Life, Liberty, and Pursuit toujours gai

By Adele Druman

LIFE: The girls who are having a small brush with the education course, are really learning the facts of life. They claim that such books as are on the level of Peter Rabbit, and The Little Red Hen have a lot to offer. One girl was gaily whipping through a book about bunions, to get material for an Easter story and she came to a passage, "And your interesting standings, let's look this situation over. You may be or some you, 'cause someone has got to be. These honoraries have gotten pretty low, in fact the men like to refer to them as "ladies sewing circles." Now really you outsiders, know that we have gotten together—stand out!

—Notice to all persons who have any critical ability in drama or music. If you would like to be of service, you can be. It stands to reason that all the plays produced away from Carnegie hall. Let's be reasonable about this. We believe one had the nerve to say something we hit upon the idea of womanly stunk and knew what he was talking about. Now I just bet The Kernel would be grateful if one or two good critics would offer their services.

At last! Tri Delt Marjorie Mitchell and Sig Ep Corkey Clark have gotten the punning to an active state. Isabel Topas and Frank Hues got that way too. Honor Hall has found a new attraction at Jewell hall.

LIBERTY: Notice to all men. What do you look like? Are you very likely that biology will be the decisive science in the next war. Dr. Slack said he felt sure that if as many biologists were assigned to work on a "killer" as there were physicists working on the atomic bomb, and an equal amount of money were allocated to the project, a deadly biological weapon could be found.

CONFIDENT: That Russia already knows the scientific facts necessary for the manufacture of the atomic bomb, he said, "I am, in general, in favor of free dissemination of physics won World War II. It seems scientific knowledge.

At last the racing season is over! And it's about time. Everybody's tired of losing money.

What interested us most at the races were the various methods used for picking the winners of the day. It seems that most track enthusiasts are quite superstitious. We bet on every eleventh horse. Not because the racing form recommended it, but because eleven happens to be our lucky number. But did it do any good? NO! We gave that up after awhile and decided to lay our bets on those horses which appeared attractive. But did we know any at Guignol don't make Broadway thing about horses? NO! So we quit that and decided to bet on the colors of the jockeys' shirts. Some away from Carnegie hall. Let's be reasonable about this. We believe one had the nerve to say something we hit upon the idea of womanly stunk and knew what he was talking about. Now I just bet The Kernel would be grateful if one or two good critics would offer their services.

was really rugged. Ditto for the people who played the parts in the skit. Jean Oestjen, who played the role of an oil painting, was fired up to look like the ugliest woman we've ever seen. And, during the satirization of dorm life, "Tish" Hames, who pulled out of a double bunk the following items: one goldfish bowl complete with goldfish, a tennis racket, a book, a lamp, a few clothes hangers, magazines and godknowswhat, was really a riot. And now I wish to exonerate Billie Fisher. When I glanced out into the spotlight in only an unmentionable, it but because eleven happens to be our lucky number. But did it do any good? NO! ## Bring Back Men's Honoraries

With the reactivation of Pershing Rifles and Scabbard and Blade in September two of six men's professional societies will be taken from the inactive list. At present only three of the nine such organizations listed by the University are active.

Only the oldest students on the campus can remember the days of the Scabbard and Blade dances, and the election of company sponsors. Until 1942, the leadership fraternities, Lamp and Cross, Lances, and Keys added much to the traditional campus activity, but with the war they went the way of all men's organizations.

Also among the war fatalities were the recognition groups: Sigma Gamma Epsilon, and Sigma Phi Sigma. The Aviation club passed out of sight, as did the K-club. Mr. Shively sponsored the club which banded together the men who had won varsity letters in major sports. And the animal husbandry group, Block and Bridle, became a memory.

The Military expects a sufficient number in their advanced class by September to revive their societies—why not bring back to life the others, both professional and honorary? Certainly there are enough men enrolled now. Freshmen men should not miss the opportunity to be elected by their fraternity to Keys, just as the junior men should be given the chance to make Lances.

Tuesday night at the Women's Convocation, the organizations for women bestowed honors for the year and pledged new members. The men should be given similar recognition. They can be active in clubs other than the Veterans' club. Indeed it would be an asset to the whole campus to have the traditional men's groups reactivated.

An advanced class such as the military require is not needed in all the societies, and there are many eligible members back in school. Why wait any longer? Bring back the institutions that are a part of the University in the minds of the pre-war grads for the new generation to enjoy. They've missed enough of college life.

Kernel Profits To Finance New Journalism Building

The University's student-owned newspaper—The Kernel—made this week's edition of Editor and Publisher, in an article written by Dr. Niel Plummer, head of the Journalism department.

Quoting—"With more than $100,000 in student-owned property and investments to back them, journalism students at the University of Kentucky are moving near their goal of a student-owned publications building. They plan to amortize the cost, $150,000, over a term fitted to future earnings of The Kernel printing plant.

The article goes on to tell how The Kernel began back in 1924 when faculty members backed students with their personal credit. And how the plant has expanded until today the department, one of the 34 schools accredited by the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism, directs the operation of a complete printing plant in full-time operation on annual self-sustaining budgets ranging between $30,000 and $50,000.

Those on the University campus who are less familiar with the workings of The Kernel should know that they as a part of the student body have a definite interest in this investment. Here in the new building will be lasting and tangible proof of student enterprise. Not only has the plant helped young men and women work their way through school, and furnished experience for future journalists, but with its profits will also make a lasting contribution to the University in a Journalism building.

At many colleges the papers are financed by the administrations, and many are "party" papers instead of the professional type that The Kernel strives to be. The staff feels that in its student-owned newspaper, and in the contribution it is making, UK has something unique among colleges—and something to be very proud of.

Vet About UK

By Clayton Roland

School Vets Leave Fay

Some University vets may not know they are entitled to 2 1/2 days leave for each month in school. In figuring the amount of leave due, absences are deductible from the number of days due the veteran. Four class absences constitute the loss of one day. This leave is automatically given to those vets enrolled under Public Law 16, however vets under Public Law 346 may apply for their leave in Room 294, Administration building, before it is given the war.

A veteran under P.L. 346 should think twice before applying for this leave as it is deducted from his total period of entitlement. A person not planning to use his entire period of entitlement would advantageously use this leave provision in the law. Maurice Jackson, VA assistant training officer, said yesterday, the Veterans Administration is sending a representative to discuss summer school attendance and accumulated leave at a meeting in Memorial hall, at 4 p.m., Wednesday, May 1.

Attention Pacific Vets! The chief concern out in the Pacific area is doing an about-face and the number of days due the veteran. Their rightful owners. A photo history of the Pacific war—1,000,000 photos, movie films and diaries to return all categorized and stored in a Honolulu warehouse—now stored in a Honolulu warehouse for their in Room 294, Administration building, before it is given the war.

Anyone owning any of these valuable items before applying for this leave should return them "sound off" within the next few weeks or else they will be destroyed. Inquiries should be addressed to: Office of the Chief Censor AFMIDPAC, APO 958, 9 P.M., San Francisco, Calif.

Golf News

The UK golf team will open its season at Ashland golf course this afternoon, rain or shine, when they play Miami University. Golf Coach Frank Atkins has selected the men who he wants on his team by the process of elimination. Last week each tryout turned in the scores that he made on 54 holes, and from these scores Coach Atkins picked the nine highest ranking. From these players the first four will in all probability, be the ones selected to play against Miami this afternoon.

The men selected were, in order, as follows: Richard Hicks, Malcolm McMullen, Harry Cromer, Buck Weaver, Nick Nicholas, Howard Stephenson, Frank Huse, Charles Skidmore, and James Wilbur. The men who will play this afternoon, unless last minute changes are made, will be Hicks, McMullen, Cromer, and Weaver.

The team has been practicing hard for the past several days and now seems to be in good shape to take on top opponents.

The schedule for the season is as follows:

- April 25—Miami University, Ashland (here).
- April 27—Tennessee, Ashland (here).
- April 29—Cincinnati, Ashland (here).
- May 3—Cincinnati, (there).
- May 11—Tennessee, (there).
- May 18—Miami, U (there).

Jim Powell, Bedford, Ky., flinger, was named today by Coach Frank Moseley as Kentucky's probable starting pitcher when the Wildcats baseball team opens its season against the Georgetown College nine on Stoll field Saturday afternoon.

"Right now it looks like we'll have a good season," Moseley said, "but we'll know more about that after Saturday."

Moseley has not been able to devote all of his time to the baseball team as he spends most of the afternoon coaching the backs on the football team. He has not been able to look over all of the prospects for the team as practice starts at 2:30 every afternoon and since many of the enthusiasts have classes at that time, he has not been able to see the team at its full strength.

Although he is not yet sure of his starting lineup, he expects to choose them from the following men: Trivette or Rose, third base; Jones or Garrett, first base; Allin or Butlerman, catcher; Yeasin, shortstop; Beard, second base; Gardiner, left field; Dunlap, centerfield.

'The Low-Down'

By Dick Lowe

What has Coach Bear Bryant done to rejuvenate the football hopes at the University of Kentucky? The school, the ardent followers, and the competition are all wondering the same thing: what will the new coach and his staff come up with to keep Kentucky from being the welcome mat of all teams that come to the Blue Grass? Well, no one will really know until the season is under way in the fall, but the guess is that it couldn't be any worse than the aggregation that represented Kentucky last season. Bryant called an early practice to look over some hopefuls and then after reducing the squad to only those whom he said wanted to play football, he set about to teach them his style, starting with fundamentals.

The spirit that was so lacking last season was finally found when contact practice became a daily habit and the returning veterans led the way with their fighting spirit and determination.

Bryant was well pleased about the showing of most of the players and sideline coaches expressed the opinion that next season's Wildcats would be better than generally expected.

As we said before no one will know how Kentucky will fare on the gridiron next year, but they will be given an opportunity to see the members of the team in action and then over the summer months set up a coal stove club to decide the fate of the coming year. Coach Bryant announced that he would give the public an early view of the team in action with an inter-squad game Friday night, May 3. The proceeds will go to the athletic fund. He has divided the squad up into two equal teams with Assistant Coaches Carl Lassic and Mike Baltisaris heading the White team and Assistant Coaches Frank Moseley and Joe Atkinson heading the Blue team. Bryant will not be connected with the team that night except as a fan in the stands.

The two teams will use the same offense, but will be permitted a maximum of two plays that will be unknown to the other team. The "T" formation and the Notre Dame shift will be used for the offensive plays.

The two teams will practice separately starting Monday and be separated until after the game. Members of the White squad are Haas, Green, Richards, Kazimiski, Drury, Beeler, Bean, McDonald, Hensley, Simpson, Stoull, Ridge, Browning, Bentley, Chambers, Heflinger, Vincent and Robert Schifferdecker, Martin, Jones and Farris. Members of the Blue team are Lair, Gray, Browning, Scrin, Cordell, Andrujanas, Heinzeinger, Bradshaw, Althaus, Scngle, Moseley, Chieplach, Kuhh, Tunstall, Yost, Jacobs, and Phelps. ## Time Out!

By O. C. Halyard Jr.

This is the third in a series of articles written in an effort to promote spring sports at the University of Kentucky. It is our firm opinion that one of the best ways to promote the spring sports, especially since the season for them is so short, is by providing sheltered provisions for the early practice of these sports.

We firmly believe that the followers and fans of the University would like to see tennis, baseball, track and golf as well as football brought up on a par equal to that of any school in the country. Already our basketball team is second in name, and an extensive program to improve football at Kentucky is under way to the tune of $100,000. In addition to this the University is planning a large field house to accommodate the crowds demanding to see the Wildcats in action on the hardwood and to furnish Kentucky for a number-one swimming team.

Already tennis is getting back to the previous level, and coach Moseley has said he expects to have baseball back to its prewar level in three years. Coach Jacobs and the boys are working hard to get Kentucky up in the sports world in track, and we mustn't forget that Wildcat golf teams were once respected by many schools.

As those of you know, who have been following our crusade, we proposed an inexpensive addition to the field house including an area of ground from the weather, large enough for a couple of clay tennis courts, baseball infield, a track around the edge, and a putting green. All this may sound like a lot, but if you stop and figure, it could be confined to an area of reasonable size.

Once the small expenditure was made for the addition, a minimum of up-keep would be all that was necessary to furnish provisions indefinitely for the early practice of the sports. Surely, with such an opportunity to put Kentucky on top in all athletics, we won't let the expenditure of a little additional money stand in our way. Especially since we're already figuring in the hundred of thousands of dollars.

Some persons say why not be contented just to field first rate teams in basketball and football. On the other hand, there's a large

Tennis Team Plays

By O. C. Halyard Jr.

Kentucky fans had to put off until tomorrow their first opportunity to find out how the tennis team is going to stack up against some real tennis.

Kentucky 7-0 victors over Georgetown in their opener last Saturday, and 9-0 victors over Berea last Monday, will travel to Cincinnati to play the Bearcats Monday afternoon. Following that they will leave for their four-day trip through the South during which time they will meet Tennessee Tech, Vanderbilt, Sewanee, and Georgia Tech.

According to Coach H. E. Downing, Cincinnati and Georgia Tech along with Notre Dame will probably furnish the Wildcats with their toughest competition this year. Kentucky will play Notre Dame here on May 11, after a return match with Cincinnati on May 8.

In the two meets already played, the Wildcats haven't lost a set in either singles or doubles. And one member of the team still can boast of a perfect record in games. John Merritt has won all four of his sets 6-0. In games lost, Billy Hodges ranks next, having dropped only four in four sets played. Captain Al Reynolds has lost six, Dick Meadows, nine, and Carroll Fears, ten. Tommy Ashby has lost only one game, but has played in only two sets of singles. In doubles Kentucky has lost 22 games while winning 63 out of ten sets.
