ADOLPH FREDERICK RUPP—When the sport of basketball is mentioned today, a direct chain of thought eventually brings out the name of one man who has become virtually synonymous with the game over the past quarter-century—Adolph Rupp of Kentucky.

Such unprecedented recognition for the fabulous cage mentor is only natural since his deeds in the past 27 years as head man of the famous Wildcats of the Bluegrass have resulted in phenomenal success as witnessed by the record of 561 victories out of 658 starts—a winning average of better than 85 percent.

Rupp is recognized by sports authorities as the nation's winningest basketball mentor and one of the game's most astute and colorful students. The amazing "Man in the Brown Suit" is credited in most quarters with doing more than any other modern tutor to make basketball a national spectator sport. From the very outset of his career at Kentucky, which began in 1930, he has introduced or popularized many new and revised trends in the game that have aided materially in making the country basketball-minded. One such innovation was the controlled fast break offensive pattern which has since become the crowd-pleasing trademark of Wildcat cage teams.

The colorful Kentucky Colonel has become, without a doubt, the best known and most widely quoted cage coach in America and his personal fame is equalled only by the success he has instilled in the highly-publicized Kentucky basketball powerhouses.

The record shows an unparalleled honor roll of 17½ Southeastern Conference titles (one was shared), three NCAA Tournament championships, and a National Invitation Tournament trophy. Added to this list of honors, Rupp's distinguished Wildcats own four titles from the Sugar Bowl Tournament and three triumphs in their own high calibre U.K. Invitational Tournament as well as Olympic Trials collegiate bracket laurels in 1948 and a nominal world's championship through participation as one half of the successful USA entry in the '48 Olympic Games.

BY THE NUMBERS

Over the past 18 years, a total of 13 University of Kentucky basketball players have been honored by the school through retirement of their game jerseys.

The first such honor was bestowed on Layton Rouse, All-Conference guard in 1940, whose jersey was retired upon conclusion of his cage career. Other "retirements" were made in 1949 of jerseys worn by members of the "Fabulous Five" and in 1954 of the shirts of the undefeated team.

Although, technically speaking, the numbers on the various jerseys were never retired, many Kentucky fans were surprised to see the numerals of past standouts worn by this year's varsity and freshman players.

The explanation, other than the fact that it was the jerseys rather than numbers that were retired, is traceable to a new section in the basketball rule book which directs that no single digit number greater than 5 or numbers 1 and 2 shall be used this year. The rule book also makes a recommendation that teams use even numbers on their light suits and odd numbers on their dark uniforms.

In order to comply with both the new regulation and recommendation, it has been necessary to again use certain of the numbers which were previously "retired."

BILL CASSADY
Sr. — Forward-Guard
Inez, Ky.

Meet A Wildcat —

LINCOLN COLLINSWORTH
Senior — Guard
Salyersville, Ky.

Undoubtedly one of the finest set shots on the current Wildcat squad, Bill Cassady fills an important role in the offensive pattern popularized by Coach Rupp. A constant scoring threat in close to the basket as well as from outside, Bill has good speed and maneuverability that often allows him to keep the opposition off balance in its defensive plans. Last season, when he operated as a swing man between guard and forward, Bill saw approximately 130 minutes of action in 18 games. He scored 58 points and posted a remarkable shooting accuracy of 57.1 percent on his shots from the field.

A steady defensive ace, but a cager somewhat lacking in the offensive maneuvers that show up in the scoring column—that's the way the experts size up Abraham Lincoln Collinsworth. A hard-working type of player, "Abe" plays it according to the book and can almost invariably be counted upon to follow instructions of his coaches. The biggest problem Abe has tried to solve is the development of a good outside shot since he was a pivotman in high school. He was one of the Commonwealth's most colorful school-boy performers during his senior year at Salyersville, averaging 28 points a game.

STUDENT MANAGERS—Rex Bailey and Dave McClelland

HARRY LANCASTER, Assistant Coach—When Harry Lancaster finds a spare moment to reflect on his days as an all-around star athlete at Georgetown (Ky.) College back in the early thirties, he can recall with a degree of dismay how close he came to never pursuing the "round ball" sport that in the days since has earned him a somewhat unique position in the basketball world.

An All-Conference halfback for three straight years and captain during his last two seasons, Lancaster's football career almost overshadowed his play on the basketball court. In the cage sport, he was equally successful—with three All-Conference nominations and two team captaincies to his credit—but considered himself a better football player than cager. Experience, however, proved him a good student and teacher of the sport of basketball as he began his coaching career.

Lancaster bosses a promising group of yearling cagers and holds down the position of assistant varsity basketball coach and general right hand man to the fabulous Adolph Rupp. When he was made a full-time assistant by Coach Rupp in 1948, Lancaster joined a very select group due to the general scarcity of such positions at major colleges and universities. He was born in Paris, Ky., in 1911, and attended Paris High School, participating for four years in all sports.
