The first part of the book is a history of the world from the beginning of time to the present. It is written in a simple and plain style, and is intended for the use of children and young people.
 The second part is a history of the British Empire, from the reign of King Henry the Second to the present. It is written in a more detailed and interesting style, and is intended for the use of those who are more advanced in their studies. The third part is a history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present, written in a more concise and summary style, and is intended for the use of those who have little time to spare. The fourth part is a history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present, written in a more interesting and entertaining style, and is intended for the use of those who are fond of reading for amusement.
 The fifth part is a history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present, written in a more philosophical and speculative style, and is intended for the use of those who are fond of deep thought and inquiry. The sixth part is a history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present, written in a more practical and useful style, and is intended for the use of those who are fond of learning what they can do to improve themselves and their country. The seventh part is a history of the world, from the
 beginning of time to the present, written in a more entertaining and amusing style, and is intended for the use of those who are fond of reading for pleasure. The eighth part is a history of the world, from
 interesting and useful style, and is
 their country. The ninth part is a history of the world, from the
 beginning of time to the present, written in a more philosophical and speculative style, and is intended for the use of those who are fond of deep thought and inquiry. The tenth part is a history of the world, from the beginning of time to the present, written in a more practical and useful style, and is intended for the use of those who are fond of learning what they can do to improve themselves and their country.
