

17, Hanover Terrace,
Regents Park, NW.

25. 3. 17

Dear Spielmann

No. "A Jacobite's
Farewell" is in the "Poems and Ballads Third Series" of 1889. Thanks, I am not interested in the illustrations.

It is amusing to learn that you were made to pay well by "the most energetic and zealous agent," but will it surprise you to learn that not one penny of what you paid went to the poet himself?

Every penny was pocketed by the "energetic and zealous agent."

Some day I hope you will not fail to tell me the outburst about D.C.R. and M.S.

But the captivity
of the poet of Putney, and what he had to endure,
will they be ever told?
My bloody boils when

I read about T.W.D.:
"genius for friendship"!! He had the genius of profitable parasitism.

Yours very sincerely
Edmund Gosse