Sugar Bowl — the heaviest losses of any squad in the Southeastern Conference.

Further recollection brought forth the memory of the brilliant seasons of 1949 and 1950 that followed the comparatively-disastrous '48 campaign. The fourth chapter in the Bryant story proved a brilliant one as his charges attained goals no other Kentucky team in the school's 61-year football history had reached — finished second in the conference race and participated in a major post-season bowl game (the Orange Bowl). The 1950 Bryant edition won 11 and lost only one game in annexing the school's first SEC football title and the first major bowl championship.

After proving an amazing prophet in setting up a timetable of five years for the Wildcats' climb to the top of the national football ladder, Bryant's words at the start of the '51 season should have been taken more seriously by those now disappointed with the current grid showing. He unqualifiedly termed his schedule one of the toughest a Kentucky eleven ever faced and stated that the possibilities of taking up where he left off New Year's Day and tutoring another bowl team of the same or better calibre were pretty remote for '51.

The fact that the 1951 Kentucky team has lost its three ball games by a total of 10 points is surprising in itself and a testimonial to the fighting spirit of a handicapped (experience-wise) team.

Keyed-up far beyond their expected capabilities, the Wildcats this season have played a calibre of ball that should be good enough to win, according to many of the experts. In the national-attention-grabbing contest against the powerful Texas Longhorns and the SEC tilt with fast-rising Mississippi, only the dropping of apparent big-yardage or touchdown passes by receivers and inopportune fumbles and interceptions cost Kentucky the ball games. They won just about everything in the statistics departments, but seemed to lack sufficient scoring punch to overcome bad breaks produced by inexperience. The closeness of the two contests (Kentucky 6, Texas 7; and Kentucky 17, Mississippi 21) testified to this.

Injury-riddled and psychologically handicapped, the Wildcats looked good even in their worst defeat of the season (six points) at the hands of unbeaten Georgia Tech, 13-7. Lack of sufficient pass protection for All-America Babe Parilli, caused to great extent by inexperience in the Kentucky line and bigger opponent lines, had proved a big factor in two previous losses and

Army Sends Rupp To Hold Clinics For U.S. Coaches

Coach Adolph Rupp left Lexington last September 11 for Westover Air Force Base, Springfield, Mass., from which airport he took off two days later for a months stay in Frankfurt, Germany to assist in a coaching clinic for coaches of the numerous Army teams in Europe.

Included on the clinic staff were John Bunn, coach at Springfield, Mass., College and Oswald Tower, chairman of the National Basketball Rules Committee. Howard Hobson, Yale basketball coach was to join the group later. Hobson was to assist Rupp in the coaching department with Bunn and Tower giving instructions in organization and rules, respectively.

Included in the tour was inspection of facilities for basketball in the European theater. This is the second time in Europe for Rupp since he was in Germany and France in the summer of 1945 on the same sort of tour. Coach Rupp followed Coach Paul Bryant in the European trip earlier in the summer and Ass't. Basketball Coach Harry Lancaster's journey to Greece for the same purpose.

Joseph William Willett, '50, of Bardstown, is one of three Kentuckians holding fellowships at the University of Chicago this year. He is working toward a Ph.D. degree in economics.

held true again against Tech who completely blanketed eligible receivers as well.

Despite three heartbreaking, extremely close losses to surprisingly powerful clubs and the prospect of even more difficult days ahead before finishing its man-killing schedule, Kentucky showed no traces of defeatism as plans were pushed for better seasons to come as they had come in the past out of defeat.

Puerto Rican Grad, Wildcat Sponsor

When the Kentucky Wildcat basketball team invaded Puerto Rico last August for an exhibition tour of that country, they found a 1951 graduate of the University, Ileana Rigau, on hand to welcome them and to serve as sponsor for the team.

Ileana now is assistant dietitian at the Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico which is located in San German, and oddly enough, that was where Kentucky made its initial bow—But let Ileana tell the story:

“Soon after graduation this June, I left Lexington to come over and start on my first real job as assistant dietitian at the Poly. Institute in the city of San German.

“Today I take the opportunity to greet you all and send you a check to cover the Alumni Association annual dues and for the Loyalty Fund.

“Just a few weeks ago I got the most wonderful surprise; our UK basketball team of Wildcats came over to Puerto Rico to play a series of games! I was thrilled to death and it has been just grand to visit with them and see them play once again!

“The opening game was played right here in San German and they stayed overnight right here at the Polytechnic Guest House. To my surprise, the athletic authorities down here asked me to have the privilege of throwing up the first ball as part of the opening ceremony, and had a special guest seat for me, together with our boys from UK, for all the games.

“Mrs. Rupp was very sweet and the boys enjoyed the beach and the nice suntans they got here. They played as good as ever and it was great to see them play as always.

“My regards to the members of the Association.”

“Voice Of Giants”, Former UK Student

A feature story on Russ Hodges, New York Giants radio and TV announcer, in the June 5 issue of Look Magazine identifies the well-known broadcaster as a native of Covington, Ky., and a former University of Kentucky student.

According to the story, “Hodges remembers the lean days as the son of a railroad man in Covington, Ky. At WCKY, now in Cincinnati, he earned $20 a week for high school sports broadcasts. In his spare time he did some programming and often sang tenor with WCKY's hillbilly quartet.

“At this stage in his life, economic necessity forced him to give up law school at the University of Kentucky. His mother had worked at the idea of making her son a preacher. She failed. His father, an old semi-pro baseball player, tried to make him into a great baseball player. He failed too. — Sports broadcasting, therefore, offered the next best outlet to a frustrated athlete.”

According to the Look story, Mr. Hodges, in addition to the Giant broadcasts for Chesterfields, announces the Pabst Blue Ribbon bouts over CBS-TV network every Wednesday and will earn $75,000 this year.

UK, Baylor Men On Cat Grid Staff

Pat James, '51, 200-pound, six-foot guard on Coach Paul Bryant's highly successful 1950 football team, and Vic Bradford, backfield coach at Baylor University last fall, have been named assistant football coaches at Kentucky.

James, a regular guard at Kentucky for the past three seasons and one of Kentucky's greatest linemen, is a native of Wheelersburg, Ohio and came to Kentucky from New Boston, Ohio High School where he played football four years and was voted the Most-Valuable-Player award in his senior year. Last March he married Miss Eloise Eubank, '50, of Warsaw, Ky., now associate home demonstration agent for Fayette county.

While playing for Kentucky Pat gained recognition for his play in the Sugar Bowl, as an All-Southeastern Conference defensive guard and was named to the all-opponent team of most of UK's 1950 foes, including Tennessee.

Bradford served as an aide to Coach George Sauer at Kansas in 1946-'47, and in 1948-'49 was an assistant at the Naval Academy at Annapolis. A former All-Southern quarterback at Alabama, he later played baseball in the New York Giants farm system and in 1949 managed the Jacksonville Club in the South Atlantic League. Bradford was in the Navy in 1943-45 and was discharged with the rank of lieutenant, senior grade. He is a native of Brownsville, Tenn., and attended high school at Memphis.

Harry Farmer, '21, formerly of Stanford, Ky., who has spent more than 25 years in service of the Veterans Administration, has been transferred to Cleveland, Ohio to the regional office there.

He has been serving as manager of the Kentucky regional office of the V.A. for the past six years.

Roger Layne, '51, To Coach In Illinois

Roger Layne, '51, reserve center on the Wildcat basketball team has accepted a position as basketball coach at Bridgeport High School, Bridgeport, Ill.

A native of McKamie, Ark., Layne is setting out on his first coaching venture and says he will let his squad determine the type of game he will teach. He will have about 75 boys aspiring to his starting squad. The student body numbers approximately 500.

Along with his duties as head basketball coach Roger will teach two history courses and some physical education classes. He spent the summer term at the University beginning work toward his master's degree.

Capt. H. H. Maxey In Special Training

Captain Horace H. Maxey, son of Mr. J. E. Maxey, RFD No. 1, Wickliffe, Kentucky, recently entered the Hughes Aircraft Company to begin an intensive training-in-industry curriculum under the auspices of the USAF Institute of Technology.

The USAF Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson AF Base, Dayton, Ohio, conducts an officer educational program—in civilian colleges and institutions as well as resident courses—designed to meet the great demand for AF officer specialists in the engineering and scientific fields.

Capt. Maxey served extensively during the war in the South and Southwest Pacific area with the 13th Air Force. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky where he received his Bachelor of Science degree in 1948. He completed work for his master's degree in aeronautical engineering at Purdue University in 1949. Prior to entering the USAF training-in-industry program he was assigned to an Air Force Engineering Field Office in Washington, D. C.

Former Athlete Is Now In U. S. Army

FORT MEADE, MD.—Pvt. Robert R. Bezuk, 469 Ridge Rd., Ambridge, Pa., has completed processing at the 2053d Reception Center here and is assigned to the 101st Airborne Division, Camp Breckinridge, Ky., for Army basic training.

Private Bezuk attended the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., in 1948 and 1949, where he was under study to All-American Babe Parilli on the Wildcats' football squad. Last year, he attended the College of the Pacific, Stockton, Calif. The 22-year-old athlete was inducted into the Army on Sept. 13.

With the 101st, Bezuk will receive 16 weeks of basic military training necessary for all soldiers. Fundamental military subjects such as close order drill, care of clothing and equipment, first aid, scouting and patrolling, and map reading will be taught.

Individual firing of the M-1 rifle, carbine and light machine gun will be included in the battle indoctrination phase of the training.

Alumn Commissioned A WAF; Now In Texas

From college registrar to active duty as a WAF officer is the shift being made by a 29-year-old Californian, Naomi M. McCracken, daughter of Mr. John M. McCracken of Central Valley.

As one of the first young women in the nation to be selected for a commission under a recently instituted program for college graduates with professional or business experience, First Lt. McCracken has reported to Lackland Air Force base, San Antonio, Texas, for her Air Force indoctrination.

Since August, 1948, she has served as registrar for Converse College, Spartanburg, S. C. She holds a master's degree in education from the University.

Entire Future Of UK At Stake Donovan States

The entire future of the University of Kentucky will be affected materially by action of the next General Assembly in the school's budget request of $5,401,536 for each of the next two years, according to President H. L. Donovan.

Highlights of the proposed budget for 1952-53 and for 1953-54 include these increases: $1,000,000 to make up for the loss of income from the federal government; $330,000 for a much needed cost-of-living increase for faculty and staff members; $155,987 to pay the deficiency in the cost of operating the College of Agriculture and Home Economics; $50,000 to meet the demands of farmers for additional research and to cover the increased cost of such research; and $200,000 for Agricultural Extension work for which there is greater and greater demand.

As an example of how the University serves rural Kentucky, President Donovan pointed out that in 1934-38 Kentucky farmers produced an average of 802 pounds of tobacco per acre, while in 1946-50 the average was 1,192 pounds per acre. At average prices received for the 1946-50 crop, the increase in yield per acre on 362,000 acres harvested was worth $61,000,000. A large part of the increase in yield was made possible by the U.K. Experiment Station and Extension Service. Gains from Kentucky's tobacco program alone, in one year, would support the state budget for the University for 12 years, he said.

The University of Kentucky is today at the threshold of greatness, Dr. Donovan declared. "The University cannot afford to retreat from greatness. The state of Kentucky cannot afford to let this happen."

Summing up his budget message, President Donovan said: "If the state of Kentucky fails to appropriate sufficient funds, the only alternative the University will have to balance its budget during the next biennium will be to drop approximately 200 members of its faculty and staff. This is not a cry of 'wolf! wolf!' to frighten anyone. It is a sober statement of a fact of which the people of Kentucky should be made aware before this disaster happens to their University."

What's Wrong with this Picture?

KENTUCKY CAN'T SAY, "THANK GOD FOR ARKANSAS," ANYMORE—How the University of Kentucky compared with neighboring universities in state appropriations received for 1951-52 is shown above. Figures do not include Federal funds, capital outlay, student fees, sales, gifts, etc. In order that U. K. may keep pace with other state universities in this area, it is asking the General Assembly for $5,401,536 for each of the next two years.

sity of Kentucky, Lexington, she received a B.A. degree a New Mexico Highlands University, Las Vegas, N. M., in 1946.

The new Air Force lieutenant is a veteran of wartime experience in the Navy. Enlisting as a WAVE in 1943, she served as a weather forecaster until her discharge in 1945.

After completing an eight week officer training course at Lackland, she will be assigned regular Air Force duty.

DR. DICKEY LIAISON MAN FOR FOUNDATION

Dr. Frank G. Dickey, dean of the University of Kentucky College of Education has been named by President H. L. Donovan to serve as liaison officer between the Danforth Foundation and the University in the screening of candidates for a series of graduate fellowships now being offered by that foundation to college seniors and recent graduates who are preparing themselves for a career of teaching.

These fellowships are open to the above young people who plan to teach either at high school or college level and who are also planning to enter graduate school in September 1952 for their first year of graduate study.

These fellowships will be granted on the basis of need with the amount varying from $500.00 to $2,400.00. Students without financial need are also invited to apply and if accepted will participate in the annual Danforth Foundation conference on teaching and the other activities of the program.

Any student or alumnus wishing further information should contact Dean Dickey.
