My dear Sir,

Your letter of the 29th gladdens me very much, & I gladly answer your questions.

"No LXIX" is quite right according to the back & side of the wrapper; and I fancy that the last number of an older series was reckoned as the first of that series; otherwise "Vol. XLX No II" should have been No LXX. Such things are within my experience of periodical literature.

In "Zastrozzi" you have caught me & my pen with tripping: we passed the misprint: it should have been noted; and I have not noted it in my interleaved copy. Many thanks for the information and also for that about "the Liberal", of which I never heard. I should much like to describe it fully in the Bibliography I have nearly ready for press. Is it worth reprinting?

I should like to compare notes with you generally about Shelleyana: we might learn much from each other.

I don't know who wrote the article of Jan. 1858; but will try to find out. You should also have for your volume the article on Trelawny's Recollections in Apr. 1858 & the one on the Spurious letters in April 1852.

I enclose a sort of private prospectus of a bibliographical detail that it may possibly interest you to note if
