

Handwritten text in a dense, medieval script, likely a legal or administrative document. The text is written in dark ink on aged, yellowed parchment. The handwriting is compact and consistent throughout the page. The document appears to be a formal record or a set of instructions, given the nature of the script and the layout. The text is arranged in a single column across the page, with some variations in line length and spacing. There is a small hole or mark near the bottom center of the page, which might be a remnant of a binding or a specific marker. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged historical document.

Handwritten text at the bottom of the page, possibly a signature or a concluding phrase. It is written in the same medieval script as the main text. The lines are more widely spaced and include some decorative flourishes, particularly in the second line where there are larger, more ornate characters. This section likely serves as a formal end to the document, perhaps indicating the date or the authority of the writing.