For A Fearless Faculty

ONE of the traditional attitudes assumed at many large universities is that a professor ought not to interject much of his personal interpretation into a lecture or a class-room discussion.

When a few professors, however, do attempt to minimize this attitude in the endeavor to interpret their work in relation to specific modern problems, principally political and economic, they are branded and classified as dangerous and undesirable.

Gene Warren, the farmer-poet, has developed a taste for contemporary American poetry. When we saw him the other evening he was listening avidly to a rugged looking chap who was reciting some of the works of Robert W. Service.

Mr. Sidney Buckley (may his tribe increase) has been keeping himself out of the news lately. But we are reliably informed that he was fined one dollar ($1.00) for cheating at solitaire in the ATO house last week.

Our correspondent at Sewanee apprises us of the fact that they have no sidewalks at that school. And Mr. Hatfield was chiding us about not having a swimming pool!

The earth is degenerating in these latter days. There are signs that the world is speedily coming to an end. Bribery and corruption abound.

President Frederick C. Perry of Hamilton College, expressing distrust of "gloomsters who view the world with alarm," has cited these writings taken from an Assyrian tablet dated 2800 B. C.

The attitude of passive acceptance of things as they are, backed by the reasoning expressed by the Indian in Maxwell Anderson's "High Tor" that "Men's monuments make good ruins."

Editorials advise perspective and the broad view; they condemn what they think of as much ado about practically nothing. Both in and out of school, the undercurrent of ultimate acceptance or compromise tends to create a sort of intellectual backwash that coats over any practical desire for immediate reform.

Scrap Irony

WE have it on good authority that a young lady who is taking a certain social science opened her book the other day. Now, the mere fact that someone taking this subject opened a book is news enough, but this young lady found that her book was about one hundred pages longer than the rest of the books in the class. It upset her, no end. She said, "I noticed that it was a little thicker than the others, but I thought it was just in my eyes."

What we were doing on the corner of Lime-stone and Main at two o'clock Saturday morning is of no import. The significant thing is that we heard the police telephone ringing furiously. We stood there until a policeman came galloping up and, opened the box. He listened for a few moments, whipped out a notebook and wrote something in it, and then said, "O. K., I got it, one package of tobacco, two hamburgers and a chocolate bar with almonds." And we expected, at least, a murder!

One of the downtown department stores adorns its windows with female dummies. There is nothing wrong with female dummies, understand, but it does annoy us to have to look at female dummies that have had figures. Admittedly, these are trying times, what with the Japs and Mae West and everything, but there is absolutely no excuse for having fat dummies. Living human beings cannot help it if they are fat, but dummies, really!

Rumor has it that they are going to move the dispensary into the old law building. The psychology department is to be left holding, what is commonly referred to, as the bag. And Neville hall is certainly a bag of the first order. Why the University doesn't do something about Neville hall, we have never understood.

Resolutions in Memory of Professor Enoch Grehan

Presented to the Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences, January 3, 1938

SINCE this Faculty was last in session, one of its most beloved members has died, Professor Enoch Grehan who passed away Saturday, December 11, 1937.

Professor Grehan labored for the University to the very last, for he discharged his duties to the full, even on the day of his death. He met his classes as usual although unwell, and as Head of the Department of Journalism was host to visiting high school students of Journalism when stricken.

Professor Grehan lived his long life of usefulness in the county where he was born, Fayette, Kentucky. He was graduated from Transylvania University in 1891; and while a student there, he attained distinction as an orator winning medals at a time when intercollegiate forensic contests were the great academic events in Kentucky.

He endeavored himself to his colleagues through his delightful personality, kindly humor, right educational views, and willingness to undertake any task imposed upon him.

The Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences hereby express our regret at his loss to us and to the University, extend our sympathy to his family, and spread this memorial upon the minutes of the Faculty.

A copy of this memorial will be sent to Mrs. Grehan and the local papers.

SIDESHOW

STAG-NAPTE as sorority stunts invariably are, the Kappa-Suited parted the porte-cochères on the University "spring seasonal" Saturday night. Leisurely-paced, the dance marked the first of the annual sessions of the secondary-school brigade, which descends on such affairs in a sweat of energetic dancing.

Watching a dance come to life always invokes a queer sensation. Saturday night at five minutes to ten the ballroom was empty save for the orchestra, which loomed mediocrity to itself. Twenty-seven clusters of balloons, resembling Gargantuan grapes, dangled mysteriously from the ceiling, swaying in the soft light.

Huddled in a little wad in front of and to the left of the bandstand, with half the space unused, the dancers giggled through their deep-seated, seemingly moderately happy about the thing.

Herb Hillenmeyer and Leigh Brown had their last evening together Sunday in E. Q. departed for King-Smith, in Washington, Virginia. Kirby looked quaint in gold. Till facing a tawny operation, Pat Van Meter could not enjoy her own dance. Preliminary KICKS wandered around in search of stages to thrust on their rubes. Most comforting sight of the night was Bob Owen and his fiancée Mary Hawk who were in heaven and looked it.

An innovation in radio programs is the informal dance party at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago. Persons on the dance floor are interrupted, and their favorite musical selection played for them. Everybody seems to enjoy the party and in some instances fairly raw "cracks" are passed by the inter-ference. The time is 10:30 to 12:30 each Saturday over Mutual-WGN.

A new booklet has been printed by the publicity bureau, listing all the radio programs from the University studios during the first six months of 1938. You may obtain one free of charge by simply asking for it any hour between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

The Campus Gospel

By CHARLES GARY

The new skating rink located at Main and Devesee seems to be the latest thing-out for campusites. Although it seems to be nothing more than an old rink, it serves its purpose very well. Thursday night, if you couldn't locate a "Tri-Delt" anywhere, the reason was that there were eight of them wheeling it, at said rink. On Friday night such couples as Harold Bush and Ann Trent; Jean Barker and Sherman Hinkleberry; Camille Mason and "Fudy" Hamner were rolling around as in days gone by. Others there were Helen Myers, looking very sour as usual; Chickie Penn dressed like a little boy about twelve years of age; and Steve Nelson, who was trying to track on skates with the result being a tumble every few minutes.

Virginia Ferguson who has been pinned to Buck Ewing since way back when, received a large bunch of violets with one rose in the center of them, the other day. No card was attached but they were evidently from a suitor of old. As for the rose in the center, it probably stands for "The One Rose."

The best New Year's Eve Party we have ever attended was the one thrown by the Phi Tau at "Smoky" Taylor's house in Covington. Phi Tau, from all over the universe were there, judging by the crowd. The boy who had the worst trouble was Jack Clifton, who decided that he was very bored; he went to sleep.

The Kappa Formal, being the first seriously dance of the year, included the old custom of "snooping" - showing the boys who the one boy is in. In other words, a girl going with a fellow boy will have to select just one to escort her to her sorority dance. The others are left to their sorrow.

Several months ago Preach Smith was at Benton's the same time a newscaster was there. The M. S. came up and told Preach that he had a marvelous profile and should be in the minor decks of living? And many do just that.

Collegiate recreation is a part of every student's life. The search for happiness which is the history of every human life. Ephemeral pleasures are sought for a time at least it substitutes for the real thing. Dances, dates, clubs, fraternities, all go into that basic, passionate longing for one thing: happiness. Some people are blessed enough to pronounce such things worthless, even sinful. Fools! Of what things this world is made is the most priceless, and any activity leading to it, or even simulating it, is valuable beyond all consideration.

Spend all your days seeking it. Nothing else really matters. You may never find it, but a life devoted to the search for happiness is more worthy than a hundred existences wasted in other pursuits.

2. "IT WAS A KNOCKOUT in a different sense! Imagine shouting your 'I do's' above the noise of a truck... and imagine doing it 30 times! Yet, even after this throat strain, I still enjoyed Luckies! They're always ...

3. "GENTLE ON MY THROAT. Others at the RKO-Radio studios agree with me—Barbara Stanwyck and Herbert Marshall, for instance." (Reason: the "Toasting" process expels certain throat irritants found in all tobacco.)

4. "NOW AS REGARDS TOBACCO... Luckies' flavor has always appealed to me very much. So I was interested to read recently that Luckies are the favorite cigarette among the tobacco experts themselves."

EXACTLY how an athletic department exists unmenaced day by day after playing papa to a lamentable football season is something that escapes our comprehension. Nevertheless, Kentucky lost six out of ten grid parties last year and then tried to soap the public by "accepting" the resignations of two of its most admired football faculty members. It strikes Johnnie Fan as a peculiar method for rebuilding the wreckage left by Georgia Tech and Alabama, when pigskin big shots, without a murmur of objection, liberated two of the finest gentlemen in the game, Porter Grant and Tom Gorman. And Johnnie, in a reflective attitude, might think that the big shots were far from rectifying the disorder when Porter and "Kitty" voluntarily threw in the towel.

Newspapers have been bloated with reports of nationally famous coaches resigning. In many cases these mentors rip their contracts to the tune of the howling wolves and "stadium soresheads." South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, Michigan, Southwestern, Mississippi, Oregon State are victims of coaching resignations. But Ole Kentucky, despite her loss-loaded record, placidly toddlers along, seemingly invulnerable to the yapping wolves. Why?

In the first place, nobody seems to care. Coach Wynne admitted last week that he had not received a single nasty letter. This proves definitely that the State is slumbering in indifference. And in the second place, it seems that Coach Wynne is protected by some unnamed big stick that frightens potential critics.

Encircled by these circumstances, Mr. Wynne can eagerly speculate on next season in comparative quiet. But the spurious peacefulness was doomed inexorably to a punch. And it came yesterday, surprisingly enough, from Mr. Wynne's Little Boy Blues, who assembled in McVey hall for the sole purpose of insisting that the University's Athletic moguls to do something toward acquiring Grant and Gorman.

Not only did they insist that the Athletic ring take action in this matter but that unless positive attempts were made to bring back the G-men, the entire squad would quit local football endeavors. If you think the Blues were insincere you should have heard their caucus. Dealing with a football club is different from dealing with students and council members. If the team feels that its desires are justifiable, watch out, Main Street.

Who can better criticize a coach than his team. Surely the Wildcats' emotions on this subject show vividly that Grant's and Gorman's evacuation met with complete disapproval of the squad. Furthermore, we think that if Mr. Wynne had resigned perhaps his team might have presented the had some formal protest.

Because of the athletic department's strict close-mouth policy, we understand only the player's angle. Until they are convinced that the obvious ailments causing our football shortcomings. Instead of yanking some of the weeds out of the garden, the bosses extracted two valuable plants, in the hope that the wolves would be satisfied. Now let them yank a couple of weeds.

The Athletic council convenes Wednesday with manifold intentions. Until that assembly has finished its business, just hold your hair combs for as the voice of Griffith Stadium would say, "Sumpin's gonna happen."
