

74, Brook Street,
 Grosvenor Square,
 W.

Dec. 3rd. 1889.

Dear Miss Canning,

We have had our grate in constant use for 28 years, and it works as perfectly to-day, as it did at the beginning. To the best of my memory, the only thing it has needed, during these years, has been the renewal of the fire-brick at the back. I can only say, it has been, and is, an inestimable comfort to us.

The Grate was invented by Dr. Neil Arnott, a man of well-known talent, and a member of the Senate of the University of London.

I have obtained from the shop the enclosed prospectus of the grate, where you will see all the arrangement of it.

I have marked the size that we have in use, and which we have found most suitable for our bed-rooms.

If the maid who attends to the grate is taught to understand the working of it, it will give no trouble.

I regret to say, that Sir William continues very weak, and this cold weather depresses him a good deal.

He unites with me in kind regards,

and believe me,
yours very truly,
S. A. Gull