

and the argument for an irrefutable authentication could appear to me
irresistible.

I will take all care
of the books & return
them in a few days

faithfully yours

J. A. Ford

57
Prose
on teleph-curious

5 Ashes garden
June 8 1866

My dear Recr

I am thoroughly obliged to you for the "documents". They are full of interest - and I shall feel after going through them to I know ^{about the manner} all that the French have to tell.

I also have to bring out our features ^{among its causes} which has been ~~unrepresented~~ any where

I am sorry you don't like Stephen's paper on Ecc. Horns. - It seems to me that we have got to a point where the question

which he raises must be looked in the face. & we must either find answers to them or admit frankly that there are none to be found. - If we flinch for fear of consequences our children will be landed in Rome -

Admit that we are bound to believe certain things and yet that must not argue about them or look into their evidence