London Oct 6th 1874.

My dear Mr. Osgood

That book of mine has, I suppose, appeared ere now; it saw light here about Oct. 1st. If practicable, I would suggest your combining the receipts from it (if any) with those from my father's books, and remitting them at the same times - viz. May and November. Moreover, it would be an immense convenience to me if you could manage to send the first account on this coming November. All moneys may be sent in cheques on H. S. King & Co. at their banking house in Pall Mall, no. 46.

Two hundred dollars ($200.00) must be paid to Mr. Geo. S. Hillard, on my account, next month, out of the total amt. accruing to me. I fell into an absurd mistake the other day, owing to Mrs. Hillard's having written to me, as I understood her, that my affairs (owing to Mr. Hillard's indisposition) had been handed over, without my knowledge or consent, to a certain Mr. Clarke. Who "Mr. Clarke" might be, of course I did not know. Mr. James R. Osgood, Boston.

know; but he appeared to be very dilatory in making payments; and I wrote rather sharply to the effect that he should hand over my concerns to my friend W. G. Peckham; and meanwhile I drew on Mr. Hillard for the amount I needed; the remittance being nearly three months late. I subsequently discovered that Mr. Clarke was your Mr. Clarke; and that Mr. Hillard still retained his position as my minister of finance. Will Mr. Clarke accept my apologies for a hastiness for which I was not, perhaps, altogether to blame?

In the course of a month or so I shall take the liberty to send you one or two articles for insertion in the "Atlantic"; with the present address of whose Editor I am unacquainted. One, at least, will be a chapter from the book on Saxony which I have at present on the stocks, and which I hope to have you publish.

With a sincere aspiration for our success in "Idolatry" - may it become the public idol - I remain

address Care H. S. King

Yours faithfully

Julian Hawthorne
